"Which things are an allegory: for these are the two covenants; the one from Mount Sinai, which gendereth to bondage, which is Agar." Gal. iv. 24. This covenant Paul is speaking of here, the one which "gendereth bondage, given at Mount Sinai," is the ten commandments covenant given in Ex. xx. I know our Seventh Day friends try to dodge this, by claiming this covenant was given in Ex. xix. 5, but if the reader will turn to Ex. xix., you will find that the words constituting the covenant there spoken of, are not uttered until you get to the 20th chapter. Only the Lord said, "Now, therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people," Ex. xix. 5, showing the covenant yet future. "And all the people answered together, and said, All that the Lord hath spoken we will do." v. 8. That is, they agreed to obey his voice, and keep his covenant, which you will find not given until you get to the 20th chapter. Read the 19th chapter and you will find I am correct. And you will find this same covenant spoken of again in Deut. iv. 13. And again in Deut. v. 2, 3, which Moses declared was not made with their fathers, but with them that were "Alive this day." Nevertheless, there are people today that make Moses out a liar, to sustain their false theory. "But now hath he obtained a more excellent ministry, by how much also he is the Mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises. For if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second." Heb. viii. 6, 7. Yes, this New Covenant was "established on better promises," for there were no promises in the ten word covenant, so it was not faultless, if it had been, then should no place have been sought for the second, or New Covenant. And Paul says Christ is the Mediator of the New Covenant (Testament). Heb. xii. 24. The better covenant established on better promises? Yes, we find this "better Covenant," "New Covenant," the "Everlasting Covenant." Heb. viii. 6, 13; xii. 20. "In that he saith a New Covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away." Heb. viii. 13. Paul said the first covenant waxeth old, and ready to "vanish away." And yet there are people who believe and teach this Old Covenant binding on us today, eighteen hundred years after it had waxed old and vanished away. It is astonishing how blind some people are. Why not let the Old go, and be able ministers of the New Testament, (or Covenant) which promises life. 2 Cor. iii. 6. "Not in tables of stone." v. 3. "But their minds were blinded: for until this day remaineth the same vail untaken away." In reading of the Old Testament (or Covenant) v. 14. Which vail is done away in Christ, or by accepting Christ, and be instructed, and guided by the New Covenant. Christ is become of no effect unto you. "Whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace." "A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump." Gal. v. 4, 9. If Paul was here, he would be afraid of those that try to make religion include observing days. Gal. iv. 10, 11.

Jesus the Way.

We often hear moral people say—"This or that person, (meaning some one) claims to be a Christian. If he can be saved I think I need have no fears of being lost."

I wish it were possible to make such understand the truth. It seems so plain that—the way of salvation.

Let me liken the kingdom of God to a beautiful city set on a very steep mountain and encompassed by walls very high and thick. (The walls representing our sinfulness), and Jesus to a gate.

There is to this city but one gate; and from that, leading down to the plain below, is a narrow, rugged path. The people in the valley have heard of this city, and have had the path that leads to it, pointed out to them. But it looks rough and steep: and they see, not far from it at the beginning, another path, broad and smooth, and leading, apparently in the same direction. The people going the narrow way are stumbling along, creeping painfully, slowly on. But beside this way all along the path until the city is reached, is a strong chord; and holding on this as they go, they can not stumble. It is only when they let go their hold and turn back toward the valley, that they fall. And some, looking on, call them foolish for going that way, and trusting to such a frail support: when by going the other road they could walk erect alone. And still they travel on, and by and by the chord they have trusted leads them straight to the gate, and as they near it, it opens and they enter the city, and find a warm welcome from those gathered there. Whereas those who trusted the broad way and their own judgment, find themselves at the end of the journey, face to face with a broad high wall. They look up, but realize, though they walked the road alone, they can never scale the wall. What shall they do? They want to enter the city, they hear the sound of music and rejoicing. They look around and find ladders of various lengths, (good deeds and morals). They try first one, then another, but they are all far too short. Then they find rope (their faith in them) and they try to tie them together, but even then they are to short: and if they were not it would be unsafe to climb. They look for the gate, but it is far away. They have no guide, night with its deepening shadows has come, and they are without the city.

"There is no other name under heaven, given among men whereby we must be saved," but the name of Jesus. He is the way. He is the gate to the city—the kingdom of God, and the chord that leads to the city, is faith.

Dear Restitution:

Elder D. M. Butler of Muscatine, Ia., has been in this city, Wilmington, N. C., but I am sorry to say, the city would not receive him, but praise the name of Jesus a few of us did all we could to get him a place where he could speak the everlasting gospel to hungry thirsting souls. He gave a few lectures in a church on the outskirts of the town, and the house was packed on every occasion. It was food for our souls, for he surely has the spirit of Christ: but, and to say, about the time he got a large number interested he had to leave to meet other appointments. We hope he will be able to come back again about August or September and bring a tent with him. then he could speak the truth and the churches could not stop it. The people will certainly go to hear if we only have a preacher, and I feel confident a church could be organized. The people who heard the Word of God in regard to those who advocate the lie the serpent uttered in the garden of Eden, "Ye shall not surely die," are now rejoicing in the truth of God. And now we ask you, the followers of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, to help send Brother Butler to us again next fall, we need just such a man as he is, a man directed of God, with the sword of spirit. If the readers of this paper think the people of North Carolina worth considering we earnestly entreat you to take this request to the Lord in prayer that a way may be opened up to reach us. Pray for me and my family. Yours looking for the soon return of our blessed King.

OBITUARY.

The hand of death has again passed through the flock at Rensselaer, leaving sorrow in its path, and warning to those standing near the scene. Like time, death is one of those elements of the universe of God which seems never to grow weary, but is ever and anon fastening its grasp upon new subjects, unrelentingly holding them in its dark domain.

In that darkness now rests our late Sister in Christ, Mrs. Mary Starbuck Dwiggins, who died at the home of her daughter, Sr. B. Paris, Rensselaer, Ind., April 13, 1897.

Sr. Dwiggins was born in Guilford County, North Carolina, June 23, 1811, was united in marriage to Daniel Dwiggins, Oct. 13, 1831. Together they united with the Church of God in Rensselaer, in 1860. He succumbed to death's grip June 5, 1885.

In the death of Sr. Dwiggins the little band of believers at this place lose one of their oldest members. Paralysis first threatened her about three years ago, conquering her mortality on date above mentioned.

Her faith was in him who died that we might live; her hope was as that of the Fathers of old; her thoughts and her mental vision rested upon that day when "the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first."

Bro. D. T. Halstead conducted funeral services.

Report.

By request the writer has visited the Brush Creek Church, in Ohio, leaving home April 5th and returning April 16th.

It was truly encouraging to again meet with the brethren and sisters of this place, after an absence of nine weeks, and to be surrounded with the activity manifested among them. Nor was it at all discouraging, while speaking of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, to read the thoughts unintentionally written by the listeners upon their own faces—written not with iron pen, but by posture of deep meditation: by face filled with hope: by eyes beaming with gladness, and others filled with tears of joy: each in their own way telling of the blessings that await the faithful.

Three more were immersed who arose from the watery grave to walk, we hope, in newness of life.

Several were regular attendants at the meetings, who personally witnessed that they accepted as Bible truth the doctrine taught, but who nevertheless, refrained from obeying. For such it is impossible but to sorrow.

While for the obedient it is impossible but to rejoice hoping that a "crown of life" may soon be theirs.

The remuneration received for the work was ample.

The Turko-Grecian War.

The tide of battle has again turned on the Thessalian frontier. Reports from Athens are to the effect that the Greeks, after a desperate battle at Mati, in which of course they were outnumbered, retreated, abandoning both Tyrnavos and Larissa, and removed their headquarters to Pharsalos, about twenty miles south of the latter place. The Greeks made their retreat in good order, and as there is no statement that the Turks followed up their advantage by pursuit it would seem to indicate that they too must have met with heavy loss.

The retreat, if correct, must prove a serious blow to the Greeks, who have held their position at Tyrnavos with splendid courage, considering their inferior numbers. There is nothing to indicate, however, that they will not make another stand and contest the advance of the Turks over the Thessalian plains with the same determination they have manifested since the latter got through the mountain passes. There is some hope for them yet from the operations of the other division of their army, which has penetrated Macedonia and it is reported has reached the rear of the Turkish base at Mossoura, on the Mount Olympus side. If it can hold itself there and cut off Turkish communications and supplies the Turks may find themselves yet in a dangerous situation, as the Greek fleet has already destroyed an immense amount of their supplies on the Salonica Gulf coast. What this division may do, however, is largely matter of conjecture, and may not in any event compensate for the loss of Larissa, which is the most serious blow the Greeks have yet received. If the Turks are prompt and powerful enough to follow up their advantage it may be the beginning of the end for little Greece.

London, April 25.—Following the Greek defeat at Larissa the pressure already moving to intervene, and the end of the war seems to be in sight.

It is believed that intervention will first take the form of a suggestion of armistice, to which the combatants would no doubt agree. Since yesterday afternoon the British Foreign Office has been in close communication with the other members of the European concert, Great Britain, suggesting that the time has now arrived for them to act. The French, German, and Italian Governments have already responded, offering to agree, though the German Government adds as a condition that it will be necessary to exact a pledge from Greece to obey the mandate of Europe when this mandate is again given.

The British Foreign Office believes that Greece will give his pledge, as the disasters which have overtaken her have demonstrated that Turkey still possesses a formidable fighting machine—a fact which must have a sobering effect upon the popular demand for war at Athens, and which will permit the Greek nation to climb down without disgrace after a superb vindication of the personal courage of the Greek troops and gratifying demonstration of Hellenic patriotism.

If the Greeks listen to reason and arguments pressed at Athens and Russia and Constantinople it is not improbable that a decision will be reached by Tuesday, before which it is not supposed here that Edhem Pasha or Osman Pasha will have time to do more than to appear at Pharsalos.

Constantinople, April 25.—The Ambassadors of the powers at a meeting yesterday decided to address identical notes to the Turkish government asking that the Greeks employed by the foreign ministries, Consulates, and hospitals, and all Greek ecclesiasts be permitted to remain in Turkey.

The Ambassadors also propose that the Foreign Consulates use their good offices in behalf of the Greeks, who represent the interests of the foreign capital, and finally they will recommend that in any case Government should observe moderation in carrying out the expulsion of the Greeks.

The question is a very serious one, as at Constantinople alone there are 40,000 Greeks and throughout Turkey there are about 200,000 Greeks. Fears are expressed that disturbances will occur during the Greek Eastertide, which begins today. Nevertheless, a notice was read in all the mosques yesterday enjoining the Turks not to molest the peaceable Greeks, the war being a matter between the two armies.

Paris, April 26.—The Berlin correspondent of Figaro telegraphs that it is semi-officially announced there that Greece will neither solicit nor accept the intervention of the powers, and is preparing to negotiate direct with Turkey.

Athens, April 26.—The Asty published the following the official note this evening:

"M. Delyannis today had a long interview with King George, who again assured the Premier that he was prepared to approve any decision the government might reach with a view to the improvement of the situation. After the audience a cabinet council was held at 2 o'clock, and was still sitting at 5. It is expected that energetic decisions will be arrived at, but all reports as to the resulting of staff officers are premature."

The excitement here is increasing and in many quarters a Cabinet crisis is expected.

London, April 26.—The Turks are still outside of Larissa. By orders of the General in command, the invaders, however, have commenced to burn certain villages, but there is reason to believe they are behaving well, on the whole.

Great alarm is felt at Volo, where 10,000 fugitives have flocked into the town. The government is trying to allay a panic, promising that the fleet will, in any case, defend the city. There is no doubt that the Turks will shortly advance on it.

The Greeks have managed to concentrate 40,000 men in Pharsala, but lost enormous supplies of ammunition and food.

In all probability the Greek Nation will try one more great battle, and, if defeated in this, it is not unlikely that there will be a change in the royal family at Athens. Discontent is growing and the King will be made the scapegoat.—Tribune.

Poetry.

"Behold, I Come Quickly."

Have the thunders ceased to hurtle
Through the dim and furled sky?
Are the hands of nations clasped
In perennial amity?
Has the dawn o. Glory, sighed for
By the poet and the sage,
Ushered in the tearless morning
Of an endless happy age?

Has the sea of earth's commotion
Lulled in everlasting calm?
Shall the nations rest in peace
In the shadow of the palm?
Has, to dwell in darksome cavern,
War, the demon, fled confounded,
And the jubilee of mankind
Over hill and valley sounded?

No! the voice of murder shrieks
Through the solitude and city;
No! beside the couch of death
Wails the tender voice of pity;
No! in echoes terrible,
Voice to voice responsive rings
From the smouldering plains of Poland,
From the congress of the kings;

No! resounds the throbbing West
From its rocky heights and Llanos;
No! reply the leaping breakwaters
From a hundred hushed volcanoes.
Soon the hypocrite shall see
False-hood's refuge overflowed,
For the heavy chord of judgment
Quivers with its thunder load.

Soon, the messages of woe,
Europe's telegraphs shall tremble;
Soon in battle's dark array
Armageddon's hosts assemble;
Mutinied soon beneath his banner
Antichrist's vast armies be,
Like the hissing, heaving billows
Of a dark and surging sea.

Climb the watch-tower, O believer;
Take the telescope in hand
And the glimmering horizon
Of the Orient sky command;
There, beyond the brooding darkness,
There, beyond the ocean strife,
Thou shalt catch a streak of radiance,
Herald of a world's new life,

When the blooms of Paradise
Once again shall sweet our clime,
And the storm and mist forever
Vanish from the hills of Time,
When from a descending city,
Angel melodies shall ring,
Hill and valley shout, Hosannah!
Glory to the coming King!

The Two Prophets.

"Behold I will send you Elijah, the prophet, before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord." It is claimed that John the Baptist fulfilled this prophecy, but I think not. "For the angel said thou shalt call his name John. And he shall go before him in the Spirit and power of Elias to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord." Luke i. 13, 17. We believe that John was a type of, for it was only the Spirit and power of Elias that he came in, and I see no great and dreadful day about the Savior's ministry, when here on his mission of mercy. "For the angel said unto the shepherds, fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly Host praising God and saying glory to God in the highest and on earth peace and good will to men." Luke ii. 14-16.

And again, just before the close of the Savior's ministry, when he was on his way up to Jerusalem, "And a great multitude spread their garments in the way, others cut down branches from the trees and strewed them in the way. And the multitude that went before and that followed cried, saying Hosanna to the Son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest. And when he was come into Jerusalem all the city was moved saying, who is this? And the multitude said this is Jesus the prophet of Nazareth, of Galilee." Matt. xxi. 8-11. Such was the rejoicing at the Savior's birth and ministry. And all of his acts were that of blessing the people, where ever opportunity afforded. And to say that it was a dreadful day would be out of harmony with the Scripture, and I do not find the place where Christ quoted from the fourth chapter. But he did from the third. "Behold, I send my messenger before thy face which shall prepare the way before me." Matt. xi. 10; Mal. iii. 1. And from this to the fourteenth verse he mentions John's name three times, calls him John the Baptist twice, and John once, and then says, "If ye will receive it this is Elias which was to come," then pass on to the 18th verse. He is still John. This is sufficient evidence that Christ represented the angel's testimony concerning John. And not Malachi's prophecy. "And this is the record of John when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him who art thou? And he confessed and denied not but confessed I am not the Christ. And they asked him what then, Art thou Elias? And he saith I am not. Art thou that prophet? And he answered, no. He said, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, make straight the way of the Lord as said the prophet Isaiah." John i. 19, 20, 21, 23. Here we find he confessed he was not the Christ, nor that prophet. We believe he knew. We will quote a part of Malachi 4th chapter, "Behold the day cometh that shall burn as an oven and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly shall be stubble, and the day that cometh shall burn them up saith the Lord of Hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch." And we notice the same day mentioned in the third, and in the fifth verses of this chapter. And in the fifth hesays, "Behold I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord."

Over eighteen hundred years have elapsed since John fulfilled his mission. And there is as much pride and wickedness in the world today as ever. Dare we take a paragraph out of the heart of a prophecy and leave the principal part unfulfilled, when the day of fulfillment is mentioned in three verses out of six in one chapter. This chapter is too closely joined together for uninspired men to tamper with. And from the days of John the Baptist until now I fail to see the time either in history, or the Scripture when the wicked were all burned up root and branch. We are expecting Elijah to precede this day and if it is in the past we are deceived. This is the day Peter speaks of that shall "come as a thief in the night when the heavens shall pass away with a great noise and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, and the works in the earth shall be burned up. Nevertheless, we according to his promise look for a new heaven and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness." 2 Pet. iii. 10, 13. Isaiah says: "And when ye see this your heart shall rejoice and your bones shall flourish like an herb: and the hand of the Lord shall be known toward his servants and his indignation toward his enemies. For behold the Lord will come with fire and with chariots like a whirlwind to render his anger with fury and his rebuke with flames of fire. For by fire and by his sword will the Lord plead with all flesh: and the slain of the Lord shall be many." Isa. lxvi. 14, 15, 16. And the Revelator speaking of this day says: "And the heavens departed as a scroll when it is rolled together: and every mountain and island were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bond man, and every free man, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains, and said unto the mountains and rocks, fall on us and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb. For the great day of his wrath is come and who shall be able to stand?" Rev. vi. 14, 17. "And he says, I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet, For they are the spirits of devils working miracles which go forth unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world to gather them to the battle of the great day of God Almighty." Rev. xvi. 13, 14.

"Behold I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments lest he walk naked and they see his shame." Ver. 15. Too late to put on a wedding garment at this stage of God's purpose. Matt. xxii. 11-14. And in the 11th chapter of Revelation there are two prophets mentioned that are to smite the earth with plagues. And as God promised to send Elijah we believe he will. And there appears to be another prophet besides Christ and Elias that the priests and Levites could not locate mentioned in John i. 21-25. We believe God will represent the antediluvian age with the antitype of the righteousness of that age. And as Enoch's prophecy points to the final goal of this earth renewed. See Jude 14, 15. "And the seventh from Adam prophesied of these saying, Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints to execute judgment upon all and to convince all that are ungodly among them, of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against him." We believe he will represent God's former judgments, and help to execute the present purposes of God in establishing his kingdom under the whole heavens. May the Lord hasten the time of its fulfillment is my prayer.

JOHN ARMITAGE.

"Paul Caught up to Heaven."

We are told by a great many people that the righteous will be "caught up to heaven" in the clouds of the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord up in heaven, for that is what they understand is to become of the saints when Christ comes the second time. 1 Thess. iv. 16, 17. But as Prov. x. 30, and in fact, all the Bible is right to the contrary to this view we know how false it is, and therefore do not entertain any such groundless ideas. For they take a text and fit a theory to it, and as many texts, just as many theories, not knowing that if they would bring all their theories together they would conflict one with the other. Thus they do, being ignorant of God's plans. But hearing these texts of 1 Thess. iv. 16, 17, read so much at funerals and on other occasions as proof that the righteous go to heaven, it used to trouble me some as to just what was the apostle's ideas when expressing himself thus. So I searched up the matter with the result of satisfaction and harmony with all the other testimony on the subject of our reward, and where and at what time we will get it; and for the sake of any others who may be in the same fix I was in, I give this little article as help. We will find that the translators are some to blame, although in another place they give us the real key to the matter. But being ignorant of the original Greek word we do not know which translation is right, or indeed if they are the same Greek word or not. So when 1 Thess. iv. 17, says we shall be "caught up together" I let Acts viii. 39 explain it, for there it says Philip was "caught away:" not caught up to heaven, for Philip was found at Azotus, v. 40. In Acts viii. 39, the Greek word "arase" is translated "caught away" in the Com. Ver. But in the Diglott it is translated "seized," and the same word spelled a little different i. e. "erpage" in 2 Cor. xii. 2, 4. is there translated "conveyed away" by the Diglott; and the same word in 1 Thess. i. 17 is translated "caught away" in the Diglott. So you see, not the slightest idea of being "caught up," the true idea is expressed in any of the following, "seized away," or "conveyed away" or "caught away." Even the translators tell us so in translating Acts viii. 39 "caught away," for next verse shows that Philip did not go to heaven; and in 2 Cor. xii. 2, 4, with Paul's testimony that he was conveyed away (mentally) to the third heaven, which will be the Paradise of God on earth, proves that Paul was not caught up to heaven. While in 1 Thess. iv. 16, 17, shows that during the sounding of the "Seventh Trumpet" Christ comes to raise the dead, and his angels will be sent to the four quarters of the earth, and the saints will be "caught away in great companies" as of clouds, for a meeting (organization of) of the Lord (Lord's mystical body) in his political or governmental air, this proves that none of the Lord's dead saints have yet been caught up to heaven, and that they never will, for the last or seventh trumpet is not yet done sounding, (see 1 Cor. xv. 52; Rev. xi. 15) for it is during the sounding of the seventh trump that the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of our Lord. Dan. ii. 44; Rev. xi. 15. As that has not taken place yet, we know that we are not yet with the Lord in the sense of 1 Thess. iv. 19. Paul was not caught up to heaven, for he afterwards spoke of his death, and said he had fought the good fight and had kept the faith (not faiths, but faith) and had run his course, henceforth (future) there is laid up for me a crown (life) of righteousness, which the Lord will give me at that day (millennial day, or third heaven), and not only to me, but to all them that love his appearing." 2 Tim. iv. 7, 8. May we all love his appearing. The expressions in the Book of Revelation such as "come up hither," "ascended up to heaven" and "caught up to God's throne" has no reference to being taken up to heaven; but referred to transactions here on the earth. Please notice that the kingdoms of this world become our Lord's at his second coming during the seventh trumpet. It is then when he as the stone (which the builders rejected) smites the image of kingdoms and they become as nothing in the sense of "kingdoms of this world." Rev. xi. 15; Dan. ii. 34, 35. There is no use to say the kingdom of God was set up at the time of Pentecost, for Jas. ii. 5, speaks of the true church as being "heirs" only and Luke xix. 12, 15; 1 Thess. i. 10, and many others show that it will not come until Christ comes, and there is no use to say the kingdom of God will be set up after the saints have been in heaven one thousand years, for the simple reason that they never get there as already shown. Prov. x. 30; 1 Thess. i. 10; Phil. iii. 20; Titus ii. 13; 1 Cor. i. 7, too many to mention. And further more, from the fact that the seventh trumpet did not begin at Pentecost, and that it will not last for one thousand years after Christ comes, for the seventh trumpet ends with the pouring of the seventh vial, and we know that is in the very near future; for the sixth vial has almost accomplished its work on the Euphrates (or Turkish Power) and the warning voice to us brethren is to watch (for him) as we see the last struggles of the dying Turk, for he comes on the world as a thief. Rev. xvi. 12-15. May we be up and doing, and have our lamps trimmed and filled with oil, is my sincere and inmost desire, though outwardly the world thinks we are mad.

Submitted in the one hope.

Editor Restitution:

A short time ago I received a letter from a highly esteemed brother, and by his permission, I send it for publication. To me the letter is full of important suggestions upon questions that I fear our brethren are overlooking. Is the church ready to receive the Master? has she on the bridal robes? has she oil in her lamps? must there not be a more complete separating than we have had, from the idolatrous religious organizations that surround us? Let us be very careful, that we are not left in the "outer court" when the temple is measured.

Yours for the truth.

THE LETTER.

"And behold, I am coming quickly. Blessed is he that keepeth the words of the prophecy of this book." Rev. xxii. 7.

Now there is a time for the fulfillment of every prophecy. This same Jesus, before he left his disciples said to them, "I will come again," but more than 1800 years have passed and still he has not come. How, then, are we to know when this word, "I am [redacted] unless we can [illegible] text? "And the Lord God, of the holy prophets, sent his messenger to point out unto his servants the things that must be done in haste." See v. 6. This surely is the Key to the understanding of the words, "I am coming quickly." When the messenger has been sent, then he will come quickly.

And now, has this messenger been sent? If so, when, and to whom was he sent? See v. 16, "I, Jesus, have sent my messenger to testify unto you these things in the churches." If he has been sent, to what churches was he sent? What did he testify? It will not meet the case to say that John was the messenger. "And I, John, am he who saw and heard these things, and when I saw and heard, I fell down to worship at the the feet of the messenger that showed me these things." Verse 8. See also Ch. 19-10. John was one party to this prophecy, the messenger of Jesus another party. John's office was to write the things he saw and heard in a book and send the book to the churches Ch. 1-11. The office of this messenger is to signify these things to John, Ch. 1, and to testify these things in the churches, in other words to point out to the servants the things that must be done in haste, done quickly, for the Lord is coming quickly.

But the coming speedily is not due until the messenger is sent. In the vision of the golden lampstand, we see the sign of messengers in the right hand of one like unto the Son of Man. Not only will the messenger of Jesus be sent to show to the servants the the things that must be done in haste, but the messenger will be sent to do those things.

Let us consider, briefly, some of the things to be done. Trumpets will be sounded, and who else will sound them but the servants of Jesus Christ. The testimony will be finished, and who else will testify for Jesus but his servants that have the testimony of Jesus. Ch. 19-10. Proclamations will be made, Ch 14; 6-13, the messengers of Jesus will make these proclamations. The harvest of the age will be reaped, and the messengers of the Son of Man will do the work.

John the Dipper, was the messenger of the first advent. There was only a few of the many that recognized his mission. Only a few of the Gentile world will discern the mission of the messenger who is to herald the coming King. In fact nearly all have overlooked the fact that Jesus would send his messenger, yet the evidence is as plain and direct as that one that was to be sent before his face at the first advent. This messenger is the Elias that Jesus said would come and restore all things. In Rev. Ch. 10, we see him with the open book in his hand. John ate this book and prophesied until he had recorded its contents. Thus we see that in the vision John and the messenger were brought en rapporte. Daniel obtained an explanation of the vision of Ch. 7 from one of those that stood by the judgment scene of the Ancient of Days. One living in one age, the other in a later age, the two were brought mentally en rapporte, and why not, for it was a vision of the night or an inspired dream. Thus it was with John and the messenges of Jesus. Inspiration bridged the gulf of the intervening ages, and the two were brought together, and while the messenger is signifying these things to John, he is testifying these things in the churches.

The first prophetic work assigned to John after eating the book, was to awaken or arouse and measure the temple of God and the altar and them that worship therein and cast out the outer court. Had John measured a literal temple builded of literal stones he would have given dimensions in cubits or some other known measure. But a rule is given by which the dimensions of God's spiritual house builded of living stones is determined. In this book we read of those who have a name to live but are dead, hence, awake, oh thou that sleepest and arise from the dead and Christ shall give thee light. As the temple of God of this age, is builded of living stones, those who worship therein will have within them spiritual life, and thus the line of separation is drawn between those who worship in God's temple, for the outer court worshipers will be cast out into the nations where they belong.

The 144,000 of Rev. vii.

To Brother J. C. Kinsey:

Noticing your request in a late No., of THE RESTITUTION that some one should give a reason for the omission of the tribe of Dan from the number sealed, I offer a few thoughts for your consideration.

There have been many conjectures as to the reason of the omission, but none of any value, in my opinion, except that of Bowyer in his "Critical Notes on the New Testament." He takes the ground that the omission is the work of a careless scribe or copiest and not at all the reading of the original MSS., and suggests the way in which it might have occurred. It is well-known that it was the habit of transcribers of the ancient MSS., to save themselves labor by contracting long or oft-repeated words; and that the contraction for "Manassah" would be "Man" with a stroke over the word. A careless scribe might easily substitute an M for a D and read "Man" for "Dan." It will be the more readily understood if we remember that the earliest extant Greek MSS., are written in what is called "Uncial" letter and that there were no divisions of the line into words so that the line containing the words in question might appear as follows:—OUTOFTRIBEMANTWELVETHOUSANDS. Using the Greek letters the words would appear as follows:—EKPHULESDANIBKILIADES. Now suppose the line to have ended with A in Dan, as EKPHULESDANIBKILIADES, when the form of the letters is taken into account a careless writer might easily have taken DA for M especially as the Uncial D is A with the cross at the bottom instead of in the middle and an M, is the two together, without the cross. The coiest would then suppose that A had been carelessly omitted from the copy and insert N at end of the line so that DA would then read MA and the next line begin with N as before. The next transcriber would find his copy to read MAN but lacking the horizontal stroke over the word and would naturally suppose that it had been omitted by mistake and place it in his copy and the change would be complete. Of course when once the change had been made it would be perpetual as we find it. Of course this is only conjecture, but that it is reasonable will appear from the following considerations.

First, John tells us that the sealing was of "144,000 of all the tribes of the children of Israel." The Greek words are much more emphatic, or "out of every tribe." If this were true it would not be possible to omit one of the tribes. But, secondly, Manasseh is found twice, once in his own name and once in Joseph. If therefore we retain Joseph we must drop Manasseh; and substituting Dan therefore we correct two errors at once. But further, in numbering the tribes, Manesseh is never mentioned without Ephraim his brother, and when so mentioned "Joseph" is always omitted. And transversely when Joseph is mentioned both Ephraim and Manasseh are omitted.

But, again, John informs us that the gates of the New Jerusalem are named after the twelve tribes but does not give us their names. Ezekiel however supplies the missing information and gives us the names of Joseph and Levi in place of Ephraim and Manasseh, corresponding with the tribes as here given, when we correct the double error of the text by leaving out Manasseh and inserting Dan. As it can be shown by indubitable proof that Ezekiel's City and John's city are one and the same city, may not the "servants" mentioned by Ezekiel be the same "servants" here "sealed" by the angel? If so we have still further evidence of the correctness of the conjecture here explained. For Ezekiel not only informs us that Joseph and Levi have their "gate" with the rest of the tribes, thereby plainly indicating that in their relation to this city "The Lord is there," not only does Joseph lose his double portion but Levi loses his priestly robes; but he also states that these servants are taken "out of all the tribes of Israel. Ezek. xlviii. 19. This seemingly identifying the two companies as one and the same. But if so, Dan has his place in the sealing, together with Joseph and Levi as certainly as he appears with them in the naming of the gates of the city where the service is mentioned.

J. F. WILCOX.

The Coming of Christ.

The coming of Christ was an event always near, in the feelings and consciousness of the first believers. It was the great consummation on which the strongest desires of their souls were fixed, and to which their thoughts and hopes habitually turned. They lived in expectation of it; they labored to be prepared for it; they were constantly (in the expressive language of Peter,) "Looking for, and hasting, or earnestly desiring it."

The Apostles and the first Christians in general, comprehended the grandeur of that occasion. It filled their circle of view,—stood forth in their contemplations as the point of culminating interest in their own and the world's history. It threw into comparative insignificance the present time, death, and all intermediate events, and made them feel that the manifestation of Christ and its consequences of indescribable moment to all believers. It was the grand object which they were to keep in view as the end of their toils,—the commencement and perfection of their glorious immortality.

The great truth of Christ's return to the earth runs like a golden thread through the entire New Testament, from begining to end, touching every doctrine, binding every duty, arousing, consoling, dissecting, guarding and inspiring the believer at every step of his pilgrimage. As a motive and an incentive to an end, it has a prominence assigned to no other thought. Wherever we turn it arrests the eye of the mind. Whatever the subject of inquiry it engages the attention by its commanding presence. It is in the New Testament the great event towers above every other. The heavens that give back Christ all that we have loved and lost, solves all doubts and ends all sorrows. His coming looks in upon the whole life of the church, and every generation lies under the shadow of it; for whatever is transcendantly great is constantly near; and in the contemplation of it, it throws in the shade all trivial and wordly things, and annihilates intervals. It is viewing the event as near that gives to us its practical importance; otherwise it betrays in us a less vivid impression of its reality and surpassing moment.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

To the Household of Faith greeting:

How swiftly the tide of time has wafted us o'er another year, bringing sunshine and joy to the delight of some, and affliction and tears to the sorrow of others. But in either case we cannot be excused from an indwelling nearness to the loving Father; as for the first, blessed contentment and happiness reigns supreme when recognizing from day to day his gracious favor. And for the second, life is so weighed down beyond human aid to comfort, that our only solace is, to nestle in the strong arms of his love and mercy to bear us bravely up and on through the sorrowing struggle upon us. Christ said to his disciples "It is expedient for you that I go away, for if I go not away the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart I will send him unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth. While there are those who disclaim the Holy Spirit power, or influence reaching others than the disciples, I can safely testify that every child of God who is grasping and abides with him in the Spirit can share in all the blessings and power that was bestowed upon the disciples for his glory. In these latter days proofs are many of the like gifts. I have so often thought, what if I could not have this comforting influence to help me over the rough, tangled way of life, and wonder how people can live and have their share of grief and misfortune that comes to our lot to bear from time to time in this beautiful world, and be a stranger to the blessed influence that is ever near them to have whenever desired. Ever since the bright assurance of my acceptance with the merciful Father, the few pleasures of this world that I most enjoyed vanished, ever being mindful of Christ's kindly admonition to all, to "Use the world as not abusing it, occupy until I come." I am watching with deepest interest the workings of the Eastern Problem. It will be remembered that there has been a message-bearer of the world's great events in the past, and this accords with the prophet Malachi iv. 5, 6. "Behold, I will send you Elijah, the prophet, before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord. And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers lest I come and smite the earth with a curse." When the Greeks are brought into subjection by the powers that be, will not the coming of Elijah seem near, and soon after, "Behold our righteous Ruler to the joy of all his weary, waiting ones?

Yours earnestly contending for the Truth,

ROWENA W. COOPER.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

As I read the letters in THE RESTITUTION, I am impressed with the earnestness with which every one writes. And how can it be otherwise? For they have a substantial faith, something grand and real, a sure foundation. Those letters are a help and strength to the weak, as is the meeting together on the first day of the week. I fully realize why the Master commanded that we should not forsake the assembling of ourselves together. Even if there be few, and no speaker, the study of the Word, together, and with what explanations can be made, is a great help, and keeps us from becoming neglectful. Elder Smith says he verily believes that we as a church, are opposing God, and hindering the victorious march of our King, by teaching that the wicked are annihilated at death and that they are as well off after death as the righteous. They surely both suffer the same penalty. Both go unto one place. But think of the grand reward of the saints at the resurrection—an eternal life free from sorrow and pain; and think of the sinner cast off from the glory of God. Is not that punishment enough? Some men think not, but it is written that God is more merciful than man. As our teachings are a hindrance to the Christian work, I think that there are so few of us compared with those of the orthodox church that we can not do much either way. So many people do not know what we believe, and still more do not want to. All we can do is to help those that are willing to learn, and leave the rest for Christ when he comes as King to subdue all nations and take the power unto himself. Elder Smith has told what he thinks of us. Now let me tell what I think of their teachings. I think if people could be scared into being good and obedient by preaching hell fire, it has been preached long enough, and hard enough, to have converted the world long before this. We pray that the time may soon come when "The tabernacle of God will be with men, and he will dwell with them and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them and be their God" (Rev. xxi.) and the devil death, and hell shall be no more.

Editor Restitution:

My husband and myself, are as far as I know, the only ones in this place who believe that the kingdom will be set up at Jerusalem. As we are deprived of any preaching but that of THE RESTITUTION it makes the paper more precious, such good articles as are in its columns strengthen and help all believers who read them. May God bless the paper and all those connected with it. How eager we wait and watch for its weekly visits. I wish to testify that I am trying by the mercy of God to let my light shine, and lead others to the truth, yet, how many turn a deaf ear. Yet, I rejoice in God's promises. Though persecuted Jesus bids us rejoice and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven. Let us rest in the Lord and wait patiently for him. We know that God will do right and that at the right time he will interpose for us and for his cause. Instead of loving and practicing the things the world calls "pleasure," we should heed the exhortation to "live soberly, righteously and godly in this life." Yes, praise his name, there is peace and joy in his service which the world can neither give nor take. Pray for me that I may be found worthy when the Master calls.

Tent Work in Kansas and Missouri.

To the Brethren in Kansas and Missouri:

Brother J. F. Wilcox of Chicago has just closed a meeting at this place, ten discourses in all, during which we have had to use three different churches. He is intending to remain, and evangelize in Kansas and Missouri during the present year, and o s sibly will remain with us permanently, and we have decided that we must have a tent for the summer. We know that the brethren are generally in the same condition as ourselves regarding a house, which is, to say the least, very unsatisfactory. We have accordingly organized a tent committee here to start the enterprise, and as soon as it is thought advisable to hold a general meeting will turn it over to any association or committee appointed for that purpose. We must have a tent at least 40x60 feet, besides a tent to live in, hammocks, bedding, cooking utensils, etc., etc., and some ready money. We should have at least $300 to begin with and then a tent fund to keep it running. We want to put it in the field by the first of May or as early as the weather permits, with Bro. Wilcox in charge, and ask you to contribute liberally "as the Lord has prospered you" for that purpose. Subscriptions and pledges may be sent to THE RESTITUTION or direct to the chairman of the committee Joseph Shellenberger, Mound City, Mo. But in either case names and amounts will be published in THE RESTITUTION from time to time, and a full report of how expended when the work is done. Now, brethren, the tent is the Master's, and the work is his, and the time hastens when he comes to make up his jewels, shall we not, as waiting ones improve every moment, lest coming suddenly he find us sleeping?

Editor Restitution:

Dear sir, and brother, I wish to report to the brethren through THE RESTITUTION. I am well. My trip South has had the desired effect upon my health. I am very much improved in health and can scarcely realize that there has been any winter. Today is a beautiful May day for Iowa and Illinois. Fruit trees are all out in bloom, farmers planting corn, cattle out on pasture and everything spring-like. I came her on 23rd and commenced meeting, will close Wednesday 24th, have had good attendance. I go to Wilmington, shall commence a weeks' meeting Thursday 25th. I shall return to Newbern, April 2, remaining until April 9 by invitation from the citizens. My appointments from then on will be as follows:

Plymouth, Ind., 1 to 2 May.
Chicago, Ill., 8 to 12 May.
Antioch, Ill., 15 to 16 May.
Adeline, Ill., 22 to 23 May.
Lanark, Ill., 29 to 30 May.

Brethren at above appointments please take notice. I will not make any more changes.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

During May the Nickel Plate Road will inaugurate an improved passenger train schedule of three solid through trains daily. In addition to the through vestibuled sleeping car service between Chicago, Buffalo, New York, and Boston via the West Shore and Fitchburg Railroads, a daily New York Sleeper will be placed in service via the D. L. & W. R. R.—Apr. 30.

Books and Tract List.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. U. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"THE COMING NATION."

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. This clearly sets forth the idea that the "Coming Nation" will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 20 pages, price 10 cts or three or 25 cts.

"WHERE DO THE DEAD SLEEP?"

These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract, 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"HADES."

A Bible account of this place, with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

"DEATH COMPARED TO A SLEEP."

This represents death as a sleep, and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

"THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those seeking for truth. 16 pages, 5cents each.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Watch and Pray.

When first night's sombre mantle
Is gently drawn aside,
Reveals the eastern cloudlets,
In gilded purple dyed,
And feathered songsters welcome
The morning's twilight gray,
This is the time for watching;
This is the time to pray.

For when the sun appearing,
Each dew drop makes a gem,
And higher up, he drinketh
Earth's glittering diadem,
'Till from above descendeth,
His brilliant, dazzling ray,
These are the hours for watching;
These are the hours to pray.

When satisfied, and weary,
The herd seek rest and shade,
And scarce a leaf is stirring,
In emerald copse, and glade;
The hour of burning noontide,
The zenith of the day,
This is the hour for watching;
This is the hour to pray.

Soon as the day declineth,
And down the west is seen,
The glorious orb of daylight
Move with majestic mien,
'Till softly, gently 'round us,
The twilight 'gins to stray;
These are the hours for watching;
These are the hours to pray.

And when the shadows deepen,
When darkness reigns supreme,
Close girded still our armor,
We'll listen as we dream,
Ne'er once relax our vigil,
From eve 'till break of day,
These are the hours for watching;
These are the hours to pray.

Exhortation.

Dear Restitution:

A few more months of faithful waiting, watching, and sending the glad tidings through the ever faithful RESTITUTION, of the soon coming of the blessed Jesus as he was seen go away, Acts i. 11, to take his seat upon the throne of his father David. Luke i. 31–33. Now as David had no throne in heaven and as he himself had not gone to heaven as stated by Peter on the day of Pentecost, Acts ii. 29, 34, and as Jesus was promised the throne of David and as that throne, history and the Bible says was in Jerusalem, I say to my dear friends and neighbors who are reading THE RESTITUTION and have like myself been taught the erroneous doctrine that at death, we, if good are taken up to heaven, through hearing and reading such Scriptures as Matt. v. 12. Just let me place all these Scriptures which are cited by so many ministers to prove the position taken, that the immortal soul or spirit go to heaven at the death of the body for instance we will take on the one side, the texts, "For great is your reward in heaven," Matt. v. 12. "Life in heaven," Col. iii. 2, 3. "Crown in heaven," 2 Tim. iv. 7, 8. "Hope in heaven," Col. i. 4, 5. "Inheritance in heaven," 1 Pet. i. 4, 5. "House in heaven," 2 Cor. v. 1, and on the other side, Matt. xvi. 27, Rev. xxii. 12, Col. iii. 4, 1 Pet. v. 4, 2 Tim. iv. 8, Titus ii. 13, 14, Matt. v. 5; xxv. 31–34, Psa. xxxvii. 11, 22, 29, 2 Cor. v. 2, 3, 4. Thus you can compare all the above citations and see for yourself that in no case are we invited to go up to heaven in order to receive any of the above promises. Now I am aware that some quote John xiv. 1, 2, to prove that Jesus has gone to heaven to prepare a place for them, but, does it never occur to such, that if heaven is good enough for God and his angels, it certainly is good enough for the disciples? Yet, if one will read the 3rd verse of the same chapter they are there told in plain language by Jesus himself, that he will come again, and for proof that people do not go to heaven, see John xii. 33, and John vii. 33, 34, and to more forcibly impress this fact upon your minds see John iii. 13. Thousands had lived and died before Jesus' time, and yet, he said, "No man hath ascended up to heaven," and certainly we ought to be willing to take the Savior's word for it, for one I am.

Now turn to Heb. xi. and see what a host of faithful ones, and what they suffered for the Word of God. Now look at verse 13, and then at verses 39 and 40. Thank God, that better time is almost here. A year or two longer and the Lord of Lords and King of kings will be back to Jerusalem with his saints. Friends, did you (who think all that is necessary in order to be saved is to be sincere in what you have been taught,) ever stop to think how sincere and zealous Saul, or Paul was before his conversion, even to destroying the faith, and killing his own countrymen, and then he learned that sincerity of belief in an error would not save him. See how earnest and zealous he became after being taught the way of eternal life.

Take another case of pious zeal, one which surpasses anything of this present time, the case of Cornelius, Acts x., read the narrative. He was so sincere and good that God took special notice of him and sent a message to him, and for what? Was it to inform him to keep on in the way he was doing and it would save him? No, indeed No! but to send for the preacher and he will tell thee words whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved. Acts xi, 14. Please look this Scripture up and see for yourselves. And just think if Cornelius was not in a saved condition that may be you are not.

My friends, God knows I am not pleading with you for any gain that may accrue to me from you, but it possible I may induce some who I know would like to be right. Yet, 'tis so hard to give up our preconceived ideas. Alas! how sad it is to think that the Almighty has sent his preachers in the Old and New Testament's to his creatures and they believe every thing else but the true Word of God. The signs of the times indicate the return of the Nobleman from the far country, Luke xix. 12–27, please look it up and read it and be convinced, and when he comes what will he do? See 2 Tim. iv. 1. (N. B. The 3rd and 4th verses are on hand at this time.) Well, what else? See 1 Thess. iv. 13–18, also 1 Cor. xv. 50–58. Now turn to 1 Thess. iii. 12, 13, and here you find the saints will not forever be up in the air with the Lord, for they are to judge the world, see 1 Cor vi. 2, 3. This being so it is necessary to become one of Christ's resurrected ones, (for if there is no resurrection, there is no future life, 1 Cor. xv. 16–18.) and of course you ask how you are to become one? In the first place, faith comes by hearing the Word of God, Rom. x. 17. Look up the promises made of God to the fathers. "For Christ was a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God to confirm the promises (plural) made unto the fathers." Rom. xv. 8. If you want an interest in these promises you must become Christ's, and by so doing you are constituted Abraham's seed and an heir according to the promise. Gal. iii. 26–29. Now, in order to be of the household of faith which made Abraham and his seed heirs it is necessary for you to hear the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, and be immersed into the name of Father, Son and Holy Spirit. Acts viii. 12; Mark xvi. 15–16, and walk in a new life and you will be recompensed at the resurrection of the Just. Luke xiv. 12–14, or changed at the second coming of Christ. 1 Cor. xv. 51; Phil. iii. 20, 21.

I wish to say to the dear ones scattered a broad, that this is not written for you, for I am aware that you know all these things, and are looking and longing for the return of our Lord and Savior; for I know you do not look upon death as the door to eternal happiness, but as an enemy to mankind and would hail the blessed Savior as a Deliverer from death; but, if people go to heaven at death, then sin is a good thing, for had there been no sin there would have been no death, no happiness in a disembodied state.

Good bye, dear ones. The signs are propitious for the soon coming of the Deliverer. May God bless you all.

Your Brother,

J. ANTHONY.

Be thankful for such mercies as you have, and if God sees it will be for your good and his glory, he will give you many more.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MAY 5, 1897. NUMBER 17.

Letter Sent to the Editor of the "Jewish Christian," Scotland, Conn., April 15.

Yours of late date received. We sincerely sympathize with you and suspect that you are made a victim of jealousy. But in all your trouble can you not recognize the hand of God in chastising you for a lack of conformity to a plainly revealed ordinance in God's house? I refer now to the subject of baptism.

When you first became acquainted with Christianity, you was thrown into the company of Presbyterians, and so you adopted rantism, (sprinkling) in place of baptism. But where do you find anything in the Divine record to justify them or you in changing God's order for the remission of sins? Turn to your Greek lexicon and you will find no sprinkling in baptizo, baptisis or baptisma. These are derivatives from bapto their root, which means to dip, to plunge, to immerse, etc. There is no sprinkling in bapto. Understand also that you have applied to the Presbyterian Board for authority to administer baptism (as it is called), but for some reason your application was not granted.

Now, brother, do you not see the hand of God in this? You are teaching your converts that they can obtain remission of sins outside of God's order, to wit, by prayer. Saul of Tarsus was three days a praying man, and when Ananias came to him he said, "Arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins." If an alien can obtain remission of sins and an adoption into the family of Christ by prayer, why were Saul's sins still upon him when Ananias came in to him? Saul had not been baptized, hence his sins were still upon him. Peter also of the day of Pentecost, said to the enquiring Jews, "Repent and be baptized for the remission of sins." Presbyterians sprinkle a man and call it baptism because, as they say, his sins are pardoned. Yet there is no proof in Inspiration that God has changed the order of his house for remission of sins since Pentecost. What was his order in Peter's day, is his order today. Baptism in (not with) water, together with belief, is a symbolical application of the blood of Christ for cleansing the alien from his sins. See Acts viii. 12. Paul also, Rom. vi. 3, 4, elucidates this subject more clearly. "Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into his death? Therefore, we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so also we should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." When a man is dead to sin, he must be buried with Christ by baptism into his death, so that he may be raised up like as Christ was raised up from the dead, immortal and glorious. Burying the alien in the watery grave, symbolizes Christ's death and burial, and raising him up symbolizes Christ's resurrection. Now, my brother, can you imagine how a few drops of water sprinkled on a man's forehead can symbolize a burial with Christ in water, or manifest any faith in the resurrection?

Again Jesus said, John iii. 5, "Except a man be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." I believe the Savior meant just what he said. In the Christian Herald, not long since, I noticed a question asked, "What did Christ mean by this expression?" The answer stated that several views had been entertained as a correct meaning, but the one most likely to be correct, was, that he meant the natural birth, that being a birth of water as any physician will tell you. Such a definition makes complete nonsense of the Savior's language. Did he not know, and do we not know that every man since Adam has been born a natural birth? Then, why did Christ say "Except?" Men will resort to such extreme nonsense to evade a plainly revealed truth. To be born of flesh is to come out of flesh; so to be born of water is to come out of water, and coming out of the watery grave symbolizes a resurrection like Christ's glorious resurrection.

And now, my dear brother, in conclusion, allow me to advise you to cut loose from the Presbyterian church and take your stand upon God's Word. Do a good work, although you may be, I do so large a work, yet that [illegible] bound to the honor and glory of God, and will exalt the Savior, rather than abuse him by promising your converts that they can get into the kingdom of God, without coming in through the door opened to them by the Savior, John iii. 5, and reiterated by Peter Acts ii. 38.

Yours for truth even if it is unpopular.

DANIEL HOWARD.

Question Answered.

In THE RESTITUTION of March 10, we find a question by C. Middleknauff asking, "Who was Sarah, Abraham's wife?"

In attempting to answer this question we must not depend upon the authority of orthodoxy, so called, if we do not desire to be misled, for the oftener we refer to their darkened zeal, the deeper we will be led into absurdities.

The only tangible answer that can be given, is by a careful reading of God's revealed Word.

In reading the history of Abraham's life, the sentences "My brother," "My sister" are used or exchanged no less than eight times, and when we come to Gen. xx. 12, Abraham makes a positive statement, that Sarah is his wife, in these words to Abimelech, "And yet, indeed, (in reality, in truth, in fact, Webster) she is my sister; she is the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother." As we proceed we hope to see why this union is thus. We have learned from the Father's Word, that he has so mercifully revealed to us, that the end of all was determined from the beginning, and his Word is immutable; therefore, look through the telescope of his Word with us, and see what he has brought to view.

In Gen. ii., God formed man of the ground, and his wife from him, an earthy pair, an imperfect seed, possessed of a dying nature, and not one ray of hope, as concerning salvation, lit their pathway in life's lonely walk. The only promise of their fruit, given, was to the serpent, "That the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head." How far this militated to their relief, is not this present thought, only we know, "The ax was here laid at the root of the tree of evil," "and the light that was to lighten the world," as written in John the evangelist, "And the Light shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehendeth it not," which was so completely portrayed in the antediluvian age, that we see it nearly a complete blank, and up to the call of Abraham, mankind filled up the measure of life in the grossest of wickedness, with but a few exceptions.

Now, let us for a few moments look at the position Abraham occupied between the two Adam's. Abraham was called from Ur of the Chaldees, for a purpose. Now, what was this purpose?

1. To establish in him, as head, the heritage that by creation belonged to Adam, to dress and keep, but lost through obedience.

2. As head of many nations that he (God) might establish his covenant, with Abraham and his seed, when as yet he had no child.

This is the first revealed fact of the "Seed of the woman," of Gen. ii., taking the appearance of a blessing, as mentioned in the promises to Abraham; and we come to the point of our telescopic view of Abraham's position between the two Adam's. The first Adam and his wife, earthy and imperfect seed. Abraham and his wife, a perfect seed of some Father, perfect Unit, Union, being brother and sister. Gen. xx. 12. Issue, unit seed, as in him, it is written. Heb. xi. 18; Rom. ix. 7; Gen xxi. 12, was the seed to be called, as the usual order of our view, leading up to Christ, the perfected seed of the woman reversed, "Begotten of the Father full of grace and and truth." The Father's only begotten Son, in perfect union with the Father. John i. 18. Hence we see parentage done away with, in the case of Christ, occupying as he does the position as head of the creation. Adam of the dying, Christ the unit seed of the resurrection.

In Abraham's controversy with Abimelech, king of Gerar, God intercedes for Abraham, and rebukes Abimelech for his act of appropriating the supposed sister to his desire, in these words, "And God said unto him in a dream, Yea, I know that thou didst this in the integrity of thy heart; for I also withheld thee from sinning against me: therefore suffered I thee not to touch her." Gen. xx. 6. "Now therefore restore the man his wife;" v. 7, and thus God sanctioned what Abraham did and said, and never once rebuked him or her for calling one another brother and sister; showing the design in the position Abraham occupied, was of God himself, to change the relation between Adam and Christ. Making Christ the chosen head of the regenesis, who will eventually crush the evil of this wicked world. Although Christ occupies a position in the genealogy up to himself. Luke iii. Yet he was in the world, but not of the world, in a Biblical sense, for he was the Lord from heaven. In this we find Christ occupies the same position Adam did before he had a helpmeet, Christ's helpmeet will be the elect, according to the previous promises of God our Father.

Christian Love.

As another new year begins we quite naturally look back over the past to see what it had brought to us. To many it has brought sorrow and disappointment, to some achievement in divine life, success and triumph over sin; some have advanced, entered into the work of God with their whole heart and realizing that another year has passed, that we (the children of God) must put on the whole armor of God and keep his commandments; by first adding to our faith, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and love. For if these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. 2 Pet. i. 6, "Beloved, let us love one another, for God is of love, and every one that loveth is born of God and knoweth God. He that loveth not, knoweth not God, for God is love." 1 John iv. 7, 8, "His love was manifested by sending his only begotten Son into the world that we might live through him. Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." 1 John iv. 11, "And this commandment have we from him, That he who loveth God loveth his brother also." 1 John iv. 21, "By this we know that we love the children of God when we love God and keep his commandments." 2 John v. 2, "And his commandments are not grievous." Verse 3, "So let us not be desirous of vain glory. Provoking one another, envying one another." Gal. v. 26, "But walk in the Spirit, which is joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness and faith, and above all things have fervent charity among yourselves." Gal. v. 22; 1 Pet. iv. 8. It was God's love that provided the sacrifice. It was Christ's love that made him a willing sacrifice. It is our love that makes us perfect for his Bride. "Behold what manner of love the Father has bestowed upon us that we should be called the children of God. We become the children of God by obedience and then are heirs with Christ. O, let us this coming year cultivate that love that will make us willing and obedient children; that love that makes us as he is in this world. "Know ye not that he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God: and when the Chief Shepherd shall appear ye shall receive a crown of glory that faileth not away." 1 Pet. v. 4.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

"The Life-Boat soon is coming.
By the eye of faith we see,
As she sweeps through the waters,
To rescue you and me,
And land us safely in the port,
With friends we love so dear;
Get ready, cries the Captain,
O, look, He's almost here."

Report of Meeting.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

The Household of Faith here at St. Paul, Nebraska, has been cheered and encouraged by a visit from Bro. J. G. Haupt of Dakota City.

Bro. Haupt arrived here on Saturday evening, April 3rd, and remained until Monday morning, April 12th. During that time he preached ten discourses. The attendance was good at each meeting, and good attention was paid the words which were spoken so earnestly.

Bro. Haupt left many warm friends here, whose prayers are that he may ever continue faithful, and at last receive as his reward eternal life and a home in the kingdom.

Your Sister in Christ,

RENA M. GORDON.

Dear Restitution:

On Thursday evening April 15th we had a very precious meeting at Park Hill Church at Hadbrook, Iowa. It was the anniversary of the death of our Lord, and we met together to celebrate his death. We read over the story as given in the Bible, and how vivid every scene came to our minds. Then he instituted a new memorial. He told the disciples he would not celebrate any more with them until the kingdom state would be reached, but they were to continue to celebrate his death till his return. "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup ye do show the Lord's death till he come." So, following his suggestion, we met together to keep in memory his death in the celebration of the communion as it is usually called. We prepared for the event by preaching upon the subject and urging each member to examine himself by heart-searching, and then prepared the bread and the wine. We also had a large table spread and on it were placed a plate and cup for each member, and as we gathered at the table at night it seemed more like a supper. The bread was broken after giving thanks and placed upon a plate. It was then passed to each one seated at the table who took a piece of bread, placing it upon his own plate. Then when all were served we ate the bread together. By thus breaking the bread before, that each may take a piece, the pieces may be made larger than usual. When a person takes the bread from the fear of delicacy or modesty will often make the piece so small that the word "eat" can scarcely be applied to it. So too with with the wine. Then in the same manner we partook of the cup. It was passed and each one took from the cup as much as was deemed proper by pouring the wine into his own drinking cup. Then when all were served and the wine was divided among the members we drank it together. Then we sang a hymn and went home, feeling indeed that we were drawn nearer to the dear Lord who gave his life for us. We began the meeting by reading and prayer and social converse and remarks from those present on the memorial and its significance and its effect upon our lives. The whole time was precious and spent as a memorial of his death which occurred on that day so long ago. The chair at the head of the table was left vacant to indicate that personally our Master had gone away, yet we felt that he was nevertheless present in some way as he said, "Where two or three are gathered together in my name there am I in the midst." Many of our brethren were not able to be with us, for reasons best known to themselves, yet seventeen were present, all of the household of faith. We feel indeed that we were blessed as never before, and trust that whenever the anniversary of his death comes we may meet and as oft as we do it, to indeed show forth his death till he comes. It seems to us eminently proper to celebrate his death on the day he died. We rejoice on the first day of the week that Jesus arose from the dead—the first day of his resurrection, and praise God for the promise of a future life through Jesus our Lord. But let us not forget to meet, and call to mind that he died that we might live. Praise the Lord.

PLYMOUTH, IND. MAY 5, 1897.

WILL some one who knows please send the address of Samuel C. Lehman, formerly of Wichita, Kan., to H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

ONE of our Sisters in Christ, suggests that each Sister send one trial subscription for THE RESTITUTION to some friend, as a little missionary work. We find that the trial subscriptions are quite a success, as many feel after once having the paper that they cannot do without it. A stray copy now and then is not like having it right along. In three months they get better acquainted.

IN a letter from Brother C. C. Ramsay, we learn that he has just closed an interesting series of meetings in the Shenandoah Valley, and that he had baptized one and others would follow. He expects to begin meetings at another place to continue for about three weeks, and then return to Philadelphia. We pray that success may attend his efforts. We are glad to receive reports of work from our brethren as they encourage others to work.

THE London Mail gives a description of what it calls the deadliest of all the automatic guns, as well as the simplest, consisting of only 31 component parts, and weighs only 33 lbs. It is capable of discharging 1000 shots in 2 minutes and 3 seconds, and when necessary for a brief attack can fire eleven shots a second. It has stood severe tests, and it is believed it will stand the War offices severe ordeal next week of delivering 1000 shots in rapid succession without any hitch, or even momentary interruption. And the necessity of a water jacket to keep it cool is scientifically obviated. Preparing war is the order.

THE brethren and sisters in Plymouth were visited over last Sunday by Bro. D. M. Hudler, who is on his way home from a few months sojourn in North Carolina. This was the first time Bro. Hudler ever called on us, and all have enjoyed meeting him and hearing him preach. He is a "dead in earnest" man, and is devoting his entire time and energy to the Master's work. We believe him to be worthy of support and trust the friends wherever he may call will care for him. His meetings will continue through the early part of the week, and all who should hear him. We hope for another visit in the future.

WE have several articles on the time and nature of the "Communion Service" or "Lord's Supper." It seems that in the West our good brethren are very much stirred up over the question, and think it can be settled by discussion in the paper. Some prefer the very simple service commonly held, and decry the "form and ceremony" of the meeting, as reported by Bro. Eychaner in this paper. If we could devote every line of our paper to this subject for the next year we should not lack matter to "fill up," and as the contestants in the discussion would each be of the same opinion at the close, we must simply decline it. Brethren, there is so much that you can each do that will build up, if you will only devote the same energy in that direction, that we are satisfied if you will try and bury your differences for one year, only one, we can guarantee you will be so pleased with the change that you will never mention them again. Try it for this year which promises to be so full of important events. It is going to take all our time to watch the "signs" of the near approach of our Lord.

The Spirit of God. What is it? No. 1.

We are asked a number of questions in regard to the Spirit of God, its office, etc. And we have concluded to give what we understand to be the truth on this great subject in several articles, and hope the enquirer will find answers to some of his queries, at least, before we get through. First, then, in answer to the question, "What is the Spirit of God, we reply, we understand it to be "the mind of God," as the spirit of man is his mind: "For what man knoweth the things of man save the spirit of a man which is in him? Even so, the things of God knoweth no man, but the spirit of God —for who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ." 1 Cor. ii. 11-16.

We read that "the spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters." Gen. i. 2. We understand this of the mind of Jehovah; that his will was exerted upon the darkness and confusion with the result stated. And in the 104th Psalm, speaking of the animal kingdom the Psalmist says, "Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created." And if it be asked how this work was performed, we point to the 33rd Psalm, verses 6-9 where it says: "By the Word of the Lord were the heavens made, and all the hosts of them by the breath of his mouth—for he spake, and it was done, he commanded, and it stood fast."

In Jer. xl. 22, and Isa. ii. 15 we learn that the work of the Spirit, through the agency of his Word, is attributed to God himself, and also to his power, wisdom and understanding. It says, "It is he that stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in." He made the earth with his power, [mind or spirit]; he has established the world by his wisdom, [mind or spirit] and hath stretched out the heavens by his understanding, [mind or spirit.]

The arbitrary bestowment of the Spirit of God is the next point to be discussed. It may surprise some to tell them that God has often bestowed his Spirit upon natural or ungodly men; but it is a fact. By turning to the 31st chapter of Exodus it may be seen that one Bezaleel was filled with the Spirit of God, and this gave him mechanical ability to construct the Tabernacle and the things pertaining to it. In Num. xi. 24-29 we find that when Balaam was wanting to curse Israel the Spirit of God came upon him," and compelled him to utter one of the most glorious prophecies recorded in the Bible. And in 1 Sam. xix. 20-24 we find that Saul, the wicked king of Israel, with murder in his heart, was arrested by the Spirit of God, causing him to prophecy as it had his messengers.

And we want our readers to see that the bestowment of these attributes of the Spirit had no moral effect upon their recipients. They were sinners before God still. It only qualified them to do certain things. God just used them without consulting them, and that was all. It was no evidence of a righteous or pardoned position before God. It is necessary in these last days—days of almost universal departure from the faith, to remember that spiritual gifts in apostolic times were no evidence of a renewed mind; no evidence of living a life of faith on the Son of God.

In the next place we must notice the fact that the Spirit was arbitrarily bestowed on godly men. Holy men spake as they were moved to foretell future events with divine accuracy. 2 Peter i. 21. It was not for themselves that they ministered, but for God's people away down the stream of time. Some of their predictions seem to have been made for our special benefit; while they themselves did not understand their own predictions. 1 Peter i. 10-12. As holy men they were enabled to give history many years in advance, but this did not constitute them holy. By the aid of the Spirit the Apostles were enabled to recall the words and acts of Christ and record them for the benefit of the household of faith till he come again. John xiv. 16, 17, 26; xv. 26; xvi 7-13. This was a special gift of the Spirit for a special purpose. It was not conferred upon Christians in general, for they have not been guided infallibly, as the Apostles were. And we want to emphasize the fact that the bestowment of these gifts no more constituted the Apostles the children of God than the gift of the spirit of prophecy constituted the prophets his children. It was by the Spirit of God that the early Christians wrought miracles, but it did not qualify them for the kingdom of God. They purified their hearts by obeying the truth.

The moral attributes of the Spirit are love, joy, peace, long-suffering and every other Christian grace. Gal. v. 22, 23; Eph. v. 9; James iii. 17. And here we come into direct conflict with the prevailing idea of religionists, which is that they (moral attributes) are obtained by arbitrary bestowment as were the gifts above referred to. How can this be? How can morality be bestowed as a gift? Is not morality the outgrowth of free agency and accountability? If so, how can it be transferred from one person to another? Is it not quite unthinkable for a ready-made character to be conferred upon a person?

A person becomes possessed of the spirit of the world by indulging in its practices. The Hindoo, Mohammedan, Roman and Protestant spirit is obtained by hearing, believing, loving and obeying the dogmas of these sects. Every author sheds abroad his spirit in the hearts of those who admire his writings; they obtain his Spirit by reading and believing his book. The dogmas of the sects are, however, a dead letter to those who neither read nor believe them. The parent, the orator and the individual in conversation, imparts his spirit to those who hear him, and produces love, joy, laughter, sorrow, anger or tears, as the case may be.

If men are capable of inspiring others by their various spirits through oral written words, cannot God, the all-wise and all-powerful author of the Bible, impart his holy or moral attributes to the believer, through his Word? Is his Word less powerful than that of finite mortals? Have his words of spirit and life become a dead letter? Nay, verily; it abideth ever. It is only dead to those who do not understand and believe it; to all others it is the power of God unto salvation.

The spirit of love is obtained by becoming acquainted with the lovely character of the object of interest. God has revealed his beneficent character through the medium of his Word; and we love him because he first loved us. It is through this medium that the spirit of love and every other moral spirit is obtained. It was by the hearing of faith that the Galatians received the spirit. (Gal iii. 1-9.) and in obeying the law of the spirit of life. Rom. viii. 2. The process is simple and easy: Hear, believe, and obey the gospel is the way marked out for obtaining the spirit of holiness, or the spirit or mind of Christ, without which we are none of his.

We imbibed this, as we conceive, commonsense treatment of the subject of the Spirit from the Expositor, the predecessor of THE RESTITUTION near 40 years ago, and it has been helpful to us ever since, and we hope it may be to others.

Foreign News.

LONDON, May 2.—Official Europe now has a fresh grievance against Greece. The powers are anxious, most of them, to interpose at the present stage of the war and re-establish the status quo of a fortnight ago. They calculated that the loss of Thessaly would be ample punishment for the Greeks and King George would be only too glad to cry to them for succor in such an extremity.

Greece has done nothing of the kind, and the powers, especially Lord Salisbury, are disappointed and disgusted with a nation which doesn't know when it is beaten.

It is persistently reported that England, France, and Italy are unwilling to wait longer for the voluntary submission of Greece and urge that the concert should interfere unasked. The reason is that every Turkish success stiffens the neck of the Sultan and increases the difficulty of controlling him in the complicated settlement of the affairs of the Ottoman Empire which was interrupted by the war.

The new league of the three Emperors, it is announced, refuses to intervene at the present moment, or until the powers are requested by Greece to act.

The matter has gone still further, if the reports current in diplomatic circles are correct. Instead of Greece humbling herself before her European mentor Great Britain finds her interests so threatened that she is striving seriously to induce the Greek authorities to apply for aid. In other words, Lord Salisbury, who consented to punish the Greeks for the purpose of breaking their spirit, is now beseeching them to cry "enough" because the rod is really falling upon English backs.

It is probably impossible for the Greeks to continue incorrigible much longer, but those who condemn the servile attitude of the British Government in Eastern affairs in the last two years will be glad to see that the present embarrassment of Lord Salisbury is still augmented. The rapid change in the European situation in the last week is of greater importance than the war developments. It is no longer doubted that a league of the three Emperors is fully established. Its first act is an identical note to the peoples of the Balkan peninsula congratulating them upon their refusal to join the Greek cause against Turkey. The Times significantly remarks on this point today:

"In the gradual modifications which the integrity of the Ottoman Empire will infallibly undergo the real gainers will be the people whom Europe can trust to replace Ottoman misrule by sober, stable political development."

The neutrality of the Balkans now seems fully assured, and this practically destroys all doubt of the issue of the struggle between Turkey and Greece.

The question which chiefly agitates diplomatic circles is no longer war, but whether Russia will be able to bind to herself France and Italy in addition to the two central powers. In other words, will Great Britain finally be isolated? There is still strong confidence in London that Lord Salisbury will be able to win France away from the Czar, while the friendship or alliance of Rome, it is believed, may be had for the asking. This is expecting a great deal, and there is really nothing tangible yet upon which Englishmen can base such hopes.

The manner in which England is pushing her policy of prevention against the Boers, which clearly has war for its object, suggests that the government must have some assurance that she will not encounter the united opposition of Europe in the shameful program. Otherwise Lord Salisbury's Ministry is pursuing a course of sheer madness. The conclusion is almost forced that England deliberately prefers the Transvaal to anything in the East, and that at least some sort of understanding exists between this country and France.

On the other hand, it is repeatedly asserted that there is dissension in Lord Salisbury's Cabinet and that Mr. Chamberlain is determined to pursue a policy of conquest in South Africa in spite of consequences elsewhere. If there is any truth in the latter rumor it spells disaster for Great Britain.

Notwithstanding these irreconcilable features of the situation, public opinion in Europe is decidedly more hopeful than when war was declared a fortnight ago. Lord Salisbury, Mr. Balfour, M. Hanotaux, and all the others have been proved to be false prophets. The Turks and Greeks have been fighting desperately for two weeks and the danger of a general war, which was used by the English Government to suppress even expressions of sympathy with the Armenians and Cretans, is less, apparently, than before a gun was fired.

Private advices from Constantinople say that immense misery and loss have been caused by the war to the Greeks resident in Turkey, hundreds of whom are prosperous merchant traders and shopkeepers. Greek capitalists in Salonica and Smyrna have been ruined, and only the uninterrupted success of the Turkish arms, which has kept the Mussulmans in good humor, has prevented wholesale pillage and massacre in those cities. The good humor, however, has been merely comparative, and any small thing may change it. The Greeks who have not been expelled in accordance with the imperial decree at the outbreak of the war have been subjected to all manner of persecutions, except that actual killing has not yet commenced. The Greeks are as badly off as the Armenians, whom, by the way, they never attempted to help in their hour of need.

London, April 26.—There has been a good deal of talk since the war commenced over the presence of German officers of exalted rank with Edhem Pasha. As far as can be ascertained there are about a dozen Germans with Edhem's army ranking as majors and Colonels, but only one of the rank of General, Brockdorff Pasha, who commands a cavalry division. He is said to be a nephew of Marshall Moltke, and is an officer of distinguished abilities. He served the Russian in the Caucasus, and afterward joined the Turkish army. Now that the turn of the Turkish cavalry has come, Gen. Brockdorff is likely to give a good account of himself.

Canea, Crete, May 2.—Ismal Pasha, Governor of this island, has protested against the decision of the Admirals allowing food to be supplied to inhabitants in the interior. He demands cessation of the blockade or its complete re-establishment.

Paris, May 1.—The Gaulois says the Sultan will insist, with the support of Russia, Germany, and France, upon English evacuation of Egypt.

London, May 2.—Rumors of a secret alliance of the powers against England on the Transvaal question have long been current in Europe, but they have only evoked an amused interest here. In the first place, no such alliance exists. Germany may attract Russia, but Austria is certain to remain neutral on all African questions, while Frenchmen almost unanimously admit that Transvaal affairs have no political or diplomatic bearing for them.

The Gaulios, commenting on the rumors, remarks: "France has only financial interests in the Transvaal, which would certainly suffer in no way if England seized Transvaal. And besides, such action would increase the tension already existing between Great Britain and Germany, an outcome of affairs not calculated over much to displease Frenchmen. The policy of France is an attitude of reserve."

I may add such an alliance, even if it existed, would not be likely to influence British policy with respect to the Transvaal. England is the paramount power in South Africa, and would regard any infringement of her prerogative exactly as Americans feel towards any violation of the Monroe doctrine. Besides, no nation can touch Great Britain in South Africa, and they are all afraid to molest her elsewhere for fear of stirring up a hornet's nest in Europe. For when a great war does come the test of statesmanship will be the ability to keep out of it. This explains the British scornful indifference towards foreign opinion on this subject.

London, May 2.—Capt. Bublick of King George's personal staff wired here from Athens yesterday that the right wing of the Greek army had repulsed the Turks at Pharsala, that the left wing had retreated behind the old frontier line to avoid being encircumvented.—Capt. Bublick adds:—"The Greek army in Epirus, after defeat at Pentepigadia, has retired to Arta. All hope of continuing war is now virtually abandoned. The fleet has returned to Volo for the protection of the inhabitants." The Athens correspondent of the Daily Mail will say tomorrow:—"Both the fleets remain idle. The populace continues indignant at the filling of the railway carriages with Crown Prince Constantine's baggage in the flight from Larissa, despite the protest of the railway officials. The people say that they have been cheated and betrayed. They are also angry at the neglect of the government to call out the reserves, who are for most part relatives of ministers, deputies and aristocrats. A band of 2,000 irregulars is about to start for the front, their standard-bearer, a 19-year old girl, Helen Constantinidis dressed in the same uniform as the men.

Constantinople, May 2.—War preparations go on with unabated vigor. Two commissions composed of officers of the Ministries of Public Works and of War have been formed for the purpose of inspecting railways and facilitating the dispatch of of troops to the frontier. It has been decided to extinguish the torches in all the lighthouses on the Gulf of Smyrna as far as Kunaburun during the continuance of the war. It is officially announced that the Greeks resident in Turkey may become naturalized as an alternative to leaving the country. This will be compulsory for all Greeks officially employed in Turkey. The Porte has undertaken to provide guards for the protection of the American missions in Asia Minor and has promised that these shall not be removed without the consent of the American Legation.

London, May 2.—It is semi-officially stated that Lord Salisbury's proposal to the powers for a conference at Paris to discuss measures with a view to ending the war between Turkey and Greece has already been under consideration for several days at the various foreign offices and may now be considered definitely abandoned.

London, May 2.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail learns that the powers will not consent to the levying of indemnity upon Greece, and that both Austria and Germany are trying to induce the porte to modify its demands.

London, 2.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Paris says that 200 American volunteers for Greece have arrived there and gone to Marseilles. They were all Greeks and wore ribbons bearing the inscription, "War for victory or death."—Tribune.

Discussion.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce that there will be a four-days discussion between a Christian (Campbellite) minister and myself, commencing June 21, 1897, ten miles west of Shawnee, Pott Co., Okla., at the Ray School-house.

He affirms that, "The Kingdom of Christ was set up on the first Pentecost after his ascension." I deny.

I affirm that "The Kingdom of Christ will be set up ,or established, at his coming." I am confined to the King James Version. The kingdom question is all he will discuss with me. Their ministers here seem to not want to discuss any other questions with us. This is the same man that I held a discussion with last year, and he says that I beat him but not in a fair way. Pray for me, that with the help of the Almighty God, that I may use the Sword of the Spirit on him freely.

M. L. ADAMS.

Announcement.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God, in Michigan, will be held (D. V.) at Dutton, Kent County, commencing Thursday evening, June 3, 1897, and continue over the following Sunday. All of like precious faith are cordially invited. Brethren, all that possibly can "come." The Dutton brethren have a fine place of worship and extend a hearty invitation to all, and we can be assured of a good meeting. Let us show them our appreciation by our presence. Dutton is situated on the Michigan Central Rail Road, ten miles southeast of Grand Rapids. Those coming from the south or southwest stop at Carlisle on the G. R. I. & B. R. Those who stop at Carlisle will please to notify the President H. C. Hammond of Dutton, Michigan.

EMMA JACKMAN, Sec.

Editor Restitution.

Please say through your paper that my wife and I are thinking of making a trip through Eastern Oklahoma by private conveyance. We expect to start about May 24th. Should any desire us to hold meetings, if they will write us at Attica, Kansas, before the 24th, we will try and arrange to go their way. After the 24th address us at Berry, Oklahoma, in care of Marcus Oliver. We expect to be gone an indefinite time.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Excursions to Nashville.—Low Rates for Tennessee Centennial.

The Tennessee Centennial and International Exposition will be in progress at Nashville, Tenn., from May until October inclusive. Special low rate round trip tickets will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines for this event. Full particulars concerning fare, dates of sale, time of trains, etc., may be obtained upon application to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or by addressing C. L. Kimball, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.—June 30.

Lieut. Peary will make another dash for the north pole during the coming summer. All the funds necessary for the trip have been raised and the indorsement of the Navy Department is all that is necessary before the explorer starts on his northward journey. According to Lieut. Peary's friends the plans outlined are of the broadest possible scope, and they even assert that the expedition proper will not return before ten years unless its object shall have been accomplished.

Excursions to St. Louis via Pennsylvania Lines.

May 4th and 5th, Excursion Tickets to St. Louis will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines for the North American Gymnastic Union, National Festival Bundesturnfest, and National Association Local Fire Insurance Agents. Tickets will be valid for return trip leaving St. Louis only on May 9th, 10th, or 11th. For further information, please address local ticket agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.—May 8.

To enter the Christ-life—not the Church life, but the Christ-life—is to lay down the natural and lower life as Christ laid it down. It is to consecrate one's self—every reasoning power, every element of genius, every force of disposition, everything that belongs to the power of human nature—to make one's self the bread of others, the supply of others, and to live for beneficence.

Poetry.

The Single Grain of Wheat.

All my daily tasks were ended,
And the hush of night had come,
Bringing rest to weary spirits,
Calling many wanderers home.

"He that goeth forth with weeping,
Bearing golden grains of wheat,
Shall return again rejoicing,
Laden with the harvest sweet."

This I read, and deeply pondered—
What of seed my hand had sown?—
What of harvest I was reaping
To be laid before the throne?

While my thoughts were swiftly glancing,
O'er the path my feet had trod;
Sleep sealed up my weary eyelids,
And a vision came from God.

In the world's great field of labor
All the reapers' tasks were done;
Each one hastened to the master
With the sheaves that he had won.

Some with sheaves so poor and scanty,
Sadly told the number o'er,
Others staggered 'neath the burden
Of the golden grain they bore.

Gladly then the pearly gateway
Opened wide and let them in,
As they sought the Master's presence
With their burdens rich and thin.

Slowly, sadly with the reapers
Who had labored long and late,
Came I, at the Master's bidding
And was latest at the gate.

Then apart from all the others
Weeping bitterly I stood;
I had toiled from early morning
Working for the others' good.

When one friend had fallen fainting
By his piles of golden grain;
With a glass of cooling water
I revived his strength again.

And another, worn and weary,
I had aided for awhile,
Till her fainting strength returning—
She went onward with a smile.

Thus the others I had aided
While the golden moments fled;
Till the day was spent, and evening
O'er the earth her dew-drops shed.

And I to the Master's presence
Came with weary toil-worn feet,
Bringing as my gathered harvest
But a single head of wheat.

So with tearful eyes I watched them
As with faces glad and bright
One by one they laid their burdens—
Down before the Throne of Light.

Old how sweetly then thatblessing
Sounded to my listening ears,—
"Nobly done my faithful servant
Rest, now, in your mansion here."

Then I thought with keenest sorrow,
Words like these are not for me;
Only those with heavy burdens
Heavenly rest and blessings see.

Yet I love the Master truly
And I've labored hard sincedawn,
But I have no heavy burden;
Will he bid me to be gone?

While I questioned thus in sadness,
Christ the Master called for me,
And I knelt before him, saying,
"I have only this for thee.

I have labored hard, oh, Master,
I have toiled from morn till night,
But I sought to aid my neighbors,
And to make their labor light.

So the day has passed unnoticed
And to-night with shame I come,
Bringing as my gathered harvest,
But a single wheat-head home."

Then I laid it down with weeping,
At his blessed, pierced feet,
And he smiled upon my trembling,
Oh, his smile was passing sweet!

"Child, it is enough," He answered;
"All I ask for, thou hast brought:
And, among the band of reapers,
Truly, bravely, thou hast wrought.

This was thine appointed mission
Well hast thou fulfilled the task;
Have no fear that I will chide thee—
This is all that I could ask."

Then I woke, but long the vision
In my heart I pondered o'er,
While I tried to see what meaning
Hidden in the depths it bore.

And at length this lesson slowly
Dawned upon my wondering mind;
Never mind what others gather
Do what-e'er thy hand can find.

If it is thy lotted mission
Thus to serve the reaper band;
And the evening find thee weary—
With an empty sheafless hand;—

Let thy heart be never troubled,
Faithfully fulfill thy task;
Tremble not before the Master,
Heavy sheaves he will not ask.

"The Letter Killeth."

When brought face to face with a "Thus saith the Lord" the supporters of the current falsehoodsin religion always resort to a supposed "spiritual meaning," and bolster up their arrogant pretensions and bold unbelief with Paul's language in 2 Cor. iii. 6, "Who also hath made us able ministers of the New Testament; not of the letter, but of the Spirit; for the letter killeth but the Spiritgiveth life." I have lately been thrown into the society of some disciples of C. W. Russell of the Watch Tower who have fallen into the pernicious habit of "Spiritualizing," and justify every departure from the plain Word by constant iteration and re-iteration of this text. They are essentially German Mystics and the Word of God is, in their hands, made to mean anything their exuberant fancy may suggest. I have never met a more practical illustration of the words of our Lord, "Ye make void the Word of God by your traditions." The word "spiritual" is constantly used by this class of mystics as the opposite of "literal." Israel is always "spiritual Israel." The "throne of his father David" is a "spiritual" throne; the "House of Jacob" is a "spiritual house;" the "reign" a "spiritual reign," for "The letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life." What can be more conclusive? They either cannot, or will not see that what they are pleased to call "Spiritual Israel" has no existence, in fact is only a creature of their perverse imaginations. They cannot be made to understand that Abraham, the literal Abraham is the father of us all by faith: and that all who are in Christ by faith are grafted into the Abrahamic stock and becomes this decree of naturalization citizens of the "Commonwealth of Israel." That the literal Israel will by faith be again grafted into their "good olive tree," and so become the true "Spiritual Israel." The idea of an entire nation, in the flesh, embracing Christ by faith, and thus become a true—the first—Christian nation, here on the earth, to which believing Gentiles are united, as formerly proselytes were incorporated among the Jews, and the whole constituting a true "Spiritual Israel" yet certainly the literal Israel, seems to be beyond their mutual grasp. They forget that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, Moses, Samuel and David, all the Prophets, and apostles, Jesus the Head of the household of faith, the Chief Corner Stone of the spiritual temple of God were all members of the literal "Spiritual Israel," the Israel of Faith, and will some day constitute an important factor in the kingdom of God, a kingdom and nation or commonwealth in which Israel of the flesh shall have no part, but of which Israel in the flesh shall constitute the subjects. But what is the real meaning of the text? You will scarce ask that question if you will take the trouble to read the chapter. Paul is speaking of the law which in the 7th verse he calls "the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones." A law which although "holy, just and good," Rom. vii. 12, and "ordained to life," 10 v., nevertheless "could not give life," Gal. iii. 21, because it was "weak through the flesh," Rom. viii. 3, and therefore every one has found it to be a minister of death, inasmuch as it pronounces a curse—the curse of death, Gal. iii. 13; Rom. vi. 23, upon all who do not obey "all things" written in it. Gal. iii. 10. The letter of the law therefore killeth, but by the death of Christ "the righteousness of the law may be fulfilled in us who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." Rom. viii. 1, 4. Therefore "the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death," Rom. viii. 2, and while "the letter killeth, the Spirit giveth life."

Holy Spirit.

As several have written us of late concerning the Holy Spirit, its office, etc. I thought a few texts on the point might help them and others on this subject.

I do not understand that any person in this age can perform miracles as in the days of the apostles. That was a special gift bestowed on a certain few; the object was to confirm the truth as gospel by ocular demonstrations. That power was to cease, and did cease with the apostles. 1 Cor. xiii. 8.

The order was changed even in the apostles' work, and James gives the order to be followed some sixty years after. James v. 14. We hope no one will mistake our position on the subject, but we certainly do believe in the influences of the Holy Spirit, and we believe the Word plainly teaches that it is to be bestowed upon believers, and is a part of the gospel as much as faith, baptism, repentance or the communion. In fact when one is immersed he is buried into Holy Spirit. Matt. xxviii. 19, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son"—does it stop there? No, "and of the Holy Spirit." Also Acts ii. 38. But what is the Holy Spirit? A comforter sent by the Father, and proceeding from the Father. John xv. 26; also John xiv. 26. Some will say that was only for the Apostles; but Peter himself, one of the Apostles, says with all earnestness, Acts ii. 39, "For the promise is unto you and to your children and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." Are you and I in that blessed call? If we are, then we too may be led by this Spirit which inspired the Prophets and Apostles. 2 Pet. i. 21. The Word is the Sword of the Spirit. Eph. vi. 17. The Word is one thing, the Spirit is the wondrous power by which the Sword is wielded. 1 Cor. xiv. 15. How long was it to last? Forever. John xiv. 16. Some one was very thoughtful of the needs and wants of his children, and it was Christ with his great heart of love, praying the Father to send just what he knew we most needed. John xiv. 16. He would not leave them orphans. Who is entitled to this blessed Comforter? All those who ask him. Luke xi. 13. Not a privilege of a few, but all who ask for it. It is represented as dwelling in us. Rom. viii. 11-16. What is the fearful consequence of defiling the temple wherein this Spirit dwells? 1 Cor. iii. 16-17, "If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy." For the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." It is the means by which we are sealed, even unto the day of redemption. Eph. iv. 30, and we are commanded not to grieve it. "And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption." What is the office of the Spirit? It is not to work miracles, but an indispensable helper. Rom. viii. 26. As long as we are mortal we will need it, and we will pray with David,....."Take not thy Holy Spirit from me." Psa. li. 11. It is represented as dwelling in us. Rom. viii. 11. 16-26. "No man can come to me except the Father which sent me draw him, etc." John vi. 44. How does the Father draw him? By that strange, secret influence or Spirit proceeding from the Father. John xiv. 26, "Even the spirit of truth which proceedeth from the Father, where two or three are gathered together in my name there I am in the midst." Matt. xviii. 20. Was it the New Testament that was there present, or his Holy Spirit, the Comforter, which he had promised should abide with them forever? It would be impossible to use the term Word where Spirit is so often used, and give any sense to the text, viz. Rom. viii. 11.

Submitted for the love of truth, not for controversy, but to answer in one article instead of so many letters which we have not time to answer.

"Another Jesus."

"I fear lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ. For he that cometh preacheth another Jesus, whom we have not preached." 2 Cor. xi. 3, 4.

It seems from the above that in Paul's day some were preaching "another Jesus," which differs from the Jesus the apostles preached. The said Jesus probably had no other existence save in the preaching of these men. In our day "another Jesus" is preached which exists only in the thinkings of the flesh, and differs materially from Jesus described in the Bible. Eve was beguiled with the subtle lie of the Serpent,—"Thou shalt not surely die." The Jesus styled "another Jesus," also beguiles people "from the simplicity that is in (the) Christ" of the Bible, with the same subtle lie—"thou shalt not surely die," by promising a place of bliss or woe, for never-dying souls. The Jesus of the Bible stoutly rejects the subtle lie of the Serpent, and denounces the Serpent as a liar and a murderer. There is not the least harmony between the two.

Many people who were members of churches who teach the never-dying nature of man as taught by "another Jesus" and who practice immersion as baptism, were baptized while professing faith in the doctrine of never-dying souls, as taught by "another Jesus," but have since learned that it was all a subtle lie, and that God "only hath immortality," and are now looking for the coming of the Jesus of the Bible to reign on David's throne, and invest the righteous with immortality at his appearing and kingdom; and yet, strange to say, insist that a baptism they received while believing the subtle lie named in the text at the head of this article, and also in "another Jesus whom we (the apostles) have not preached," is valid. They should know that the Jesus the apostles preached, is not the Jesus who promised a sky-kingdom for immortal souls. The Jesus of the Bible, which was the Jesus the apostles preached, never preached paganism, and endorsed it as a valid substitute for the gospel of the kingdom. They who preach "another Jesus," and "another gospel," the curse of heaven rests upon them, no matter who they are, even angels from heaven, are not exempt. Compare 2 Cor. xi. 3, 4, with the first chapter of Galatians.

It is an important and serious matter and should not be trifled with. We are living at the culmination of the ages. It is more than probable that before twelve months wings its flight, obedient believers of the gospel of the kingdom who are overcomers in the name of Jesus, will be gathered into the pavillion of the Lord, and the judgments of God will be rolled upon the world in terrific fury.

I beseech of you not to trust "another Jesus," such a faith will play you false in that day. A careful examination of the Scriptures is sufficient to convince any candid mind, who is not self-willed, that the Jesus preached by the apostles, and the Jesus preached by the self-styled orthodoxy of our day, are not the same, and the doctrines ascribed to them are as wide apart as the east is from the west. The above assertion can be proved and demonstrated beyond a shadow of a doubt.

Hence it is a clear fact that all who have been baptized into the name of the Jesus of this self-styled orthodoxy were baptized into the name of a false Christ. If you have learned the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, don't delay in being baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus Christ of the Bible, and count your baptism into the name of the Jesus of the apostasy as of non-effect.

The Work in Chicago.

I am well pleased to learn of the progress of the good work in numerous portions of the Master's vineyard and thought it might be of interest to the readers to hear from Chicago.

I am glad to report that we are advancing. In the congregation as a whole, a visible improvement is noticeable in spiritual growth, a desire is manifest to live closer to the Master, than ever before, and also to remove obstacles which may hinder an entrance to the covert from the approaching storm when the angelic reapers shall gather in the fruits of the harvest.

Our Sunday School is getting in a good work under the leadership of Bro. Elmer, and Sister Whitehead.

Our Sisters have also formed an organization to aid the church and relieve distress wherever found, whether in or out of the church. During the winter they have done considerable sewing for the poor, and feeding them as far as their limited means would allow. God bless the Sisters.

Our membership is increasing by obedience to the truth. Every little while one or more ask to be buried with Christ in baptism. During the last few weeks I have had the pleasure of burying with Christ in baptism, ten willing candidates who have confessed their belief in the glorious gospel of the kingdom. God bless and keep them pure and spotless in the name of the Lord Jesus. They are as follows: Mrs. Alice Appleyard the loving wife of Bro. Henry Appleyard. She is a lady who is highly regarded, possessing a sweet disposition. Bro. Tucker was another, a man well advanced in years. He was formerly a missionary in Jerusalem. Clyde Showalter and Elmer Wickham, my comrades in the printing craft, intelligent, active men, whom I expect will be of service in the Master's vineyard. Gracie Wickham, daughter of Bro. Elmer Wickham, although young in years, is alive to the Master's work. Sister Johnson, wife of our esteemed Bro. Charles Johnson. Press on in the good work, and the Lord bless you. I am also pleased to mention Sister Lehmer, wife of Bro. Lehmer, a lady highly regarded by those who know her. Minnie Thomas, a devout girl, young in years, well instructed in the truth. She is an orphan who is being brought up by her uncle and aunt Bro. and Sister Theodore Button. James Button, a young son of Bro. and Sister Theodore Button. Press on toward the mark of the high calling James, and lead your comrades to the Master. We have also Sister Jessie Robertson, may she be instrumental in teaching others the true gospel of the kingdom.

The Kingdom of God.

A proper understanding of the kingdom of God as revealed in the Scriptures is a Key to the Bible. The Bible is a book of the kingdom. It is something literal and real, having territory, king, laws and subjects, and also a cabinet (princes and rulers). It is that political and religious dominion to be established on the earth by Christ and his saints, with the result of abolishing all human governments, and subjecting mankind to the will of God.

"Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." Thus we see the kingdom is yet future. When the living and the dead will be judged at Christ's appearing and kingdom, he will then take to himself his great power and reign." God hath appointed a day in the which he will rule the world in righteousness by that man (Christ) whom he hath ordained, whereof he hath given us assurance in raising him from the dead." "I will give unto him the nations for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession." The great voices will soon go forth, saying, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ, and he will reign for ever." We are fast verging toward this consummation. "I promise unto you a kingdom (my disciples) as my Father has promised me." "He that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I have overcame and am set down with my Father in his throne." "If we suffer with him we shall also reign with him." 2 Tim. ii. 12; Rom. iii. 21. "Fear not little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." "Hearken my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him." "Ye know," (says Paul) how we exhorted you and comforted and charged every one of you as a father doth his children, that ye would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto HIS KINGDOM AND GLORY." 1 Thess. ii. 12. Peter also admonishes his brethren to give diligence to make their calling and election sure for so an entrance shall be administered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." 2 Pet. i. 10, 11. It is through much tribulation we enter the kingdom of God and his righteousness;" showing that God has provided a righteousness for those who first seek the kingdom; and we are only safe when we are invested with this righteousness. This royal robe is put on in the act of immersion. "We are all the children of God in Christ Jesus, through his faith; for as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ." "The gospel (which is the power of God unto salvation) embraces the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ." We read in Acts viii. 12, that "when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were immersed, both men and women." Is there any other way of getting into Christ?"

Divisions of Time.

Dear Restitution:

A few words in regard to the last part of Bro. Oliver's explanation of thoughts on division of time. He says now this must have its fulfillment in the future from where John stood, and as John was carried forward in point of time 2 days or 2000 years, which according to our division of time we find is the 6th day, and the things he saw were to be hereafter, that is from this time on. Now, as we have not reached the point of time where John was carried, therefore, those things he saw must yet be future. Then he says all the Book of Revelation must be in the future from and including the 4th chapter. I have read it over a number of times, I see or think I have the meaning, but there is a chance for some to misconstrue the true meaning and take it from now on, and not take it from the time John saw, and heard, as that part is not quite plain especially to some who are willing to have more time in this sinful world and conclude 2000 years, yet from this present time to be future. While many of us say, "Come Lord Jesus and come quickly," I do not understand. Revelation is all yet future from now, while a great deal of it is and will be fulfilled during the thousand years soon to be ushered in; and after Christ comes most assuredly the 17th chapter of Rev. is fulfilled in the description of the woman sitting on the scarlet colored beast, etc. 3 verse. And in giving a description of the great Mother of Harlots, 5 verse; and the woman drunken with the blood of the saints, 6 verse; and on to the end of the chapter, showing this in the past and was fulfilled during the papal reign, or 1260 years or age of persecution, which ended the year 1770 A. D. I do not bring this as a criticism at all, it was not quite plain to me, and it may be others will look at in the same way. I had never had the idea quite, but it is very plain to me, and I am glad I have had the pleasure of seeing it explained. Though I used some that kind of argument a long time ago with an infidel when he spoke of different strata, the earth and leaves, etc., being hundreds of feet below the surface, and he claimed had been there longer than the Bible times represented. I feel to say amen to the above explanation.

Yours in love and hope to all believers in the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and his kingdom,

W. J. Warner.

England Supreme in the Levant.

London, May 1.—England is at this moment supreme in the Mediterranean. No less than thirty-four of her battleships and cruisers are in those waters ready for action. One-fourth of these are the heaviest war vessels afloat.

The nominal naval force which England maintained in this sea is from ten to fourteen vessels. That number has all along been supposed to be equal to any emergency.

What the real object of the enormous concentration means remains to be seen. Great Britain is now in a position to practically dictate in the Mediterranean. There is no force there, even including the combined forces of the powers, that can stand up against the overwhelming British aggregation.

The fleet, which is under the command of Admiral Sir J. O. Hopkins, K. C. B., is as follows: Anson, Ardent, Ramilies, Barfleur, Blanche, Boxer, Bruiser, Cambrian, Camperdown, Cockatrice, Collingwood, Cruiser, Dragon, Dryad, Fearless, Forte, Gleaner, Harrier, Hawke, Hebe, Hood, Howe, Imogene, Melita, Nile, Nimphe, Polyphemus, Ramillies, Revenge, Rodney, Royal Oak, Rupert, Scout, Skipjack, Stork, Surprise, Sybille, Trafalgar, Tyne, Vulcan.

This is exclusive of the channel squadron, which is kept in easy steaming distance of Gibraltar. Admiral Hopkins has for his flagship the Ramillies. The junior flag officer is Rear-Admiral R. H. Harris. This latter officer is flying his flag on board the battleship Revenge.

The case with which England has collected this great force is in itself cause for wonder. From Portsmouth, Dartmouth, and Plymouth cruisers and gunboats have been leaving England without causing comment or surprise. It all shows with what perfect system the British admiralty orders have been executed.

At all the naval stations of England the ships in port are divided into two classes. The first includes those vessels able to get under way in full commission inside of forty-eight hours.

The second includes all vessels capable of being commissioned in two weeks' time. The third class represents vessels under extensive repairs.

The ships now in the Mediterranean have been taken out of the first-class reserves of the various shipyards and commission, as if for general service. Nothing has been said of their destination being the Mediterranean. In the case of several of the cruisers now with Admiral Hopkins, these vessels left England only the other day with the understanding that they were bound some to the Pacific and some to the southeast coast of America, others were intended for China and the North American station.

The list of British warships in the Mediterranean does not include torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers. Admiral Hopkins has a force of no less than twenty-five of these vessels in active commission. This does not count the second-class torpedo boats at Malta and Gibraltar.

In making this great show of force Great Britain has not disturbed her channel squadron. The latter is practically intact. That means the British shores are safe. Neither has she drawn upon any of the foreign stations. The North American and China stations have full complements. The Pacific squadron has been stronger by a couple of ships, as has the South American station.

On the other hand, the Cape of Good Hope is stronger today than it has ever been. England has drawn simply on her first-class reserve, and she has still two or more lists to make good the vacancies.—Tribune.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Dear Bro. Underwood;

Enclosed you find a small sum for the helping fund. My greatest desire today is to be with the Church in Plymouth, to meet the ones of like faith there and hear the Word as it will be ably set forth by Bro. Reed. I had the pleasure once in Chicago of hearing Bro. Reed preach, and could appreciate his words much better today, as at that time I was not a member of the Church of God, yet thought at the time I had never heard a better sermon. Wishing the Church in Plymouth and THE RESTITUTION success, and that the Word of God may be scattered more and more to the edification and salvation of many, through the medium of THE RESTITUTION.

I am your Brother in Christ,

EDGAR HATCH.

Dear Restitution:

In Acts iii. 19, Peter exhorts the Jews saying, "Repent ye therefore, and turn again that your sins may be blotted out, that so there may come seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord; and that he may send the Christ who hath been appointed for you, even Jesus whom the heavens must receive until the times of restoration of all things." (R. V.) I infer from this that Peter believed that the repentance of the Jews must precede and would bring the seasons of refreshing, the return of Jesus and the times of restoration. And this belief agrees with Deut. iv. 19-30; xxx. 1-20; Hosea iii. 4-5; v. 15; Zech. xii. 10; Matt. xxiii. 39; Acts xv. 14-17; Rom. xi. 23-36; Gen. xlii. 21.

A. S. CLOUGH.

Dear Restitution:

I thought I would write a small piece. I am only sixteen years old. My mother takes the dear old RESTITUTION. I read in it a good deal. I think it is a good paper. "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

Yours truly,

EFFIE C. HOWARD.

To the Household of Faith:

What joy and consolation it is to know that we have a friend in Jesus. And further to know (by the signs of the times) that he will soon return to make up his jewels, and to subdue all enemies under his feet; when the kingdoms of this world shall have become the kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, when there shall be no more pain, sickness, sorrow or death, but all shall know the Lord from the least to the greatest. Dear brothers and sisters, it is my desire to live so as to be found ready when he comes that welcome plaudit will be said unto me, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter into the joys of my Lord. Pray for me that I may be found ready when he comes, is my prayer.

Your Brother alone here in the faith,

GEO. W. HAYNES.

Dear Restitution:

A few words for the love feast. Another year with its trials temptations, its disappointments, mistakes, hopes, fears, joys and sorrows has passed away to join its record with the events of other years that have passed before. Each year, each day, every moment brings opportunity for the perfection of character, for improving on the record which we have made for ourselves in the days that have passed and gone. The great question with us is, How are we of the household of faith spending our time? Are we using the talents given us, or are we hiding them away, neglecting to do the good which is within our power to do? Can we preach? Then let us not neglect to spread the gospel. Can we tell a neighbor of the truths of the Bible in private conversation, let us do so. It may lead him to a knowledge of the truth and be the means of his securing a home in the kingdom of God. Are we making money, if so let us use it to the glory of God, and to help where aid is needed for spreading the truth, and above all let us make our lives conform with our profession.

Your Brother and Sister in hope,

A. L. & ANNIE CORDALEY.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

As I read so many letters full of love and encouragement, to "press forward to the prize of the high calling which is in Christ Jesus our Lord," it fills my heart with joy for we know we shall "reap if we faint not." No guess work. God's promises are sure, "heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." I am truly thankful, that I have been permitted to live and have strength enough to once be in the love feast, to acknowledge his loving kindness toward us. We are commanded to love one another with a pure heart and again "if ye love me keep my commandments." Let us all try to overcome evil with good. Remember me in your prayers, dear brothers and sisters, that I may hold out faithful and stand before the Lord when he comes to make up his jewels for the kingdom, when he returns to earth again.

With love to all the dear ones,

MARY ROMEY.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

It is encouraging to read so many testimonials of those who are of the one faith, looking and hoping and praying for that glorious restitution age, which the signs of the times indicate is in the near future. "And they who feared the Lord spake often to one another, and the Lord listened and heard, and caused a Book of remembrance to be written." "For they are mine, sayeth the Lord of Hosts, when I come to make up my jewels, and I will spare them as a father spares his only son that serveth him."

May we all have our lamps trimmed and burning, and plenty of oil.

WALTER BALES.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

We greet you in the love of God, though we are late to contribute to the love feast. I have been reading the letters with interest and profit. It is precious to express our love in love, but how much grander when they are manifested in deed and in truth. Thus our great Example and mighty Savior manifested his Father's love to us. He went about everywhere doing good. Yes, praise him, praise him for his wonderful love to the children of men. Then when we turn to the 13th chapter of 1 Cor., where the Spirit of God through Paul says, without that principle of love he would be nothing, and when we call to (mind) mind what he writes to Timothy because iniquity abounds the love of many will wax cold. Dear brothers and sisters, let the principles of our letters as well as the spirit of them, be lived in our homes, in our workshops, in all our business with man; then we will adorn the doctrine and the ministry will not be blamed. Then we will have proved in deed and truth what Paul said, he was not ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation to all those who believe. Yes, a faith that works by love and purifies the heart. Then we will prove that the hope of the gospel is a mighty reality in contrast with Mr. Smith's falsehoods, who claims to be a shepherd, but alas! a blind leader of the blind. Let us not only contend in words for the faith, but in practice; "it is he that doeth my will that loveth me," Jesus says. Let us remove every thing from us that hinders us from growing in grace or favor as well as knowledge, and the more we become acquainted with God the more we grow into his favor. And what a privilege is ours to have the favor of our God and his Son Jesus, for if our hearts condemn us not we have a confidence toward God. But this can only be on the condition that we have obeyed the twelfth chapter of Romans, which I would suggest to you to carefully and prayerfully read. The favor of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

Your Brother,

M. T. ARLAKSEN.

Editor Restitution:

Please find enclosed $2.00, $1.50 on subscription, the other 50 cents as you think best. Times are hard and we expect them to be no better till he comes whose right it is; then, not before will we have a righteous government. Deceive and being deceived seems to be the order of the day in most all deparpments. The nations may struggle in the throes of death for a few days more, but die they must, and I think they are about to get into their last struggle before they expire. Brethren, let us all be at our post performing our duty so that we may escape the wrath that is going to be poured out without mixture, and to be able to stand before the Son of Man.

In hope,

J. W. GAMBLE.

Editor Restitution:

My heart is almost too full for utterance to write to you. Today's paper says war has been declared between Turkey and Greece, and we know, who are of the little band, what that means. Who knows but that this very year will see the return of the Lord Jesus to redeem his own? The war now on between Turkey and Greece I believe to be but the first step to bring all nations on the mountains of Israel for the last great battle. Pray for me that I may be found worthy for the inheritance.

Yours for Christ,

ROBERT MCDANIEL.

Dear Restitution:

Brothers and sisters of the one faith, I am 82 years old and have been contending for the faith once delivered to the saints for the last forty years. Yours looking for the soon coming King,

Summer Outings.—Seashore and Lake Resorts.

The principal places of summer sojourn along the Atlantic Ocean, in the Alleghenies, the Adirondacks, Catskills, and mountains of the East, and in the Lake Region and Northern michigan and the Northwest, may be readily reached over the Pennsylvania Lines.

Special information regarding the leading resorts and the advantages enjoyed in journeying to them over the Pennsylvania Route has been compiled and printed in convenient form. The matter is profusely illustrated with photographic reproductions of seashore scenes and includes views at Atlantic City, Cape May, Long Branch and other resorts along the Atlantic Coast; also of Cresson, Bedford Springs, and the romantic mountain retreats, and of Petoskey, Mackinac, and the summer havens in Michigan and the Northwest.

Persons contemplating summer outing trips will find it a valuable guide in shaping preliminaries. Copies may be obtained by addressing C. L. Kimball, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.—May 31.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

A six-inch Harveyized steel plate measuring eight feet by six has stood a severe test in England. Five 100-pound Holtzer projectiles were fired at him from a distance of thirty feet with a velocity of 1,950 feet a second, and were shattered without perforating it, only slight surface cracks being found. The backing of the plate was merely bruised behind each impact.

Books and Tract List.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price, 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"THE COMING NATION."

A lecture delivered by H. C. Reed. Thitherto sets forth the idea that the "Coming Nation" will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 26 pages, price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

"WHERE DO THE DEAD SLEEP?"

Three are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract, 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"HADES."

A Bible account of this place, with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

"DEATH COMPARED TO A SLEEP."

This represents death as a sleep, and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

"THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those searching for truth. 16 pages, 5cents each.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Oracle.

The winds come to me
Full of the wonderful things
The trees have said,
Stillstanding
On the spring-tinged hillside.

They bear a burden of joys,
Sweet utterless prayers,
Voices of birds
For a birth that warms their limbs.
As a mother feels to her child,
Loves it past love of earth,
Knows 'tis a dearer part
Of herself,—
So say the trees to the winds
Of the tender green-skinned buds,
Born of them, fed of them, loved of them!

The winds bring songs of their own;
Of a sweet-breathed God
Who quickens his earth and erects
Blossoms above her breast.
Yet not alone that ye eat
And not alone that ye love
Doth he sprinkle leaves in the land:
His wisdom flows in the green
As the words flow out of men;
The woods are his large receipts,
And the flowers his song,
His proverbs stand in the serried corn
And wave in the sun-shot wheat!

Who knoweth it, saith the wind,
Shall find his scripture given,
Hedges and bending grass
And leaves are the words he writeth.
One import is in them all:
Life, though it wither dies not,
For he is the breath of its mouth.
—Harrison S. Morris.

Bible Class Papers.

ROBBING GOD.

Dear Fellow Learners:

After studying this lesson, it makes me almost tremble to think how little heretofore, I have thought of this startling question, "Will a man rob God?" But I am glad that it has been brought to our notice before it is too late, so that if we have in any way been guilty of this charge, we may still have time to pay some of the debt we owe.

Our first thought may be, what an absurd question? no one would dare rob God of anything, what does it mean? and does it apply to us? God says, "And yet ye have robbed me." How have we robbed thee, Jehovah? Let us see.

When the Jews were brought again to the land of their fathers, and were allowed to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, they made a covenant with the Lord, to this effect:—That they would separate themselves from the people of the land, and walk in God's law; that they would bring as an offering, the first-fruits of the ground, the first-fruits of all their fruit-trees, the first-born of their sons and of their cattle, the firstlings of their herds and of their flocks, and bring them to the house of their God. Here we see they gave to the Lord the best of all they had, what they offered must be perfect to be accepted, if the cattle were sick, or blemished in any way, it was evil for them to offer it. These were the tithes and offerings that were exacted under the Mosaic law, and what God said the whole nation had robbed him of. Perhaps there were a few who had been faithful, but they were prevented from receiving the blessings God offered, because the majority were robbing him. We do not want to advocate for the Church of God, the tithes and offerings under the Mosaic dispensation. Jesus was made a sacrificial Lamb, his blood was shed for all, so we do not have to offer sacrifices of that nature, but we do have offerings and sacrifices to make that are just as important. So let us tonight make a sober investigation to see whether or not there may be many delinquencies on the part of the church. If there are, let us rouse ourselves, that we may not be the means of having withheld any blessings which ought otherwise be poured out on us as a whole.

"Prove me now, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." Oh, what a promise that we may receive such blessings, if we will. But it rests upon a condition, if we withhold nothing from Him. How selfish it would be for us to plead for the promise, if we had ignored the condition. Surely there is a lesson here for each one of us, we cannot lay claim to any of God's promises, unless we regard the conditions upon which they have been made.

We call ourselves sons and daughters, heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus, and as it depends upon us whether our election to this is sure, what manner of persons ought we to be? Paul says, "What, know ye not that your body is the temple of that Holy Spirit which you have from God? Besides, you are not your own, for you were bought with a price; glorify God then, in your body."

When we went down into the baptismal waters, and took on the name of Jesus, we made a covenant with God, that we would separate ourselves from the world and serve him. We acknowledged before him that we believed his promises and were ready, at any cost, to live so as to receive them. How have we kept the covenant? Would we be ready now to receive the promises, should Jesus come for us? Paul beseeches us, by all the tender mercies of God, to present our bodies a living sacrifice, which, he says is only a reasonable service, nothing out of the way, nothing to boast of. It is God's due, after all he has done for us, and if we do not give what belongs to him, we rob him. Have we kept ourselves without spot or blemish, as near as we could, so that the sacrifice presented would be acceptable? Have we kept the body under, and let the Spirit guide our actions? If not, we have done evil toward God; but we know we have an Advocate with the Father, even Christ Jesus, the righteous, who will plead for our forgiveness, if we repent.

Let us not think that we can give to God, what is left over or what we do not want to use for any other purpose, of our time, or our money or anything we have. It is for the sacrifices we make for his cause that we are to be rewarded, "For God is not unjust, so as to be forgetful of your work, and the love which you manifested for his name, having served the saints and are serving, but we earnestly desire each one of you to show the same diligence, to the full completion of the hope to the end." Heb. vi. 10, 11, and in Heb. xii. 15, 16, we read, "Through him, let us offer sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is the fruit of our lips giving thanks to his name. But do not forget to be benificent and to distribute, for with such sacrifice God is well pleased."

Let us always be in the frame of mind to be able to sing the consecration hymn on the cover of our books, which gives our life, our hands, our feet, our lips, our voice, our time, our all for his service, and if we cannot at any time to do this, there is something wrong for we rob God. Just think, we are the only people on the face of the earth that know God's truth, and how are others to learn it, if we hide what knowledge we have, if we are not willing at any time to inconvenience ourselves to teach others, or to encourage one, or be at the meetings to give and receive exhortations, if we think more of our own comforts and pleasures than we do of serving God and doing the work he has laid out for us, what reward can we merit? Let each one think back and try and remember how you happened to hear the glorious news of the coming kingdom, would you have heard it, if some one had not been faithful? Perhaps there are some who would receive it from you if they had the opportunity. Oh, we must not fail to let our light shine all the time. Let the Word of God dwell in us richly in all wisdom, and whatsoever we do in word or in deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father by him.

As we see the signs of the Lord's coming thickening around us day by day, let us work all the harder, for we know the time for labor will soon be over, "and every one shall receive his own reward, according to his own labor." 1 Cor. iii. 8. We should waste no time trying to heap to ourselves riches and vain glories, they will profit us nothing. Peter tells us our Father is no respecter of persons, but judges all alike according to their works, hence, we must pass our time of sojourning here in fear. "forasmuch as you know that you were not redeemed with corruptible things, such as silver and gold and vain conversation, received by tradition from your fathers, but, by the precious blood of Jesus, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot."

My prayer is that we may all so live as to be able to say, when we see that Lamb, "Lo this is our God, we have waited for thee," and receive the reward of the righteous.

EMMA LANG.

"Robbing God," seems like a fearful accusation, dont you think so? and yet, how many of us could stand up and answer, "Not guilty." Is not keeping back what does not belong to us, robbery just as much as taking what is not our own? It might not be called robbery, but it certainly is not honest. If we have given ourselves to God and his service every minute of our life and every thought and act should be in accordance with his laws and when we are not living thus we are holding something back, —robbing God, and ourselves as well, because what we keep brings us only momentary pleasure or satisfaction, whereas, had we given it to God it would be an eternal blessing to us. We do not fully realize this, or we would not do these things. In order to give all to God we must not only be constant and faithful in our study of his Word, but in our daily walks to be considerate of each other, for he has said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

NELLIE PATE.

We are liable to rob God in many ways without feeling guilty, unless we learn from his Word what he requires of us, and realize how much he has done for us,—in fact that we owe our life and all to him. Oh, what love was manifested toward us when he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life? Love and obedience are surely due to the God of love; and it behooves us to be ever on the watch lest we be so enchanted by the things of this life as that we rob him in this respect.....God has graciously invited us to his glorious kingdom, and as we have found and entered the narrow way of life, I hope and pray we may be able to walk in it, and prove our loyalty to him by letting the light of his truth so shine out, and cause others to glorify him. To do this effectually we will have to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ ourselves. The means to this end prescribed for us is study of God's Word, and watchfulness and prayer.

May God help us all to improve the talents intrusted to us for his glory, and finally have an abundant entrance into his kingdom, is my prayer.

For Our Children.

If I Knew.

If I knew the box where the smiles are kept,
No matter how large the key,
Or strong the bolt, I would try so hard
'Twould open, I know for me,
Then over the land and the sea, broadcast,
I'd scatter the smiles to play,
That the children's faces might hold them fast
For many and many a day.

If I knew a box that was large enough
To hold all the frowns I meet,
I would like to gather them, every one,
From nursery, school, and street.
Then, folding and holding, I'd pack them in,
And, turning the monster key,
I'd hire a giant to drop the box
To the depths of the deep, deep sea.

THE SOJOURN AT SINAI.

Nadab and Abihu died on the day that Aaron made his first burnt offering for himself and the people. It was not long after this sad day, that the Son of Shelomith sinned and put to death. His father was an Egyptian, who had married into the tribe of Dan. I suppose he cared nothing for God and his laws, or else he would have taught his son not to blaspheme the name of the Lord. The young man got to quarreling and fighting with another man in the camp, and became so angry that he blasphemed the Holy Name that had been placed upon the nation, and cursed.

The people were horror struck. They had been commanded not to [illegible] said, because if they did, they would not be held guiltless. And here was a man who had dared to go far beyond this, and had presumed to heap the utmost obloquy of human speech upon the name of their king! They seized him at once and imprisoned him, and waited for the Lord to tell them what to do. "And the Lord said unto Moses Bring forth him that hath cursed without the camp, and let all that heard him lay their hands upon his head, and let all the congregation stone him." "Whosoever curseth his God shall bear his sin. And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lord, he shall surely be put to death, and all the congregation shall stone him; as well the stranger, as he that is born in the land," etc.

Dr. Kitto says, "This way of laying hands on the heads of criminals, may seem to arise from several causes. 1. That they were witnesses of the fact that the person condemned, suffered justly; protesting if he were innocent they desired that his blood might fall on their own heads. 2. They put their hands on the heads of the criminal in token of an expiatory sacrifice: for idolatry, blasphemy and such grievous crimes, if they were not punished, they expected would attract a guilt, not only on the witness, but the whole nation, which by the death of the criminal might be expiated. 3. That the criminal was the just cause of his own death." We may not even listen to the voice of swearing, without reproving the sinning person. If we do listen, and say nothing, we too, are guilty. We must keep out of the company of those who take the name of the Lord in vain.

You did not learn all you wanted to about the Levites? Not in two lessons? What more do you want to know? Of whom Aaron was a type? I thought you knew already that he was a type of Jesus. And so you do? You want to know if he was older than Moses and a first-born son? He was. And that made the sons of Aaron, the type of all believers under the gospel. Aaron's sons were made priests, because of their relationship to him: we are to be made priests unto God because of our relationship to Jesus.

Then what about the other Levites? They too are related to Aaron, and are given as a gift to him. Were we wrong in our surmise in our other lesson, that they too represent believers? I do not think we were. They must be types of some order of believers, though perhaps not of those who will occupy the highest positions in the kingdom. The kings and priests of the world to come, will need their assistants. There will be musicians and singers and gate-keepers. They will praise the Lord upon instruments. 1 Chron. xxiii. 5. There will be harpers harping upon harps, (Rev. xiv. 2) and a white robed multitude, who having come up out great tribulation, will stand before the throne of God, serving him night and day in his temple. Rev. vii. 9-17. You will think I am right when you read farther, about how David set some of the Levites over the service of song in the House of the Lord, (1 Chron. vi. 21) about the four thousand players on instruments of his own handiwork, (1 Chron. xxiii. 5) and of Heman and Jeduthun, who should prophesy with harps, with psalteries and with cymbals, "For Heman was the King's seer to lift up the horn." 1 Chron. l. 5. Does not this mean that Heman could foretell future events in song? I think it does. He seems to have written some of the Psalms. He had fourteen sons and three daughters, and they all helped him in singing praises to God. Some of David's Psalms were written for the sons of Korah to sing, others were dedicated to the chief musician, who seems to have been Jeduthun. Many of them are full of lofty notes of joy. These are prophetic. They tell of a time when it can be said, "All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God." They will be sung in the new earth, with the harp, with trumpets and with sound of cornet. Psa. xcviii. 3, 4, 5. There was song in the typical tabernacle, there will be song in the tabernacle that is to come. "The Levites which were the singers; all them of Asaph, of Heman, of Jeduthan, with their sons and their brethren," who sang—after all the holy vessels, the treasures, the silver and the gold, and the ark had been brought into Solomon's temple were arrayed in white linen, having cymbals, and psalteries and harps. They stood at the east end of the altar and with them an hundred and twenty priests sounding with trumpets. And when they with one voice praised the Lord, saying, "For he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever," then the house was filled with a cloud, even the house of the Lord. 2 Chron. xii. 14. They were arrayed in white, and so are the saved ones of the glad coming time. Those who stand on the sea of glass and who sing the song of Moses and the Lamb will have the harps of God in their hands. How much there is to learn! How much there is to bring in vivid pictures before our eyes, the gladness and the glory of the kingdom of God! That is what we are studying for. We are all the time learning something that makes our vision clearer, and the view more grand. How thankful we ought to be to God for giving us, such a wonderful panorama of coming scenes. We are thankful these books are no longer dry and meaningless, now that we see in them bright glimpses of our Eden home.

Some years ago, I heard the Irish evangelist, George C. Needham, deliver a sermon at Camden, N. J. on "Christ in the Types." That sermon opened up a new world to me. I had read Exodus and Leviticus and Numbers, but had seen little of beauty in them. It was all a tangle of laws, and hard, unpronounceable names. But now, that Christ and the future city of God, and the saved ones and the home were all seen to be there, prophesied of by that people, that tabernacle, and that worship, I could study with interest; I wanted to learn more. I hope it will be so with my little friends. But we have wandered so far from Sinai, that we hardly know how to get back. What was it I wanted to say? Oh, I know now. It was about the age of the Levites. Moses counted them when they were 30 years old and upward; one place says 25. But by the last words of David, they were to be counted from twenty and upward. No reason is given for the change. 1 Chron. xxiii. 3.

You wanted to know how the priests got their living? I have told you a little about it. But you want to know more? Well, from the offerings of the children of Israel, all these things were theirs. They belonged to Aaron and to his sons and to his daughters, by a statute forever, or, as another place has it, by "a covenant of salt forever." Num. xviii. 8-32. You must read the whole chapter. "Of the most holy things preserved from the fire," these were Aaron's, "every oblation" of the children of Israel, "every meat offering of theirs, and every sin offering of theirs, and every trespass offering of theirs, * * * the heave offering of their gift with all the wave offerings;" "all that were in his house that were clean, could eat of it."

The best of the oil, the wine and the wheat, the first fruits of them, and of everything else that was first ripe in the land; the first calves, kids and lambs belonged to him, and I suppose also, the redemption money of the first-born of man, and of unclean beasts.

You have already learned that the Levites were supported by the people. They had all the tenth in Israel for their inheritance. A tenth part of this tithe the Levites were to offer as an heave offering to the Lord. This was to go to Aaron.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

One Girl's Work.

A few years ago a little girl applied to a pastor in one of our large cities for admission into his Sunday School. She was told that the classes were so full that there was no room for her, and that the church was so small that no more classes could be organized. Much disappointed, the little girl began to save pennies (her family were poor), for the purpose of enlarging the church, in order that she and other children like her might be accommodated. She told no one of her ambitious purpose, however; so that when the pastor of this church was called to her bedside a few months later he saw nothing unusual, only a frail child of six and a half years.

The little sufferer died, and a week later there were found in her battered red pocket-book (which had been her savings bank) fifty-seven pennies and a scrap of paper, which told in childish print the story of her ambition and the purpose of her self-denial.

The story of that little pocket-book and its contents, and the unfaltering faith of the little owner, got abroad. It touched the heart of saint and sinner alike. Her inspiration became a prophecy, and men labored, and women sang, and children saved, to aid in its fulfillment. These fifty-seven pennies became the nucleus of a fund which in six years grew to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; and today this heroine's picture (life size) hangs conspicuously in the hallway of a college building, at which fourteen hundred students attend, and connected with which there is a church capable of seating eight thousand, and a Sunday School room large enough to accommodate all the girls and boys who have yet asked to enter it.

A fairy story? It reads like one, but happily it is not one. The little girl's name was Hattie May Wyatt, and the splendid institutions described are located in Philadelphia.—Harper's Round Table.

How They Died.

James the son of Zebedee was beheaded.

Philip was scourged and crucified.

Matthew was slain in Ethiopia by a halbert.

Mark was tied by the feet, dragged through the streets, left bruised in a dungeon all night, and the next day burned.

The Jews, greatly enraged that Paul had escaped their fury, by appealing to Cesar, wreaked their vengeance on James, the brother of Jesus, now ninety-four years old. They threw him down, beat, bruised and stoned him; and then dashed out his brains with a club.

Matthias was martyred at Jerusalem, first stoned and then beheaded.

Andrew was fastened to the cross, not with nails, but cords, that his death might be more slow and excruciating. He lived two days the greater part of the time preaching to the people.

Peter, after severe scourging was crucified with his head downward.

Paul, after having suffered imprisonments, stripes, stonings, perils and privations of every name, was martyred by being beheaded by order of the monster Nero, at Rome.

Jude was crucified.

Bartholomew was crucified and decapitated.

Thomas was martyred in India, by being thrust through with a spear.

Luke was hanged.

Simon was crucified.

John, the beloved disciple, after being miraculously delivered from a cauldron of boiling oil, by which he was condemned to die, was banished to the Isle of Patmos to work in the mines.

The language of the Bible grows more harmoniously luminous with the growing light, when its words are interpreted simply, as words still living; they are found to give the spiritual message which each age requires, the one message made audible to each hearer in the language wherein he was born.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. MAY 12, 1897.

WE hope to answer Bro. Wm. Burton's question next week.

ERRATUM—In notice of Popular lectures by M. Joblin the price given was $1 per 300. It should have been $1 per 100, post free.

"THE rays of the sun soften wax, but harden clay. To some the glad tidings of salvation are a Savior of life unto life; to others, a Savior of death unto death."

The Question Drawer.

Bro. JAS. Browning writes:—Dear Bro. Joblin, will you kindly answer the following questions, suggested by reading Eph. i. 12-28:—

1. "Is the "Hope of this calling" referred to in the 18th verse identical with the Hope of the Promises?"

We answer, yes; we are informed in the 4th chapter that there is but one hope of our calling. That hope is set before us in promises confirmed by the oath of God. See Heb. vi. 12-20.

2. "If so, and the promises made to the Fathers constitute the Word of Truth, as taught elsewhere, how could they believe that Word, and still be ignorant of the hope?" See verse 13.

If we rightly diagnose the correspondent's case, it is this: He supposes that the WE of the 12th verse refers to Paul and the Ephesian brethren; and that therefore they are said to have first trusted in Christ, and heard the Word of Truth—the gospel of salvation afterward; and, of course is puzzled to know how that could be.

We think we can help to straighten the matter out. In the first place, notice that the Apostle uses the pronoun WE in the 12th verse, but employs the word YE in reference to the Ephesians; showing that those who FIRST trusted, and those who ALSO trusted after they had heard the Word of Truth are not the same parties. We think the Apostle in verse 12 means himself and his co-laborers in the gospel, as does James, in chapter i. 18, as follows: "Of his own will begat he us with the Word of Truth, that we should be a kind of first-fruits of his creatures. If this be correct, and we think it is, the difficulty is removed.

3. "If the 'hope of this calling' is the hope of Eternal Life, were they not ignorant of a very important part of the gospel?"

We think the answer to No. 2. would apply to this, because the Word they heard and believed, embraced this essential item of the gospel.

4. "If they were so ignorant, but nevertheless addressed by Paul as saints," and as the "faithful in his introduction, chapter 1, verse 1, are we safe in concluding that the teaching of conditional immortality is not essential to being sealed with the Spirit of Promise?"

Yes; it is perfectly safe to do anything in regard to the truth, that Paul did. Show us where he calls men saints who had never been separated from sinners; or where he calls men "faithful" who had never believed the promise which God who cannot lie, promised before the times of the ages Titus i. 2, and we will follow him, not before. IF he did as above supposed it is safe for us to do it, not otherwise. Remember it was the same Paul who wrote the second chapter of Ephesians, as well as the first, and the 12th verse informs us that those who are strangers to the covenants of promise are aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and are Christless, Godless, hopeless. Titus i. 2 proves that Eternal Life is one of the covenanted blessings. It is our prayer that our correspondent and all the friends of truth will set themselves like a flint for its defense. Faithful witnesses is the demand of the hour.

The Spirit of God. What is It? No. 2.

Judging by the trend of our correspondents' letter, we think he must entertain erroneous ideas respecting the moral influence of the Spirit; he does not seem to realize the force of the great truth expressed in Rom. i. 16, that the gospel of Christ is God's saving power. This is sad, after learning many other precious truths; but we take matters as we find them and proceed to reason with him out of the Scriptures.

We presume he will not question the fact that love is the motive power of the gospel; and so we commence right there. How does God manifest his love to us, so that we may feel its power? We have the unqualified statement of an apostle who speaks for himself as well as others, that they loved him, (God) because he first loved them. As this was written for our benefit we will make a personal matter of it, and enquire how we may know

THAT GOD LOVES US?

Does a mysterious influence come over us and assure us of that fact, and cause our hearts to respond to it? Is this the plan by which love and obedience is produced in us? Are we moved to adopt any other systems or principles in that way? Is it not necessary for us to hear or read about them, and consider their merits or demerits before being influenced for or against them? No one, we think, will except to this. And considering the fact that God has taken the pains to have his propositions and promises written out and sent to us, is it not reasonable to conclude that his object was to and love in that way? In the nature of things a person must have a reason for loving God. And we understand that it was his loving purpose revealed to them by Moses, the Prophets, the Psalms, and lastly by his Son that produced love in the apostles and their brethren, toward him. Was it not the joy set before Christ, that induced him to endure the cross and despise the shame that had to be first passed through? The apostles were commissioned to go into all the world and to every creature, and he that believed was to be saved, and he that did not believe it was to be condemned. This shows by what means God influences men, viz., by good news, glad tidings of good things graciously offered, and this confirms the oft repeated statement, that love begets love. It also proves men to be free moral agents. Those who wish to be saved have to accept God's propositions and invitations in the gospel. In order to do that it is necessary first to hear them, or read them, and then consider them. If the testimony be received, and back of the propositions and invitations and promises produces love enough in a person to transfer his affection, he is converted,—changed, and, mentally and morally is a new creature,—he has the mind of Christ, the mind of the Spirit instead of a fleshly mind. Such an one has been lifted to a higher plane of existence, and is in communion or intercourse with heaven, and God is pleased with him, because he has been won,—has yielded to his gracious overtures. To us this is a reasonable process throughout; and to weave in any supernatural influence where there is no need of it would be great folly. If a new creature be evolved through a natural process,

WIN OUR CONFIDENCE

PREACH THE GOSPEL

THE LOVING PURPOSE

GOD'S PURPOSE IS ATTAINED, and that is enough. We seriously question if his purpose could be attained in any other way. He has selected this way, and he never selects the second best way; and we have never seen it explained how a person can be morally elevated by compulsion. If a moral organization counts for anything in man, he decides his own destiny. If it counts for nothing, man is on a level with the brute. If a ready-made disposition can be infused into, or forced upon a man, why may not a brute be transformed in the same way? But what is the use of reasoning thus, when the morality of any action, is or free agency? We hold it to be impossible, in the nature of things, to morally elevate a person against his will. He may be made strictly obedient to moral laws, outwardly; but God looks at the heart; and the heart is regulated by the will.

But it is objected that "Jesus promised that if he went away he would send the Comforter to them, and he would convince the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment," etc. That is even so.

THE SPIRIT OF GOD

which strove with the antediluvians, is now reproving the world, begetting, sanctifying and comforting saints, and giving them access to God through Jesus, and helping their infirmities, and teaching them what to pray for, strengthening and sealing them, and giving them the earnest of their inheritance, and making them epistles of Christ, and will ultimately raise them from the dead to a life of glory and honor and immortality. But is there any evidence that these influences are in operation beyond the knowledge of his Word? Would there be any heathen if this were so? Were this so, would there be any use for the Bible? We want to know why, if the Spirit strives with and reproves the world apart from the Word,—yea,—why are not all people in all parts of the world reproved alike, or

CONDEMNED ALIKE?

And why is it that there are those who sin without law, and perish without law, if they are made responsible by direct spirit influence apart from the Word? Why is it that one class of heathens hold that to be sin, which another holds to be virtue? We are convinced that what are conceived to be "impressions of the Spirit" among Protestants and Catholics alike, are a great delusion, because they justify some, while they condemn others for the same acts. If the Spirit apart from the Word guides men and women into the truth, would it not

ACTUE ALL ALIKE?

As they are not guided alike, is this not evidence that they are guided by a spirit of error? If it is the office of the Spirit to convince and [illegible] men apart from [illegible] idle if it fail to do this? Could men be to blame under the circumstances? Again, if the spirit apart from the Word teaches people how and what to pray for, how is it that they are so contradictory in their requests?

Did not Jesus say, "The Word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." John xii. 48. His Word, then, is the law in the case, —and we learn from John v. 22 that all judgment has been committed to him, so that he is sure to sit on the case, and administer justice according to the Word as announced. This should be satisfactory evidence that no influences apart from the Word are taken into account; and this is very strong presumptive evidence at least, that there was no such influences.

It should be born in mind that the same work of redemption which is ascribed to the Spirit is attributed to God and his Word, which shows clearly that it is one performance by the Spirit of God through prophets, Christ and the apostles,—in proof of which we adduce the following evidence:—

"The SPIRIT of the Lord spake by me,—and his Word was in my tongue; the God of Israel said, The Rock of Israel spake to me." 2 Sam. xxiii. 2, 3.

"Yet many years didst thou forbear them and testified against them by thy SPIRIT in thy prophets; yet would they not give ear; therefore gavest thou them into the hand of the people of the lands." Neh. ix. 30.

"Yea, they made their hearts as an adamant stone, lest they should hear the law, and the WORDS which the Lord of hosts hath sent in his SPIRIT by the former prophets; therefore came a great wrath from the Lord of hosts." Zech. vii. 12.

"It is the SPIRIT that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing; the WORDS that I speak unto you, they are SPIRIT, and they are LIFE." Jno. vi. 63. He expressed the mind of the Father, whose Word imparted spirit and life to animate and inanimate nature, and which has lost none of its moral energies, or life-giving powers by age —"it liveth and abideth for ever, and this is the Word which by the gospel is preached unto you." 1 Pet. i. 23-25. In view of this, how presumptuous is it to talk about the Word being a dead letter! It, in our estimation, would be scarcely more presumptuous to teach the death of God, than that his Word had lost its power.

Let the earnest enquirer carefully examine the words of Paul in Cor. iii. 6-18, "Who also hath made us able ministers of the New Testament, (or covenant), not of the letter [of the Mosaic law], but of the SPIRIT, [The gospel] for the letter [of the law] killeth, but the spirit [the New Covenant —the gospel], giveth life. But if the ministration of death, written and engraven on stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not steadfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance, which glory was TO BE DONE AWAY; now shall not the ministration of the SPIRIT [the gospel] be rather glorious? Now, the Lord is that Spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. But we all with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord." From this testimony it is plain to be seen that Paul was not a minister of the Old Covenant; was a minister of the New Covenant; that the Old Covenant was a

that the New gives Life; that although the ministration of death was glorious as long as it lasted,—it was to be done away, on the arrival of him in whom the New Covenant centered; and this explains why Paul takes pains to assure he was not serving under the law, but under the Spirit; was preaching or ministering the New Testament, the gospel, that those who would hear, and obey might be changed into his likeness by the transforming power of God exercised through the gospel; all of which furnishes additional proof that the moral attributes of the Spirit are only attainable through the medium of his Word.

Banner For The Jews.

King David's banner—so called for want of a better name—has been formerly adopted as a standard by a little band of Jews in Chicago, and the sight of the flag has raised in many hearts a hope that the old dream of a reoccupation of Palestine by the tribes of Israel may become a reality. It is a simple affair, this flag; merely a piece of white silk, 8x5 feet in size, with a double triangle of blue worked in the center. There is no Jew in this city who knows the true significance of the symbol. Even such learned men as the Rev. Dr Emil G. Hirsch and the Rev. Dr. Bernard Felsenthal, the latter a past Master in the science of archæology, are unable to satisfy themselves as to its meaning or origin. There is nothing in Biblical, or Talmudic, or national literature by which his history can be traced. Despite this the double triangle of blue is recognized and revered by Jews the world over. The symbol is seen in many places and used in many ways, but so far as known the flag now owned in Chicago is the only one of its kind in existence.

This banner was first unfurled last week at a session of Uniformed Rank Lodge No. 43 of the Independent Western Star Order, held at the Lessing club-house on West Taylor street. On that occasion it was referred to as the Jewish national flag, but exception is taken to this by intelligent Jews for the good reason that history fails to show that their people, even in the height of their power and glory under the leadership of King David, ever had a national banner. Tradition leads the antiquarians to believe that some of the tribes, and notably that of Judah, may have had standards of their own, and there is warrant for this in the references to "the lion of the tribe of Judah," which are accepted as indicative of the tribal emblem. In the days of the ancient Jews, however, mysticism flourished and there were a number of orders, strong in membership and influence, each of which had its own particular symbol. Among these was the Order of Kappalnar, or Kappalists, a sort of ancient Freemasonry. This was one of the most widely diffused and powerful of the mystic organizations, and it is not improbable that the double triangle is a modernized adaption of their ancient sign or emblem.

But, whatever its origin and meaning may have been, advantage is now being taken of the reverence in which the sign is held by orthodox Jews to use it for their material advantage. In recent years there has been a marked renewal of persecutions of the race, especially in Russia, and to escape from which these people have fled to America and other countries in large numbers. Poverty-stricken by reason of the confiscation of their property; ignorant because denied the opportunities for educating themselves or their children; ground under the heels of despotism until all semblance of good citizenship was crushed out of them, the fugitives have not readily accommodated themselves to the surroundings in their new homes and have been slow of assimilation. So far as bodily discomfort is concerned many have even suffered more here than in the lands from which they were driven. These conditions have been seriously studied by the brainy men of the race, and the best thinkers among them now openly assert that the refugees should colonize in Palestine. Those who favor this plan point to the fact that the Holy Land was the original home of the Jews, and as such is today better adapted to the needs and qualifications of the poorer classes than the newer countries. In ancient days the Jews were shepherds and tillers of the soil. Trade was forced upon them by the rulers of the lands into which they spread, as a brand of servitude. In climate, and opportunities it is held that the descendants of this class who are still struggling against despotism in foreign countries to re-establish themselves as an independent and useful people. To bring this about, however, requires an awakening of national spirit and pride, and it is in this the mystic symbol of the double triangle is expected to play a prominent part.

The presentation of the flag was devoid of ostentatious ceremony. Those who took part in it had no idea of raising a national standard, but saw in the occasion a chance to inculcate principles of patriotism and arouse the latent love of independence. On the question of a concerted movement to re-people the Holy Land they are silent.

Adolph Boudy of No. 234 Fifth avenue is a member of the Executive Council of the Independent Western Star order. In discussing the unfurling of the new flag he said:

"It is a mistake to speak of the banner as the national flag of the Jews. None of us know definitely whether the Jews ever had a flag or not. Neither do we know anything about the real significance of the symbol. For some reason it is looked upon by Jews with the same reverence that Christians have for the cross and Ottomans for the crescent. The double triangle on a white ground is called King David's banner, but why I am unable to say. It is hoped that the sight of the mystic symbol may increase the spirit of patriotism among the members of the order, and I said as much in the speech I made at the presentation. If this can be done the condition of many Russian Jews will be materially improved, and they need it badly. This flag is, I think, the only one of its kind in existence."

The venerable Dr. Felsenthal of Zion congregation looks upon the revival of the symbol as a matter of considerable interest and importance. "As for the meaning of the double triangle itself," he said, "or its source of origin I have been unable to get any definite information. My belief is that the adoption of the sign by the Jews is of comparatively recent date. By this I mean that it does not run back more than 300 or 400 or perhaps 500 years. It may have been known to the ancient Jews, but there is no record of it, and yet it is pretty well established that some of the tribes at least had flags or standards. That of Judah was probably a lion, emblematic of the characteristics of those people. The double triangle may have served a similar purpose for some other tribe, or may even have been used as a national banner, but, if so, there is no authentic trace of the fact. To call it King David's flag is palpably an error. The symbol is more probably of mystic origin.

"I am not personally informed as to the reasons for the revival of the double triangle at this day in the shape of a flag, but there is one way in which it may be used with good effect. Oppression in foreign countries has driven thousands of Jews to seek refuge in this and other lands. Within the last ten or twelve years fully 250,000 have fled from Russia alone. Their condition in their new homes is not entirely satisfactory and the best informed men think it would be more beneficial to direct future emigration towards Palestine. The Holy Land is the natural home of the Jews, and by the awakening of a wholesome national spirit it may be that those who are now driven to seek new locations can be induced to settle there."

The Rev. Dr. Hirsch agrees with Dr. Felsenthal that there is no authentic record of the origin or meaning of the double triangle as used by the Jews. "We know it is used frequently as a decoration," said Dr. Hirsch, "but the reason is lost in obscurity. If Dr. Felsenthal is unable to explain the matter I know of nobody in this country who can do so. His opinion that the symbol does not date back more than 500 years is, to my mind, well founded."—Tribune.

It is easy to keep busily at work, but there is little gain in keeping busily at work unless one is doing something worth doing. The Emperor Domitian kept himself constantly employed in the latter years of his reign, but it was at no more important tasks than catching flies. And Domitian's sorry business is the type of much of what passes for useful work among nineteenth century Anglo-Saxons. He neglected the affairs of a great empire, that he might find time to perform tasks that were beneath the dignity of a professional fool; too many, today, neglect the interest of a far greater kingdom that they may gratify personal ambitions, whose outcome, in this world or the next, will be as little use to God, or to man, as the self-imposed task of fly-catching Domitian. It is well to be busy at work, if one is engaged in a work worth doing; but if one is engaged in the Devil's work, it is far better to be an idle workman than a busy one.

Announcement.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana will be held at the Antioch Meeting-house five miles south of Plymouth, commencing on Friday evening June 11, 1897, at 7:30 o'clock, and continuing over the following Sunday. We extend a cordial invitation to all the brethren of like precious faith and all others who so desire, to come and be with us and help forward the cause of the Master. Come with hearts full of love for the cause and for each other, and let every one do his duty and our heavenly Father will reward our efforts. It has been suggested that all who can and desire, bring enough provision on Saturday and Sunday, and remain at the church until after the night meeting. Come and let us enjoy one more good meeting at old Antioch.

J. F. WAGONER, Pres.
A. C. ROBERTS, Sec.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God, in Michigan, will be held (D. V.) at Dutton, Kent County, commencing Thursday evening, June 3, 1897, and continue over the following Sunday. All of like precious faith are cordially invited. Brethren, all that possibly can "come." The Dutton brethren have a fine place of worship and extend a hearty invitation to all, and we can be assured of a good meeting. Let us show them our appreciation by our presence. Dutton is situated on the Michigan Central Rail Road, ten miles southeast of Grand Rapids. Those coming from the south or southwest stop at Carlisle on the G. R. I. & R. R. Those who stop at Carlisle will please to notify the President H. C. Hammond of Dutton, Michigan.

EMMA JACKMAN, Sec.

Editor Restitution:

Please say through your paper that my wife and I are thinking of making a trip through Eastern Oklahoma by private conveyance. We expect to start about May 24th. Should any desire us to hold meetings, if they will write us at Attica, Kansas, before the 24th, we will try and arrange to go their way. After the 24th address us at Berry, Oklahoma, in care of Marcus Oliver. We expect to be gone an indefinite time.

S. C. OLIVER.

Discussion.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce that there will be a four-days discussion between a Christian (Campbellite) minister and myself, commencing June 21, 1897, ten miles west of Shawnee, Pott Co., Okla., at the Ray School-house.

He affirms that, "The Kingdom of Christ was set up on the first Pentecost after his ascension." I deny.

I affirm that "The Kingdom of Christ will be set up, or established, at his coming." I am confined to the King James Version. The kingdom question is all he will discuss with me. Their ministers here seem to not want to discuss any other questions with us. This is the same man that I held a discussion with last year, and he says that I beat him but not in a fair way. Pray for me, that with the help of the Almighty God, that I may use the Sword of the Spirit on him freely.

Now is the Time to Get a Home.

The Chicago & North-Western Railway has just published a newspaper called the North-Western Home-Seeker, giving facts about the great State of South Dakota and the advantages it possesses for the pursuits of agriculture, dairying and cattle raising. Lands can be had at present upon most favorable terms, and there is every indication of large immigration into the State this season. Correspondence is solicited from intending settlers, and a copy of the paper will be mailed free upon application to C. Traver, T. P. A., Marine National Bank Building, Pittsburg, Pa.—May 30.

The man who finds not God in his own heart will find him nowhere; and he who finds him there will find him everywhere. The reason why men are so often disappointed in the search for God is that they do not look for him first of all where he should be sought, —in the manifestations he makes of himself in their own minds and hearts. They suffer the noises of the world to drown the "still, small voice" that never ceases to plead with them to keep in the path of righteousness and peace.—David Swing.

Poetry.

(Dedicated to my beloved cousin, E. C. Vose.)

"Take Heed How Ye Build."

Up, up goes the structure! "Take heed how ye build."
Ye young men and maidens, in workmanship skilled,
The palace of selfhood's a delicate thing;
One brick in the block it to ruin may bring;
Out of line, be that brick, your house is untrue
And storms of the judgment, the whole will undo.

There are battles to fight on the side of our God,
That never are won but in strength of his Word.
What others may do, does not set the the right
For even our motives take weight in his sight.
Justice is justice, and love is divine,
To defraud a poor human in these is a crime.

Though foes may be bitter, and fling at our head
The scenes of injustice, no wrong must be said.
Our mission is peace e'en waves of our will
As the Word of the Master must learn to be still.
If those that we love, are despitefully used,
One course is there left for his soldiers to choose;

Though hard be the battle, his honor's at stake,
And weapons "unto" carnal, no soldier must take.
If we do the wrong, will our record be clean
If we in return shall choose to be mean?
Take the sweet way of pardon, he bids us forgive.
If we in his kingdom forever would live.

The Book of Esther.—Chap. 3.

1. And after these events the king Artaxerxees glorified Aman of Amadathos, a Bougaite, and exalted him, and he was occupying the chief seat of all his friends;

2. And all those in the court were accustomed to do him homage: for in this wise had the kinggiven directions to do: But Mardochaios did not do homage to him.

3. And those in the court of the king said to Mardochaios, O Mardochaios, why dost thou not obey the behests spoken by the king?

4. Day after day they were saying it to him, and he did not hearken to them. And they gave Aman to understand that Mardochaios was opposing himself to the words of the king, and Mardochaios and gave them to understand that he was a Joudaian.

5. And when Aman became aware that Mardochaios was not doing homage (this is the usual word for worship throughout the Scriptures both Old and New) to him, he became very angry.

6. And took counsel to get rid of all the Joudaians subject to the royalty of Artaxerxees.

7. And he caused a majority-proposition to be passed (in the court council) in the twelfth year of the kingdom of Artaxerxees, and cast lots day after day, and month after month so as to destroy in one day the race of Mardochaios, and the lot fell for the fourteenth of the month which is Adar.

8. And he talked with king Artaxerxees saying; There is a nation scattered among the nations in all thy kingdom and their laws are alien to all the nations and they do not obey the laws of the king, and it is to the disadvantage of the king to allow them.

9. If it seem best to the king, let it be decreed to destroy them, and I will write as a result into the treasury of the king a myriad talents of silver.

10. And the king taking off his signet-ring gave it into the hands Aman to seal the things written against the Joudaians.

11. And the king said unto Aman, Have the money and use the nation as thou wilt.

12. And the scribes of the king were summoned in the first month on the fourteenth, and they wrote as Aman directed unto the military-leaders and the rulers throughout all the country from India unto Aithiopia, unto the one hundred and twenty-seven provinces and to the rulers of the nations according to their manner of speech through (in the name of) Artaxerxees the king,

13. And there was sent through letter-carriers into the kingdom of Artaxerxees to eliminate the race of Joudaians on the first day of the twelfth month, which is Adar, and to plunder their possessions, and the following is a copy of the epistle:

Great king Artaxerxees writeth as follows unto the rulers of the 127 countries from India to Aithiopia and local governments subject to him; Being a ruler of many nations and being in control of all the inhabited, I have counselled, not as though lifted up with the rashness of official-power, but always conducting things in a gentler way and with mildness so as to always establish the stable likelihood of my subjects; and while furnishing a mild royalty and one progressing unto ends in view, I have counseled to make it rise towards the peace longed for by all men.

And how this end in view may have been conduced being the longing desire of my fellow-counsellors, our sober judgment deduced in an unchangeable way with beneficent thought and assured faith, Aman who hath been accorded the second honor even of the royal prerogatives hath had shown him and he hath shown us, namely, that among all the tribes throughout the inhabited there is commingled a certain ill disposed laity (church-people) arrayed against every nation with their laws and constantly sowing forth things contrary to the statutes of the kings so as not to promote in a blameless way our joint-rule that is restoring to uprightness. We having determined then that this nation alone is lying in opposition always in a leading way to all mankind, changing the course of laws in a strange way, and evilly-disposed toward our affairs, while consummating the worst evils also in opposition to the kingdom which is attaining a healthy consistency—we have decreed therefore that all those indicated to you in the things written by Aman who hath been appointed over the affairs who is our second father, that they all with their wives and children perish root and branch by the swords of their enemies without any pity or sparing on the fourteenth of the twelfth month Adar of the present year, that they long ago and now evilly disposed may in one day with violence go down into hades, and that for the coming time thereafter they may completely afford us a well-ordered and undisturbed condition of affairs. (This passage from the close of verse 13 is numbered in the text as 24 lines instead of verses.)

14. And the copies of the epistles were posted throughout the provinces, an order issued to all the nations to be ready for this day.

15. And the matter was being hasted also in Soosa. And the king and Aman were tippling and the city was getting tumultuous.

Chapter 4.

1. And when Mardochaios became aware of the thing that was being consummated, he rent his outer-garments, and clothed himself with sackcloth and sprinkled himself with ashes, and walked out through the public-square of the city, calling for help with a great voice (in the words) a nation that hath done no wrong is being destroyed.

2. And he came as far as the gateway of the king and stood; for it was not allowable for him to enter into the court having on sackcloth and ashes.

3. And in every province where the writings had been posted there was a great cry and public mourning and great sorrow on the part of the Joudaians and they had strown sackcloth for themselves.

4. And the favorite-maids and the eunuchs of the queen entered in and told her. And when she heard it she was disturbed and sent word to Mardochaios to put on his courtly stole; and to take off his sack-cloth; but he was not persuaded.

5. And Esther summoned Achrathaios her eunuch, who stood by her, and sent him to learn from Mardochaios the particulars.

7. And Mardochaios disclosed to him what had occurred and the promise Aman had made the king of a myriad of talents for the royal treasury in case he should destroy the Joudaians.

8. And the copy that had been posted in Soosa concerning their destruction he gave to him to show to Esther; and said that he should direct her to enter in and petition the king and make a claim for the laity; Remember the days of thy humiliation, how thou wast brought up by my hand, because Aman the second in rank to the king hath talked against us unto death: Do thou invoke the Lord and talk to the king for us; deliver us from death.

9. And Achrathaios went in and told her all these words.

10. And Esther said unto Achrathaios, Go thy way unto Mardochaios and say,

11. And all the nations of the kingdom know that any man or woman who shall enter in unto the king into the inner court unsummoned—there is no salvation for such an one unless the king shall extend to such an one the golden sceptre; this one will have been saved: And I have not been summoned to enter in unto the king these thirty days.

12. And Achrathaios told all these words of Esther to Mardochaios;

13. And Mardochaios said unto Achrathaios: Go thy way and say unto her, Esther, Say not unto thyself that thou alone wilt have been saved in the kingdom rather than all the Joudaians;

14. Because forsooth if thou evadest to hearken in this period, responsive help and protection will there be for the Joudaians from another source, but thou and thy father's house will perish: and who knoweth whether thou hast not been made queen for this very time?

15. And Esther sent out this one who came unto her unto Mardochaios saying:

16. Go call a church-meeting of the Joudaians in Soosa and appoint a fast for me, and eat not nor drink for three days night and day: and I and my favorite maids will go without food: and then I will enter in unto the king contrary to law even if it behove me perish.

17. And Mardochaios went and did all that Esther had enjoined on him; and he brought the Lord, calling to mind all the doings of the Lord, and he said,

O Lord, O Lord, O King, thou Controller of all, because in thy official-power is every thing, and there is no one who maintaineth an opinion opposed to thee when thou willest to save Israel; Because thou didst create the heavens and the earth and everything that is viewed with wonder in the (earth or air) under the heavens (the canopy) and thou art Lord of all, and there is no one who will array himself against thee, the Lord: Thou knowest all things; thou dost perceive, O Lord, that not in pride nor superciliousness nor in a love of glory have I done this, namely my not doing homage to the supercilious Aman, because I was satisfied not to put man's glory above the glory of God: and I will not do homage to (worship) any one except thee, my Lord, and I will not do these things in superciliousness. And now, O Lord God, thou king, thou God of Habraam, spare thy laity, because they are looking on us unto destruction and are impassioned to destroy thine inheritance from a beginning: Do not overlook thy portion which thou didst redeem for thyself from out a land of Aigyptos. Hear my supplication and be favorable to thy allotment and turn our sorrow into festivity, that we may hymn thy name while living, O Lord, and do not stop the mouth of those who praise thee, O Lord.

And all Israel cried out with their might, because their death was before their eyes. And Esther the queen fled for refuge to the Lord, overpowered with a death struggle, and taking off the outer-garments of her glory, she put on outer-garments of narrowness and sorrow and instead of her supercilious sweet things she filled her head with ashes and refuse; and her body she humbled exceedingly and every place of the gladness of her adornment (cosmos) she filled with her dishevelled hair; and she besought the Lord God of Israel and said: O my Lord, thou alone art our King; became a responsive-helper unto me alone, even to me alone who hath no responsive-helper except thee, because my danger is in my hand. I have heard from my birth in the tribe of my father's family, that thou, O Lord, didst take Israel out from among all the nations and our fathers out from among all their progenitors for an eternal inheritance, and didst do unto them all that thou didst say; And now we have been sinning in thy sight, and thou didst give us up into the hands of our enemies, because we glorified their gods. Thou art just (lit. justified) O Lord; and now they have not been satisfied with the embitterment of our bond-service, but they have placed their hands in their hands of their idols to remove the limitation of thy mouth and to destroy thine inheritance, and to stop the mouth of those who praise thee and to quench the glory of thy house and altar, and to open the mouth of nations in virtues of multitudes and that a king of flesh be wondered at forever. Mayest thou not, O Lord, have surrended thy sceptre to those who have no being, and may they not have laughed at our fall; but do thou turn their counsel against them, and do thou make a public-example of him who hath made himself a ruler over us. Be thou, reminded, O Lord, mayest thou have been recognized in our period of tribulation, and mayest thou have encouraged me, O thou King of the Gods and Controler of every authority; Give a truly rythmic word into my mouth in the sight of the lion, and change his heart into hatred of the one who is warring against us, unto the bringing about of his end and the end of those who are of like mind with him; and deliver us with thy hand, and become a responsive helper for me alone, even me who hath no responsive-helper except thee, O Lord.

Thou hast a comprehension of all things, and thou knowest that I have hated the glory of transgressors and that I abominate the marriage-bed of the uncircumcised of every alien; thou knowest my necessity, that I abominate the sign of my over-weening pride that is on my head, in days of my vision; I abominate it like a filthy rag, and do not wear it in days of quietude. And thy bond-maid hath not eaten at the table of Aman, and I have not glorified a symposium of the king, nor have I drank wine of libations: And thy bond-maid hath not rejoiced since the day of her transition until now except in thee, O Lord God of Habraam. O God, strong over all, mayest thou have hearkened unto the voice of those who are without hope, and mayest thou have delivered us out of the hand of those who are doing wickedly, and mayest thou have delivered me up from my fear.

Chapter 5.

And it came to pass on the third day when she had ceased from offering propitiative prayer, she took off the outer-garments of her courtier-service (at the court of heaven of course) and put on her glory. And becoming manifest to be seen, when she had invoked God, the Seer and Savior of all, she took her two favorite maids and leaned upon one for support and the other followed holding up her under-garment, and she blushing to the acme of her beauty and her face cheerful as a kindly-disposed face is, but her heart straitened with fear; and entering through all the doors she stood in the presence of the king; and he was seated upon the throne of his royalty, and was clothed with all the flowing robe of his public presence complete with gold and precious stones, and he was one greatly to be feared. And lifting up his face fiery red with glory he looked at the acme of anger; and the queen fell and her color changed in fainting, and she bowed upon the head of the favorite maid who was going on before her. And God changed the spirit of the king to mildness, and with a struggle he stepped down from his throne, and took her in his arms until she was restored, and comforted her with peaceable words, and said unto her, What is it Esther? I am thy brother: Be of good courage. Thou shalt not die, because our statute is one we have in common; Approach.

Comment.

The fifty lines of the fourth chapter and these fifteen lines of this fifth chapter are not in the Com. Ver. or the R. V. and are numbered so many lines not verses. From here on again the verse numbering is resumed in the text.

To my mind these omitted portions are the most important and instructive matter contained in the book aside from its historical value and especially helpful to the spiritually minded.

One of the best evidences of the validity of the historical and biographical facts and events herein recorded is that the "feast of Purim" as they call it, is still observed by the Jews the world over in their generations even as herein commanded and predicted.

The reader will observe that "the villain" of the story is introduced in the first verse of the 3d chap. C. V. and R. V. as "Haman the son of Hammedatha the Agagite" instead of "Aman the son of Amadathos, a Bougaite." The difference in the first two names is easily accounted for in vicious and ignorant vowel pointing as well as careless transcription, but in the substitution of "Agagite" for "Bougaite" the solution is not so easy. "Agagite" if it means anything recognizable in Scripture history might be inferred to mean that he was a descendant of "Agag" as an ancestor, perchance the one whom Samuel slew. But "Bougaios" or "a Bougaite" means "a braggart" and is probably the characteristic nickname by which he came to be known and handed down to infamy. As "a bluffer." He certainly in this account we have of him played a great game, though he lost in the ultimate issue as such persons generally do.

Present Age of the World. Number 1.

The tradition that the world in its present form is to last only 6,000 years is a very ancient one and can be traced in the writings of Christian Jews and Pagans. It is found in the Sybillin Oracles, in Hesiod, in the writings of Darius Hystaspus, King of the Medes, 521 years before Christ and in Hermes Trismegistus the founder of Egyptian learning. Orpheus a legendary bard of Greece as quoted by Plato refers to the mystical doctrine, as held by the first generations of the human race who believed "that the earth, which was given them for a habitation during six ages, was doomed in the seventh to be consumed by fire." Theopompus, who flourished 341 years before Christ, relates that the Persian Magi taught, that the present state of things would continue six thousand years: after which, hades, or death would be destroyed, and men would be happy, and live without food and their bodies would cast no shadows (being refined and spiritualized.) It was also the opinion of Zoroaster the Persian Philospher and founder of the Magician sect, who is supposed by some to have been contemporary with Darius Hystarpus the King of the Medes before referred to; "That earth, after the general dissolution and destruction of Ahriman (the evil principle,) would all be a plain, and make one city, wherein men would live together in a happy state, and all use one language."

This wide-spread opinion we believe may be traced to the Jews who were fond of giving a mystical interpretation to their Scriptures. In the first verse of the first chapter of the Book of Genesis, the first letter of the Hebrew alphabet, which, when used as a numeral, denotes a thousand happens to be used six times; which fact the Cabalists used to support the opinion that this world-wide terminati, or at least undergo a complete change at the end of six millenary periods. The opinion itself seems to have been drawn in all ages by all classes of men who had access to the Hebrew Scriptures from the account of the creation as given by Moses: Because six days were employed by God in the work of creation and he rested on the seventh; and as with him one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day; it was concluded that upon the completion of six millenary periods a Sabbath of rest would succeed of a corresponding length.

Among the early Christians the opinion seems to have been quite general if not universal, and although not directly expressed seems to have been endorsed or encouraged by some of the writers of the New Testament.

The doctrine of the Millennium as taught in the Book of Revelations gives a thousand years as the duration of the reign of Christ and his saints, yet John does not make it contemporaneous with the seventh millenary from creation.

That Peter was familiar with the opinion and gave it his support is drawn from his second epistle iii. chapter, 2–13 verses: in which he answers the scoffing questions of his times, "Where is the promise of his coming?" by these words "Beloved be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day," thereby seeming to intimate that the six days work of creation was at least figurative of the world's working week of six thousand years to be followed by the millennial rest denominated by him in common with Isaiah and John "A new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." It will be observed however that while the apostle speaks of the "new heavens and new earth" with great positiveness as a subject of the Christian's hope he does not make it the seventh millennary but on the contrary places both the "scoffer" and the "coming" to his discomfiture in "the last days" which he nowhere attempts to fix with chronological certainty.

Paul's reference in the 3rd and 4th chapters of Hebrews to the "Rest" (Gr. Keeping of a sabbath) "remaining to the people of God" is sometimes quoted in support of the opinion: but whether the "rest" spoken of is the spiritual rest of the believer, into which he may even now enter, or refers to the future perfect state to be introduced at the resurrection, one thing is certain the author of the Book of Hebrews does not commit himself to the opinion that it will begin at the end of 6000 years from creation and continue only one thousand years thereafter. Of the early Christian writers commonly known as "the Fathers" we may quote with certainty the author of the epistle of Barnabus supposed by some but with little reason to have been the companion of Paul, Clement of Alexandria Theophilus of Antioch, Timotheus, Justin Martyr, Tertullian, St. Cyprian, Hesychius, to which we may add of later authors the names Origen and Ambrose. But without burdening this article with verbatim quotations from any of these writers it will not be denied, I think, that the millennarian doctrine of a future reign of Christ with his resurrected saints on the earth for a thousand years was the generally accepted doctrine of the early church and that it was at a very early period associated with the opinion that this one thousand years synchronized with the seventh millennary of the world.

And, strange as this assertion may at first appear, to the universal prevalence of this opinion may with certainty be traced the doubt and confusion which has existed on the subject of chronology from the second century of our era until the present time. For it can be conclusively shown that our Savior was born near the middle of the chiliad instead of at the beginning of the fifth; and that to evade the supposed force of this evidence of the Messiahship of Jesus certain Jewish authors changed the dates of the general events recorded in their Scriptures. This shortened chronology of the Hebrew text was adopted by Archbishop Usher and introduced by authority of King James into the received translation of the Scriptures principally because the church of Rome had followed the Septuagint, and Josephus, so that the chronology of our Bible—King James's Version is in fact the malevolent falsehood of the envious and unbelieving Jews of the second century adopted by the partial learning of the seventeenth in bigoted opposition to everything supposed to be handed down to us through an apostate church and still sustained by a reverence for supposed authority in spiritual things. How much credence it is entitled to will be seen in the sequel.

Before however laying the argument before the reader it will be profitable to notice the extreme variations of different authors as to the present age of the world in the aggregate. The following list is taken from Bishop Russell's "Connexion of sacred and profane history" to whom we are largely indebted for the facts and figures we now proceed to lay before the reader.

Age of the World at the birth of Christ, according to the different chronologies.

Indian,	6174
Babylonian—Bailly,	6158
Chinese,	6157
Diogenes Laertius,	6138
Egyptian—Bailly,	6128
Diodorus Siculus,	6081
Pezron,	5972
Clemius Alexandrinus,	5624
Isaac Vassius,	5590
Septuagint—Abulfaragius,	5586
Josephus according to Playfair,	5555
Theophelius of Antioch,	5515
Alexandrian Septuagent,	5508
Persian,	5507
Julius Africanus,	5500
Chronicle of Axum Abyssinia by Bruce,	5000
Demetrius,	5447
Eupolimus,	5446
Bishop Russell,	5441
Jackson,	5426
Halis,	5411
Eusibius,	5200
Philo Judius,	5196
Arabian,	5185
Epiphanius,	5049
Origen,	4880
Fresnoy,	4700
Playfair and Kennedy,	4007
Usher, Calmet and Blair,	4004
Capellus,	4000
Dion Petarius,	3984
Joseph Scaliger,	3950
Rabbi Levi,	3780
Rabbi David Gaus,	3761
Jewish writers in Seder Olam,	3758
Rabbi Jaron Nasen,	3784
Rabbi Lipman,	3616

Of course by the addition of the current year to the above numbers the present age of the world will be ascertained according to the various authorities quoted. While it is not my intention to attempt an explantion of the striking variations how disclosed, I would nevertheless call attention to some significant facts connected therewith. And first leaving out of the present discussion all further reference to the uncertain chronologies of the ancient heathen nations and only comparing the figures of those who must have drawn the materials of their computions from the Bible it is evident that the great variations noted could not have been the mere inaccuracies of transcribers, but must have resulted from fundamental variations in the sources of the authorities relied upon. In other words that a careful analysis will show that these variations must result from differences of readings between Hebrew and Greek MSS. of the Bible, and that the higher numbers are invariably given by those authors who follow the Greek, and the lower by those who follow the Hebrew.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the one hope:

Bro. Dwiggins says that the meeting has not yet adjourned, so I will offer my little mite. My husband and I are among the isolated ones, hearing no gospel except through our dear paper. The letters from the dear ones have been a great comfort to us. I love all of you, dear brothers and sisters. Paul says, "We know we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren;" and our Savior said, "This is my commandment, That you love one another as I have loved you."

"O, Jesus, my loving Redeemer, thou knowest
I cherish no dear,
For hope that mine eyes shall behold thee;
That I shall thine own welcome hear.
If to some as a Judge thou appearest,
Who forth from thy presence would flee,
A friend, most beloved, I'll greet thee,
I'm waiting and watching for thee."

Yours looking for the coming King,
MINNIE HATFIELD.

Dear Restitution:

I see the gauntlet has been thrown down and some one asked to pick it up. This is to be a war of words with pens as swords. Now, brothers and sisters, let us not occupy our valuable space in THE RESTITUTION, when the times are so fraught with fulfilling prophecy, and a nation may be born any day. Isa. lxvi. 8. Do we not know there are schemes being devised at the present time for the purchase of the Holy Land? Do we not see God's Word being literally fulfilled in the Jewish nation today in their dispersion among all nations a distinct people without a nation or country. Now just so soon as the contemplated purchase of the Holy Land is made, the first payment passed to Turkey as her legal representative, the papers signed, a guarantee given by the leading nations of protection and recognition a nation is born in a day. Yes, this can all be done in a day. It does not require every individual Hebrew to be present in order to become a nation. And in fact the prophecies do not foreshadow the full return until after the overthrow of the Gogian forces. Isa. lxvi. 15-20. Now, dear ones, why try to get up a question, which ought to have been settled in your mind long since. Had Adam have gotten to the tree of life and have partaken of the life-giving fruit, eternal life would have been his. Well say you, what has Adam got to do with this breaking of bread? Thus, if you have partaken of the emblems of Christ's broken body and shed blood, you have life if you do not quench the Spirit. Just let me cite you all to one fact in regard to the idea that the communion ought to be partaken of during the passover or days of unleavened bread. The passover was slain on the 14th eve, and the feast continued seven days, or until the twenty-first. No leaven was to be found in their houses. Again turn to Acts xx. 6, 7, there you can learn where Paul and company was during unleavened bread; and turn to Exod. xii. 14, 15; xxiii. 15. There you can learn what is the meaning of unleavened bread. Now back to Acts xx. 6, 7, here you learn Paul and brethren were five days sailing, came to Troas tarried seven days, twelve in all, after the passover abode seven days, came together to break bread on the first day of the week preached all night (only one fell asleep, gracious goodness what a comment on our people in these days!) No mention of a general barbecue or church lottery. No, no! Dear ones, here is a precedent, let us follow it. And please do give us some good, plain gospel sermons. There are quite a number reading THE RESTITUTION who do not yet know the things concerning the kingdom of God and the part Jesus has and is going to act in that most important drama. Such articles as Bro. Joblin had in THE RESTITUTION of April 8th; also the one Bro. Gardner had, "Who is and was Jesus the Christ?" That is, I must say the nearest to reason and Scripture I ever saw, and I am satisfied now and truly glad THE RESTITUTION shut off all speculations on the subject that are mere theories. I have thought and do think since Bro. Gardner's articles came out that the reason Jesus could be sinless and no human was because Eve was not the sinner in the sense that Adam was. I get the idea from what was said to all three parties, as also what Paul says, that Eve was innocent of intentional sin, being deceived; on the contrary Adam sinned wilfully: This being the case, Mary sustained the same relation to God as does a little child. We must all (without a miracle) die good or bad, righteous or unrighteous. The little innocent child dies, so did Jesus, so did Mary. This is the way Jesus could be born sinless, although born mortal and subject to a return to dust, not necessarily born since. We sin after becoming accountable, not after the similitude of Adam's transgression. Now, dear ones, I may condemn some of your vagaries, but not you. May God bless and keep you. Amen.

Your Brother,
J. ANTHONY.

Dear Restitution:

To the brethren and sisters that are scattered abroad, who are watching and waiting for the Savior, I would say be faithful, be watchful, pray on a little longer; soon the trumpet will sound, the dead will be raised, and we shall be changed and be caught up together to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord. I Thess. xvi. 17. What a blessed hope we have, how cheering in times of trouble to look forward to the coming of Christ, then (if we are found faithful) we will be freed from sickness, sorrow, pain and death. Then our loved ones will not be taken from us, where all will be love, joy, peace and happiness. It is over thirty years since I became a believer in the promises made to Abraham, and the sleep of the dead, and the second coming of Christ, and although (perhaps like many others) I have not followed as close in the narrow way as I should, yet I have never felt for one moment like giving up my faith and hope. No indeed, it has cheered me up many times, when sorrow and troubles surrounded me, and every thing looked dark. Yes, it is like an anchor to the soul both sure and steadfast. Then let us one and all strive to be overcomers, and endure all things to the end, for it is at the end of the race we are to receive the crown. It has been cheering to me to read the many testimonies from those of like precious faith, and I can truly say that I am anxious for the time to come when we shall be united in one happy family in the kingdom of God. May God help us to be found with our lamps trimmed and burning when the Lord shall come.

Your Sister in Christ,
MRS. M. A. CALDER.

To the Household of Faith:

Seeing by my last paper that the love feast had not ended, nor would not until all had taken part, thought it time to add my testimony to those who have already testified. I have enjoyed reading the letters from those of like precious faith very much, although strangers in the flesh we are one in faith. When I read the blessed promises it makes me feel to rejoice and press boldly on. Although there are trials and troubles on every hand I look to my blessed Savior who knows the thoughts and intents of the heart and I thank God out of the fulness of my heart that I was ever brought to knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus Christ my blessed Savior. I ask an interest in your prayers, dear brothers and sisters, that I may be found faithful and may God's Word be a lamp to my feet and a light to my path is my prayer. I cannot think of doing without the paper, it has been such a comfort to me. Bless THE RESTITUTION and prosper it is the prayer of a Sister in the one faith.

MRS. SUSIE DOW.

Take time to think of the needs and wants of others. Looking ruthlessly upon your own affairs freezes up the fountains of sympathy in your soul, and hardens your noble nature. Cultivate a life of broad sympathy and fellowship with the experiences of your fellow men.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Homeseekers Excursions.

You can find out all about them by applying to nearest Ticket Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines or by addressing C. L. Kimball, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.—May 18.

Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. This clearly sets forth the idea that the "Coming Nation" will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 26 pages, price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

WHERE DO THE DEAD SLEEP?

These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract, 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

HADES.

A Bible account of this place, with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

DEATH COMPARED TO A SLEEP.

This represents death as a sleep, and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those searching for truth. 16 pages, 2 cents each.

QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS AND THOUGHTS FROM THE THOUGHTFUL.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 96 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Hell and kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

A PARADOXIC BATTLEFIELD, OR ERROR'S WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 82 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open letter to J. A. Conard," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1895. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Poetry.

[illegible]
Ye have answered with poison and powder
The cries of your brothers for bread.

I turn from your altars and arches,
And the mocking of steeples and domes,
To join in the long weary marches
Of those you have robbed of their homes.

I share in the sorrow and sadness
Of the naked and hungry and cold,
And deliver to me are their lesses
Than your coins and your idols of gold.

I will wither the might of the spoiler
I will laugh at your dungeons and locks,
The tyrant shall yield to the toiler,
And your judgment grass like the ox.

For the prayers of the poor have ascended,
To be written in lightning on high,
And the wails of your captives have blended,
With bolts that must leap from the sky.

The thrones of your kings shall be shattered,
And the prisons rated sod shall go free,
I will harvest from seed that I scattered
On the borders of blue Galilee.

The Holy Spirit of God, or The Spirit of Satan, Which?

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Under the above caption I would like to offer to the readers of THE RESTITUTION in the spirit of brotherly love a few thoughts or criticisms. So much prominence is given by the majority of professed Christendom claiming in these days to be born of the Spirit, and to be baptized of the Holy Spirit, socalled faith cures by intercession and laying on of hands, etc., a goodly number claiming the spiritual gifts (official) yet remain in the church providing the membership live such holy lives their faith would be exercised so as to heal the sick, etc. I have during the past year heard ministers who were apparently intelligent above the average claim before their audience such entire satisfaction that they had laid aside the habit of thoughtfully arranging their subjects for presentation and say they gave themselves into the hands of God who would guide and speak through them to the audience. With the admonition of the Apostle, 1 Thess. v. 21, "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good," let us carefully and prayerfully examine the Scriptures.

The foundation claimed by believers in the aforesaid is the outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the apostles on the day of Pentecost, Acts ii. 1 to 4, 16-17-18-38-39 which please read to save space. We find Peter calling the attention of those assembled to the prophecy of Joel ii. 28, 29, 30, 31, which Scriptures please read carefully and compare. The apostles were told by the Savior to tarry at Jerusalem. Luke xxiv. 49. In Acts i. 8, the Savior told them they should receive power, after that the Holy Spirit is come upon them, and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth. Thus we find the outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost qualified the apostles for their work or mission. The coming together of 17 different nationalities (Jews) who were at the feast who hearing the apostles speaking so they could all understand, viz., in the language of the country in which they were born, caused great wonderment, they were amazed that despised Galileans should do this, hence mocking said they were drunken. Then Peter standing up calls their attention to the prophecy of Joel ii. 28, 29, "But this is that which was spoken by the prophets. And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, etc." Here we find Peter borrows the language "last days" from Isa. ii. 2, or Micah iv. 1, the words "last days" referring to a future age. Please turn to Joel ii. and read context, commencing at verse 15 to 27 we find the prophecy quoted by Peter will not be fulfilled until the Jewish nation is restored to favor, verse 28. And it shall come to pass afterward (not last days). Peter had a Jewish audience who no doubt understood the prophecies. The Gentiles as yet had no part in the promises, and did not have any until the middle wall of partition was fully broken down, when at the house of Cornelius the Holy Spirit was poured out upon those assembled to hear the message of Peter, thus granting unto the Gentiles repentance unto life, and showing the apostles and those that were with him that God was no respector of persons, but that all who accepted the condition of salvation would receive the gifts of the Holy Spirit, Acts ii. 38, viz., eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. Read Rom. iv. 22, 23. Let us notice the official gifts which are now claimed. Singularly, however, we hear of but one, the gift of healing, this being mostly claimed by those who say they are baptized into the Holy Spirit as the apostles were. The evidence given is that they are now serving and praising God instead of using their talents for the work of Satan. But why claim the official gifts—what were they given for and by whom conferred? The apostle in 1 Cor. 1 to 11 did not want the church at Corinth to be in ignorance concerning the spiritual gifts, gave them to understand they were all given by the same spirit, shown them in verse 23 by whose authority they were given, verse 31. "But covet earnestly the best gifts; and yet shew I unto you a more excellent way." Chap. xiii. 13. "And now abide faith, hope, charity, these three the greatest of these is charity." Please read Eph. iv. 3 to 8-11-12-13 the same apostle exhorts the Ephesian brethren to keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace. The gifts were conferred to the churches by the laying on of hands of those qualified by the Holy Spirit. See Acts vi. 5, 6; viii. 17; ix. 17; xiii. 2, 3; xix. 6; 1 Tim. v. 6, 7; iv. 14. No evidence of gifts being transferred by a 2nd to a 3rd person. Acts xiii. 2, 3, 4. Paul and Barnabas were sent out by the Holy Spirit to preach the gospel. Acts [illegible] 23. And when they had ordained them elders in every church [illegible] ed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord on whom they believed. Acts xx. 27, 28, 29, we find the apostle giving the elders of the church at Ephesus a solemn charge to watch over the flock of which the Holy Spirit had made them overseers.

We find from above evidence that the Holy Spirit had completed the work through those qualified to the early churches, the apostle was now ready to be offered. The prayer of the Savior in John xvii. 20, 21 will now apply. "Neither pray I for these (apostles) alone, but for them also which believe on me through their word." We have now the apostles exhortation, 2 Tim. ii. 15 and iii. 16. In 2 Peter i. 4-11 the exhortation to add to our faith the seven Christian graces by which is promised an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Let us now notice the workings of another power of which we have warning in 2 Peter ii. 1, 2, 3, turn to Luke iv. 5, 6, 7, "And the devil taketh him (Jesus) up into a high mountain, and showeth unto him all the kingdoms of this world in a moment of time. And the devil said unto him all this power will I give thee and the glory of them (for that is delivered unto me) and to whomsoever I will I give it. If thou therefore will worship me, all shall be thine." Jesus said unto him, "Get thee behind me Satan, for thus it is written, Thou shall worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." Jesus points Satan to a higher power than himself, but does not deny the authority Satan had claimed, in Cor. xi. 13, 14, 15. "For such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ, and no marvel; for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light." Therefore, it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as ministers of righteousness, whom all shall be according to their works. The same power is to be destroyed at the second coming of Christ. Please read 2 Thess. ii. 1-12. Being somewhat of a futurist I cannot endorse the general exposition given, that the Pope was the Apostle Paul's man of sin, the reading of the above chapter I think forbids it. I am inclined to believe that the above Satanic power will be fully revealed in the near future. The working of supposed miracles, faith cures, as is claimed these days are but a fulfillment of Rev. xvi. 13, 14 which takes place previous to the thief-like coming of the Lord to gather his elect ones. The Savior in Matt. vii. 22 tells his apostles of many who will claim that day to have done wonderful works in his name. And then will the Savior tell them he never knew them, and say, "Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity." Brethren, Sisters, where are we? Are we ready? The Lord wants a tried company, who must develop such characters so as to fit them to be associate rulers in the coming kingdoms. The times are ominous, let us watch and pray that we may be found worthy.

Holy Spirit.

As this all important subject seems to be understood by scarcely two in the same light, would you allow me a little space in THE RESTITUTION to express a few thoughts? Let me say in the beginning that I believe this subject to be all important for us to understand in these last days of doctrines and faiths. Jesus says, "The words that I speak unto you they are Spirit and they are life." Now, if they are spirit, and there is a Holy Spirit outside of the Word, as some are loud in their claims, which Spirit are we to follow? The Word says we cannot follow two masters, and now, dear readers, if it can be shown that the Word is one thing and the Holy Spirit is another thing, then every church in Christendom can have it by simply praying for it and at the same time trample the Word under their feet as [illegible] them do. [illegible] twelve Apostles, Matt. x. 19, 20. [illegible] then they deliver you up take no thought how nor what ye shall speak." Why should they not? "Because it shall be given you in that self same hour what ye shall speak, for it is not ye that speak, it is the Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you." Here we have the inspired Word or Spirit coming to us. That we need not be inspired to believe, some argue, because it says spirit it means spirit, and it says Word it mean Word. Now, if we take this view of it, might we not just as well believe as immortal soulists do, because it says soul it means soul, or body it means body separated one from the other? If this view be correct we can prove Jesus was the Son of Joseph, or that he pre-existed as a person with the Father before he was born of a virgin. One more thought just here I want to speak of, and that is this, every man and woman that has come to the years of understanding can demonstrate by looking back over their past life this fact: Every time they did a wrong act, or thought an evil thought they were guided by a spirit outside and separate from the Word and not by the Word. If we take the Word of God and be guided by it, and be satisfied with it, it will never be looking for a special outpouring of God's Holy Spirit to keep us in the way. I can't find a command in his Word to pray for any such thing, but to obey the command already given. Paul says, "Be ye followers of me as I am of Christ." If we follow Paul we will believe and obey what he says. If a good earthly friend of ours should ask us to believe and obey some simple command, with the promise of a sure reward by so doing, we would consider it an insult to him to ask him for security in any sense. But we would be ready to take him at his word; and now, dear readers, God has spoken to us by all his holy prophets and apostles once for all, have we faith to believe him? It is by faith we walk and not by sight. I submit these few thoughts in love, as one who is searching for truth.

Your Brother waiting for the coming King.

J. E. FORSYTHE.

Dear Restitution:

Believing you are interested in every effort for the advancement of the cause of Christ I submit a short report of a late trip into Kansas. Saturday Apr. 3, I left St. Joe, Mo. for Syracuse, Kan. Met the pastor of the Christian Church on the street—got an introduction to him and an invitation to occupy his pulpit Sunday. Spoke twice on the Atonement to good congregations; aroused a deep interest in the pastor and his people and secured a cordial invitation to speak to them the Sunday following. Accepted it and spoke again on the "Old Paths" in the morning and on the "Signs of the Times" in the evening. Left a growing interest and an earnest desire to have the tent come there. This point was at one time the home of a strong body of believers, but there are none left but Bro. and Sister Bitner and Bro. and Sister Robb. Our late Bro. J. M. Stephenson used to visit this point when in his best days. After a few days' rest at Severance I went up the St. Joe & Grand Island Road to Hamlin, and was cordially received at the house of Bro. C. W. Chaffee, who took me in his buggy to the house of my old friend and fellow-laborer A. B. Allerton, formerly of Wisconsin. Bro. Allerton has not preached, except occasionly, for 20 years; is in precarious health, but firm in the hope of the speedy return of the Master. He is still capable of doing much good and I do not despair of seeing him once more at work in the vineyard. At present he is busy burying his talent in the soil of a splendid Kansas farm.

From Hamlin to Baileyville in Nemaha County was a short trip, where I [illegible] them had prepared the Prophet's Chamber" and a place at their well spread board for the pilgrim. Tuesday night, the 20th, I spoke to a good audience in a public hall secured for the occasion. Wednesday night I was too sick with a violent cold and Bro. Orem took my place. Thursday and Friday nights had slim congregations on account of the rain, and gave up Saturday night meeting. Sunday at 2.30 P. M. spoke on the "Great Image of Nebuchadnezzar's Dream" to a large and appreciative audience.

April 29th landed in St. Joe and received a cordial welcome at the home of Bro. and Sister Oatman, where all who desire may address me for the time being at No. 2208 Messanie St.

Your Brother in the patient waiting for the King,

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Dear Restitution:

Just a word or two about the little flock here in Batavia, N. Y.. We meet twice in the week for prayer and Bible study, also on Sunday for worship. We meet every first Sunday in the month to break bread. We ask the prayers of THE RESTITUTION brethren and sisters, that we may be kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed at the last time.

Your Brother in hope of eternal life when the King comes,

J. E. FORSYTH.

To the Household of Faith:

Nearly thirty years ago I threw off the traditional doctrine of immortal soulism and heartily embraced the gospel of the coming and kingdom of our Lord Jesus, the Christ. I have been conversant with THE RESTITUTION ever since its advent, and can truly say that death only can sever the bonds of love and unity so indelibly wrought in my mind and heart by and through its weekly visits in connection with the Record that God has given us of his dear Son through whom life and immortality are brought to light. Long may THE RESTITUTION with its staff of able writers live to wield the Sword of the Spirit in combating the adversary in the various guises of his most Satanic Majesty, Elder Smith not excepted. Wife and I have been living away out here in the village of Milan, Michigan, a number of years, entirely isolated from the gospel ministry. Never but once within twelve years has the gospel in its purity been proclaimed in our village, and that was at our son's funeral. Now, brethren in the ministry, we are poor in this world's goods, but if any of you at any time will venture to call on us we will guarantee a much more cordial reception than General Maceo received at the hands of the Spaniards, besides we will see that you are both clothed and well fed, a comfortable lodging room and a spacious house to discourse in, and all forms of faiths to make up a congregation. You see we are not short in quantity, and as to quality we earnestly appeal to you. We have plenty of local talent, and if you will bare with me a few moments I will introduce two or three samples. A short time ago on Sunday evening Rev. J. P. Hutchinson gave the initial discourse of a service on the soul's future life. His opening remarks were that the great trend of thought in our enlighted day was opposed to the gross materialism that was being held forth in some places within the borders of our Christian land then said we have passed Spiritualism and false philosophies as were held by some of the German mystics, the soul was indivisible, was unchangeable and unchanging the body changed was constantly changing, but the soul preserved its consciousness (proof) as we went to sleep at night, so we awoke in the morning; what we were when we retire, we would be when we came forth in the morning. We did not possess immortality, but we are immortal. More proof: "God breathed into man the breath of life and man became a living soul." Brethren, remember the last clause is pure Bible. Proof: another broadside from the famous battery the visible universe might decay, but the soul would survive the wreck of matter and the crush of worlds. Might as well strike your colors and surrender, save thyself and thy house. Then followed an earnest appeal to those present to accept the gospel of truth, which declares Christ as our Savior, and through whom life and immortality were brought to light (harmony is indispensible to the success of the gospel ministry.) How is it, friend Hutchinson, you say that you know that you are immortal, and in the very next breath you declare that life and immortality are brought to light through Christ, or the gospel of Christ, and urge your hearers to believe it. O, consistency, thou art indeed a jewel. We assume that all sects founded on immortality are not at all dangerous, as it is only a question of time when the delusion will be effectually dispelled. The teaching and belief of inherent immortality is by far the great barrier to a genuine living faith. So also is the traditional doctrine of hell presented as it is by the evangelical churches, it has simply horrified the moral sense, outraged conscience and shocked the spiritual nature and robbing hosts of men and women of a living faith, whereas if they would go to the Bible without theory of prejudice they could not read it without having faith kindled within them. Whenever it is allowed to speak for itself, it is the inspirer of faith. If only instead of the hard dry stones of dogma and ecclesiasticism of superstition in its myriad forms, there was offered man the living bread. What we want to hear and learn when we go to church is earnest, heart-felt preaching concerning the future kingdom. Men and women searching for truth want to know all the words of this life. Their hearts are hungering and thirsting for the spiritual food which only the gospel can give them; this it is which serves to sweeten and strengthen, ennoble and dignify this human life of ours; this it is which projects with a mighty force the belief in the unseen into the present which brings the knowledge of the eternal realities to bear upon the present life; this it is which (by God's blessing) illumines as with a "Light that never was on sea or land" the pathway of the Christian life, and fires men's hearts to set out nothing doubting on their glorious pilgrimage which animates their energies and enables them to ever press forward, conquering and to conquer.

Yours in fraternity and loyalty,

J. A. & M. HAUSE.

The Restitution.

THE RESURRECTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Editor Restitution:

I want to say a few words expressive of my faith, hope and love. I do love the Lord for the gift of his Son, and all those that believe he gave his only begotten Son to die an ignominious death on the cross, that through his blood we might have redemption—might have salvation—might have forgiveness of sins, and an inheritance in the kingdom of God. Charity or love taken in its Scriptural sense is not of spontaneous growth in the human breast, it is developed by belief in "the gospel of the kingdom." Paul says, "Now abideth faith, hope, charity," 1 Cor. xiii. 13, this and the following chapter that these only are for the present dispensation, and the first and second will also have their allotted time—faith will (I trust soon) be lost in sight and hope in glad fruition. These are peculiar to man, to those who are candidates for immortality, "Charity never faileth" being an attribute of Jehovah himself, a synonym of love. My prayer is that all of the one faith are in possession of this darling attribute of Jehovah.

Your Sister in Christ,

JENNIE COX.

Dear Restitution:

How happy we all should be to know that Jesus is coming. What a gathering that will be of the dead and of the living saints; for together shall they be caught up to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Oh, that we may hear the welcome call, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you." May we all be ready is our prayer.

Your Brother and Sister,

D. W. & NETTIE FISK.

Dear Restitution:

I am a little girl and I am eleven years old. I love to read the letters in THE RESTITUTION. My mamma and I try to get THE RESTITUTION first every week to read the encouraging letters from the brothers and sisters that are spread abroad. I am looking for the Master to come.

"Savior, more than life to me,
I am clinging, clinging close to thee;
Let thy precious blood applied,
Keep me ever near thy side."

Yours lovlug the Truth,

ELSIE ROBINSON.

Editor Restitution:

I am very much pleased with our paper, for I think that it is getting better every day. We are watching the movement in the last days. I heard today that war had been declared; if that be so, then we may look for stirring times, and also for the return of our Lord to take unto himself his great power and rule on Mount Zion. Therefore, brethren and sisters, let us hold fast the faith once delivered to the saints so that we may be found worthy to enter in with him when he comes is my prayer.

From your Brother waiting for the kingdom of God,

J. N. BECK.

Editor Restitution:

I see by glancing at the label on my paper that I'm in arrears; as I cannot do without its notes of courage and good cheer, as it is all the preaching I have or hear in this part of faraway Washington, I hereby remit six months subscription, hoping it will be as gladly accepted as it is freely given. The paper seems to grow better with every issue. The letters from the household of faith are a source of great comfort to me as I peruse them in moments when my mind is in a turmoil between hope and unbelief caused by seeing so much deceit, hypocrisy and the seeking after worldly pleasures practiced by professing Christians of all denominations. But when I read the notes of good cheer and courage to the struggling Christian I strive to turn aright with a firmer tread to the path of Jesus' righteousness and love, and I want you all to pray for me that I may so live that I may gain eternal life; also pray for my companion who has never obeyed the gospel. Submitted in love.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. MAY 19, 1897.

PAUL says he is not ashamed of the gospel of Christ because it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes it. And if all Scripture given by inspiration of God is not the amplification of the Glad Tidings, what is it?

JESUS says, "Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he (the Father) taketh away; and every branch that beareth fruit he purgeth it that it may bring forth more fruit." John xv. 2. This is a solemn truth. It is a heart-searching truth. Oh, how much of a crop of spiritual fruit are we bearing?

"You interpret the Scriptures in one way," said Queen Mary to John Knox, "and the Catholics in another; whom shall I believe, and who shall judge?" "You shall believe God, who plainly speaketh in his Word," replied the sturdy old reformer, "and further than that Word teacheth you, you shall believe neither one nor the other."

"READER, whatever you may think of Christ, you cannot exclude him from history. He is one of the stubborn things called facts. You may ignore him, but you cannot expunge him. You may neglect or misinterpret him but you cannot get rid of him. He has left an indelible impress on the condition and institutions of mankind."

"THERE are people who are always searching for happiness who never find it. Happiness oftenest comes by indirection. You are intent on duty, and are surprised to find you have stumbled on more than you sought. To make happiness the end of your seeking is an easy way not to find it. It is a coy blessing. Hovering about your path, it eludes your grasp. Attempt to put your hands upon it, and like a wild gazelle upon the mountain it bounds away. Aim at something higher than happiness, and the higher will include the lower."

A Word of Exhortation.

Brethren and Sisters, great and precious truths have been entrusted to us; we have undertaken to be witnesses for God; and it is no less needful to contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints now, than it was when Jude penned his epistle; but as we realize our accountability as steward for God we want to say to you all that the truth must become a practical power in our lives. Technical clearness is not enough. It must bring us into intimate communion with the Father and the Son, Christ Jesus, or it were better we had never heard the way of life. Yea: unless the spirit of the truth be our spirit the truth will condemn, rather than save us. To whom much has been given, much will be required. Beloved, let us so seek to imitate our Master in word and deed, that as in the case of Peter, our very speech may testify that we are disciples of Jesus, and that all with whom we come in contact may know that we "have been with Jesus and learned of him." The signs of the times are very promising now, that we may see the desire of all nations very soon. Earnest exhortation to watchfulness and prayerfulness should constantly go out from among those who essay to write for the Body of Christ. The practice of the Truth is what will tell when the King comes.

Work While it is Called Day.

All can do something. It does not require a giant to sow a seed, nor a steam shovel to bury it in the ground. A child can drop corn as well as a man, and it only needs to be covered lightly, and sunshine and rain, which God sends will do the rest. Reader, do you love God? If so, you are doing something that proves it. What are you doing? Do you think with humble gratitude of little errands of love and mercy you have been able to perform, say, since the beginning of the year, as a member of Christ's Body? Have you done anything calculated to lead a fellow mortal into the narrow way of life? The Lord has plainly shown us that but a small portion of the seed sown germinates in good soil, so that the sower should not be discouraged for lack of fruit. It is the duty of the believer to faithfully and lovingly sow, and God will take care of the results; it will accomplish that whereto it was sent. If it lodge in good and honest hearts, it will yield fruit to God's glory; if not, it will witness against the hearers. In any event the believer has performed a loving service. We see that a sister suggests that each sister send THE RESTITUTION to some friend for three months. There are not many sisters, we think, but what could do this. Will they do it? They will, if they realize what a debt of love they owe, for the light of God's truth that illumins their path. We hope to hear that many hundreds will be introduced to THE RESTITUTION in this way.

The Question Drawer.

Mr. M. Joblin, Dear Sir:

I read your lecture entitled "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise," with much interest; and I would like to ask you a question: Is that law which was written on tables of stone and placed in the ark done away with by the teachings of the New Testament? If you will give a short answer I should be much obliged.

WM. BURTON.

This question shows that the writer does not have a clear perception of why the law was given, or its place in God's economy, and therefore it would not help him to merely say, yes: the law has been done away with. We will state a few things which we hope will make the matter plain to him. He doubtless knows already what we are about to say, and yet he for some reason has not benefitted by the knowledge. He knows that in the promises God made to him. He knows right well that there was no law, when Abraham was thus justified. He knows from Gal. iii. 17 that the introduction of the law 430 years after Abraham was justified by faith in the promises, did not annul those promises. He knows, too, from Rom. v. 1 and other passages that we have to be justified by faith just as Abraham was. He knows from the 18th verse of the same chapter that justification is unto life—no justification no life. He is also knowing to the fact stated by 2 Peter i. 4 that it is by precious promises that we obtain life—the life of God. He is doubtless also aware from reading Gal. iii. 14 and 29 that Abraham's blessing has to be inherited through or by the promise made to Abraham.

ABRAHAM WAS JUSTIFIED BY FAITH,

THE SUM OF THE MATTER

so far, is, that before the law Abraham was justified by faith. Second, while the law was in force the promises were also in force. Thirdly, After New Testament Times had set in justification was still obtained by belief of those same promises. Does the correspondent see any need of law for salvation purposes? If he can attain to the blessings of Abraham through belief of the promises to Abraham, as the above references show he certainly can, he has no cause for anxiety whatever. Will he be fully satisfied with the promised inheritance? If so, let him read Gal. iii. 18 and we see once for all, that the inheritance

CANNOT BE OBTAINED BY THE LAW.

Is he satisfied with the divine life offered in the precious promises? He can be assured that the law could never secure that future life, by reading Gal. iii. 21. And the same verse proves that righteousness could not be attained to by law; but, as stated in Rom. ix. 30, by faith. Supposing the law were in force, it could neither secure life, justification nor righteousness. For what end would it be in operation? Why does the Spirit take such pains to show us what the law cannot do for us, and OMIT to tell us what it can do for us?

As infallible evidence shows an efficient means of salvation without law, in every age, the question Paul asks and answers in Gal. iii. 19 now comes up: "Wherefore then serveth the law?" What was it given for? He answers, "It was added because of transgressions till the Seed should come to whom the promise was made." That seed had to be Abraham's Seed. To secure the result a multitude of faithless men—from Gentiles. It required an arbitrary law to do that. The Seed having come, the law expired by statute of limitation. While in force the strictest obedience to it only brought national and individual temporal blessings. Having said this much, we commend to the attention of our enquirer 2 Cor. iii. 6-11 which teaches that what was graven on stone was a ministration of death, and that it has been done away with;—and the administration of the Spirit remains.

TRANSGRESSORS HAD TO BE KEPT SEPARATE

The Spirit of God. What is it? No. 3.

The work of the Spirit as already displayed in creation and redemption is inexpressibly great and glorious; and yet, compared with its worth in the future, "it is like a drop as compared with the ocean, or the first fruits to the whole harvest." We turn to 1 Thess. ii. 13 and find the first fruits of the Spirit to be the moral change wrought on the mind of many. And we are not left to surmise as to the agency employed. It says: "For this cause also thank we God, without ceasing, because when ye received which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the Word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that believe." This is the Word which is said to be Spirit, and to be life: and its vitalizing power is exhibited by James, chapter one, verse 18 where he says, "Of his own will begat he us with the Word of Truth." This is the inception of the Spirit's work: its perfection will be manifested by and by in the quickening to life and immortality all in whom dwells. The begetting agent employed clearly indicates the nature of what is begotten. It is a mental and moral change that is produced by the loving reception of the Word, and the result is "love, joy, peace, longsuffering, meekness, goodness, temperance or self-control and faith. Be it remembered that it is the same apostle who here describes the fruits of the Spirit, that says in 1 Thess. ii. 13 that it is the Word of God that effectually works in the believer of it. This is explainable on common sense principle. That Word manifested God's love in inviting them to his kingdom and glory, and in giving his only begotten Son to die in order that they might have everlasting life to enjoy that kingdom and glory. Is there not in all this for love in return and joy and peace, etc? If so, what need is there for the exertion of any separate or independent influence? Is it reasonable to suppose that supernatural influences would be exerted upon those in whom there was no response to the amazing love of God displayed in his Word? And if the Word [redacted] begets within [redacted] and love and [redacted] not his disposition or mind that [redacted] ferred to as the Spirit of God that dwells in such an one? So it seems to us. And this reminds us that we are expected to say something definite in reference to the

THE WORD OF GOD

THE SPIRIT OF GOD

ADEQUATE CAUSE

PERSONALITY OF THE SPIRIT,

and although we think what has been said should obviate the necessity of speaking more plainly in that direction we will presently do so. We think every close observer must have noticed that those sects which are mostly composed of the poorer and least cultivated classes have an affinity for each other; are to a great extent governed by their feeling, and hence the Word is Truth is of secondary importance; precisely what one believes is no matter of concern,

A HAPPY FRAME OF MIND

is taken as evidence of direct spirit influence, although they shout and sing in prospect of things directly opposed to the Spirit's Word. As a rule these ecstatic states are produced by excitement in crowds of enthusiasts and, as a rule, the ecstacy vanishes with the crowd; and by the morrow, perhaps, the reaction sets in; and the mental condition of such people at such times has been described by one of their own poets, and can no doubt be relied upon. He writes in such a realistic vein that we think he must be giving his own experience. He says:

> "'Tis a point I long to know,
> Oft it causes anxious thought,
> Do I love the Lord or no,
> Am I his or am I not?
> If I love why am I thus?
> Why this dull and lifeless frame?
> Hardly sure,—can they be worse,
> Who have never heard his name?"

Not having been begotten of God's will, with the Word of truth, as were James and his brethren, and therefore cherishing a hope without a foundation, how could it be otherwise than as the poet expresses it? Truly distressing is it to hear them almost reproachfully agonizing with God to send the Holy Ghost again to cheer them, oblivious of the fact that and would supply all their needs if received in the love of it. How unreasonable to expect God to supernaturally do something for them that his Word is competent to do and is intended to do but they neglect it. They do not realize that the Bible is God speaking to them, through his prophets, his Son, and his Apostles. If the same words came to them by an audible voice from heaven they would stand in awe of it, but as written down, they disregard it.

This sad condition is largely traceable to the fact that the Holy Ghost (Spirit) is popularly taught to be the Third Person in a Triune God, who comes and goes; the latter greatly to their discomfort, or loss. The subject is a large one, and much must remain unsaid: and so we conclude this article with a few suggestions which may be helpful, perhaps, to others beside our correspondent.

After departing from the faith, at a Council held at Nice, A. D., 325, it was decreed that the Holy Spirit is a Person: singular indeed that this was not discovered before. Ought not that Council to have explained how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with a person. Acts ii. 16-18: and how Jesus breathed persons upon his disciples, John xx. 22: and how the Spirit as a person, could be in them, John xiv. 17? So it seems to us.

As we read in the Scriptures of the SPIRIT of Adoption, of Antichrist, of Bondage, of Judgment, of Burning, of Counsel, of Knowledge, of Wisdom, of Christ, of Divination, of Truth, of Error, of Fear, of God, of Glory, of Grace, of Jealousy, of Meekness, of Promise, of Whoredom, of Slumber, and the Spirit of Prophecy, are these so many different Persons? Has it ever been proven that the SPIRIT OF ANYTHING, IS A PERSON?

Turkey Designates Terms of Peace.

Constantinople, May 16.—The Porte has replied officially to the note of the powers and declines to agree to an armistice until the following conditions are accepted:

1. The annexation of Thessaly.
2. An indemnity of £10,000,000 (Turkish.)
3. The abolition of the capitulations.
4. An extradition treaty with Greece providing that the ports of Volo and Prevesa be kept open for vessels carrying food supplies to the Turkish Troops.

The Porte proposes that plenipotentiaries of the powers shall meet at [redacted] to [redacted] the terms of peace, [redacted] conditions [redacted] declined the Turkish army will continue to advance.

The demand for annexation of Thessaly is based upon the fact that the province was originally ceded to Greece on the advice of the powers with the object of ending brigandage and Greek incursions into Ottoman territory, the Porte believing at the time that the cession would attain these objects, but the recent incursions of Greek bands and the events immediately preceding the war have proved to the contrary. This is the substance of the reply.

The Ambassadors met today to consider the Porte's answer, which is regarded as raising an extremely grave issue. It is believed that representations will be made to the Sultan personally to induce a modification of these terms, but it is foreseen that this will be very difficult, owing to the attitude of the powerful old Turk war party.

If the Porte should prove obdurate a European conference is not improbable, although at present Russia is opposed to this.

It is regarded as quite certain that the powers will not consent to a retrocession of Thessaly. Even Germany is believed to be resolute on this point, because it would involve a violation of the Berlin treaty and imperil the peace of the Balkans.

Altogether the reply of the Porte has caused the greatest surprise. It appears that during the discussion of the note from the powers by the council of the Sultan's Ministers, news reached the council that 3,000 Greeks had landed at Palora and were marching to Janina with the intention of co-operating with other forces from Arta. This created a bad impression among the Ministers.

Germany is urging the Sultan to insist upon the European control of Greek finances as the only means of securing the payment of an indemnity. Representatives of the Deutsche Bank will arrive next Saturday to realize on the promise of important concessions which the Sultan has made to the bank.—Tribune.

Going Too Far.

It is now clear that Turkey made the war against Greece the opportunity to strengthen her hold in Europe and to give the great powers a warning. The Turk has always had supreme faith in himself and the courage of his belief. With all Europe avowedly against him, he has managed to maintain an alien civilization in the garden spots of Christianity, and to keep his hand at the throat of the oldest and most zealous Christian communities. He has done this from the time he captured the Eastern capital of the Christians by dividing the Christian nations, by putting crusader against Greek, Russian against Englishman, Frenchman against German, and he is preparing now to turn another trick in the old game.

Having put his army on a war footing, having aroused the fanaticism of his people, he is pursuing a policy that is sure to bring him in conflict with the great powers. He is doing this in the belief that, when it comes to a question of war, the powers will divide, as they always have done, and that, in their jealousies and antagonisms, Turkey will find safety. The Sultan is a shrewd diplomatist, it is said, and has overweening confidence in himself, but there are other diplomatists in Europe, as cold-blooded and selfish as he. They may not care for Greece defeated and bleeding, but they do care for the interests of their own governments. They may be using the Greek incident to encourage the Sultan into a defiant attitude or into overt acts against the peace of Europe. Some of the powers have been waiting for years for this overt act for an excuse to join hands against the Turk. Except in the case of the Bulgarians, twenty years ago, the Turks have been adroit enough to evade such an issue. They were inveigled into opposition to the will of Europe in 1877, and, as a result, Europe gave consent to the Russian invasion, interfering when Turkey lay as helpless at the feet of the Russians as Greece is now at the feet of the Turks. At San Stefano Turkey, defeated and humbled, agreed to all that Russia asked. At Berlin, with the powers plotting against each other, Turkey was truculent and defiant.

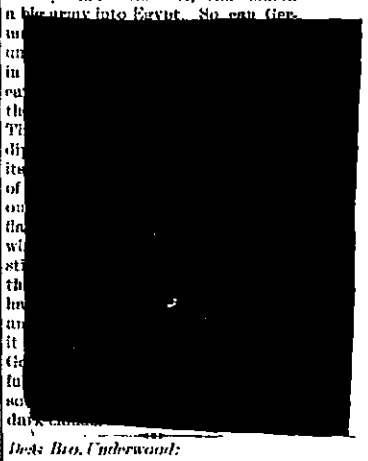
Since that time there have been plots and counter-plots, intrigues within intrigues, and blind moves on the chess board of European politics, all involving the integrity of the Turkish empire. The Turk himself may bring about the combination of European powers against him. He may be misled by half promises of support, by rumors set afloat to deceive him, and take [redacted] that will precipitate a [redacted] in comparison with which the Greek war will seem a mere incident. Then will Greece be avenged and possibly come into her inheritance. It is an easy matter to press a weak nation like Greece to extremity, but, for Turkey, the experiment is a dangerous one. As the case stands, Turkey is in more danger of annihilation than Greece.—Inter Ocean.

Combining Against England.

News comes from Europe that Germany, Russia, and France are uniting as against England in the matter of Egypt and the Transvaal, and that Russia has given hints to the Sultan if England makes too much of a fuss about his demands on Greece he can raise the Egyptian question as an offset. The German Emperor, for financial reasons, wants Greece crushed. He has quarreled with all his relatives, especially the English ones, and he also wants to get some control in the Mediterranean so that he can knock out British interests in the Levant. Besides this he wants to help the Boers, his left-handed relatives, and break up the convention of 1886.

As to France, it has excellent reasons for siding with Russia and Germany against England in the Egyptian matter. England and France occupied Egypt jointly, but when Abbas Pasha kicked over the traces the dual control was abandoned and England took upon itself the responsibility of managing affairs, and has done it so well that had it not been for the Greek ruction its troops would by this time have been well on their way into the Soudan country. It has managed the finances, paid the bondholders, and treated the fellaheen better than they had been treated since the days of Pharaoh. It bought a big block of Suez Canal stock and has kept open communications with the Indian Ocean. It has conducted the administration of the country admirably, so admirably, indeed, that everything has fallen into its hands, and it now shows no intention of giving up possession. Meanwhile France has grown impatient. It has asked England repeatedly when it proposed to get out of Egypt, but it has received no satisfactory reply. Russia has no strengthen her hold in Europe and to immediate interest in Egypt, but as that country nominally belongs to Turkey it is in position to use it as a powerful obstacle against English designs and as a means of carrying out its own objects.

If, therefore, Russia, France and Germany have united to get England out of Egypt, and insist that it must get out, it must either do so or fight. A struggle of this kind would be a serious one for England. It would not be such a farce as Turkey and Greece have been playing, egged on by the powers to further their own mysterious ends purposes. England has not a big standing army nor is it able to add its strength every year like the continental powers. Russia, which has Turkey under its feet, can march a big army into Egypt. So can Ger-



Desk Bro. Underwood:

Please say through THE RESTITUTION that there will be meeting at the Hall in Scrabeville on the first Sunday in June at 11 A. M. and at 4 P. M. Subject: "The Fulfillment of Prophecy in Regard to the Present Times in Which We Live," to be continued for some months, on each first Sunday in each month, all are invited.

J. S. HATCH.

Were you building a monument to stand for ages how majestic and substantial would be its construction! How much more august and solemn is life.

On Sundays, parties of five or more can go anywhere and return within one hundred miles on the Nickel Plate Road for $1.00 for the round trip. Ask agents.—May 30.

Let your religion be seen. Lamps do not talk, but they do shine. A light-house sounds no drum, it beats no gong, yet far over the waters its friendly light is seen by the Mariner.

Ask agents about Sunday Outings on the Nickel Plate Road. Parties of five or more can go anywhere on the Nickel Plate Road not to exceed one hundred miles at a round trip rate of $1.00.—May 30.

Of all the studies in the world on which to form early and sound habits of investigation and reasoning, natural philosophy holds pre-eminence. It gives us the happiest proofs and the most deep-rooted convictions of truth; it furnishes the quickest admonitions when we deviate toward error.—Horace Mann.

An Artistic Brochure entitled "Summer Outings" is published by the Nickel Plate Road describing vacation resorts along that line. Address B. F. Horner, General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, Ohio., for a copy.—July 15.

One of the last lessons to be learnt is the absolute necessity of preventing work from degenerating into worry. It is worry that kills for the most part, not work. To learn to put forth our best powers steadily, continuously in the proper grooves, to the proper ends;—this is one of the most precious fruits of wisdom and experience.

A list of Country Homes along the South Shore of Lake Erie open to Summer Boarders will be mailed to any one enclosing a two cent stamp to B. F. Horner, General Passenger Agent of the Nickel Plate Road, Cleveland, Ohio.—July 15.

Each one has some talent, some preference. Let him work in that line if possible; but while he cultivates himself in that, let him at the same time keep such a hold on the other phases of life as shall round and make symmetrical his nature. Life is so complex that we are not making the most of ourselves by working exclusively in one line.

Located on the South Shore of Lake Erie contiguous to the Nickel Plate Road are many country homes that will accommodate summer boarders. Send to B. F. Horner, General Passenger Agent of the Nickel Plate Road at Cleveland, O., and he will forward you a list on receipt of a two cent stamp. —July 15.

Poetry.

[Selected by J. F. Wagoner.]

If Christ Should Come Today.

I have come and the world shall be shaken
Like a reed, at the touch of my rod,
And the kingdom of time shall awaken
To the voice and the summons of God.

No more through the din of the ages
Shall warnings and chidings divine
From the lips of my prophets and sages
Be trampled like pearls before swine.

Ye have stolen my lands and my cattle,
Ye have kept back from labor its need,
Ye have challenged the outcasts to battle,
When they plead at your feet in their need.

And when clamors of hunger grew louder,
And the multitudes prayed to be fed,
Ye have answered with prison and powder
The cries of your brothers for bread.

I turn from your altars and arches,
And the mocking of steeples and domes,
To join in the long weary marches
Of those you have robbed of their homes.

I share in th sorrow and exposure
Of the naked and hungry and cold,
And decree to me are their losses
Than your gains and your idols of gold.

I will wither the might of the spoiler
I will laugh at your dungeons and locks,
The tyrant shall yield to the toiler,
And your judges eat grass like the ox.

For the prayers of the poor have ascended,
To be written in lightning on high,
And the walls of your captives have bleeded,
With bolts that must leap from the sky.

The thrones of your kings shall be shattered,
And the prisoner and serf shall go free,
I will harvest from seed that I scattered
On the borders of blue Galilee.

For I come not alone as a stranger,
Lo, my empire will sing through the night,
Till the star that stood over the manger,
Shall cover the world with its light.

A Review.

"The Messenger specially advocating the coming kingdom of God, the Return of the Lord Jesus, and the Hope of Eternal Life." Glasgow (Scotland) R. V. Strang, Editor."

In THE RESTITUTION for Jan. 20, 1897, the editor was good enough to insert a paper in which I took the liberty to give a short Review of an article by G. G. Mitchell, which appeared in the Messenger for October 1896, entitled, "What did the personal converts of Jesus believe?" With regret I expressed my conviction that a suitable term to describe the position of the Messenger, as well as that of the writer of the article, as far as the maintenance of the "primitive faith" of the first disciples is concerned, is "fetishal." It is only in the interests of that "primitive faith" that I presume to ask another opportunity to affirm, as briefly as possible, the importance of "earnestly contending for the faith once delivered to the saints." It is truly sad to think of the various ways in which the truth may be compromised, sometimes even unwittingly it may be, by its professed friends.

2. It is so far satisfactory to find, in the Messenger for April 1897, a paper criticizing the October '96 article. The paper is entitled "Our True Model of Belief," and extends to upwards of five octavo pages. The writer finds fault with the October article for its alleged contention that certain undesirable features of the belief of the personal converts of our Lord, should be adopted as a model by us. After quoting several extracts, the writer says:—"It seems to me that these words give a very misleading idea of the position which we as a church occupy; that they implicitly invite us to imitate the early disciples in certain undesirable features of their belief, or want of belief; and implicitly suggest that we have done wrong in taking the separate stand we have taken for certain Christian truths," and particularly that we teach that certain doctrines are essential to salvation, which Christ has declared to be not essential, or, at least, has nowhere declared to be essential."

3. This is certainly in the right direction, and is creditable both to the writer and to the Messenger. I regret to say, however, that here approval ends.

4. An important inquiry here presents itself—How are these allegations of "undesirable features of the belief of the early disciples," met by the writer of April article? One would expect him to point out that they possessed a definite belief, which had been derived from a certain definite proclamation which had been made by divinely authorized messengers throughout the whole country. So far from this, however, he tacitly, and even explicitly, admits the position assigned to the early disciples in the October article. He seeks to show that the "undesirable features of belief" were supplemented and corrected by a more distinct and advanced faith, derived from the teachings of our Lord in his later utterances, especially those spoken after his resurrection, and "in the last days of his pre-resurrection ministry." He says, "The true standard of obedient faith was twice indicated by our Lord himself.....after his resurrection. The first occasion was on the memorable walk to Emmaus .....It is really remarkable that the writer of the article in October refers to the passage without seeing that the conclusion he draws from it is quite the opposite of the proper one. Instead of arguing that, because the disciples did not realize accurately the Messiahship of Christ, it cannot be essential that they should recognize it .....surely the proper conclusion is that they were imperfect disciples," etc. Here it is admitted that "the disciples did not accurately realize the Messiahship of Christ." It has to be noted that this was not so late a date as to include "the last days of our Lord's pre-resurrection ministry." Further on the writer makes a statement in keeping with the position assumed here, but intensified his words are—"Up to his death and resurrection, his disciples were grossly ignorant of the theory of redemption itself." But what is "the theory of redemption?" And where is it recorded that any such theory was taught by our Lord, or prescribed for belief? This was the work of "expert theologians" of after times.

5. Now what are the facts as disclosed in the Scripture record? The disciples certainly failed to grasp the truth that the Messiah should die and rise again, although this had (at a late period, however,) been intimated to them by our Lord himself, and was to be learned from the prophets. But up to the date of his death, they had not been "slow of heart to believe all that the prophets had spoken" as to his Messiahship. In their own words—"They trusted that it had been he who should have redeemed Israel"—not in the modern Gentile sense certainly, but in the true national Apostolic sense. To redeem Israel was the grand mission of the Messiah. This Messiahship of Jesus was known, understood, believed, and trusted in, by the very earliest converts. The confession of Nathanael proves this—John i. 49. True they were stumbled at his death, and probably thought it would prove fatal to his claims.

6. Now while the death and resurrection of the Messiah are facts which came afterwards to have vital importance in connection with the proclamation, reception, and belief of the gospel, there is no evidence that these facts were primary elements of his Messiahship, or that they were publicly proclaimed in connection with the gospel of the kingdom, by either John the Baptist, our Lord himself, or his Apostles. This gospel, unmixed with any elements not essentially belonging to it, except the implied Messiahship of Jesus, was the only object of faith presented to Israel during the personal ministry of our Lord.

7. From the foregoing remarks especially what has been advanced in paragraph 4, it is evident that the writer in April Messenger is quite as wide of the mark as to what was the true "primitive faith" of the early disciples, as the writer of October article whom he criticizes. He admits the ignorance of the disciples, and that not only during the early period, but up to a late period of our Lord's ministry.

8. There is another aspect of the case which calls for remark. A few extracts will suffice to bring it before the reader:—"We have never taught that any of the doctrines peculiarly held by us are essential to salvation. What we do hold is that certain truths of the Bible are neglected.....and that in loyalty to our Divine Master, we must and will stand for the defence and propagation of these truths. We have nowhere declared, and God forbid that we should anywhere declare, that any truth is essential to salvation; it is no part of our business to do so. I find much said in the Bible about acts the doing of which will exclude from the kingdom of God, and much said about truths which God sent the Savior to preach, but little or nothing as to the exact amount of truth, the knowledge of which is requisite for admission. The position which some would appear to take up is—I will believe and preach just so much truth as I find has been specifically stated to be essential for salvation? We prefer to say, we will believe and preach every truth which we find to have been proclaimed, and leave the question of the salvation of our hearers to a higher authority."

9. Several statements in this extract call for notice. (a) The only thing having the appearance of a reason for declining to declare that any truth is essential to salvation is, that "little or nothing is said in the Bible as to the exact amount of truth to be acknowledged of which is requisite for admission" (into the kingdom of God). It could not in truth be affirmed that nothing is said on this point. But surely that "LITTLE" must be of paramount importance and surely "loyalty to our Divine Master" should constrain the preacher to call attention to it. (b) Some say, "I will believe and preach just so much truth as I find has been specifically stated to be essential for salvation." Well, supposing that some prefer to take a position like this, it has this advantage that in the public proclamation of the gospel, it saves time, and confines the attention of the hearers to the most urgent point their circumstances require. (c) "We will believe and preach every truth, etc., and leave the question of the salvation of our hearers to a higher authority." But if a "higher authority" has said even a "LITTLE" in his Word on the conditions of salvation,—is there any good reason why that "little" should not be communicated to the hearers, along with "every truth which we find to have been proclaimed." This naturally leads to another statement in the extract. (d) "I find much said about truths which God sent the Savior to preach." This brings the whole matter to a point, and that, one of great importance. The most notable truth (not truths) which our Lord says he was sent to preach, is "the kingdom of God." "I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also: for therefore am I sent." Luke iv. 43.

This single fact (d) seems to me to dispose of much that has been advanced in both October and April articles. The proclamation made by our Lord, and previously by John the Baptist—"Repent: for the kingdom of God is at hand," was easily understood by the people of Israel to whom it was addressed. And not only so, but to the intelligent it, taken along with John's statement and the descent of the spirit at the Jordon, embraced the Messiahship of Jesus. Simple enough to the Jews, this subject was by no means complex even to Gentiles, needing no "theologian expert" to make it plain to "honest and good hearts."

10. This brings us to the question of the "LITTLE" that is said in the Bible as to "the exact amount of truth the knowledge of which is requisite for admission" into the [illegible] Mark's account of the [illegible] our Lord gave to his Apostles, we read—"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; he that believeth not shall be damned." "The gospel" here was a definite item of truth of which our Lord had just previously said—"This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations." If this is not an exact amount of truth, the knowledge of which is requisite for admission into the kingdom, I must confess my inability to understand the very simplest language. I venture to affirm that it is saving truth; and further, that no other truth in the Word of God can be made a substitute for it, so far as the faith of the gospel is concerned. Aye, not even the important truth concerning immortality, though it were admitted to be conditional, and only in Christ; for the prime condition is belief of the gospel. "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ." "These are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye might HAVE LIFE through his name." "There is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." Our Lord's own words, "If ye believe not that I am he, ye shall DIE in your sins." All this may be thought and spoken of as "LITTLE," but it is worth volumes to the human race if they only know it.

11. This faith or believing must be distinguished from knowledge. "The faith is one thing; knowledge is quite another." "Add to your faith, virtue; and to virtue knowledge." "Building up yourselves ON your most holy faith." "Leaving the principles of the doctrines of Christ, let us go on to perfection," "Go ye, therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them.....teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." The writer of April article says—"this is the charter of our preaching." Yes, and also of our teaching—two quite distinct things.

May I be permitted a digression here for an apt illustration, though in the opposite direction. It is just here that the Christadelphians have failed to "rightly divide the Word of truth"—making first principles out of secondary truths, and even out of possible errors—"binding heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and laying them on men's shoulders."

13. What was Peter's proclamation on Pentecost but a demonstration of the truth that Jesus is the Christ?" What but this constrained 3000 Jews to feel "pricked in their heart, and to say to Peter.....What shall we do?"

14. Just a closing remark. The writer of April article in contending for advanced teaching in later times says, "One function of the Holy Spirit is to lead the believer into all truth." This, however, was not spoken in reference to believers as such, but to the Apostles in the immediate prospect of our Lord's departure from them, and their being "endued with power from on high," for the mission with which they were charged.

15. I regret the length to which this article has extended, and conclude by commending it to the judgment of the reader.

J. CAMERON.

Present Age of the World. Number 2.

For convenience and system it is usual in discussing this question to divide the time which has elapsed since creation into eight ages or periods as follows:—

1. From the creation to the deluge.
2. From the deluge to the birth of Abraham.
3. From the latter event to the Exodus.
4. From the Exodus to the building of Solomon's Temple.
5. From the building of the Temple to the destruction of the same.
6. From its destruction to the restoration under Nehemiah.
7. From the rebuilding of the Temple to the birth of Christ.
8. From the birth of Christ to the present time.

We hope by a careful examination of the whole subject to ascertain the source of the variations when, by whom and for what purpose any changes were made and in what MSS whether in the Hebrew or the Greek. An examination of a carefully prepared table, taken from Dr. Russell's work reveals the source of much of the difference, and account for 600 years. It shows this discrepancy between the numeration of the modern Hebrew Text and that of the Septuagint as well as the [illegible] A settled purpose to reduce the age of the world before the flood by not less than 600 years by the Western and 700 years by the Eastern Rabbis is mainly shown. It shows that the purpose of these men was ingeniously carried out by taking away 100 years from the ages of these antediluvian patriarchs at the birth of their eldest sons and preserving the record of their total ages unchanged by adding the same number to the years they lived after the birth of their eldest sons.

That the figures in the Hebrew text were changed appears from this further consideration. There is no possible reason discoverable why Seth should have lived not quite a ninth part of his life when his eldest son was born: Enos a tenth part, Cainan but a thirteenth; Malaleel a little more than a thirteenth while Jared lived nearly a sixth part of his whole life before he had begun, Methuselah a fifth and Lamech a little more than a fourth. Enos is represented as becoming a father at 90, Cainan at 70, and Malaleel at 65, while Jared is 262 Methuselah 187 and Lamech 182 before seeing their first-born son. Enoch the son of Jared becomes a father nearly 100 years earlier than his father did, and 122 years sooner than his son Methuselah. Now as Enos lived 905 years Cainan 910 and Malaleel 895 years no reason can be assigned why they should have married more than 100 years earlier than Methuselah who lived 960 nor Jared who lived 962 and more especially than Lamech the father of Noah who lived 777 years. The table discloses a carefully digested plan to reduce the age of the world before the flood by 600 years without projecting the lives of Methuseleh and Lamech beyond the flood contrary to the plain statement of the Scriptures which they could not alter.

The Western Jews seems to have been contented with this reduction of the age before the flood by 600 years but their Eastern brethren took 100 years from the life of Jared before the birth of Enoch thus reducing the time by 700 years. This they could do without disarranging the subsequent events as in that case the flood occurred A. M. 1556 and Jared died in A. M. 1422. This correspondence between the works of the Rabbis of Babylon and Tiberias and the identity of the principles upon which the changes were made reveals a unity of purpose and an undoubted prior agreement to carry it out. The Samaritan Pentateuch is shewn by the table to be more corrupt than the Hebrew text of either Babylon or Tiberias, as a uniform deduction of 100 years is first made in the lives of all the patriarchs and afterwards 20 years additional taken from Methuselah and 20 from Lamech thus reducing the period before the flood to 1307 years. The authors of these changes avoided the manifest absurdity of extending the lives of these patriarchs beyond the flood by reducing the sum total of their lives by the number of years necessary to end their lives before the flood; but the purpose of the last named changes is made sufficiently manifest by the fact that they make Jared, Methuselah and Lamech all to die the same year and that the very year of the flood.

OBITUARY.

Died, at Felida, Wash., March 23, 1897, Oscar H. Johnson, aged 19 yrs. 5 months and 23 days. The funeral discourse was preached by the writer, from Rom. v. 12. Brother and Sister Johnson have sustained a great loss in the death of their dear son. May they remember, in this their great hour of trouble, the words of the loving Savior: "Come unto me, ye weary laden, and I will give you rest."

"Sometimes the night is very dark,
The way is rough and wounds our feet,
And life lies stretched out wan and stark.
The winds blow drear and falls the sleet.
I fear, and fearing, fain would fall,
Beneath the shadows dire distress,
But that I hear my Savior call—
'Come unto me, ye weary laden,
And I will give you rest.'

"Some days my burden bears me down,
I cannot see the far off skies,
The grim, gray cross obscures the crown,
And in my heart hope faints and dies.
But leaps to life when, sweet and low,
With love and mercy, full expressed,
These words across the silence go—
'Come unto me, ye weary laden,
And I will give you rest.'

"Yea, Lord, I come to thee in all
The evils that afflict my day,
And at thy feet repentant fall
For doubts that daunt and fears that slay,
Give unto me, O give me more,
The strength to bear, the longing lest,
Extend thy shield my foes before,
For I indeed am weary laden
And come to thee for rest."

Christena (Swafford) Railsback, was born in Fayette County, Indiana, Nov. 23rd, 1840, and died at Plymouth, Indiana, May 14, 1897. In the year 1845 she moved with her parents to Marion County, Indiana, where she resided until 1863, when she was married to Richard C. Railsback, and came to Marshall County, Indiana. To this union there were born three children, Ezra C., Eva and Harvey V. Eva died in infancy, Harvey at 9 years of age. Ezra resides in Plymouth with whom his parents resided since their return from Florida about three weeks ago, where they had spent the winter, with their brother Hugh Railsback. The mild climate gave some relief, but heart and lung trouble aggravated by asthma was the cause of her death. Everything that could be done by loving hearts and kind hands was done for her recovery and comfort. In 1869 she united with the Church of God at Argos, Indiana and remained a faithful member until death. She said she was not afraid to die, for she trusted in him who said, "I am the resurrection and the life." "Weeping may endure for the night, but joy cometh in the morning." May that glad morning soon come, and end this long night of sin, sorrow and death, when loved ones shall be gathered home no more to part. The funeral was held at Argos on Sunday May 16, where the writer spoke words of comfort to a large audience of relatives and friends.

Announcement.

The annual meeting of the Church of God at Scholls, Oregon, will begin on Friday, June 11th, and will continue over the following Sunday.

Brethren coming from a distance will please notify us and they will be met with conveyances at the National Hotel in Portland, at 1 o'clock Friday, June 11th.

We extend an invitation to all lovers of truth. We will be glad to meet with you all. Brethren, let us be up and doing for the time is short. Let us work for the Master while it is yet day; for the night is coming wherein no man works. Come, all that can, and let us have a joyous reunion.

FLOYD LAWRENCE, Sec'y.

Intemperance is a great decayer of beauty.—Junius.

To the Brethren of Kansas and Missouri.

The tent is now ordered and will be ready by the first of June, and that there be no delay in getting to work, let all who have subscribed to the fund send in your subscription at once.

We have ordered a tent 40x54 ft. with 7 ft. walls, of good material. We have only ordered the large tent, and will do what we can with it until we get sufficient money to get the entire outfit.

Now, brethren, dont be afraid that we will get too much money; but let all who have not subscribed send what you can; it will be needed in the work. The work is now started; let us push it forward while there is opportunity.

Would like for the brethren to write us as to time and place for a general conference. How would the last of September or the first of October do for the time, and south of Kansas City near the line between the two states, do for the place? Write us with any suggestions on the work you think best. Send the money direct to Jos. Shellenberger, Mound City, Mo.

New Entrance to New York. Passengers via Pennsylvania Lines Now Have Choice of Three.

All are convenient locations: Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, in the downtown district, and Twenty-third street in the uptown district. The latter entrance will be formally opened May 16th, when two new and commodious ferryboats, double-deckers, constructed especially for the Pennsylvania Lines and furnished and finished in up-to-date style, will be placed in service between the Jersey city station and Twenty-third street, connecting with all inbound and outbound trains over the Pennsylvania System, the same as the boats running between that station and Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, which will also be continued in daily service.

The Pennsylvania Lines' three entrances into New York enable passengers to quickly reach the business portion in the lower end of the city, as well as the hotels and business blocks in the very heart of the great metropolis. The ride across the river is a delightful and refreshing termination to an enjoyable trip. All through trains from the West, over the Pennsylvania Lines, land passengers in New York between 9.30 A. M. and 9.30 P. M. treating them to a grand view of the city's water front; its extensive docks where at almost any time may be seen ships of many nations. The wonderful panorama gives visitors a slight idea of the magnitude of New York. The new Twenty-third street ferry line is particularly noteworthy in this respect.—May 30.

Dost thou intend a kindness to thy beloved one? Do it straightway, before the future come, destroying thy opportunity. Has thy heart's friend carelessly or cruelly stabbed into thy heart? Forgive him; think how, when thou art dead, he will punish himself. —Carlyle.

Through Buffet Sleeping Car to Mackinaw, Mich.

Commencing June 21st, the Vandalia Line will resume through Pullman Buffet Sleeping Car service between St. Louis and Mackinaw. Sleepers will run via Terre Haute, St. Joseph, Grand Rapids and Petoskey-Bay View. This will be the only line of through cars from St. Louis to the delightful and cool resorts of Michigan. South-bound the last sleeping car for the season will leave Mackinaw Sunday night, September 26th, 1897. For detailed information, address nearest Vandalia Line Agent, or E. A. Ford, General Passenger Agent, St. Louis.—June 30.

Troubles frequently meet us in the way of duty; they are designed to try our constancy, courage and sincerity; think not, I am going wrong, because tried; but wait on the Lord, and we shall save thee.—Methodist Recorder.

The efficiency of the Passenger Service on the Nickel Plate Road is meeting recognition on all hands. Solid through trains between Chicago and New York City, Elegantly Equipped Palace Sleeping Cars; An Unexcelled Dining Service; Uniformed Colored Porters on Through Trains, Fast Time and Rates always the Lowest; all combine to make it the most Popular Line between Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, New York, and Boston.—June 10.

Those who know most are generally the best listeners and the most anxious to know more.

Announcement.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana will be held at the Antioch Meeting-house five miles south of Plymouth, commencing on Friday evening June 11, 1897, at 7.30 o'clock, and continuing over the following Sunday. We extend a cordial invitation to all the brethren of like precious faith and all others who so desire, to come and be with us and help forward the cause of the Master. Come with hearts full of love for the cause and for each other, and let every one do his duty and our heavenly Father will reward our efforts. It has been suggested that all who can and desire, bring enough provision on Saturday and Sunday, and remain at the church until after the night meeting. Come and let us enjoy one more good meeting at old Antioch.

J. F. WAGONER, Pres.
A. C. ROBERTS, Sec.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God, in Michigan, will be held (D. V.) at Dutton, Kent County, commencing Thursday evening, June 3, 1897, and continue over the following Sunday. All of like precious faith are cordially invited. Brethren, all that possibly can "come." The Dutton brethren have a fine place of worship and extend a hearty invitation to all, and we can be assured of a good meeting. Let us show them our appreciation by our presence. Dutton is situated on the Michigan Central Rail Road, ten miles southeast of Grand Rapids. Those coming from the south or southwest stop at Carlisle on the G. R. I. & R. R. Those who stop at Carlisle will please to notify the President H. C. Hammond of Dutton, Michigan.

Editor Restitution:

Please say through your paper that my wife and I are thinking of making a trip through Eastern Oklahoma by private conveyance. We expect to start about May 24th. Should any desire us to hold meetings, if they will write us at Attica, Kansas, before the 24th, we will try and arrange to go their way. After the 24th address us at Berry, Oklahoma, in care of Marcus Oliver. We expect to be gone an indefinite time.

A Pretty Resort.—Winona Assembly Grounds, Eagle Lake, Ind., on Pennsylvania Lines.

A sojourn at Winona Assembly Grounds at Eagle Lake, Ind., near Warsaw, on the Fort Wayne Route, will prove a pleasant outing. This delightful resort is the site of the youngest of the Chautauqua assemblies, and its attractions combine facilities for recreation, entertainment, instruction and devotion.

Eagle Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, surrounded by several hundred acres of romantic woodland which covers one stretch of nearly two miles. The lake affords opportunity for aquatic pastimes, the boating, bathing and fishing being excellent. In addition to numerous rowboats there are several pleasure steamers on the lake.

The shady grounds are occupied by many pretty cottages and summer homes of persons who annually enjoy the beauties of the place, strengthening body in the invigorating atmosphere and enriching the mind by the special advantages the summer school offers.

A fine park has been laid out on the shore of the lake. A large auditorium, amphitheatre, college halls, hotels and restaurant have also been constructed on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. There is also a race track and space set aside for out-door athletic sports.

In addition to the Presbyterian General Assembly which will be in session on the Assembly Grounds from May 20th to June 2nd, a number of other large meetings will be held on the grounds during the summer of 1897, including the Indiana State Sunday School Convention, Western Association of Writers, Indiana State W. C. T. U., Indiana Y. M. C. A. Encampment, National Medical Society, Boys' Brigade, and Indiana State Christian Endeavor Convention.

Excursion tickets to Eagle Lake will be on sale via Pennsylvania Lines during the summer season. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be ascertained by addressing the nearest Passenger or Ticket Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines, or by applying to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Full information concerning the Assembly and Summer School, cost of entertainment, etc., may be secured upon application to Secretary Sol. C. Dickey, Eagle Lake, Ind.—June 10.

Discussion.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce that there will be a four-days discussion between a Christian (Campbellite) minister and myself, commencing June 21, 1897, ten miles west of Shawnee, Pott Co., Okla., at the Ray School-house.

He affirms that, "The Kingdom of Christ was set up on the first Pentecost after his ascension." I deny.

I affirm that "The Kingdom of Christ will be set up, or established, at his coming." I am confined to the King James Version. The kingdom question is all he will discuss with me. Their ministers here seem to not want to discuss any other questions with us. This is the same man that I held a discussion with last year, and he says that I beat him but not in a fair way. Pray for me, that with the help of the Almighty God, that I may use the Sword of the Spirit on him freely.

Now is the Time to Get a Home.

The Chicago & North-Western Railway has just published a newspaper called the North-Western Home-Seeker, giving facts about the great State of South Dakota and the advantages it possesses for the pursuits of agriculture, dairying and cattle raising. Lands can be had at present upon most favorable terms, and there is every indication of large immigration into the State this season. Correspondence is solicited from intending settlers, and a copy of the paper will be mailed free upon application to C. Traver, T. P. A., Marine National Bank Building, Pittsburg, Pa.—May 30.

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy

Presbyterian General Assembly.—Low Rates via Pennsylvania Lines.

Warsaw, Ind., (Winona Assembly Grounds, Eagle Lake) where the Presbyterian General Assembly will meet this year on the Fort Wayne Route of the Pennsylvania Lines, over which passengers are landed at the entrance to the grounds. Excursion tickets will be on sale over these May 17th to 25th, inclusive. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be obtained by applying to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or addressing F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.—May 24.

Napoleon said, "Imagination rules the world," and a study of biography, and intimate acquaintance with the world's leaders in thought and action, a close study of the human mind in young or old, in the humble or the exalted, reveals how clearly the world's most brilliant historic military character understood the influence of that activity of mind which take parts of conceptions and combines them into new forms and images "more select, more striking, more delightful, or more terrible than those of ordinary nature." The child becomes in a large measure what his imagination inspires him to be, and the teacher who holds the lines of intellectual activity has rare opportunities of directing, toning up and toning down, balancing and intensifying the imagination.

A Smooth Roadway. Perfect Passenger Service. Uniformed Colored Train Porters for the convenience of first class coach passengers. Quick Time. Through Sleeping Car Service between Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, New York, and Boston. A Superb Dining Car Service. No change of cars for any class of passengers between Chicago and New York City. Rates lower than other lines. These are the advantages presented by the Nickel Plate Road.—June 10.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked or though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies or this and to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again:" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ:" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Why not patronize the Nickel Plate Road on your next trip to New York City or Boston. Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price. 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. This clearly sets forth the idea that the "Coming Nation" will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 26 pages, price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

WHERE DO THE DEAD SLEEP?

These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract, 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

HADES.

A Bible account of this place, with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

DEATH COMPARED TO A SLEEP.

This represents death as a sleep, and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those searching for truth. 16 pages, 5cents each.

QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS AND THOUGHTFUL FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 96 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Hell and kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

A PARABOLIC BATTLEFIELD, OR NERON'S WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

Poetry.

We Shall Be Like Him.

We shall be like him—blessed thought!
Most we are not like him now.
Less patiently we bear the cross,
Less meekly do we suffer loss.
Yet he who our redemption bought
Will surely crown us dying lowly
We shall be like him—blessed thought!

We shall be like him—free from sin;
Or him temptation frets us power.
We shall be pure without a stain
When we that blessed state attain;
And pure without and pure within
In that ecstatic longed-for hour
We shall be like him—free from sin.

We shall be like him glory-crowned,
Immortal, clad in robes of light,
Beyond the power of angle to harm,
Beyond the assault of death's alarm,
No more by limitations bound
Of time and flesh and earthly night—
We shall be like him—glory-crowned.

"Spirits in Prison."

Editor Restitution:

I see in THE RESTITUTION some time ago a request from Dr. J. A. Thurman for some one to give an explanation of 1 Pet. iii. 19. I send one written by Bro. W. H. Wilson, Feb. 5th, 1896. Perhaps you would like to republish it. Truly it is in these days, as in the days of Noah, the people's unbelief is as great. They nullify the Word of God with the traditions of men. Denying that Jesus is the Christ (anointed to rule Israel). Even denying that Christ died: saying the real Christ (not the body) went to Paradise.

Yours in hope of eternal life in Christ,
MRS. BESSIE KEITH.

"A Sister writes asking an exposition of I Pet. iii. 18-21. I will give the quotation as translated from the original Greek, by Doctors George Campbell, James Macknight, and Philip Doddridge, that we may get nearer the fountain head, and the real teaching of the Spirit of God, as revealed through the holy men of old.

"For even Christ once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God; being put to death indeed in the flesh, but made alive by the Spirit. By which also he made proclamation to the spirits in prison, who formerly were disobedient, when the patience of God once waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was preparing in which few, that is, eight souls, "were effectually saved through water."

Now, the usual teaching given us from this passage is, that the word prison means hell, and the spirits in it, are the immaterial, immortal spirits of those who perished in the flood, who are in this prison suffering the torments of hell fire. And that Christ went and preached to these spirits in prison.

As yet I have seen no philosophy that could demonstrate how literal fire can prey upon, and burn that which is immaterial, or not material; and furthermore how any thing can be literally burned, and not be consumed?

We are also taught that when once these spirits enter this prison, it is a finality, and repentance can no longer avail in their behalf. Such being the case, I never could see the sense in preaching to an audience that is beyond redemption.

But the question is, what does this passage really teach? It will be necessary in the first place to ascertain the meaning of the word "spirit," seeing the apostasy has created an almost universal impression, that it is a deathless inner man which escapes from the body at death.

The word spirit in either the English, Greek, or Hebrew language is a word that is largely generic in its application, and has various applications but among them all it is never once used as taught by the apostasy. I quote the definitions from "Twelve Words."

The study of this word requires us to consider three Hebrew words, ob, neshamah, and ruach; and two Greek words, phantasma, and pneuma.

The first of these (ob) occurring 16 times, is the only word rendered "familiar spirit," and in the singular and plural, is so rendered 15 times. It is usually translated in the Septuagint, by a term which signifies a ventriloquist; "and rightly," says Gesenius' Lexicon, "Since among the ancients this power of ventriloquism was often misused for purposes of magic. In Job xxxii. 19 ot is the plural of ob is rendered "bottles," probably because the ventriloquists in throwing their voice would so inflate their bodies as to resemble tightly filled bottles, which, in those days, were made of skins. This ob seems to have been the same kind of witchcraft called among the Greeks pneuma puthonas, "a spirit of divination."

It was a common idiom among the Jews to put spirit before any quality ascribed to a person, whether it be good or bad, mental or corporeal. Thus the spirit of fear, the spirit of meekness, the spirit of slumber, the spirit of jealousy, etc.

Neshamah occurs 24 times, and is rendered "breath" 12 times; "blast" 3 times, "spirit" twice "souls" once (Isa. lvii. 16); "inspiration," once: and in the remaining five places it denotes concretely a thing: "that breatheth" or "hath breath," as Deut. xx. 16, 17, (and refers to mortal men that can be slain.)

Ruach occurs about 385 times, and is rendered "spirit" about 235 times; wind 75 times; "breath" 28 times; mind 6 times; "blast" 4 times; "air," "anger" "courage," once each; and the balance in five different ways.

Phantasma is rendered "apparition," in R. V., and occurs only twice.

Pneuma occurring about 404 times, is rendered "spirit" about 275 times.

Ruach and pneuma are employed to denote wind, air, breath, temper, disposition, affections, feelings, inclinations, and mortal men, as in 1 John iv. 1; 1 Pet. iii. 19: the last one, is the text under consideration. We find among the multitude of ways "spirit" is rendered, that it never once refers to disembodied, immortal ghosts, but it does refer both to mortal men, and beasts.

Now, then, we are prepared to come directly to the exposition of the text 1 Pet. iii. 18-21.

The Diaglott reads: "Being put to death in the flesh, but made alive by the Spirit; by which also he preached to the spirits in prison." This harmonizes with the rendering given at the head of the article.

Who was it that preached to the spirits in prison? We are told that it was Christ, but the text don't say so. The nearest antecedent in the text, is "the spirit," "Christ" was the subject acted upon, and "made alive by the spirit," and "by which" "Spirit" "also" (he) God "preached to the spirits in prison."

It was God who made "him alive by the Spirit," and the phrase, "by which also," refers back to the same power which made Christ "alive by the Spirit." Hence, we have it, God made Jesus alive by the Spirit, and by the same spirit, God preached to the spirits in prison.

Peter says, "Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." Noah was the man whom God by means of the Holy Spirit "preached to the spirits in prison," and not Christ.

Notice, also, that there is a great deal of difference between preaching to spirits (or persons) that are already in prison, and preaching to them before they entered prison.

He is speaking here of an event that had already taken place, was in the past tense, "preached to the spirits (or persons) in prison." He did not enter the prison to preach to these spirits, or persons, but was simply relating the fact, that these spirits that were then in prison, had been preached to previously.

When did the preaching take place? "When the patience of God once waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was preparing." Christ was not born at this time, and consequently could not do any preaching to them. But God "made (Jesus) alive by the Spirit. By which (spirit) also he made proclamation to the spirits in prison, who were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God once waited in the days of Noah," through whom, God by this Spirit preached to them.

The word "spirits" in this text is the same as in 1 John iv. 1: "Beloved, believe not every spirit (person) but try the spirits (persons) whether they are of God: for many false prophets are gone out into the world." These "false prophets," are the spirits or persons we are to "try." The word "spirit" occurs also in verses 2 and 3, and relates to mortal people. In verse 6, we have the word "spirit," in a different sense. In James ii. 26, in a different sense still, "For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also." See the margin and you will see that the meaning of this word "spirit," in the Greek, is "breath."

What are we to understand by the word "prison?" A place where captives are confined. The Bible uses these words with reference to death and the grave. See Isa. lxi. 1: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek, he hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, (prisoners) and the opening of the prison (grave) to them that are bound."

Isa. xlii. 7: "To bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison-house."

Job iii. 17, 18: "There the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary are at rest." There the prisoners rest together.

There is no foundation in the passage under consideration for the common belief that Jesus entered hell-fire to preach to the supposed wicked immaterial, immortal spirits of those who are supposed to have entered this pit of fire when drowned at the flood. It would be folly to preach to those who are past redemption. Jesus was never guilty of such nonsense.

The fact is that God did preach to these people by his Spirit, through Noah, at the time the ark was building, and that is all there is in it, except the impressive lesson to us, that in the day when the Son of God shall be revealed, the condition of things will be similar, and that the people will pay about as little attention to God's true message of life, as they did then. Nevertheless, it is our duty to faithfully proclaim the message, and not be discouraged, even if we do not have any better success than Noah did."

Signs of the Times.

Dear Restitution:

Are we really and truly living in the "time of the end?" The answer comes from all around, yes. What is the evidence of it? Are there not wars and rumors of war. Are not the plowshares being beaten into swords and the pruning knives into spears?

We are asked to look across the Atlantic at the millions of men who have been, and are being trained as soldiers, with war actually in progress between Greece and Turkey. It certainly looks like command "prepare for war," had gone forth and was being faithfully obeyed. But we are reminded that the proclamation to prepare for war, was to go forth to all Gentiles, which certainly includes all Gentile nations. The United States is the greatest Gentile nation in the world, and we are told by the objector that she is not making any preparation whatever for war. That this nation is at peace with itself and with all other nations. That ever since Gen'l. Grant said in 1868, "Let us have peace" this nation had given up all idea of war. We settled our trouble with England, growing out of the "Alabama claims" by peaceful arbitration. That we are not only settling our own troubles in that peaceful manner, but by and through our efforts other nations have been induced to settle their difficulties in the same manner, and as proof of this we are referred to the settlement between England and Venezuala. It is true that this nation has for some years past, been apparently in favor of peace, but can it be truthfully said of us today that we as a nation, are now peacefully inclined?

It is only a few months since a resolution was passed by an almost unanimous vote of both Houses of Congress, requesting the President to recognize the belligerent rights of Cuba, in her war with Spain. Numerous other resolutions, demanding that this nation should at once interfere in behalf of the Cubans, have been introduced and discussed, in the United States Senate. All of which have met with popular approval. There is scarcely a newspaper in the country which has not given these propositions hearty approval. Why did not President Cleveland and his Cabinet comply with the request of Congress, and recognize Cuba as a belligerent nation? Congress not only passed the resolution requesting it, but the debates upon that resolution, showed beyond question, that Congress was not only requesting the recognition of Cuban rights, but were demanding it. This was done after the President and members of his Cabinet had by interviews published in the public press, informed the country that such action on the part of this country would involve this nation in war, not only with Spain, but with some of the other nations of Europe, who would aid Spain in case we should attempt to interfere in her Cuban troubles. Notwithstanding this warning by the President, the United States Senate is at this very time demanding immediate action on our part. Are we in favor of peace?

In addition to the act of Congress in the premises, public meetings have been held in many cities, and strong resolutions have been adopted, demanding that this nation should at once take steps to assist Cuba to obtain her independence. The public press of the country, with very few exceptions, advocated these ultra and war-like resolutions. President Cleveland was denounced in the most emphatic terms for his failure to do the very things which he and the members of his Cabinet, said would lead to war. There is no question whatever about public sentiment in the matter. The demand was and is made, and vehemently insisted upon that the Cubans shall be assisted, war or no war.

But that is not all. As a proof that whatever we may have been in the past, we are not now in favor of settling our difficulties with other nations by peaceful means, I need only call attention to the action of the United States, taken only a few days ago, in which they refused to ratify a treaty with the English Government for the settlement of any differences we may have in the future by arbitration.

Let it be remembered that this action was taken after the treaty had been so amended that it should embrace such questions as the Senate might see fit to submit to arbitration and still it was rejected. This amounts to saying that this country will not under any circumstances submit any question whatever to arbitration. We are not trying how to prevent war but how not to prevent it. We are one of the Gentile nations and the prophecy includes us. But, I am met with the statement that this nation is not preparing for war. This is a mistaken notion. There never has been a time in our history, when we in time of profound peace were spending as much money in preparations for war as we are at the present. We are building the finest war ships in the world and building about as fast as we have the means to do it. We are crying, "Peace, peace, when there is no peace." Let us be prepared for the worst, or rather the best, for the only really good thing that can, or will happen to this world, is the coming of our Lord and Master.

R. S. DWIGGINS.

Dear Restitution:

I send you a clipping from our Baltimore papers.

Dr. Harcourt used to preach here in one of the leading M. E. churches. He is at present pastor of the leading M. E. church in Philadelphia. They (the stewards) objected to him preaching about the devil in their beautiful Park Ave. House. The kid glove believers of the palace churches deem it vulgar now to talk about the devil.

One of my children thinks Harcourt is to blame. He says the church hires him to preach to suit their tastes, pays him a large salary, and if they want no devil in the sermons, he ought not to press him on them. It was written of Jesus, that "He spake as one having authority, and not as the Scribes and Pharisees." The star preachers, who hire out to the big churches, are having a hard time to please their employers.

How much better to have the one Master, to obey God rather than men. What would be thought of a doctor of medicine, who for fear of offending his patients, allowed them to revise his prescriptions?

I am glad to know that there is one brave man that refuses to sell himself to a dude church, especially so, because he is a Scotch-Irishman like myself.

The Park Ave. church will have no trouble in finding a man to say things that they approve, receive his wages, and have due respect for their position in society. Such preachers are getting their reward here, Harcourt and men like him will receive theirs hereafter.

ISAAC MCCURDY, Sr.

DR. HARCOURT TO MOVE. HIS PHILADELPHIA PARISHIONERS OBJECT TO A SERIES OF SERMONS.

The Rev. Dr. Richard Harcourt, formerly pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church in this city, but now of the Park Avenue Church in Philadelphia, has given notice that he will leave his present charge at the end of the Conference year because he has been opposed in his desire to preach a series of sermons dealing with the following subjects:

"The Devil in the Drinking Cup. Samples from Our Leading Saloons."

"The Devil in Literature. Samples from the Newstands."

"The Devil in Business. Samples from Store and Exchange."

"The Devil in Politics. Samples from Harrisburg and Washington."

"The Devil in Society. Samples from Ballroom and Theatre."

"The Devil in the Home. Samples from Euchre Parties."

"The Devil in the Churches. Samples from Entertainments."

"How to Exorcise the Devil. Illustrations from the Scriptures."

"Christ's Treatment of the Devil. Illustrations from His Life."

Dr. Harcourt gave up the series, but he does not wish to work where he is opposed.

He must leave.

Tracts! Tracts!! Tracts!!!

Brethren, I want some tracts for free distribution in connection with tent work this season. You know that the unbelieving world will not buy them, but hundreds will read them, and some will believe them, and a few will obey and be saved. All our preachers—particularly our tent workers, can circulate thousands of these faithful little messengers who keep on preaching when we are tired out and asleep, and I want to speak in behalf of them all. I see that Bro. Underwood has been getting out a few new ones lately, just what we want, and Bro. Joblin and Wiley Jones have each some excellent matter, all of which can be obtained through THE RESTITUTION. Now, what hinders a tract fund expressly for missionary work? Suppose every one lays by a nickle a week for this purpose and sends it to THE RESTITUTION; a large fund can be thus formed, and all who can be found to distribute them will find they are provided with all they can get rid of. There are certainly 1000 persons who ought to pay 5 cents per week to the tract fund, and that means $50 a week. "O!" you say, "that is more than we can possibly get rid of." Yes, if no body distributes them; but you provide the funds and see if gratuitous distributors won't spring up all over the land and call for "more tracts." Now, don't turn away from this scheme as "too small potatoes," until you have faithfully tried it one year. If it is so small that you think it is insignificant, that is its merit—you will give it and not feel it, and so will all the rest; and so—without making any sacrifice you fill the land with our literature and save a multitude of souls. How would it make you feel if you get into the New Jerusalem to have a glorious and immortal being meet you some day and say, "Do you remember that tract on the kingdom, Bro. Jones wrote and you sent me when we were down there in Indiana in the days of the flesh? Well, that's why I am here." For one, I'd like a good many to say that to me; and when you come to consider it, wouldn't you? I can do a little preaching yet—thank God; but if you will give me the tracts I will preach ten sermons where I now do one. Now, don't you wait for somebody else to start this thing. If there are five in your family, let the boys and girls all have a part in the good work and send a month's subscription, or $1.00 to the tract fund. I want to start my tent by Sunday May 30th, and I want to draw on that tract fund for at least $10 worth of tracts the first thing. Shall I have them? What do you say?

Faithfully yours,
J. F. WILCOX.

Faith.

Faith is defined by an inspired writer, "The substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen," according to the common version of the 1st verse of Heb. xi. The Diaglott translation gives us a better idea, "Faith is the basis of things hoped for, a conviction of things unseen." "Conviction" in the mind of man can only be produced by evidence, and therefore evidence is essential to the production or development of faith. To define faith in the business like terms of the English language, it is the conviction or conclusion from evidence, that the promises of God (things hoped for) will be realized, the conclusion that God's promises will be fulfilled. The evidence upon which this conclusion, i. e. faith, is reached is mainly historical, and fulfilled prophecy confirmed by history. We conclude that God will do what he has promised to do because of what he has done. We believe that prophecy will be fulfilled because of what has been fulfilled. We believe in the eschatology of the Bible because of the nature and character of the incontrovertible historical facts recorded therein, which together with the prophecies fulfilled and unfulfilled, reveal to us the mind of the Deity concerning the destiny of the earth and man upon it.

Faith, then, is not what unbelievers call a willful, ignorant belief of unreasonable superstition. On the contrary, it is the logical conclusions drawn from facts. It is reasoning from cause to effect. It is the reasonable exercise of the highest and noblest faculties with which man is gifted. "Without faith it is impossible to please God." And I will ask, Why should God be pleased with anything less than that? It follows then that one who is ignorant of the promises, and of God's dealings and operations with the children of men, cannot have faith in the Scripture meaning of the term, and we realize how foolish it is to "pray for faith" if we neglect or reject the only source through which faith is accessible—the Word of God.

A Busy Hour.

JESUS' AFFECTIONATE RESPONSE TO JOHN.

"And in that same hour he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits, and unto many that were blind he gave sight." Luke vii. 21.

John was a little in doubt. Though the Spirit had identified Jesus at his baptism, and though before this, John had declared his presence in the multitude, and had recognized him as he offered himself for baptism, and report had told of his wonderful works, and John was "decreasing" while Jesus was "increasing," yet he was not quite sure; it was not just as he expected; his glory did not rival Cesnar's, and was not like David's,—can it be possible that he is really the Messiah our people have so long looked for? John sent two of his own disciples to ask Jesus himself how it was. Jesus could not deny John; he was always candid and plain with sincere inquirers, and would be especially so with John. His answer was better than to say, "I am He." It illustrated that both as priest and king he was to be sui generis: type and prophecy gave faint idea of what he was to be.

John though disappointed in Jesus, seems to have been satisfied with his answer, but kept right on with his own ministry till Herod arrested him.

What an hour that was, how packed with audible and visible proofs: "The blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached."

What a Minister! What a King! Will he be so when he comes again? No wonder he will not be recognized and that his coming will be "as a snare." A quiet revolution, world-wide, universal, complete—just what is needed.

O. R. L. C.

Come, Come, Come.

The call has gone out once more for our Annual Conference in Dutton. Now, friends, one and all, far and near, the latch strings are all out, and such a hustling as there is going on now through our homes, trying to get everything clean and comfortable for the dear saints as they gather in to the feast once more. Will you repay our effort with your presence? The King's business requires haste and earnestness. Are you in his ranks, do you feel the need of food spiritually in these trying days? Come then where the feast will be spread, partake of the delicious morsels from the Lord's storehouse of wisdom and loving promises. Let us all be on hand at the very first meeting to help to strengthen and advise for future work. The Sisters have done wonders with their systematic giving of the tenth in the past, but some whose names are enrolled have not responded, shall we hear from you dear helpers in the Lord? We will remember "He who soweth sparingly will reap sparingly, but he who soweth bountifully will reap bountifully." God's cause will not prosper as it ought unless his workers do their part. We must all work for it if we expect good results in Michigan as elsewhere. Come then, brethren, with a mind to do. Come, praying that the blessed Holy Spirit may be a guest and helper in this meeting. There will be ample provisions made for all who may come.

B. W. & M. A. WOODWARD.

Announcement.

The annual meeting of the Church of God at Scholls, Oregon, will begin on Friday, June 11th, and will continue over the following Sunday.

Brethren coming from a distance will please notify us and they will be met with conveyances at the National Hotel in Portland, at 1 o'clock Friday, June 11th.

We extend an invitation to all lovers of truth. We will be glad to meet with you all. Brethren, let us be up and doing for the time is short. Let us work for the Master while it is yet day; for the night is coming wherein no man works. Come, all that can, and let us have a joyous reunion.

FLOYD LAWRENCE, Sec'y.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana will be held at the Antioch Meeting-house five miles south of Plymouth, commencing on Friday evening June 11, 1897, at 7.30 o'clock, and continuing over the following Sunday. We extend a cordial invitation to all the brethren of like precious faith and all others who so desire, to come and be with us and help forward the cause of the Master. Come with hearts full of love for the cause and for each other, and let every one do his duty and our heavenly Father will reward our efforts. It has been suggested that all who can and desire, bring enough provision on Saturday and Sunday, and remain at the church until after the night meeting. Come and let us enjoy one more good meeting at old Antioch.

J. F. WAGONER, Pres.
A. C. ROBERTS, Sec.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God, in Michigan, will be held (D. V.) at Dutton, Kent County, commencing Thursday evening, June 3, 1897, and continue over the following Sunday. All of like precious faith are cordially invited. Brethren, all that possibly can "come." The Dutton brethren have a fine place of worship and extend a hearty invitation to all, and we can be assured of a good meeting. Let us show them our appreciation by our presence. Dutton is situated on the Michigan Central Rail Road, ten miles southeast of Grand Rapids. Those coming from the south or southwest stop at Carlisle on the G. R. I. & R. R. Those who stop at Carlisle will please to notify the President H. C. Hammond of Dutton, Michigan.

EMMA JACKMAN, Sec.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Dunbar School House in Furnas County, ten miles south of Arapahoe, commencing on Friday, June 11th, and holding over Sunday. We request all the brothers and sisters, who can possibly do so, to be present at this meeting. Come to learn more of the Master's will, to receive encouragement, and to encourage others to forget those things which are behind, to reach forth unto those things which are before, and to press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Each church in the State is requested to send its vote as to when the next Annual Conference shall be held, to the State secretary by the 5th of June.

Submitted in love,

Discussion.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce that there will be a four days discussion between a Christian (Campbellite) minister and myself, commencing June 21, 1897, ten miles west of Shawnee, Pott Co., Okla., at the Ray School-house.

He affirms that, "The Kingdom of Christ was set up on the first Pentecost after his ascension." I deny.

I affirm that "The Kingdom of Christ will be set up ,or established, at his coming." I am confined to the King James Version. The kingdom question is all he will discuss with me. Their ministers here seem to not want to discuss any other questions with us. This is the same man that I held a discussion with last year, and he says that I beat him but not in a fair way. Pray for me, that with the help of the Almighty God, that I may use the Sword of the Spirit on him freely.

New Entrance to New York. Passengers via Pennsylvania Lines Now Have Choice of Three.

All are convenient locations: Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, in the downtown district, and Twenty-third street in the uptown district. The latter entrance will be formally opened May 16th, when two new and commodious ferryboats, double-deckers, constructed especially for the Pennsylvania Lines and furnished and finished in up-to-date style, will be placed in service between the Jersey city station and Twenty-third street, connecting with all inbound and outbound trains over the Pennsylvania System, the same as the boats running between that station and Cortland street and Desbrosses street, which will also be continued in daily service.

The Pennsylvania Lines' three entrances into New York enable passengers to quickly reach the business portion in the lower end of the city, as well as the hotels and business blocks in the very heart of the great metropolis. The ride across the river is a delightful and refreshing termination to an enjoyable trip. All through trains from the West, over the Pennsylvania Lines, land passengers in New York between 9.30 A. M. and 9.30 P. M. treating them to a grand view of the city's water front; its extensive docks where at almost any time may be seen ships of many nations. The wonderful panorama gives visitors a slight idea of the magnitude of New York. The new Twenty-third street ferry line is particularly noteworthy in this respect.—May 30.

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy

Through Buffet Sleeping Car to Mackinaw, Mich.

Commencing June 21st, the Vandalia Line will resume through Pullman Buffet Sleeping Car service between St. Louis and Mackinaw. Sleepers will run via Terre Haute, St. Joseph, Grand Rapids and Petoskey-Bay View. This will be the only line of through cars from St. Louis to the delightful and cool resorts of Michigan. South-bound the last sleeping car for the season will leave Mackinaw Sunday night, September 26th, 1897. For detailed information, address nearest Vandalia Line Agent, or E. A. Ford, General Passenger Agent, St. Louis.—June 30.

Now is the Time to Get a Home.

The Chicago & North-Western Railway has just published a newspaper called the North-Western Home-Seeker, giving facts about the great State of South Dakota and the advantages it possesses for the pursuits of agriculture, dairying and cattle raising. Lands can be had at present upon most favorable terms, and there is every indication of large immigration into the State this season. Correspondence is solicited from intending settlers, and a copy of the paper will be mailed free upon application to C. Traver, T. P. A., Marine National Bank Building, Pittsburg, Pa.—May 30.

"Times of general calamity and confusion have ever been productive of the greatest minds. The purest ore is produced from the hottest furnace, and the brightest thunderbolt is elicited from the darkest storm."—Lacon.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

The efficiency of the Passenger Service on the Nickel Plate Road is meeting recognition on all hands. Solid through trains between Chicago and New York City, Elegantly Equipped Palace Sleeping Cars; An Unexcelled Dining Service; Uniformed Colored Porters on Through Trains, Fast Time and Rates always the Lowest; all combine to make it the most Popular Line between Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, New York, and Boston.—June 10.

Summer Outings.—Seashore and Lake Resorts.

The principal places of summer sojourn along the Atlantic Ocean, in the Alleghenies, the Adirondacks, Catskills, and mountains of the East, and in the Lake Region and Northern michigan and the Northwest, may be readily reached over the Pennsylvania Lines.

Special information regarding the leading resorts and the advantages enjoyed in journeying to them over the Pennsylvania Route has been compiled and printed in convenient form. The matter is profusely illustrated with photographic reproductions of seashore scenes and includes views at Atlantic City, Cape May, Long Branch and other resorts along the Atlantic Coast; also of Cresson, Bedford Springs, and the romantic mountain retreats, and of Petoskey, Mackinac, and the summer havens in Michigan and the Northwest.

Persons contemplating summer outing trips will find it a valuable guide in shaping preliminaries. Copies may be obtained by addressing C. L. Kimball, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.—May 31.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Why not patronize the Nickel Plate Road on your next trip to New York City or Boston. They operate solid through trains elegantly equipped with palace sleepers, fine day coaches attended by uniformed colored porters whose duties require them to look out for the comfort of passengers. Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that a waiting any of the unrighteous? A 160-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. This clearly sets forth the idea that the "Coming Nation" will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 28 pages, price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

WHERE DO THE DEAD SLEEP?

These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 8-page tract, 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

HADES.

Redemption.

With haughty mind to Godhead man aspired.
With loving mind our manhood God desired:
Man was by pride from place of pleasure chased,
God, man by love in greater pleasures placed:
Man seeking to ascend procured our fall.
God yielding to descend removed our thrall.
The Judge was cast, the guilty to acquit,
The Sun debased to lend the shades its light.

Hebrew a Live Tongue.

About three years ago a pamphlet entitled Eine auferstandene Sprache made its appearance in Berlin. The author, Mr. Fabius Schach, had never been heard of as a Hebrew scholar, nor has he appeared since its publication as the author of any work of importance; but that pamphlet was eminently successful. Within a very short time it was reprinted three times. To the run of German readers Mr. Schach seemed to have made a new revelation in showing that the Hebrew tongue had arisen like a phœnix from its ashes, and been endowed with sufficient vitality to become the vernacular of about ten millions of people, scattered all over the world at the present time. The success of his essay misled even some American students into quoting him as an authority, although he never professed to give anything like a learned treatise on his subject, and his historical and bibliographical data were far from being as comprehensive and correct as they might have been. Only about six months ago the announcement that a monthly Hebrew publication had made its appearance in Berlin was noticed throughout the European press, and even found its way into some of the most important papers here, as if it were of extraordinary importance. People wondered if such a periodical could find readers enough to pay the cost of printing it.

This notion that the Hebrew is a dead tongue is based on a popular misapprehension, nor is there any more reason for the common supposition that the modern Hebrew, at its best, is able only to express theological and religious thoughts. The Hebrew literature of the present time comprises books and periodicals on every scholastic, scientific, and social subject imaginable. So great is the demand for Hebrew reading matter among the Jews that there are two daily papers in that language. The one is published in Warsaw and the other in St. Petersburg, and several weekly papers circulate all over the world. Besides the monthly publication recently started in Berlin, there are many magazines of great value to the student of social and scholastic learning. Even in New York there is a Hebrew weekly, and attempts were made lately to establish a monthly magazine, and six or seven numbers actually appeared, with contents sufficiently varied and interesting to attract the notice of many intelligent readers. New books in the Hebrew tongue appear very frequently, mostly in Russia, Austria, Germany, and Palestine, but sometimes even in the United States: and, like all such publications, they are largely circulated among the Jews in all the lands of their dispersion.

Besides the use that the learned Jews make of the Hebrew tongue for the writing of books and periodicals, the unlearned use it for the most common practical purposes. Judicial and business documents are written in that language for the most part, and sometimes according to the formulæ in the diction of the rabbis of the first centuries of the Christian era. Only a disaffected and litigious Jew will fail to recognize the validity of such documents and take his case to a secular court if he knows that a rabbinical court would decide against him. Respectable Jewish business houses even advertise their wares in the Hebrew tongue; thus reaching their transatlantic brethren and acquainting the emigrant Jew with their places of business before he embarks for America, since that which is printed in other countries except the Hebrew, up to the present century the knowledge of many languages was far from being as common as it is now. When a Jewish traveler came from Germany or the Orient among his brethren in a land of whose language he was ignorant, he was compelled to make his wishes known in Hebrew. Hence it is that there are so many Hebrew words and phrases mixed up in the dialects which the Jew speaks in the various lands of their dispersion. The liberalized Jew who ignores the religious customs of his people and knows nothing and wants to know nothing of their sacred tongue understands and sometimes unconsciously uses these words and phrases; more frequently he parodies them in the language of his country. This it is that imparts the strangering to his speech, which grates on ears not Jewish, but which appears quite natural to his fellow-believers.

Historically what is called the modern Hebrew tongue has been continuously developing since the ages of antiquity. In Mishnaic times, or from about two centuries before the Christian era to about two centuries afterward, it adopted some of the grammatical forms of the Aramean dialect and many words of the languages then current among the Jews. The earliest rabbinical writings, the Mishna and some of the Midrashim, are classed among the specimens of good Hebrew, in spite of the admixture of technical terms from other languages. The Talmudists, both Babylonian and Jerusalemite, introduced more such terms into the language of the Hebrew schools. The language of prayer, however, always remained unadulterated, and the poetry of the Hebrew bards always aimed at the diction and grammatical forms of the authors of the Old Testament.

The poets of the Arabic Spain introduced the "rhyme" of their vernacular into the Hebrew, but their diction was almost always without exception pure and in the spirit of the prophets, so that a David or an Isaiah could have understood them without the least difficulty. After their time the development of the language went on, but with a tendency toward greater grammatical accuracy. The schools of learning used the Talmud dialect. Prayers and poems were written in pure Hebrew. Correspondence and conversation, the latter among the Jews of Oriental lands depended on the associations of the writer or the speaker. A man of learning invariably used Talmudic terms of speech; business people wrote in the manner in which they could most easily make themselves understood, and where they had no words to express ideas or things of practical use they inserted in parentheses the terms of their vernacular. Elegant writing was formed after the biblical style, or in that of the prayer book.

Where did the unlearned Jews get Restitution.

"Spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

INDIANA, JUNE 2, 1897. NUMBER 21.

The Restitution advocates the restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

dren of men; its consequences are so vast, so deep, too wonderful for me to speak of. But thank God THE RESTITUTION has had the pluck and sand to throw this awful lie back into Satan's face. The daughters of Babylon have taken up this lie and the pretended heralds of the cross are now busy heralding this lie to the world as a substitute to the gospel of the kingdom, but as I am no writer I must refrain from saying more on this subject. If any minister of our faith should pass through Tacoma, Wash., I should be glad to have him call on us, we are poor, yet God has given us a home, and enough to eat, and as the woman we read of, an upper room with a bed, a stool and a table in it, no candle but a lamp instead: this is for the man of God should he pass this way.

Yours in Christ,

D. L. KEAN.

Editor Restitution:

As I am a stranger to all of the dear ones that write for our paper, I am not a stranger to their faith, for I truly believe what THE RESTITUTION advocates in regard to the gospel of the kingdom of God and the state of the dead and putting on Christ with a burial in baptism as stated in Rom. vi. 3, 4; Gal. iii. 27, 29. This is the only way I think we can be adopted into Christ's family, which entitles us to be heirs for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers, as the apostle states in Acts xxvi. 6. Now, I have taken THE RESTITUTION since 1891, I was baptized July, 1896 in a beautiful creek about three miles southwest from where I live, and as there was no minister of our faith here I had a United Brethren minister baptize me, and since I have started in the Master's cause I have had some cloudy times, and I have had times when the sun shines bright; but Christian readers of THE RESTITUTION we must have some cloudy times, or we could not fully appreciate the sunshine, and the Savior tells us that we must suffer with him in order to reign with him. There are only five with myself of the one faith here and all the preaching I get is through THE RESTITUTION, but I can say that I appreciate its weekly visits. How thankful we all ought to be, readers of THE RESTITUTION that have no preaching, that we can take our paper and go to the blessed Word of God and ponder over the blessed promises he has promised to them that are overcomers, and he has promised us in Hebrews xiii. 5, that he will never leave us or forsake us. With such promises as these, I want to keep right on in the Master's cause. I ask an interest in all your prayers that I may be found faithful, that when the Lord comes I may gain an entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. I will close by saying, may God help us all to be faithful, is the prayer of your Brother in Christ.

GARLAND ANDERSON.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the hope of Israel:

Our hearts go out to yours in love, and in gratitude to God, by reason of the blessed hope and precious promises we all entertain. We know we are passed from death unto life because we love the brethren. What can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord? In going over the many individual expressions of love and confident assurances of so many of our (now) unknown and unseen, yet loved ones, we have been touched with that divine love, which we know, in numerous indicate the near approach of our Lord and King. Let us be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord. Having on the wedding garment, the righteousness of the saints, awaiting the fulfillment of our blessed hope and his glorious appearing, ever reminding each other that strait is the gate and narrow the way that leads to life. Also Jesus' words, "When the Son of Man cometh shall he find faith in the earth?" These sayings indicate to us how close is the call, and how essential that we make our calling and election sure. We wish to return our heartfelt thanks to the older brothers who through the past year have so ably divided the Word of truth, so they who will may run, and not in vain. Dear brothers and sisters, let us all be on the tip-toe of expectation with the watchword on our lips, This is our God, we have waited for him.

Your Brother and Sister,

CHARLES & LOUISA MOORE.

To the called out and faithful in Jesus Christ:

I have been reading the letters from the brethren and sisters, far and near, and how my heart rejoices to hear them tell of this hope of the soon coming King, which is my hope, the hope that reaches to that within the vale. We can see by events transpiring around us that it is almost time for the Nobleman that has gone into that far country, to return, and O, how will it fare with us in the judgment when we have to render an account of our deeds done in the body, will it be with joy and not with grief, will he say, "Well done, come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world?" Are we doing all we can to further the cause of Christ, are we feeding the hungry and clothing the naked, are we letting our light shine so that others may see our good works, and glorify our Father which is in heaven; have we come out from, and separated ourselves from the world's vanities; is our conversation in heaven, from whence also we look for the Lord Jesus? Let us look to ourselves that we have on the whole armor of God, let us run the race with patience, run so that we may obtain a crown of righteousness. May the good Lord help us, and grant us an abundant entrance into the kingdom, is the prayer of your Sister waiting for the redemption of the purchased possession,

ELIZA WEST.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

Who are bound together in that pure love which is in Christ, I write you, and it is the first time in life that I have ever undertaken to write to have it put in print, but in my first I want to let you all know, that I am very much in love with my dear Savior, enough so that I want to put away every evil thing for his dear name and for the sake of his body, the church. I started to live in Christ when I was only ten years old, and I never yet in my life wanted to give up that blessed hope. I trusted in him all through our last cruel war of this United States, with Bible in my saddle-bag on the march, or with it under my head in camp with its perusal every chance I had, and in almost every camp I had my place of secret prayer, and I know that God's hand covered me in a good many places. After the war was over I got home, married, set up my altar for prayer, joined the Protestant Methodist church and was baptized. In the fall of 1870 I went west, learned the true hope, and was re-baptized. I learned how to study my Bible, and do love and trust him, my dear God and Jesus Christ his Son. I am perfectly satisfied that God is able to do all he said he would through Christ in regard to the resurrection at the coming of Christ, when he will establish the everlasting kingdom, and change the earth according to his promises, and make it the earth, so it will be capable of bringing forth its greatest forces of nature in that perfect beauty so it will be actually a glory to behold, for there are no impossibilities with God. I have always been glad that I ever was permitted to learn what he has in store for us if we are only faithful, and oh, let us be faithful, my dear brethren, and never lose that crown, not a crown of thorns, for we have them here, but when he comes, who will come, we will have a crown that will not hurt. I have lived all my life a Christian, but I can look back now, and see where lots of times I was too much given to fun and merriment and so many times like a whipped child I've come to my Master to weep and pray and ask pardon. So I know we have a good forgiving God and Savior, and oh, how I do love him more and more, for now I am getting old and time has touched her frosty fingers to my hair and it's getting white, and all alone in the world, isolated from any of like precious faith, lonely and full of trouble. I thank God that I do still survive the frail nations of the dead, and have the joy in my heart, that soon Jesus will come and all of our troubles will have ended in eternal life and immortality, and we all trust that our dear friend is coming soon, for don't you hear the mighty tread of the armies for battle, and the sea and waves roaring, and pretty soon, if we are faithful, in a moment in the twinkling of an eye like a ball shot out with the powder touched behind it, we will speed away to meet our Lord, and each other with gladness forevermore to take possession with Christ in that blessed kingdom prepared for us from the foundation of the world, and it never, no never will be destroyed. I do want to say that I do most sincerely love all of God's dear ones in Christ. I think THE RESTITUTION is a good advocate of our blessed hope. I ask you all to pray for me that I may be delivered from this wicked place. I want to sell out and get where there are some of the brethren. For ten long years I have heard nothing but swearing and cursing and the preaching of false doctrine.

And may God bless you all is my prayer,

S. E. BAIRD.

To the dear old friend, The Restitution:

I have enjoyed the love feast with the many cheering and encouraging letters of the dear ones scattered abroad. I have thought so many times, I, too, would write you, then would wait a more convenient time. Dear friends and loved ones of the gospel faith, "the one faith," I want to tell you I am not discouraged nor disheartened in the service of the dear God and Father, who has answered my humble petition for mercy and love. Yes, and when the clouds have hung over me, until it seemed my life was almost crushed out, there would come such a bright light, and would give me courage to press on toward the mark. Just an imaginary glimpse into the kingdom does inspire us with new life. A place where there is no more pain nor sighing, sickness nor death. Is it not worth anything to us? Does it mean anything to you or me? Yes, O, yes, it means everything. We all know something of sorrow and suffering, and to think how good it will be, to be like Jesus, to live with him, to be made like him. Let us pray, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven." How are we to get this possession and reward? By faithful obedience to God, not in foolish jesting or idle words, but by continuing in prayer and supplication to God every day that we live. Dear brothers and sisters, are you just trying to be faithful and obedient, or are you really being just what God has told you to be and do? I want to say to all the dear ones, with whom I am personally acquainted, that the way grows brighter and I am among the faithful ones looking for Jesus to come, and praying, "Come Lord Jesus, and come soon."

Your Sister,

C. J. CHAFFEE.

PLYMOUTH, IND. JUNE 2, 1897.

PLEASE look and see what the label on your paper says.

BROTHER M. L. Adams requests us to say that the discussion, in which he was to take a part has been postponed until the 28th of June, as his opponent could not meet him on the 21st. Friends please remember the change in date.

"THERE is no better foundation for public or private usefulness than a meek, modest temper; gentle, indeed, and ready to yield as far as a good conscience will allow—but yet standing firm and stable amid contradiction and opposition;" so writes Erskine Clark.

THE glorious reign of Christ and his brethren will continue one thousand years over mortal nations. At the end of that time all sinners shall be rooted out of the earth, and from that period the earth will be inhabited by a race of immortals. Rev. xx. 4; Prov. ii. 22; Psa. xxxvii. 20-34; Matt. v. 5; Rev. xxi. 4.

IN another column will be found the obituary of Bro. D. F. Miller, formerly a member of the church in Plymouth. We remember him as being one of the faithful ones. We extend our sympathy to Sister Miller and family in their sorrow, and point them on to the glad morning when the broken families will be again united, nevermore to be separated. May it soon come.

As illustrative of the power alluded to by Paul in 2 Thess. ii. 3-9 it is interesting to note the terms in which Charles the Bold, Emperor of the West, complains of the sentence of deposition issued against him by the bishops in Council:—

"No one ought to have degraded me from the throne to which I was consecrated, until at least I had been heard by the bishops, through whose ministry I was consecrated, who are called the thrones of God, in which God sitteth, and by whom he dispenses his judgments; to whose paternal chastisement I was willing to submit, and do still submit myself."—Hallem's Europe.

BELIEVER, do you realize it,—God will be manifested in every overcomer, as he now is in Jesus, and this multitude with Jesus as the Chief, will constitute the ONE NAME which is to rule the kingdom and dominion, and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven throughout the Age to come—God will be all in all to them. Ex. iii. 13-15; vi. 8; John xvii. 20-26; iii. 5, 6; Psa. lxviii. 1-4; Zech. xiv. 9. What a destiny! No wonder the discipline is strict. No wonder we are exhorted to give earnest heed lest the things we have heard leak out, and peril to influence our lives and conduct. No wonder we are warned that only the pure in heart shall see God. No wonder we are exhorted, in view of the things we look for, to be diligent, that we may be found of him, (Jesus,) in peace, without spot and blameless.

BLACKWELL'S Introduction to the the Sacred Classics says the Hebrew is an original and essential language, that borrows of none, but lends to all; says some of the sharpest pagan writers, inveterate enemies to the religion and learning of both Jews and Christians, have allowed the Hebrew tongue to have a noble emphasis, and a close and beautiful brevity; says that the metaphors in that admirable book (the Hebrew Bible) are apposite and lively; they illustrate the truths expressed by them, and raise the admiration of the reader; says the names of men, animals, etc., are very significant. One word is often a good description, and gives you a satisfactory account of the chief and distinguishing property, or quality of the thing or person named. Pere Laing's Introduction to the Scriptures says:—"They can nowhere find so rich and inexhaustible a fund—all the foundations of true elegence, extraordinary actions, rich expressions, fine examples, apt comparisons, and striking figures are found in them in great abundance; and all those ornaments which give strength and dignity to discourse." While this is sublime and beautiful, the humble believer realizes something above and beyond all this; he has found what has made him wise unto salvation, through him the Anointed Jesus.

..."wages of sin" be "death" (Rom. vi. 23,) how can the punishment of sin be eternal life in misery?

If the mission of Christ be to destroy the devil (Heb. ii. 14,) and "the works of the devil," (1 John iii. 8,) how can the existence of sinners and of sin be never ending?

If it be recorded that "the Lord preserveth all them that love him; but all the wicked will he destroy, (Psa. cxlv. 20,) and that the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs; into smoke shall they consume away" (Psa. xxxvii. 20,) what right have any of the teachers to say that the wicked as well as the righteous will live forever?

Visions Cause Trouble.

The following item from a daily paper shows that all is not quite smooth in the camp of Ellen White's followers. Mr. Henry was instrumental in cutting down the "royalties" in money that had been paid to Mrs. White by the publishing board who issued her "Visions." Hence she must have more visions and denounce him.

"Battle Creek, Mich., May 19.—A. R. Henry, treasurer of the Seventh Day Adventists' publishing house here, was recently relieved from his position in consequence of visions or "inspired writings" by Mrs. Ellen G. White, now in Australia. Mr. Henry has brought suit to recover from the general conference damages of $50,000 for disseminating visions detrimental to his character."

The Question Drawer.

For T. M.:—There will be no difference between Christ and his saints as regards nature, but their rank will not be the same. The brethren of Christ reign as kings and priests unto God. Christ having all power given unto him, reigns as King of kings, Lord of lords—the supreme Ruler and High Priest upon his throne. That Christ being made better than the angels does not refer to nature is very evident. God is a spirit (John iv. 24,) Christ,—the last Adam was made a quickening Spirit. 1 Cor. xv. 45. Angels—"Who maketh his angels spirits." Heb. i. 7. From these testimonies it is evident that the angels, the Son, and the Father, are all one spirit substance; and the saints will partake of the same nature. It is testified of Jesus that he shall "change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself." Phil. iii. 21. Hence we are forced to the conclusion that the superiority of Christ to the angels, refers, not to nature, but rank or office. In this Christ is made superior to all—the Father alone excepted. He is before all things in rank. All power and authority is given unto him. From being made a little lower than the angels he is exalted far above all principalities and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named not only in this world, but also that which is to come. Eph. i. 21. See also Heb. i. 4, 7, 8; and 1 Cor. xv. 24, 25.

For J. D.:—If Christ's brethren are come out of Adam into him they are not thereby free from the effect of Adam's sin, the law of inherited mortality is still operating. We are only prospectively made alive, physically, although morally renewed.

For R. R. T.:—Paul preached "none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come." See Acts xxvi. 22. He also exhorts all men to be followers of him as he was of Christ. If we obey his injunction we cannot ignore the Old Testament Scriptures. Apart from them the New Testament is a sealed book. This should suggest to you why the religionists of the day are all at respecting the first principles of the gospel.

In answer to the request for a short article on the "New Jerusalem," "the Holy City" we submit the following:—A voice invited John to see the bride, the Lamb's wife. He first tells us that he saw her, and then goes on to tell us how he witnessed her descent out of heaven from God in the symbol of a city. He was in spirit, and from a high and great mountain he beheld the city. We understand that mountain to be the kingdom of God, which is frequently likened to a mountain in the Scriptures; as for instance in Is. ii. 2, 3 and Micah iv. 1, 2, "And the stone that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth." Dan. ii. 35. "And it shall come to pass in the last days that the mountain of shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills, and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob. There can be no question that the mountain referred to is the kingdom of God established on the ruins, and in that sense above the kingdoms of men. We think John was carried forward to that time, and saw from that mountain. We understand that John and the class he represents will be constituents of the New Jerusalem when it is appointed to rule the kingdom of God. He was shown it descending out of heaven from God to teach him and his brethren—to teach us, if we are his brethren—the origin of the municipality—that it came from heaven,—that its builder and maker is God," and Jesus the great Chief came from the "right hand of the Majesty in the heavens," to be its Foundation and Chief Corner Stone. From the above we understand that the Bride of Christ will be placed over, or be of the kingdom, subject only to the Bridegroom, who will be King of kings and Lord of lords. We see, too, the glory and beauty of the kingdom. Having been changed into spirit nature they are con-substantial with God. Nothing can surpass the glory of Spirit Substance: it is illustrated by the brightest symbolism—pure gold and precious stones. Language fails to describe the glory of the New Jerusalem, when she puts on her strength and her beautiful garments. Her light will be like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal,—will have no need of the natural sun and moon to lighten it;

THE RULING ELEMENT

THE GLORY OF GOD,

reflected by the Lamb—the sun of Righteousness will lighten it. Every atom of their substance will shine like a gem, as they reflect the glory of the Deity's unapproachable light. It will be enveloped in eternal day, for there shall be no night there." John saw no temple in it for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it; in other words of the Anointed One is the living temple in which God dwells by spirit. Then will the words of Jesus be realized, "I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in One." Jno. xvii. 23. The city had a wall with twelve gates and twelve foundations; at the gates were twelve angels, and on the gates were written the names of the twelve tribes of Israel. In the foundations of the wall are the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb. We see the meaning of this symbolism in the words of the Spirit, Eph. ii. 19-21, "Ye.....are fellow citizens with the saints and the household of God, and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ being the Chief Corner Stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth into a holy temple of the Lord.

THE CORPORATE BODY

For Our Children.

Little Foxes.

"Take us the foxes, the little foxes that spoil the vines, for our vines have tender grapes." Song of Solomon ii. 15.

Among my tender vines I spy
A little fox named "By me't by."

Then set upon him quick, I say,
The swift young hunter "Right away."

Around each tender vine I plant
I find the little fox "I can't."

Then fast as hunter ever ran,
Chase him with bold and brave "I can."

"No use in trying"—hips and whines
This fox among my tender vines.

Then drive him low and drive him high
With this good hunter named "I'll try."

Among the vines in my small lot
Creeps in the young fox "I forgot."

Then hunt him out and to his den
With "I will not forget again."

A little fox is hidden there
Among my vines named "I don't care."

Then let "I'm sorry," hunter true,
Chase him afar from vines and you.

OBITUARY.

D. F. Miller, the subject of this notice passed from life to quiet rest on April 27, 1897, near Englewood, Kan., after nearly four years of untold suffering with nervous prostration, la grippe set in, closing with quick consumption which ends with him the battle of life. His days and years all told were 55 years, 9 months and 5 days. He was born in Ohio; when but a boy he with his parents came to Indiana, settled in Marshall County. He was married to Catherine Kelver, whose parents live just west of Plymouth. To this union 5 children were born, who with a faithful mother were left to mourn. The family loses a faithful father, his brothers and sisters a cherished companion, the church a faithful witness. Many of the brethren in and around Plymouth will remember him. He commenced in early life to lay up treasures for the life beyond, was immersed by a Methodist minister, but after hearing the gospel of the kingdom he was re-immersed; but amid all of his religious journey never was known to falter. He died in full faith and hope of witnessing the great work of restitution, and sharing with all the faithful a crown of glory that will never fade away. We extend our sympathy to those lonely ones, and pray our kind Father to throw around them his loving arms of mercy and comfort them in this time of trouble. Let us all pray, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is heaven," when the curse will be removed, and man live again without pain. The inhabitants will never say, I am sick. May the time soon come.

Come Lord Jesus, come quickly.

I. S. MILLER.

No man can maintain himself in a position of great prominence suddenly thrust upon him unless by instinct and education he has been prepared for the responsibilities of the place. Nor can a man bear the strain of temptation in such circumstances, and in a position of trust and confidence unless his conscience has been educated and his sense of responsibility to others has become a rule of action in his daily life.—Once a Week.

Reason to Rejoice.

We wish to say to the brethren, scattered abroad, that Elder C. C. Ramsay of Philadelphia, whose visit to the Valley of Virginia was previously noticed in THE RESTITUTION, continued meetings at two points, for nearly two weeks, in the vicinity of Woodstock. At these meetings there was good attendance, and much interest; and, we sincerely hope the seed sown may yet bring a rich harvest. Bro. Ramsay is an earnest, faithful workman, deserving the esteem of all.

Last week he came to Fred'k Co. and held meetings from Thursday till Sunday evening, at our residence. We endeavored to get one of the houses of worship—the Methodist and Lutheran—in the little town Stephens City, near by, but were refused. There was fair attendance, and excellent attention to the words of truth spoken.

Russel Boyer, a son of brother John D. Boyer, came from where Bro. Ramsay had been preaching, a distance of twenty miles, to be baptized. The baptism was witnessed with much interest: some having never before seen a baptism. At the close of the last meeting Mrs. Anderson, of Winchester, confessed Christ, and will be baptized in the near future.

As Bro. Ramsay and wife were about to start for Philadelphia the gladdening news came, from Seven Fountains, Shenandoah Co., that two more willing souls had put on the sin-covering Name. They were baptized by Bro. B. F. Boyer, on the 16 inst. May the good work still go on.

In hope of life,

The Watcher on the Tower.

"What dost thou, lone watcher on the tower?
Is the day breaking?—comes the wished for hour?
Tell us the signs, and stretch abroad thy hand,
If the bright morning dawns upon the land."

"The stars are clear above me, scarcely one
Has dimmed its rays in reverence to the sun;
But yet I see on the horizon's verge,
Some fair, faint streaks; as if the light would surge."

"Look forth again, old watcher on the tower—
The people wake, and languish for the hour:
Long have they dwelt in darkness, and they pine
For the full daylight that they know must shine."

"I see not well— the morn is cloudy still;
There is a radiance on the distant hill—
Even as I watch the glory seems to glow:
But the stars blink, and the night breezes blow."

"And is that all, old watcher on the tower?
Look forth again, it must be near the hour.
Rest thou not see the snowy mountain copes,
And the green woods beneath them on the slopes?"

"A mist envelopes them; I cannot trace
Their outline; but the day comes on apace.
The clouds roll up in gold and amber flakes,
And all the stars grow dim. The morning breaks."

"We thank thee, lonely watcher on the tower!
But look again, and tell us hour by hour,
All thou beholdest; many of us die
Ere the day comes; oh, give them a reply!"

"I see the hill tops now; and lo! in clear
Crows his prophetic carol on my ear;
I see the distant woods and fields of corn,
And ocean gleaming in the light of morn."

"Again, again—oh, watcher on the tower—
We thirst for daylight, and we bide the hour,
Patient, but longing. Tell us, shall it be
A bright, calm, glorious daylight for the free?"

"I hope, but cannot tell. I hear a song,
Vivid as day itself; and clear and strong;
As of a lark—young prophet of the noon—
Pouring in sunlight his seraphic tune."

What doth he say, old watcher on the tower?
Is it prophet? Doth the dawning hour
Inspire his music? Is his chant sublime
With the full glories of the coming time?"

"It prophesies—his heart is full—his lay
Tells of the brightness of peaceful day!
A day not cloudless, nor yet void of storm.
But sunny for the most, and clear and warm."

"We thank thee, watcher on the lonely tower,
For all thou tellest. Sings he of an hour
When Error shall decay, and Truth grow strong—
When Right shall rule supreme, and vanquish Wrong?"

"He sings of brotherhood, and joy and peace;
Of days when jealousies and hate shall cease;
When war shall die, and Man's progressive mind
Soar as unfettered as its God designed."

"Well done! thou watcher on the lonely tower!
Is the day breaking? dawns the happy hour?
We pine to see it. Tell us yet again,
If the broad daylight breaks upon the plain?"

"It breaks—it comes—the misty shadows fly—
A rosy radiance gleams upon the sky;
The mountain tops reflect it calm and clear;
The plain is yet in shade; but day is near."

Sealed a Bogus Contract.

The existence of a bogus contract indicates that a genuine contract has preceded it, even as there could not be a bogus silver dollar unless a genuine one had preceded it. The strength of a contract is in the seal. Innocent people have sometimes been led by crafty men to sign and seal a bogus contract, being deceived by them as to the terms of the contract. When this is proven the contract is null and void.

God has entered into a covenant or contract with every one who will place their seal on it after learning the terms and subject-matter of the covenant, and signifying their intention to observe and do all that the contract requires.

With regard to this contract, blind guides have corrupted it, and many innocent people have been led by them to seal this bogus instrument, they supposing it to be God's genuine covenant.

THINGS COVENANTED.

The true covenant was first made with Abraham, "Now the Lord said unto Abraham, get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee; and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing; and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." Gen. xii. 1-3.

"And I will establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee. I will give unto thee and to thy seed after thee; the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God." Gen. xvii. 4-8.

It will be noticed that this covenant is made between God, as the party of the first part, and Abraham and his seed as the party of the second part.

Who is the "Seed?" See Gal. iii. 16. "Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, and to seeds as of many; but as of one, and to thy Seed, which is Christ."

THE SEAL.

God required Abraham to use the seal as a token of the covenant. See Gen. xvii. 10, 11. "This is my covenant, which ye shall keep, between me and you and thy seed after thee. Every man child among you shall be circumcised. And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin, and it shall be for a token (sign or seal) of the covenant betwixt me and you."

See Rom. iv. 11, "And he received the sign of circumcision, a SEAL of the righteousness of the faith (or covenant) which he had, yet being uncircumcised: that he might be the father of all them that believe," the same covenant.

What is the condition of those who do not ratify or seal this covenant made to Abraham and his Seed? See Eph. ii. 12. "At that time ye were without Christ being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world." Hence we see the necessity of sealing the genuine covenant or contract.

WHAT SEAL SHALL WE USE?

See Col. ii. 10-12, "And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power, in whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh, by the circumcision of Christ; buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead."

Christ is one of the parties of the second part, to the covenant, and he ordains that we shall also be "circumcised with the circumcision made without hands," "the circumcision of Christ; buried with him in baptism," by which act we put "off the body of the sins of the flesh."

As we have seen that "strangers from the covenants of promise," have "no hope" it is perfectly foolhardy to place confidence in any other covenant or contract.

As Abraham's covenant would have been null and void if he had refused to affix the "token," "sign" or "seal" of circumcision, so our knowledge of the covenant will do us no good unless we apply "the circumcision of Christ; buried with him in baptism." And also to seal a contract being in ignorance of the contract is null and void. No contract is valid unless it is understood.

The same thought is in Gal. iii. "And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."

Who are Christ's? First comes faith, (verse 26) and next, (verse 27) "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ (seal of circumcision of Christ) have put on Christ." Having accomplished this, we become "Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise," made unto Abraham. If we neglect to "put on Christ," we are not "Abraham's seed," and are not "heirs according to the promise."

There is a bogus contract which promises a sky-kingdom for never-dying souls.

"A never dying soul to save
And fit it for the sky."

Abraham knew nothing about this contract. God never made any promise of a sky-inheritance to him.

He said: "All the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed forever.....Arise and walk through the land in the length of it, and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee." Gen. xiii. 14-17.

Such language is foreign to a sky-inheritance. To such a contract God is not the party of the first part. If there is a party of the first part to that covenant at all, it must be the devil, who said: "Thou shalt not surely die." To those who seal the bogus sky-inheritance contract, they must look to the devil for its realization, seeing that God is no party to it at all.

It is passing strange to me that many who have come to a knowledge of the Abrahamic covenant, and reject the devil-paganized covenant, which they formerly believed and sealed by baptism; yet they persistently refuse to seal the Abrahamic contract, but seek to transfer the seal they affixed to the covenant which promised a sky-kingdom for immortal souls, trusting that God will accept the seal of the bogus in place of the true covenant.

In civil matters where dollars and cents are involved, these same parties would have no confidence in such a procedure.

They know very well that their seal and signature to a bogus contract would not give them the things contracted for. And yet they expect God to give them the things promised in the true covenant on the strength of a seal they placed on a bogus contract.

How foolish to laxly act toward a contract which far transcends in importance every civil contract made between men. The time draws near when the contractors will receive the things they have contracted for, as the parties of the second part. It is folly to suppose that God will deal laxly with his covenants.

Those who expect that God will give them the things promised in his covenant which they persistently refuse to ratify, will find to their great sorrow, that God will not deal fast and loose with his contract.

Christian Reward.

"After these things the Word of the Lord came unto Abram, in a vision saying, Fear not Abram I am thy shield and thy exceeding great reward." Gen. xv. 1.

O, what a blessed promise, that we who are the children of Abraham can have a reward also. "For him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward." Prov. xi. 18. Dear brothers and sisters, let us be found among the righteous. We may find sorrow, persecution and trials along our way, which some of us have had during a few weeks past. "Rejoice and be exceeding glad for great is your reward in heaven, for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you." Matt. v. 12. We must expect tribulation, for by this we know we are the children of God and the followers of our Master. We must work, yes, strive for him, so let each and every one take up their cross and follow him. "For he that taketh not his cross and followeth after me is not worthy of me." Matt. x. 38. O, brothers and sisters, may that be not said of us, but "let us fight with the whole armor of God that we may be able to withstand in the evil day." Eph. vi. 13. Let us be brothers and sisters in actions and not by words alone. May our tongue be not full of deadly poison, for where there is such poison there is envying, strife, confusion, and evil works. James iii. 16. Speak not evil one of another, brethren, "He that speaketh evil of his brother and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law and judgeth the law, but if thou judge the law thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge." Jam. iv. 16. Dear brothers, has the time come for us to judge, I think not. The judging is yet in the future. So let us wait and not be too hasty in judging our brothers and sisters. We might judge wrong, therefore condemn ourselves in the sight of God. Do we remember the commandment our dear Master left for us, "That ye love one another as I have loved you?" Did he show his love to his disciples by malice, guile, envying and evil speaking one to another? O, no, he had no time to lose in that kind of work. And now, dear brothers and sisters, is not the time almost here for his second coming, have we got time to lose in such evil work? "Behold I come quickly, hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." Rev. iii. 11. Let us be careful not to lose our crown, let us strive more earnestly and more faithful this coming month for the kingdom than we have done in the past, then when our final work has been done that we can have assurance with Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day." 2 Tim. iv. 8. "And now, whatsoever ye do, do it kindly as to the Lord, and not unto men, knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance." Col. iii. 23, 24. "Behold, I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." Rev. xxii. 12. Dear brothers and sisters, let us live faithful, to meet one another in the kingdom of God.

Your Sister in hope,

SARAH SELLECK.

Dear Readers of The Restitution:

You will recollect that some time since Bro. Wilson gave an exposition of the woman and her son of Rev. xii.; showing that the woman represented the Christian church; and her son represented the overcomers of Rev. ii. 26; iii. 21. I was highly delighted with Bro. Wilson's exposition, but regretted that he did not go as far in his exposition as the Revelator did in his delineation. The Revelator saw the woman go into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand two hundred and three score days. Now the conclusion that I draw from the Revelator's testimony is this. If the woman represents the Christian church, there must be something wrong or lacking with the woman that was not wrong or lacking with her son; else she would not have been left behind when her son was caught away. Now we know that there are thousands in the so-called Christian church that have never been "born of water" which is so very essential to an entrance into the kingdom of God. It seems to me that this is the one thing lacking with the woman when her son was caught up to God and to his throne. The woman then goes into the wilderness and is fed, or nourished there 1260 days. In the wilderness certainly would be a good place, and 1260 days sufficient time for her to reflect on the cause of her being left behind to go into the great tribulation and to be baptized for the remission of her sins.

My attention has also been called to Rev. vii. 9, as a solution of this same problem. The Revelator sees an innumerable multitude standing "before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands." 15 v. "These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." 15 v. "Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple." I am fully satisfied that none, not even one shall get into the kingdom of God, who has not been "born of water," as the Savior said John iii. 5. There is no proof that even the thief on the cross had ever been "born of water," nor did the Savior tell him he should be with him in the kingdom. Christ would not go back on his own word; he only promised him Paradise, which certainly is not the kingdom.

In referring to the Diaglott, I see that the word kingdom is translated from Basileia. Then referring to the Greek Lexicon, I find that Basileia means sovereign rule; royalty; government; a diadem.

In illustration I will say, that Queen Victoria of England is the only one in the United Kingdom that is in possession of royalty. The Prince of Wales is only an heir to royalty. So of the kingdom of God; it is only the few; the elect of the elect who will attain to royalty. "Many will be called but few chosen."

Submitted for your consideration,

DANIEL HOWARD.

The "Heavens."

Are symbolic of the civil and spiritual rulers of the Earth and Habitable. Although the saints are promised power over the nations, to rule them,—to sit with Christ in the heavenlies, or as the prophet says, "Ride upon the High Places of the Earth," the present heavens are closed against them. They have to wait till the time for the present occupants, the principalities and powers, the rulers of the darkness of this age,—the Satan, which is sin in official manifestation, and holds the power and glory of the world's dominions, and occupies the present heavenly places, is doomed. Jesus in the vision of the future said, "I beheld the Satan, as it were lightning fall out of heaven." This is by means of one stronger than he,—the Lion of the tribe of Judah, to whom all power is given. His strength is sufficient to make an opening in the heavens and cast down the throne and take to himself his great power and reign King over all the earth, when the kingdoms of this earth will be his, and we as the members of his body will sit with him on his throne; having suffered with him we shall reign with him. As Paul says, "The world (or age) to come is to be put in subjection to Christ and his saints. "The devil occupies the heavens at present. The world lies under the power of Evil. The God of this world reigns. That stone cut out of the mountain without hands will by and by do the work. This is graphically set forth in the temptation of our Savior. The devil taking him up into a high mountain showed him all the kingdom of the world in a moment of time, and said unto him, "All this power will I give thee, and the glory of them (that is the glory of the kingdoms) for that is delivered unto me and to whomsoever I will give it. If therefore thou wilt fall down and worship me, all shall be thine. But Jesus said, it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and him only shalt thou serve."

J. O. WOODRUFF.

"We Never Studied the Bible Before."

This very significant and honest confession made by a school professor and his wife, we find in Messiah's Advocate of March 1,—"Mrs. T. joins with me in saying we never studied the Bible before; reading it a dozen times is not studying it." O, how many could say as much and tell the truth. When the light of life through Christ flashes across our darkened minds, then it is we have found a pearl of great price, and a new world is opened to us, and we can see clearly that our former lazy, haphazard way of reading the Bible a chapter now and then promiscuously was all in vain—was not studying it." To study the Bible one must do very much as they would do to study other books,—apply their minds closely to the subject in hand, hunt up the meaning of the words used to convey ideas; then compare one testimony with another until we can reach a conclusion, very much as a judge or jury would do when they do their duty. No man or woman can be a scholar if they treat their studies as most all people treat the Bible. The cares of this world, and the deceptive riches, and the ways and fashions of this degenerate age has been allowed to creep in, and steal away the affections, causing the interest to grow cold and indifferent, and we pine away and die, much as we would if we refuse or neglect to eat proper and healthful food. Many claim to be Christians who were never known to study their Bibles, hence they can know but little about God and his beloved Son, and the truth and plan of salvation which frees from ignorance, sin and death. Paul told Timothy to study. Jesus told the Jews to search the Scriptures. Peter told the brethren to add to this faith, virtue and knowledge, and to grow in grace and in knowledge, and thus gain an entrance into the everlasting kingdom.

Selected.

Dear Brother Underwood:

The following selections from D. L. Moody's Bible Class in the May Number of The Ladies Home Journal are so good and timely that I have been tempted to copy them thinking them highly appropriate for the columns of our Bible teacher. Mr. Moody does not always rightly divide the Word of truth, but frequently he says what ought to awaken thought, and he says it with a force that will open ears. Our faith should be in that for which we hope, and our hope should be the inheritance to be given to the faithful in the ages to come according to the promises. God has not left us blind and in the dark, but our faith is of knowledge and light, if we believe as he instructs.

Your Brother in the one faith,

J. G. HAUPT.

THE MAGIC POWER OF LIFE.

"A man once told me that it was absurd to say that a man's actions were affected by his belief. He confessed, however, in a few moments, that he would flee from the building in which we were conversing if some one, whom he believed, should tell him that the place was on fire. A man's life is entirely affected by what he believes. His faith is the magic power of his life. It is an all-important matter, then, to look well to whom you believe. Sincerity in believing what is a lie will not make it a truth. It is utter nonsense to say that if we are only in earnest it is all right. God has given the world a revelation of his salvation, and he will not hold a man guiltless who despises his Word and tries to substitute earnestness in what he likes to believe for what he has been taught to be true."

FAITH IN ALL WORLDLY THINGS.

"In New York harbor lie two steamers tied side by side at their respective wharves—the one a beautifully-fitted boat with every luxury that modern invention and skill can devise; the other a less attractive boat, perhaps a little old-fashioned, but, nevertheless, a well-tested, seaworthy boat. The first is destined for some port upon Long Island Sound, but the second boat for some distant port to which I want to go. Now, suppose I should reason, as many a young person does, and embark upon the Sound boat, and trust to my earnestness to bring me to the desired haven. As I leave the port I enquire of an officer when I may expect to arrive across the ocean. "Why, you are on the wrong boat," he would say. "We do not cross the ocean. We are built only for the coast service." "But I believe in you, and in spite of what people have told me I am so much in earnest that you must land me in Europe." You would say that I was a fool, and rightly, too. And yet this is exactly what people are doing. Their faith and earnestness in some worldly pursuit will never bring them to their desired haven, be their surroundings ever so much to their taste.

Some people have faith in a minister. That is good if it brings them to have faith in a higher power. I have known others whose faith was all in some visible form of the church or in some special congregation. Others there are whose faith is all in some outward symbols and ceremonies. But a time comes in every life when all human expedients are vain, and outward forms, and human ties themselves, may fail us. When the tempest of bereavement beats upon the soul there is need, sore need, of a sure and unfailing anchorage."

AN OUTWARD LOOK, NOT AN INWARD VIEW.

"When first entering Christian work my one ambition was to be a man of faith. I prayed for faith; I worked for faith; I fasted for faith. All the useful men I had ever heard of had been men of faith, and I realized that it was a necessity for any one who was to devote his life to God's service. I looked for some wonderful, miraculous gift that should come to me. One day I was reading the Epistle to the Romans when I came to the verse: "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." That one passage gives the only direction for receiving faith in Christ, and that is simply by reading about him. Faith is not some mysterious feeling that we discover within ourselves, but simply the result of knowing Christ both through the Scriptures and in our lives. Faith is an outward look and not an inward view. It is important to examine the nature of faith, but it is all-important to study the object of faith.

Many people complain that they are unable to believe what they cannot see, and do not realize that, even in making the statement, they contradict themselves. Faith that requires proof isn't faith at all. To believe a person or a truth implies that by experience we do not know it or cannot understand it, but accept it on the statement of another. I am not a chemist, and I do not know anything about the results of certain drugs upon my body. Yet if I should be advised to take a certain medicine I would have to depend fully upon the wisdom of the man from whom I bought it. I would have to exercise faith in him. If, however, I had been trained in the business, and could assure myself of the purity of every ingredient of the prescription, I would then have no need to exercise my faith, for I would then know and see. And so faith is simply believing in God, and, acting upon one's trust in him, appropriate his blessings individually."

TEMPTATIONS AND ERRORS SURROUND US.

"I believe that there has never been a time in our history when there has been so great a need of simple faith upon the part of the church. Temptations surround us, and the most subtle errors and philosophies are continually coming up. But let a man build wisely upon the Rock of Ages and his life will never be a failure. The shifting sands of human error offer a poor holding for even the short season of a human life, but God's promises are unfailing, and his mercy endureth forever. Sometimes I tremble in my weakness, but the Rock upon which I stand remains eternally immovable.

"Have faith in God, press near his side—
Thy troubled soul trust him to guide;
In life, in death, whate'er betide,
Have faith, have faith in God."

Announcement.

The annual meeting of the Church of God at Scholls, Oregon, will begin on Friday, June 11th, and will continue over the following Sunday.

Brethren coming from a distance will please notify us and they will be met with conveyances at the National Hotel in Portland, at 1 o'clock Friday, June 11th.

We extend an invitation to all lovers of truth. We will be glad to meet with you all. Brethren, let us be up and doing for the time is short. Let us work for the Master while it is yet day; for the night is coming wherein no man works. Come, all that can, and let us have a joyous reunion.

FLOYD LAWRENCE, Sec'y.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana will be held at the Antioch Meeting-house five miles south of Plymouth, commencing on Friday evening June 11, 1897, at 7:30 o'clock, and continuing over the following Sunday. We extend a cordial invitation to all the brethren of like precious faith and all others who so desire, to come and be with us and help forward the cause of the Master. Come with hearts full of love for the cause and for each other, and let every one do his duty and our heavenly Father will reward our efforts. It has been suggested that all who can and desire, bring enough provision on Saturday and Sunday, and remain at the church until after the night meeting. Come and let us enjoy one more good meeting at old Antioch.

J. F. WAGONER, Pres.
A. C. ROBERTS, Sec.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God, in Michigan, will be held (D. V.) at Dutton, Kent County, commencing Thursday evening, June 3, 1897, and continue over the following Sunday. All of like precious faith are cordially invited. Brethren, all that possibly can "come." The Dutton brethren have a fine place of worship and extend a hearty invitation to all, and we can be assured of a good meeting. Let us show them our appreciation by our presence. Dutton is situated on the Michigan Central Rail Road, ten miles southeast of Grand Rapids. Those coming from the south or southwest stop at Carlisle on the G. R. I. & R. R. Those who stop at Carlisle will please to notify the President H. C. Hammond of Dutton, Michigan.

EMMA JACKMAN, Sec.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Dunbar School House in Furnas County, ten miles south of Arapahoe, commencing on Friday, June 11th, and holding over Sunday. We request all the brothers and sisters, who can possibly do so, to be present at this meeting. Come to learn more of the Master's will, to receive encouragement, and to encourage others to forget those things which are behind, to reach forth unto those things which are before, and to press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Each church in the State is requested to send its vote as to when the next Annual Conference shall be held, to the State secretary by the 5th of June.

Submitted in love,

Discussion.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce that there will be a four-days discussion between a Christian (Campbellite) minister and myself, commencing June 28, 1897, ten miles west of Shawnee, Pott Co., Okla., at the Ray School-house.

He affirms that, "The Kingdom of Christ was set up on the first Pentecost after his ascension." I deny.

I affirm that "The Kingdom of Christ will be set up, or established, at his coming." I am confined to the King James Version. The kingdom question is all he will discuss with me. Their ministers here seem to not want to discuss any other questions with us. This is the same man that I held a discussion with last year, and he says that I beat him but not in a fair way. Pray for me, that with the help of the Almighty God, that I may use the Sword of the Spirit on him freely.

M. L. ADAMS.

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy

Through Buffet Sleeping Car to Mackinaw, Mich.

Commencing June 21st, the Vandalia Line will resume through Pullman Buffet Sleeping Car service between St. Louis and Mackinaw. Sleepers will run via Terre Haute, St. Joseph, Grand Rapids and Petoskey-Bay View. This will be the only line of through cars from St. Louis to the delightful and cool resorts of Michigan. South-bound the last sleeping car for the season will leave Mackinaw Sunday night, September 26th, 1897. For detailed information, address nearest Vandalia Line Agent, or E. A. Ford, General Passenger Agent, St. Louis.—June 30.

A Pretty Resort.—Winona Assembly Grounds, Eagle Lake, Ind., on Pennsylvania Lines.

A sojourn at Winona Assembly Grounds at Eagle Lake, Ind., near Warsaw, on the Fort Wayne Route, will prove a pleasant outing. This delightful resort is the site of the youngest of the Chautauqua assemblies, and its attractions combine facilities for recreation, entertainment, instruction and devotion.

Eagle Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, surrounded by several hundred acres of romantic woodland which covers one stretch of nearly two miles. The lake affords opportunity for aquatic pastimes, the boating, bathing, and fishing being excellent. In addition to numerous rowboats there are several pleasure steamers on the lake.

The shady grounds are occupied by many pretty cottages and summer homes of persons who annually enjoy the beauties of the place, strengthening body in the invigorating atmosphere and enriching the mind by the special advantages the summer school offers.

A fine park has been laid out on the shore of the lake. A large auditorium, amphitheatre, college halls, hotels and restaurant have also been constructed on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. There is also a race track and space set aside for out-door athletic sports.

In addition to the Presbyterian General Assembly which will be in session on the Assembly Grounds from May 20th to June 2nd, a number of other large meetings will be held on the grounds during the summer of 1897, including the Indiana State Sunday School Convention, Western Association of Writers, Indiana State W. C. T. U., Indiana Y. M. C. A. Encampment, National Medical Society, Boys' Brigade, and Indiana State Christian Endeavor Convention.

Excursion tickets to Eagle Lake will be on sale via Pennsylvania Lines during the summer season. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be ascertained by addressing the nearest Passenger or Ticket Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines, or by applying to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Full information concerning the Assembly and Summer School, cost of entertainment, etc., may be secured upon application to Secretary Sol. C. Dickey, Eagle Lake, Ind.—June 19.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $4 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

An Artistic Brochure entitled "Summer Outings" is published by the Nickel Plate Road describing vacation resorts along that line. Address B. F. Horner, General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, Ohio., for a copy.—July 15.

Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price, 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. This clearly sets forth the idea that the "Coming Nation" will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 26 pages, price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

WHERE DO THE DEAD SLEEP?

These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract, 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

HADES.

A Bible account of this place, with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

DEATH COMPARED TO A SLEEP.

This represents death as a sleep, and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those searching for truth. 16 pages, 5 cents each.

QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS, AND THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 36 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Hell and kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

A PARABOLIC BATTLE-FIELD, OR ELIHOTT'S WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 82 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Addie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Poetry.

Doubt Not.

"When the day of life is dreary,
And when gloom thy course enshrouds—
When thy steps are faint and weary,
And thy spirit dark with clouds,
Stedfast still in thy well doing,
Let thy soul forget the past—
Stedfast still the right pursuing,
Doubt not joy shall come at last."

Communicated.

A Word of Exhortation.

In our love feast let us remember that we do not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. Deut. viii. 3; Matt. iv. 4. So let us feast upon the Word of God most bountifully: let us think often upon his dear name so wonderfully great to us. Psa. xcix. 3. Whose name alone is Jehovah. Psa. lxxxiii. 18. Blessed be his glorious name forever and forever more. Psa. lxxii. 19. Let the righteous be glad, let them rejoice before God, yea, let them exceedingly rejoice; sing unto God, sing praises to his name; extol him that rideth upon the heavens by his name Jah, and rejoice before him. Psa. lxviii. 3, 4. For his mercy endureth forever. Psa. cvi. 1. Again, not unto us O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory for thy mercy, for thy truth sake. Psa. cxv. 1.

THY TRUTH.

Let us feast upon the Word by which we learn thy truth. John viii. 46; xviii. 17, let us love the truth and peace. Zech. viii. 19. Let us love the salvation of the Lord. Psa. xl. 16. Psa. lxx. 4, In thought. Psa. xlix. 9, In Word. Psa. xl. 9, In deed. Rom. xv. 18; 1 John iii. 18. Let us know the whole gospel truth. Mark xvi. 15, 16; Acts viii. 12. Let us not see how little it takes to save us, but let us first know all that is essential to our immersion, and then believe and obey it, and then struggle to overcome that no man take our crown. Rev. iii. 11, That when our course is run, it may be said of us like Paul of old, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course. I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them that love his appearing." 2 Tim. iv. 6, 7, 8.

HIS MERCY.

Let us feast upon his great mercy so wonderfully large to us, in all our ways of life, and let us feast most bountifully in this direction, that we may improve upon every opportunity granted to us, for, we may turn our steps which way we will God's most wonderful mercy is all around us; has created the earth for us to live upon; has created the sun to give us light by day, and the moon and stars to give us light by night; and has added all the necessaries of life to make life useful and obedient, and has not left us in darkness; but has made known unto us his great plan of salvation, whereby we may be able to escape his wrath, and through a resurrection of the dead be worthy to stand before the Son of Man. Luke xxi. 36; 1 Cor. xv. 42, 43, 44; Rom. viii. 23; Phil. iii. 11; and join in that glorious song of the redeemed. Rev. v. 9, 10, To share in the future great restitution. Acts iii. 21. To prepare earth and man for the great blessing of all nations of the earth. Gen. xii. 3; Gal. iii. 8.

INCORRUPTIBILITY.

Let us also feast largely upon this great reward as being the very thing which we do stand so much in need of, all essential to an unending state of existence, and the Greek word is uncorruptible, beyond the reach of corruption, and when we come to understand an incorruptible nature by the light of revelation, and enter into its meaning more fully, that we can have a nature that cannot be corrupted, or racked to pieces, or suffer in the very least degree with pains of any kind, and sickness and disease of all kinds, and where death itself cannot come, and can bid defiance to any of the above frail ties of which this life is so full, and cry out shout victory over them all, this above all is just what we need, and can but exclaim that great is our God who knows just what to give to the truly overcomer. Rev. iii. 21.

IMMORTALITY.

Let us also feast upon this most wonderful and precious reward of immortality, which once obtained can never again be mortal, subject to death, neither indeed, would we want to be. This most precious boon do we long after, would to God that it were here now, yet, in his own good do we with patience wait for it, willing to be tried that we might obtain it. The Greek word for immortality is always enduring, not subject to death, as it is stated in 1 Cor. xv. 52, 53, which has direct reference to righteous living saints at the second coming of our Lord, at which time both the righteous dead and living saints will be changed in a moment, in the twinkle of an eye, and be caught away to meet the Lord in the air. 1 Cor. xv. 52; 1 Thess. iv. 17.

THE CROWN.

Let us also feast upon this highly exalted and much loved reward, that if faithful and worthy, will be placed upon our brow. Then in view of it, let us truly struggle with might and main to be truly an overcomer, to be crown jewels fit for the Master's use, that we may with pride obtain this incorruptible crown, and we prize it the more highly when we come to know that there is no such crown offered any where else, and these greatest things, we do most earnestly seek to know, and long to share the future reign with our Lord and only Savior Jesus, the Anointed Messiah, and to help him to execute judgment and justice in the earth, such as never yet has been done, and to learn the whole world the right way of the Lord, hence in view of it we pray, Father hasten the glorious time when thy saints shall be exalted to wear the crown upon their brow, and thy will on earth be done.

THE GLORY.

Let us also feast largely upon this most wonderful glory that the saints are to share, and to shine in this unfading crown of glory. All the good things that God has promised are remarkably good, but this one crowns them all, for the Apostle Paul says in 2 Cor. iv. 17, for our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory, so that according to this testimony, this reward far exceeds all the rest; hence we long for the time to come when the saints shall share, and shine in this their most wonderful and transcendant glory as it shall then dawn upon earth, and all created things.

THE HONOR.

Let us never forget to feast largely upon this honor, especially an honor that is so great that is promised to the faithful and truly overcomer. This highly and exalted honor will go hand in hand with each and every reward as well as with the free gift, however great each reward will be, so great will the honor be. Then let us always remember that at the reception of the above four rewards will the honor four times be given, and when we come to realize these things we are led to say like they that sing the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, great and marvelous are thy works Lord God Almighty, just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints. Rev. xv. 3.

THE FREE GIFTS.

Last though not least, let us feast quite largely upon this free gift of eternal life, and over and above all the other rewards comes the gift of God, and it seems not enough that all those exceeding great and precious rewards, which are to be given to the true child of God, but he is going to add still greater the free gift of eternal life. Some think that is not a reward of merit, we do not have to struggle to obtain, for Jesus says in John x. 27, 28, "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me, and I give unto them eternal life." And also in Rom. vi. 23, the gift of God is eternal life. A gift is always free, and never have known a gift to be otherwise; so whatever our heavenly Father promises to give he does not charge for it, hence it is free.

OUR OTHER DUTIES.

Now comes our other duties and casting a very wistful eye of faith over these great rewards, which God is holding out to the meek and lowly, to the tried and worthy ones in Jesus' name, and realizing to some extent, at least, our great need of them, and that they are exactly the very things that we do stand so much in need of and realizing the great responsibility resting down upon his servants, we often ask ourselves, what is our whole duty? And at the same time realizing our own weakness, and short comings, and misgivings, and proneness to wander in our heavenly Father's sight, and knowing at the same time we cannot depend upon these foolish things, no, not in the very least, we therefore hasten to thy Word and learn there our whole duty by searching its pages through, which is love to God and love to man, and look well to ourselves that we overcome our own evil temper, that we bring it into complete subjection to thy will, and wherein we do not flee at once to the throne of mercy in Jesus' name, acknowledging that we have sinned, and crave thy pardon that we may stand justified in thy sight, that we also overcome the lust of the eye, the lust of the flesh, and the pride of life, that we build each other up in the most holy faith by comforting words and to help the weak and fallen brother or sister that they may arise and cheer the weak and faint-hearted, that we will not let sin reign in our mortal bodies, that we will mortify the deeds of the body through obedience to the truth, and even remember the new law, that the very thought of foulness is sin. Prov. xxiv. 9, and that we [illegible] glory in tribulation, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience experience, and experience hope, and hope maketh not ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit which is given unto us. Rom. v. 3, 5.

Transfiguration.

Dear Restitution:

We find Jesus talking to his disciples, tells them, "Verily, I say unto you, there be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom." Matt. xvi. 28. And then we find in chapter xvi. 1-2, "And after six days Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart, and was transfigured before them: and his face did shine as the sun, and his raiment was white as the light." And now we hear Peter say, "For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye-witnesses of his majesty, for he received from God the Father, honor and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount." 2 Pet. i. 16-18. And then we find it says, "As they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them saying, Tell the vision to no man, until the Son of Man be risen again from the dead." Matt. xvii. 9. Now, if Jesus took his kingdom at that time, he took it before he was crucified. But, "He chargeth them to tell the vision to no man." So if it was a vision it cannot be a reality, for anything visionary is imaginary. I believe it was a type of "Christ coming in power and great glory, to set up his kingdom," at some future time. Daniel says, "I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom that all people, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed." viii. 13-14. So we find that Daniel saw visions as well as the Apostles. Daniel saw in a vision, Jesus coming to take his kingdom; and the Apostles saw him in a vision, as he would appear in his kingdom. Dear brother and sister in the faith, don't it look very much as though the time was near at hand when the Savior would come to take his kingdom? Just think of the distress of nations at the present time, with "Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." Luke xxi. 26. Now let us remember the parable of the fig tree and all the other trees, that Jesus spoke of, saying, "When they now shoot forth, ye see and know of your own selves that summer is now nigh at hand. So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." Luke xxi. 29-31. And in verse 33 Jesus says, "Heaven and earth shall pass away: but my words shall not pass away."

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I am sorry to have got behind in my subscription, but will renew it now as I know you need the money to carry on your most valuable paper, which I would not like to do without, it is a great source of comfort to me. It is so cheering to hear from all the dear brothers and sisters telling of their joys and sorrows, and of the blessed hopes of the future that are kept in store for all those that love and obey his commands. I am striving in my weak way to be worthy of an entrance into that rest prepared for [illegible] appearing and [illegible] interest in all your prayers that I may be found faithful and meet you all in his coming kingdom, where there will be no more parting.

May this be all our happy lot is the prayer of your Sister in Christ,

MRS. MAGGIE FAREWELL.

To the Household of Faith:

As I have never written to THE RESTITUTION I will drop a few lines, as I felt like saying something for my Master, as it will not be long before the Savior will be here to rule this sin-cursed earth. Are we ready to receive the prize? If not, let us be up and doing, striving for that kingdom which is to be set up on this earth. We will not have long to work, and there is nothing in this world to grasp after. Let us strive for our eternal life. Though trials and temptations are many let us stand firm as our Master did; and who is he that would harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good? But and if ye suffer for righteousness sake, happy are ye and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled." 1 Pet. iii. 13-14. Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering, for he is faithful that promised. I thought you would like to hear how our Sunday school is prospering here in Freedom, Kansas. The regular attendance is from 15 to 25. The superintendent is Bro. Jason Welton, who is not ashamed of the works of God. The school is divided into three classes. The teacher of the Bible class is Bro. Gamble; he is able to teach the truths taught in the Bible. Sister Sarah Selleck is teacher of intermediate class. We are all working in the noble way, hoping we will all prove faithful unto the end, God bless all the brothers and sisters that they may receive a crown of life when Jesus comes to reward those who have kept the faith and have overcome all worldly temptations.

Your Sister looking for the soon coming King,

FLORENCE SELLECK, S. S. Sec.

Dear Restitution:

I have not written anything to the paper for some time, and have read so many good articles in it, and especially the last two articles of W. H. Wilson. Oh, he makes his arguments so plain. I don't see why the people that are so deep in error do not see such clear Bible truths as those. I was out to the Disciple or Christian prayer and social meeting last night, and they gave me a chance to read some Scriptures, and as the subject was virtue and obedience, and so they had shown that if the Christian lived according to the commandments of God, they had read 2 Pet. i. 5-11 and I went back to Gen. xii. 1, 2, 3, 7, to show what that everlasting kingdom would be and what it should be, and Gen. xiii. 14-18; Gen. xviii. 18; xvii. 4-8; xxii. 15-18; Gen. xxvi. 3-4; Gal. iii. 8, 16, 17, 18, 29; Rom. iv. 13; Rev. i. 5, 6, 7; Rev. xx. 6; Matt. v. 5; Rev. v. 9; ii. 25, 26, 27; iii. 21; xi. 15-18. I offered the above Scriptures to prove that man does not go to Paradise or heaven at death, or at any other time; and also to prove that none will get their reward until Christ comes and brings it. "And behold, I come quickly and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." Rev. xxii. 12. It looks like throwing pearl before swine to offer Scripture to people that will not look, or try to inform themselves; but dear brothers and sisters in the one faith, let us live faithful till death, and we will get a crown of life that fadeth not away, or live faithful till he comes and changes our vile being and fashion it like his glorious body.

DR. J. A. THURMAN.

Dear Restitution:

As we have waited to see how many of the brothers and sisters of our vicinity would write, we thought we would write a few lines in remembrance of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Have we favor with him, and in truth now as the Savior said, John xv. 2, "Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away, and every branch that beareth fruit he purgeth it that it may bring forth more fruit." Now, brothers and sisters, let us grow in faith, that in well doing we may be purged, in our well-doing show to the world that we are in the true vine that brings forth good fruit. But again in Matt. xv. 13, "But he did not say every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up." Then brothers and sisters, let us go on to perfection that we may be found watching and waiting for that good Shepherd that takes the good from the bad; be ye ready, waiting and watching, that ye be not overtaken in darkness. And again, don't Peter tell us what kind of persons we ought to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hastening unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved and the elements shall melt with fervent heat. 2 Pet. iii. 12. Yes, brothers and sisters, knowing all these things what kind of persons ought we to be in all our conversation is it not enough for us who are looking for these things to be up and doing, for the time is short, and we know not the day nor the hour when the Master comes. Then brothers and sisters, let not our time be spent in idleness, let us go on to perfection and be ready when he does appear. We ask the prayers of all our brothers and sisters. May God bless you all is our prayer. Amen.

Yours in love, looking for the soon coming Savior,

A. I. & M. E. CHITSEN.

To the Brethren and Sisters that are scattered abroad:

What a blessed hope we have in times of trouble, to look forward to the coming of Christ our Savior. Although we have trials and temptations we must look to our Savior who knows the thoughts and intents of the heart. It is through much tribulation we enter the kingdom. Let us set our affections on things above, not on things on the earth, so when Christ who is our life shall appear then shall we also appear with him in glory. Let us put on the whole armor of God, and have our feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace, and take the helmet of salvation, and the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God and press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus, who shall change our vile bodies that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body. Yes, that we may approve of things that are excellent, let nothing be done through strife nor vain glory. Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another; but in lowliness of mind each esteem others better than ourselves, for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do that which is good and acceptable in the sight of God. I pray that we in our weak way may so live by the help of God, who is rich in mercy, as to gain a home in the kingdom when Jesus comes to reward his servants, is the prayer of a Sister in the one hope,

MRS. LEMUEL HAMMOND.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I would like to say to the brethren scattered abroad that there is a splendid opening here at Sherman, Texas, for the spread of the truth. If an able brother would come here he could get a good hearing, and good work can be accomplished.

Very truly,

A. D. WOODROW.

Dear Restitution:

This lovely morning I thought I would write you to let you know that I am still striving to gain an inheritance in the kingdom soon to be established on the earth, and I hope that I may meet all of the household of faith there. I thank you for continuing THE RESTITUTION so long to me, free, and still I am too poor to pay for it. It is such a comfort to me in my isolation, it would be hard to get along without it, it is all the paper I have to read. If you felt so disposed to continue it longer I would feel very grateful to you. Our old sod house caved in and fell down so we have to build another this summer so I shall not be able to pay for the dear old paper. I do so love to read the letters from the dear brothers and sisters, that I thought perhaps some would like to hear from me, a poor old Sister striving and watching and waiting for the Savior to come and reward all his servants that love and obey him. Now, I say to all be faithful, love one another, help those that are in need, visit the sick, rejoice in the Lord always. Again I say rejoice, let your forbearance be known unto all men, the Lord is at hand. Let us ever be looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God, and our Savior Jesus Christ who shall change our vile bodies and fashion them like his own body at his appearand kingdom. Now may the peace of God be with you all. Amen.

Your Sister,

MRS. W. J. BEEBE.

Dear Restitution:

As all of God's children are rejoicing over the privilege of testifying for our Savior, I feel that I must say a word, not that it will edify any one particularly, if we are true children of God we are to "Let our light shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father in heaven." Matt. v. 16. I do not hear the true gospel more than once or twice a year. I feel as if I can not do without my paper. May I overcome all that offends, and be counted worthy and waiting for Jesus.

H. A.

Many a man who has no fear of God is afraid of being seen of men when he is doing wrong.

Those that keep from evil in time of common iniquity, God will keep from harm in times of common calamity.

Any body can soil the reputation of an individual, however pure and chaste, by uttering a suspicion that his enemies will believe, and his friends never hear of; a puff of the idle wind can shake a million seeds from the thistle and do a world of mischief which the husbandman must labor long to undo. Such are the seeds of the slanderer, so easily sown, so difficult to gather up, and so pernicious in their fruits.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as co-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

EVERY name in the East is as significant now as it was of old, however uncivilized it may sound to us. For instance, Abdallah (Arabic) means the slave of God; so also does the Obadiah (Hebrew); Omar (Arabic) means an ass; so does Irad (Hebrew), and so on."

THE Protestant Standard says, "Pilate asked of Christ, "What is truth? And he did not wait for an answer, for curiously enough, in the Latin language the letters which formed the words, 'What is truth?' could be so arranged as to form another Latin sentence, which meant, the man who stands before you," and he who stood before Pilate said, 'I am the truth.'"

A Two-Fold Work.

This is what the household of faith has to prosecute. The health of the Body depends largely upon the recognition of these two branches or departments of labor. "All outside work, dealing exclusively with first principles has the tendency to develop mere gladiators; on the other hand when the operations are confined too exclusively to the inside of the house, the tendency is to contract the sympathies, and a dangerous liability to become fossilized and penurious. A healthy state of things requires the two works to go on simultaneously. Sainteship and soldiership want to go hand in hand. The creation of faith and the confirmation of it are equally important. Two kinds of increase attended this two-fold work in the first century, and we have the result stated apostolically in these words, "So were the churches established in the faith, and increased in numbers daily." Acts xvi. 5. Both kinds of work faithfully prosecuted will yield a thanksgiving harvest, we have no doubt. Some reach this point, but we fear many do not. We are fearful that many think they have little to do, besides securing their own salvation; while others seem to bend all their energies with a view to numbers, and our experience for more than 35 years confirms the impression that this latter, one-sided course, favors a harvest of bastards and not sons; and that the work carried on in a dry, lifeless, calculating, commercial spirit is very apt to produce a crop of dry bones; and the work done by mere intellectual competency without any heart in it beyond what is pumped up for the occasion will yield a sparse and sickly increase in the direction of edification. When men of humble carriage, apt to teach, of good report,—man who keep Christ to the front and themselves in the background, men of patience and real love both for the truth and the brethren, unostentatious servants, year in and year out, who can be relied upon for a hundred different services great or small—men who not merely shake hands with the truth and the meetings, but who encircle them with the arms of affection, men of faith and prayer,—these are the men who do a much needed two-fold work—we have workers of this class, and may the Lord of the harvest give us more laborers of this stamp, we pray.

The Daily Duties of Life.

It is an easy matter to give intellectual assent to the truth of God; but it is not near so easy to regulate one's life by its precepts. What the truth does for a man is not measured altogether by what he knows, but also by what he does. But even what a man does is not always a criterion of his moral character. For instance, he may have a happy organism—one that makes it come natural to do many good things, and exhibit excellent traits of character. Under these circumstances his conduct does not show how much influence the truth has upon him.

We must remember that God is not selecting naturally good dispositioned people—people who have inherited amiable dispositions from their parents; but those who have acquired the divine disposition by obeying the truth. Be men ever so amiable, they are natural, not spiritual; they do not know God, and are therefore without God; and we are writing for those who know right well, that to be without God, is to be without hope. Many do praiseworthy acts, not because it is right, or in obedience to God's commands, but from an amiable disposition. They need a renewing of the mind equally with those who have a less lovely organization. We must not get it into our heads that good behavior is meritorious; if it were, men favored with excellent organizations could save themselves, and that very cheaply. And under such circumstances the Scripture which says, "By grace (favor) ye are saved, through faith," would have to be expunged; justification by faith as a doctrine would have to be ruled out. But that foundation truth must stand till God is all in all. This establishes the necessity of the gospel, because there could be no faith without a gospel to believe.

The heading of this article shows that we by no means dispense with good works: but instead of being the fruit of a happy organism, they must be the fruit of faith in the gospel,—the evidence of such faith. Other conditions besides faith, repentance and baptism, are imposed. Godly living is of equal importance with these. It is imperative; it is not optional. Divine instruction to this end has been imparted, and it cannot be evaded, or neglected. Another thing we must not forget: We cannot pick our way along so as to avoid the rough and unpleasant places, because there would no discipline in that. When we come to a cross we have to shoulder it. We have to take it up; not try to get around it. "Take up your cross and follow me," cries the captain of our salvation. And if we study him, we will find that although the bitterest cups of human woe were often presented to him, he never refused to drink. Had he refused we were utterly undone.

What a world of meaning for us have the words, "Follow me?" What a rugged weary way he travelled; and the truth is exactly what it was then, and human nature is not altered a bit; the truth of God is as distasteful to it as ever. And although we may not suffer violence now, it costs somewhat still to openly confess—not be ashamed of Jesus' Word. Jesus at this day is a person greatly admired,—and his character is entirely unique—but what of his teachings? What of his gospel of the kingdom? What of his gospel of Life from the dead to inherit that kingdom? These questions bring us face to face with the Apostasy. To confess those sublime soul-saving truths is to be put out the synagogue. And the fact that just as much liberty is taken with the discipline as with the doctrine, so to speak, make the adherents to the truth all the more peculiar.

Leaving the phase of the Christian conflict,—let us consider some of the ills that are in themselves small,—the perpetual recurrence of petty evils and small trials. They seem to come without any warning, and when they are not expected; and when, perhaps by weakness or fatigue we are not prepared for them—not on our guard, not watching; and before we know where we are we are all awry, disturbed, vexed, and presently discouraged to find what a little thing will disconcert us. There is only one way to be fortified against these irritating tendencies of the flesh. Yes; the flesh is the seat of the trouble, and it is difficult to down it. In fact there is but one antidote to it, and that is the Spirit. If we habitually cultivate the mind which was in Christ Jesus, by letting his Word dwell in us richly, he will always be ready to help in time of need. We are wonderful creatures of habit, and we ought to take advantage of it by forming the habit of shifting these vexatious little trials upon him.

It might be profitable to mention a few of these trials, or the causes of them. We have to bear with the failings of others, their bad judgment, their ill breeding and their perverse tempers. We have to discipline ourselves to endure neglect when we are conscious of deserving attention: and ingratitude when we had a right to expect thanks. Then we have to bear vexations in business, disappointed expectations, and follies, and intrusions, and whatever opposes our will or contradicts our humor. The habitual acceptance of the situation each day and hour is the best illustration of self-denial we can think of. With greater trials we often have premonitions, and warnings, and prepare to meet them: and it would seem that the command to watch and pray is peculiarly applicable to these oft recurring trials. Happy are those who avail themselves of the Divinely proffered help in every time of need. They seldom complain. Those who grumble most are those who persistently carry their own burdens, and they deserve to suffer if they do that. With the absolute promise to help, is it not criminal not to cast our burdens upon the Lord? It is our earnest hope that all those of our readers who have the privilege of access to God through Christ may so live up to their privilege, as that they may reach the haven of rest and peace at last, and about all their trials ended, and all their sorrows o'er.

Our May Work.

We have been gathering in some of the results of last winter's work. On the first Sunday in May I went to Glenwood and dedicated the dance hall that was converted during my series of meetings last January. This hall is a rough but new building—thirty by eighty feet in size. It was built for dancing, but has now become the property of the Church of God. The attendance was estimated at from three to four hundred people. About sixty [redacted] Schulls, [redacted] Camas, Wash., were well represented. Glenwood is the local name of a community eight miles north of Vancouver, Wash. The hall is surrounded by a forest of heavy fir timber. I spoke twice on the leading principles of faith and practice. The entire congregation feasted together at bountifully furnished tables during the intermission.

On the second Sunday I went to La Camas, gave two discourses to a fairly good congregation. In the afternoon we went to the little La Camas Lake where a large crowd gathered to see, to them, the strange work of burying five believers with Christ in baptism, and hear a short talk on our reason for doing so. This infant church of a year's planting is full of zeal. They assemble frequently for prayer and Bible reading. Between twenty-five and thirty brethren are now living at and near La Camas.

On the third Sunday I spoke twice to a full house at Lake Shore, one was immersed. These earnest brethren greatly enjoyed the meeting. A basket dinner and a social intermission was an enjoyable feature of the day.

On the fourth Sunday I talked twice on "The coming, the life, and the kingdom," at place about five miles from home. I had taught their school and given a few discourses at this school over ten years ago. Our glad tidings had not been published there since that time. We were rejoiced to see many more people than the house could accommodate, and good interest while we talked of life through Christ in the kingdom of God. Again tables were spread with much more than the people could eat. And better than all else, three intelligent believers responded to the call and united with the congregation at Unity Chapel.

Have you noticed the new schedule of passenger trains on the Nickel Plate Road? They now have a peerless trio of fast express trains in each direction daily. Write for a new schedule to any agent of the Nickel Plate Road or B. P. Horner, General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.—June 30.

Man Taken Off.

The members of the Christian Church here refused to let J. W. Tomlinson discuss the kingdom question with me again, as they know he was beaten in our discussion last year, and put another minister against me, by the name of Havill; a nice man, and one I think well of. Discussion to commence June 28, last two days instead of four, at the Bay school house. We expect to have a big crowd. I will have to hustle this time.

Some Thoughts for Easter.

Dear Protestant: I mean Mary Magdalene. The Mary that was so early at the sepulchre. Her heart was in the new-made grave. When the man she took for the gardener said, "Mary," she recognized the voice. It was he that was dead, but now alive, to live forevermore, and because he lives we shall live also. Mary's joy must have taken the most extravagant form. Jesus reminded her that he had not yet ascended to the Father, and that she must not detain him. I think the situation will allow it to be read in this way. "Touch Me not" could not have been said as a reproof, for just then he commissioned her to carry the glad news to his sorrowing friends. "Go to my brethren and say unto them I ascend unto my Father and your Father, and to my God and your God." Oh, what a brother we have in Jesus. We do not think of this brother enough. There is no record that Jesus ever spoke of the cruelty of his executioners, or his desertion by his professed friends after he was risen.

I had a friend once who was very anxious to know why Jesus forbade Mary to touch him, on the ground that he had not yet ascended to the Father; then a little afterward invited Thomas to feel the print of the spear, also the print of the nails in his feet and hands, etc.

I see no difficulty here. The risen Jesus had but to say "Mary" to make himself known to her; but in the case of Thomas more was required. Paul is another instance where extraordinary manifestation was needed and it was given.

What a privilege now as the season of Easter approaches to gaze with Mary at him who was dead, but now alive, to live forevermore. Christianity overshadows all other systems, because our Head is alive; all the other heads are dead. Our Head is now gone into the holy of holies, after offering himself—the Lamb prepared from the beginning—for the sins of the world. But, unlike the Jewish high priest, we do not have to stand waiting without for his benediction. His people even now are receiving continuously absolution and the joy of a living hope. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear (at the end of this dispensation) we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is," not as Mary saw him; no one then will mistake him for a gardner. See parable of the ten virgins. Matt. xxv.

Kindly indulge me a few moments while I give an incident of the late war, which I think will explain the words to Mary, viz: "Touch Me not," etc.

Gen. J. B. Gordon, of Georgia, at the battle of the Wilderness discovered R. E. Lee in the act of the leading a charge to recover an important position that had been captured that morning by General Grant's forces. Gordon begged Lee to go to the rear and allow him the honor of leading the charge. Gordon after the fight made a bee-line for the commander-in-chief. I suppose if any one had attempted to touch or detain Gordon before he reported to Lee he would have forbade them. After Gordon saluted and reported to the commander-in-chief he appeared to be then ready to talk with any one.

Our Lord, I take it, showed himself to the Father before his manifestation to Thomas. I know it is not customary to look critically into things of this kind, and here is where I think we lose. Our risen Lord had some trouble to convince some that he was not a ghost. He appears to have lost none of his human nature—sympathy—by his three days and nights in Joseph's sepulchre. "We have not a high priest in the heavens who cannot be touched with our troubles and infirmities." I once heard a man say that Methodists were too spiritual. Is this possible?

I told a tramp on Baltimore street one day who wanted assistance to call on a certain minister of the gospel. He spurned my advice. He said he would rather have the price of a "square meal" than a religious lecture.

The 20th of John is a wonderful chapter. There are texts enough in it to last a lifetime. It is strange that the disciples knew so little about Jesus' rising the third day, after all that they told about. But it is no more strange than the ignorance among the so-called believers today relative to our Lord's next act. there is such a diversity of opinion about it.—Isaac McCurdy, in Methodist Baptist.

The Forgetful World.

How sad and yet how true it is that the memory stops at the grave; for while wealth may carve in gilded letters, on marble obelisks or granite pile, its possessor's name and fame, 'tis but little less than mockery, and serves but to remind the passer-by of one who once ruled sceptered king on 'Change and in the busy marts of trade; but now, alas! his very name is forgotten quite and out of mind. Even the majority of those who have made their lives sublime by good and noble deeds, after death live only in the bosoms of those they blest by their benefactions, while the common herd of mortals, like the fly that makes a given number of revolutions around the candle, drops at the next into the flame and perishes, mark so many circuits around a given orbit, die and are forgotten. How empty a thing, therefore, is earthly fame and wealth after which the world is seeking, and how transcendantly important that our names be written in heaven where they will shine resplendent long after the gilded granite and polished marble have crumbled and mixed with their mother earth.

Make peace, if you will, with Popery; receive it into your senate; shrine it in your churches; plant in your hearts. But be ye certain—as certain that there is a heaven above you and a God over you—that the Popery thus honored and embraced is the very Popery that was loathed and degraded by the holiest of your fathers; and the same in haughtiness, the same in intolerance, which lorded it over kings, assumed the prerogative of Deity, crushed human liberty, and slew the saints of God.—Canon Melvill.

Little Things.

A man need not perform some superhuman righteous acts, to prove himself a Christian, so it does not require him to become a consummate demon, a murderer or highwayman, to forfeit the confidence of mankind, or merit the sarcastic approval of the enemies of the cross. It is the "little things of the hour, and not the great things of the age" that determine a man's character, and make him a Bonnaerges in the world for good or evil. "The sands of time are mightier in their multitude than the rocks in their magnitude." And so with Christian walk. The "little follies," little sins, little inconsistencies, little indiscretions, and imprudencies, "little equivocations or aberrations from high integrity in private dealings," give the "stinking savor" to all the incense arising from the loudest profession or the most praiseworthy deeds. They weaken our testimony, and dry up the springs of our confidence, and peace and communion with God.

Clinkers.

There is too much stone in some coal to let the fire burn well long. If there were not so many stony spots in our hearts, or so many stony hearts in the church, the fire of God's love would burn well and steadily.

The clinkers in the grate are a great trouble. We have to get upon our knees now and then, and look up under the grate, and have a rough time with the poker to break the clinkers and get them down into the ash pan out of the way. Some of them are so large that it takes very hard work to remove them, and some won't stir.

Would that a Church or Sunday School might be found that has no clinkers. In such a Church there are no stingy, or dull, or inconsistent, or complaining members. In such a school there are no fossils, no headstrong, no consequential, no sour teachers; none are unnecessarily absent, none are proud of dress, none are careless in duty.

The Nickel Plate Road has a passenger service that it can well be proud of. A peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains Daily. When you plan your next trip look up their new trains through from Chicago via Fort Wayne, Cleveland, and Erie to Buffalo, New York, and Boston.—June 30.

Whoever examines and enjoys a Scripture story feels that he is brought nearer to God thereby.

It may not interest you at this moment, but when you are planning a trip to Chicago, Buffalo, New York or Boston, don't forget that the Nickel Plate Road has a Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains in each direction daily, and that their rates are lower than via other lines.—June 30.

> The hearts that now with sorrow ache,
> Beneath some heavy blow,
> Will from the cloud eye rise and break
> The spell of all their woe.
> And feel that life hath sunshine now,
> And songs as sweet as birds',
> If we but be humane and true,
> And give them pleasant words.

Should any one ask you what route to travel to Chicago, Buffalo, New York or Boston, say. The Nickel Plate Road, because they have recently placed in service a Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains with vestibuled sleeping and dining cars.—June 30.

> The simplest pleasures are most sweet,
> Like the fresh smell of grass
> Now falling at the mower's feet;
> Or, like the winds that pass
> And greet you with the fragrant grace
> Of many a lordly flower
> That in some green, fern-shaded place
> Live out their little hour.

Why do we call them The Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains? Because there are three trains. The Nickel Plate are confident that The Dining Car Service can't be beat. The sleeping cars are unexcelled, and the schedule is convenient and fast. Don't this service entitle us to the use of that expression? Our rates are lower than via other lines.—June 30.

It is not unworthiness, but unwillingness, that bars any man from God. Thousands have missed of him by their unwillingness, but he never put off one soul on account of its unworthiness.—Flavel.

Why not patronize the Nickel Plate Road on your next trip to New York City or Boston. They operate solid through trains elegantly equipped with palace sleepers, fine coaches attended by uniformed colored porters whose duties require them to look out for the comfort of passengers. Magnificent Dining Cars. The Popular Low Rate Short Line.—June 30.

When happy seasons end, and leave us sad, it is soothing to reflect that sadness will have an end also; that as the sunshine has given place to the shadow, so the shadow will be succeeded by the sunshine again. "Joy is sown for the righteous: and gladness for the upright in heart."

Low Fare to Pittsburgh via Pennsylvania Lines.

Excursion tickets to Pittsburgh for the Jr. O. U. A. M. National Council will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines June 12th, 13th and 14th. The sale of tickets will not be restricted to members of the order, but the public generally may take advantage of the reduced rates. Full information may be obtained upon application to Ticket Agents of the Pennsylvania Lines.—June 14.

To the Christian the little events of daily life tend wonderfully to his sanctification though he may not know it at the time. This discharge of duty, this trial of patience, this denial of self, this loss or suffering, or affliction, each, like the finishing stroke of the sculptor, here strikes off an excrescence, and there brings out a beauty of form or feature, till at last the work is completed, and the finished image is prepared for the temple.

Sunday Excursion to Fort Wayne via Pennsylvania Lines.

June 13th,—next Sunday. One dollar round trip from Plymouth, on special train at 7.30 A. M. central time via Pennsylvania Lines; returning special train leaves Fort Wayne 7.15 P. M. Excursion tickets good Sunday June 13th only on these trains. Attractions at Fort Wayne offer opportunity for a pleasant Sunday outing. Robinson's park is open for the season; grand concerts; boating on the river; base ball, Fort Wayne vs. Toledo.

Poetry.

"I'll Do What I Can."

Who takes for his motto, "I'll do what I can,"
Shall better the world as he goes down life's hill.
The willing young heart makes the capable man,
And who does what he can, oft can do what he will.
There's at ought in the impulse to help things along,
And forces undreamed of will come to the aid
Of one who, though weak, yet believes he is strong,
And offers himself to the task, undismayed.

"I'll do what I can" is a challenge to fate,
And fate must succumb, when it's put to the test;
A heart that is willing to labor and wait,
In its tussle with life, ever comes out the best.
It puts the blue imps of depression to rout,
And makes many difficult problems seem plain;
It mounts over obstacles, dissipates doubt,
And unravels kinks, in life's curious chain.

"I'll do what I can" keeps the Progress machine
In good working order as centuries roll,
And civilization would perish, I ween,
Were not those words written on many a soul.
They fell the great forest, they furrow the soil,
They seek new inventions to benefit man.
They fear no exertion, make pastime of toil—
Oh, great is earth's debt to "I'll do what I can."

Sundry Thoughts.

The Turk will die hard, not evaporate like water. It is more probable that the crescent will be turned into blood, and the Moslem go down in violent convulsions.

We are not living under the sixth vial, and as for that matter not under the vials at all. The vials of wrath pertain to the "great day of his wrath,"—a day not yet come,—hence the events of our time are not such as will transpire under the sixth vial in the drying up of the great river Euphrates, and the going forth of "three unclean spirits like frogs," etc.

I am not ignorant of the fact that certain expositors teach otherwise, and have been doing so for years. Certain English periodicals that cling tenaciously to most of the inadvertant mistakes that Dr. Thomas made are constantly calling attention to the drying up process of the symbolic Euphrates, and the activity of the frogs, or the French. In my judgment there is not one grain of truth in it, and what is worse yet, blinding their eyes to the real condition of things politically that must obtain.

Read carefully and not overlook the following points.

1. The seven vials are not earthen, but golden vials.

2. They fill up the wrath of God, and are therefore characteristic of his wrath.

3. During the time of their pouring out, no man can enter into the temple of God. Is it true that no man can enter into—become a constituent element of God's building at the present time?

4. The agency through whom the vials of wrath are executed, viz., the one body glorified represented by the "four living ones" full of eyes, that is full of life and light.

5. They are styled the seven last plagues that fill up the wrath of God. It appears to me, that when the 15th and 16th chapters of Rev. are carefully read, with the mind free from men's expositions and interpretations, there can be little difficulty in the way of a correct chronological application. It is well to beware of man's ingenuity in our prophetic study. There are classes of prophetic expositors, viz., the ingenious and the sensational, and it is well to avoid both, or at best go slow in accepting their conclusions.

It is more than five years since I began to doubt the commonly received exposition of the vials, and also other things that the expositors have given us without evidence.

If a man will read the Scriptures carefully and critically, independent of accepted expositions and at the same time exercise his reason and judgment, he will see the mistakes of expositors, if he does not himself discover the truth. Any expositor that is sound is helpful and desirable, and we gladly welcome any and all knowledge and light from whatever source it may come, but we desire to know for a certainty what is sound, and what is true,—rather than what is plausible and pleasing as an ingenious theory.

Events are the best interpreters of prophecy,—particularly of the apocalypse.—and we must wait and taste if need be the trial of patience.

The drying up of the great river Euphrates,—preparing the way for the kings of the east will come at the proper time, but not until the Lord is present in Zion. The "great day of his wrath,"—is a future day, when he shall have a controversy with the nations. The execution of his judgments is symbolically represented by the seven vials that fill up the wrath, or judgments upon the obstinate and rebellious. While these plagues are in process of execution, the temple of God is closed, and no man can enter into that symbolic building until after the seven vials are exhausted. The three frog-like spirits do not go forth until the Lord's presence in the earth apparently creates the necessity for such a prodigious combination of human power, as their mission contemplates.

The Dragon, Beast and False Prophet, will then constitute the trio under whom the nations will be gathered for the conflict. A great and terrible day,—the hour of judgment,—the time when earth's inhabitants will begin to learn righteousness, and turn from their idols. The vanity and pride of human nature will be humbled, and all of earth's glory and splendor laid in the dust. The moral discipline under which the Adamic race must and will learn the lesson of righteousness and true holiness will of necessity require Jehovah's chastening rod. In no other way can obedience be enforced. Divine authority and law would be impotent in the absence of Almighty power. "All nations shall come and worship before thee, for thy judgments are made manifest." These necessary judgments are, at present, reserved in the seven golden vials, the out-pouring of which will be attended with untold affliction and distress, but nevertheless resulting in greatly blessing the world with truth, righteousness and peace.

In the 14th chapter of Rev. the Lord Jesus is seen upon Mount Zion and with him 144,000 sealed ones,—Israelites taken from the twelve tribes. At this time the one body represented by the four living ones, are also with him. After the resurrection and judgment of the house of God—the saints in Christ, and also after the work of sealing the 144,000 out of the tribes of Israel, three edicts or proclamations are issued. The first one reads, "Fear God and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come, and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the fountains of waters."

The second edict reads, "Babylon is fallen—is fallen that great city because she made all nations drink of the wine, of the wrath of her fornication."

The third decree follows saying with a loud voice that all may hear and understand, "If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand, the same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation."

These three proclamations will result in arousing the war spirit of the Dragon, Beast and False Prophet: and the going forth of the three frog-like spirits to gather the nations follows, as a natural sequence. At this juncture in the world's history Adam's posterity will of necessity be compelled to meet face to face the dividing line of two exceedingly hostile, and war-making parties in the earth,—no middle ground—no neutral zone to stand upon,—it is either "fear God and worship him," or else worship the Beast, and receive his mark in the forehead, or in the hand.

No doubt thousands of men and women will prove their loyalty to Zion's King, and sacrifice their lives rather than worship the Beast, and receive his mark, hence it is written, "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, from henceforth," that is from this time forward. "Here are they that keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus." Surely they come up out of great tribulation, even a multitude which no man could number of all nations and kindreds." They are styled "saints," but they are not the saints to whom Paul addressed letters, and are not as yet members of the one body, but saints of this particular time—the great day of his wrath, and the world's harvest.

In the days of the prophets, also of the apostles, there was no Beast to worship—no mark and no number of his name to receive, nor was there any recognized official false prophet as the spiritual advisor of the Roman world. It can hardly be affirmed of saints in this day and in previous ages, that they received not the mark of the Beast, or the number of his name, and this fact duly considered enables us to understand Rev. xx. 4, 5 better than all the contradictory interpretations and criticisms offered concerning the first and second resurrection. John clearly informs us who has part in the first resurrection—"the souls of them that were beheaded.....who had not worshiped the Beast—neither his image, neither received his mark upon their foreheads or in their hands." The blessed that die in the Lord from henceforth, that is from the time the edict goes forth forbidding the worship of the image Beast.

It is during this period—the hour of judgment and subjugation of the nations, that the seven angels are pouring out the vials, and these saints get the victory over the Beast. Their loyalty to Christ costs them their lives, but they "die in the Lord, and their works do follow them,"—ending in resurrection and "reigning with Christ a thousand years." It is hardly possible for us to realize the terrible ordeal—the fiery trial, awaiting the spiritually intoxicated masses. Great Babylon must come down, and into the dust before the eyes of the nations can be opened, so that they can see that they have inherited lies, and vanity, and things wherein there is no profit." In jotting down on paper the foregoing thoughts I have made no attempt to identify the Dragon, the Beast and the false Prophet. The future development of events will materially aid the wise and watchful to recognize them beyond a doubt. There are changes to transpire on the Roman earth, which at present, are in process of development, but not clearly visible. We might not go far amiss in forecasting these changes, but as we are not gifted with the spirit of prophecy it would be presumptuousness on our part to do more than understand what has been already written for our instruction. To do less is a breach of trust, for which we could plead no valid excuse.

GEO. MOYER.

She Played a Trick on Him.

Sometime since a correspondent through THE RESTITUTION, desired me to give an exposition as to who Samuel was mentioned in 1 Sam. xxviii.? Or in other words, the Witch of Endor.

At this time Saul had become disobedient, and God withdrew his favor from him, and refused to answer his prayers any longer, on this account he therefore had recourse to the lying powers of darkness, and it served him right if she did fool him.

"Then Saul said unto his servants, seek me a woman that hath a familiar spirit, that I may go to her, and enquire of her. And his servants said unto him, Behold, there is a woman that hath a familiar spirit at Endor."

WHAT IS A FAMILIAR SPI[illegible]

Having ascertained this, the exposition becomes simple. Let me quote the following: "The Hebrew word (ob) occurring 16 times, is the only word rendered "familiar spirit," and in the singular and plural, is so rendered 15 times. It is usually translated in the Septuagint, by a term which signifies a ventriloquist; "and rightly," says Gesenius' Lexicon, "Since among the ancients this power of ventriloquism was often misused for purposes of magic. In Job xxxii. 19, the plural of ob is rendered "bottles," probably because the ventriloquists in throwing their voice would so inflate their bodies as to resemble tightly filled bottles, which, in those days, were made of skins. This ob seems to have been the same kind of witchcraft called among the Greeks pneuma puthonas, "a spirit of divination."

We find then, that the words familiar spirit, is the translation from the Hebrew word ob, and Gesenius' Lexicon being authority a familiar spirit was a ventriloquist, and was a species of witchcraft called by the Greeks a spirit of divination, and was used in performing magical tricks.

A ventriloquist is a person who practices deception by means of the voice. Can carry on a conversation as coming from two persons in the same room, and imitate the voices of the parties, and throw the voice as though it came from the portion of the room the party was located in. This power of ventriloquism is used by persons who hide that fact, and profess that the apparition seen, and voices heard are from the dead, while at the same time they know it is cunning art they have learned.

There can certainly be no question as to this, when we learn that the words, "familiar spirit," is the translation of the Hebrew word ob, and rightly signifies a ventriloquist.

With this thought, in mind, the conversation supposed to have occurred between Saul and Samuel never took place at all, as far as Samuel was concerned, the witch kept up his end of the string by imitating Samuel's voice, and by throwing her voice so as to have it come from the direction in which Saul saw the apparition.

DID SAUL SEE SAMUEL?

I should answer no, she practiced deception on his vision. This is frequently done in our day, both by trick, and also by getting control of the mind of the individual whom the operator seeks to deceive. I have seen this myself. I saw a man get control of some six men at one time, and he could make them see ghosts or anything else he pleased, and to them the sights appeared as real. He could also make them say and do anything he pleased. He made them say and do things that caused offence to some of them, when told of it by others. He could arouse the spirit of fear, fight, courage, and pity at his will. We all know to what extent hypnotism is practiced at this day, and is used as an aid to commit crime of various kinds. People have even been made to sign deeds against their will.

I have seen the sight of people deceived by tricks by the hour at a time. I have seen a man borrow a watch, and take a hammer, (and for all any one could see) pound it to pieces, and yet in a few minutes restore it all right in good order. Boil eggs in a silk hat, and all such tricks, and never injure the hat. The thing which seemed to be done, was never done at all, yet as far as we could see, we would say it was done, yet it was not done. Neither did Saul see Samuel, although Saul may have honestly thought he had done so. These appearances are of frequent occurrence in our day. Supposed ghosts of the dead are often produced to see relatives. This is done by controlling the mind, or by trick. The "familiar spirits," (ventriloquists) imitate the voice of the supposed ghost, and direct the sound of the voice to the place where the apparition is seen. They are what the Bible call, "lying wonders." They are "lying" wonders because the thing which appears to be, is not real, but is a lie, a gross deception. I remember a case brought to light by a strong muscular young lady who was in my oldest brother's employ. She told my brother that she was going to a spiritualist seance that night, where materialized spirits were to appear. My brother told her that she could depend upon it that they would be material enough, and he advised the young lady to test it. He told her to seize the spirit when it came around to shake hands, and hold it fast, and she would find it was material. She said she would, and she did so. She seized the ghost, and held it so fast, [illegible] getaway. Of course, [illegible]ed, and lights [illegible], and an expose appeared in the Chicago papers next morning.

Another one recently occurred in Chicago. The spirit of some lady was to appear. A company of young men banded together to test the matter. When the right time arrived they turned the lights up, and opened the cabinet, and found a man in it, who had divested himself of his male attire, and was about to put on gauzy dresses, hair, etc., such as ghosts are supposed to have These were found lying about in abundance.

To produce such an appearance as the one described of Samuel appearing to Saul, is a very simple thing at this day.

See Isa. viii. 19, and you may learn that familiar spirits practiced deception to produce what they seek to effect. "When they shall say unto you, seek unto them that have familiar spirits, and unto wizards that peep and that mutter; should not a people seek unto their God?" If they did real genuine work, there would be no use of peeping and muttering to cover up their lying deceit.

People who have recourse to the lying deceit of the witch of Endor, as a witness to prove the existence of immortal souls, are hard up for a witness surely. I should feel ashamed of witnesses of that character. If I had to resort to an old witch for evidence to sustain a doctrine, I certainly would consign both the witch and the doctrine to oblivion. Such a source is but a refuge of lies.

"Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits (familiar spirits and witches.) and doctrines of devils; (immortal souls for the sky-kingdom) speaking lies in hypocrisy." 1 Tim. iv. 1, 2. When people believe these "doctrines of devils they "depart from the faith."

Tell me, what good is baptism received while believing "doctrines of devils?" Think you, that God will accept that as an obedience to the grand old gospel of the kingdom? Oh, never! Don't practice self-deception

The Bible.

"We must not lose sight of the fact that the Bible is one Book;—that it came by Divine inspiration through a long line of prophets and apostles; and that Christ is the Hero of the story is seen in all its parts, from the first promise that the Seed of the woman should bruise the Serpent's head, to his last triumphant manifestation on the throne of his glory as King of kings and Lord of lords. This book begins with the account of man's creation, and ends with the prophecy of his redemption. It begins with the new world which God created, and ends with the new world restored by his Word. At the beginning we find sin and sorrow, pain and death entering into the world, at the end we find pain and sorrow and sighing and sin forever driven way At the beginning the Serpent intrudes himself to work deception; at the end he is cast out and bound, and doomed to destruction.

When we learn to contemplate this Book as the record of the Divine purpose,—when we see the grandeur of its sweep from Paradise lost to Paradise regained,—when we trace it in the history of God's wondrous works in days gone by, and the prophecies of things yet to come still more wonderful—I say, when we take this general view of the Scriptures it compels us to use the language of Paul, "Oh the depths of the riches both of the wisdom and the knowledge of God, how unsearchable are his judgments and his ways past finding out," etc. It is an endless book. For 1500 years men inspired of God were building this volume. This Book touches man in every point of his character,—in every phase of his existence, and every stage of his career. It deals with man in relation to his past, his present and his future. It finds him in whatever condition he may be in. It enlightens his eyes; it changes his heart; it moulds his life. Multitudes have been saved through the renewing power of the Spirit's Word; individuals have been transformed by its saving energy. What it has done in the past, it is still doing, and will do for all who believe and obey its teachings—for all who repose their faith in its promises. This endless book will never be outgrown nor out-worn. Other writings have been discarded and sent back to the dust, "But the Word of God shall stand forever."

J. O. WOODRUFF.

Our Solemn Position.

How solemn is the position the people of God now occupy, standing amid the culminating scenes of the last days; looking for that blessed hope, the appearing of God's Son. Those in the Scriptural attitude; those echoing the prayer of the Revelator: "Even so come Lord Jesus." Rev. xxii. 20. Those loving his appearing. 2 Tim. iv. 8. Those looking for the blessed hope. Titus ii. 13. Those waiting for God's Son from heaven. 1 Thess. i. 10. Those watching for the Lord to come. Matt. xxiv. 42. These are in point of numbers an insignificant company, a forlorn hope, but the Lord is on their side. Their cry is that of Enoch: "Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints to execute judgment upon all." Jude xiv. 15. How few give heed to the warning and embrace the message of love and mercy, which God addresses to the world in the gospel of his Son. The multitude rush on in their reckless career in pursuit of whatever gain is held out to them in the illusory promises of this evil world; with the same indifference to the solemn and thrilling event just before them as was shown by the antediluvians to the proclamation of Noah, or by the Sodomites to the warning of impending doom uttered by the God-fearing Lot. As the day approaches the conviction that it is near should deepen in the minds of the expectant ones and their zeal correspondingly increase as the prophetic outline of events unfolds in the history of the world. It is hazardous at this point in time for the household of faith to be laying themselves out for worldly emoluments and pleasure. Without detailing the signs of the times I will notice one convincing proof of our nearness to the great day to wit the wide spread conviction on the part of many that some mighty event impends that a change is due, the nature of which, and its extent will characterize it as a great epoch in the world's history.

OBITUARY.

Died, at her home two and one-half miles north of Scircleville, Ind., on Sunday May 30th, 1897, Sister Harriet Burgett. Harriet Seger was born in New Jersey, March 8, 1818. She was first married to a man named Lucas, to this union one child was born, but death claimed him at the tender age of eight years. It also claimed his father. Later years our sister was married to our much esteemed Bro. Burgett who dropped dead of heart disease in the harvest field fifteen years ago last August. Our dear Sister was a good, quiet Christian woman, and was loved and respected by all, as the large concourse of people fully attested who came to see her for the last time, and listen to the words of comfort which were spoken by my father, (J. S. Hatch) using the following Scriptures, Isa. xxvi. 19-21; Rev. xiv. 12-13; 1 Thess. iv. 13-14; 1 Cor. xv. 51-55. She had no children of her own, but Mr. Burgett's children all loved her as their own mother. One grandchild (a girl) whom she had raised almost from infancy, has been with her constantly for thirteen years, and no mother was ever more tenderly cared for than she has been, always calling her mother, but she knew that the enemy death must soon claim her, for few live to such a ripe age. That awful enemy causes so much sorrow, and nothing but the appearing of our blessed Savior will put a stop to his awful work.

"Down in the valley we're going,
Down to the other shore;
But with the blest, fair land of rest,
Weeping will come nevermore."

Announcement.

The annual meeting of the Church of God at Scholls, Oregon, will begin on Friday, June 11th, and will continue over the following Sunday.

Brethren coming from a distance will please notify us and they will be met with conveyances at the National Hotel in Portland, at 1 o'clock Friday, June 11th.

We extend an invitation to all lovers of truth. We will be glad to meet with you all. Brethren, let us be up and doing for the time is short. Let us work for the Master while it is yet day; for the night is coming wherein no man works. Come all that can, and let us have a joyous reunion.

FLOYD LAWRENCE, Sec'y.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana will be held at the Antioch Meeting-house five miles south of Plymouth, commencing on Friday evening June 11, 1897, at 7:30 o'clock, and continuing over the following Sunday. We extend a cordial invitation to all the brethren of like precious faith and all others who so desire, to come and be with us and help forward the cause of the Master. Come with hearts full of love for the cause and for each other, and let every one do his duty and our heavenly Father will reward our efforts. It has been suggested that all who can and desire, bring enough provision on Saturday and Sunday, and remain at the church until after the night meeting. Come and let us enjoy one more good meeting at old Antioch.

J. F. WAGONER, Pres.
A. C. ROBERTS, Sec.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Dunbar School House in Furnas County, ten miles south of Arapahoe, commencing on Friday, June 11th, and holding over Sunday. We request all the brothers and sisters, who can possibly do so, to be present at this meeting. Come to learn more of the Master's will, to receive encouragement, and to encourage others to forget those things which are behind, to reach forth unto those things which are before, and to press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Each church in the State is requested to send its vote as to when the next Annual Conference shall be held, to the State secretary by the 5th of June.

Submitted in love,

Discussion.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce that there will be a four-days discussion between a Christian (Campbellite) minister and myself, commencing June 28, 1897, ten miles west of Shawnee, Pott Co., Okla., at the Ray School-house.

He affirms that, "The Kingdom of Christ was set up on the first Pentecost after his ascension." I deny.

I affirm that "The Kingdom of Christ will be set up, or established at his coming." I am confined to the King James Version. The kingdom question is all he will discuss with me. Their ministers here seem to not want to discuss any other questions with us. This is the same man that I held a discussion with last year, and he says that I beat him but not in a fair way. Pray for me, that with the help of the Almighty God, that I may use the Sword of the Spirit on him freely.

A Pretty Resort.—Winona Assembly Grounds, Eagle Lake, Ind., on Pennsylvania Lines.

A sojourn at Winona Assembly Grounds at Eagle Lake, Ind., near Warsaw, on the Fort Wayne Route, will prove a pleasant outing. This delightful resort is the site of the youngest of the Chautauqua assemblies, and its attractions combine facilities for recreation, entertainment, instruction and devotion.

Eagle Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, surrounded by several hundred acres of romantic woodland which covers one stretch of nearly two miles. The lake affords opportunity for aquatic pastimes, the hunting, bathing and fishing being excellent. In addition to numerous rowboats there are several pleasure steamers on the lake.

The shady grounds are occupied by many pretty cottages and summer homes of persons who annually enjoy the beauties of the place, strengthening body in the invigorating atmosphere and enriching the mind by the special advantages the summer school offers.

A fine park has been laid out on the shore of the lake. A large auditorium, amphitheatro, college halls, hotels and restaurant have also been constructed on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. There is also a race track and space set aside for out-door athletic sports.

In addition to the Presbyterian General Assembly which will be in session on the Assembly Grounds from May 20th to June 2nd, a number of other large meetings will be held on the grounds during the summer of 1897, including the Indiana State Sunday School Convention, Western Association of Writers, Indiana State W. C. T. U., Indiana Y. M. C. A. Encampment, National Medical Society, Boys' Brigade, and Indiana State Christian Endeavor Convention.

Excursion tickets to Eagle Lake will be on sale via Pennsylvania Lines during the summer season. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be ascertained by addressing the nearest Passenger or Ticket Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines, or by applying to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Full information concerning the Assembly and Summer School, cost of entertainment, etc., may be secured upon application to Secretary Sol. C. Dickey, Eagle Lake, Ind.—June 19.

The more a Christian enjoys of his God, the more he desires others to enjoy the same.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

An Artistic Brochure entitled "Summer Outings" is published by the Nickel Plate Road describing vacation resorts along that line. Address B. F. Horner, General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, Ohio., for a copy.—July 15.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those searching for truth. 16 pages, 5 cents each.

QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS, AND THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 96 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Hell and kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

A PARABOLIC BATTLEFIELD, OR ERROR'S WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Cusant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Heiserd, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Persevere.

Cries—indeed beginnings are,
They but increase our pain.
The noble plan is, when we trail,
To rise and try again.
No matter how a storm may rage,
Let love a calmic rear,
And, as we gaze, our eye shall be,
"Look up and persevere."

The Book of Esther.—Chap. 9.

1. For in the twelfth month on the thirteenth of the month, which is Adar, the things written by the king arrived:

2. The same day those in opposition to the Jondaimns perished; for no one withstood for fear of them:

3. For the rulers of the satrapies and the petty-rulers and the royal-scribes were honoring the Jondaimns; the fear of Mardochaios moreover was lying upon them:

4. For the decree of the king had made him a notable one in all the kingdom (verse 5 omitted in text).

6. And in the city Sousa, the Jondaimns slew five hundred men,

7. Namely Pharganmos and Delphoun and Phasga,

8. And Pharadatha and Baren, Saraka,

9. And Marmasima and Bromphares, and Arsaios and Zabanthaios,

10. The ten sons of Aman of Amadathos, a Bougaite, the enemy of the Jondaimns; and they took plunder.

11. The same day: and the number of those who had perished in Sousa was delivered to the king;

12. And the king said unto Esther, the Jondaimns have destroyed in the city Sousa five hundred men and in the surrounding country how dost thou think they have been used? What further then dost thou request and it shall be thine.

13. And Esther said unto the king: Let it be granted unto the Jondaimns to use the morrow in this wise, so that they may hang the ten sons of Aman.

14. And he allowed it to occur in this wise, and set forth for the Jondaimns of the city to hang the bodies of the sons of Aman.

15. And the Jondaimns were gathered together in Sousa on the fourteenth of Adar and slew three hundred men and took no plunder.

16. And the rest of the Jondaimns in the kingdom were gathered together and helped themselves, and found rest from those worrying against them; for they destroyed of them fifteen thousand on the thirteenth of Adar and took no plunder:

17. And they rested on the fourteenth of the same month, and kept it as a day of rest with joy and rejoicing.

18. And the Jondaimns in the city Sousa were gathered together also on the fourteenth and rested, and they kept the fifteenth also with joy and rejoicing.

19. Accordingly therefore the Jondaimns dispersed in every country outside keeping the fourteenth of Adar as a good day with rejoicing, sending portions each one to his neighbor.

20. And Mardochaios wrote these words in a book, and sent to the Jondaimns, as many as were in the kingdom of Artaxerxes near and far,

21. To establish these days as good days and to keep both the fourteenth and fifteenth of Adar,

22. For on these days the Jondaimns found rest from their enemies; and all the month which was Adar, in which for them it was turned from sorrow to joy and from woe to a good day, that they should keep it as good days for marriages and resting, sending portions in distribution to their friends and the poor.

23. And the Jondaimns accepted even as Mardochaios wrote to them,

24. How Aman of Amadathos, the Macedonian, warred against them even as he had obtained a majority vote to do and cast a lot to destroy them,

25. And how he had entered in unto the king, saying that he should hang Mardochaios; and how all that he had put his hand unto to bring upon the Jondaimns of evil things came upon him, and how he and his children were hung.

26. Therefore these days were called watch-days, because of the lots, because in their dialect they are called watch-days, because of the words of this epistle, and all that they suffered by reason of these things and all that occurred to them;

27. And he established them and the Jondaimns accepted them for themselves and for their seed, and for those set over them, nor shall they use otherwise; but these days shall be kept as a perfected memorial generation after generation, and in every city, native land and country.

28. Yea, these days of the watch-days shall be kept for all time, and the memorial of them shall not leave off from the generations.

29. And Esther, the queen, the daughter of Amminadab, and Mardochaios, the Jondaim, wrote all that they had done, and the certitude of the epistle of the watch-days.

30. And Mardochaios and Esther, the queen, instituted them for themselves, and then Esther, after they had instituted them for their own health and counsel instituted them by word forever, and it was written for a memorial.

CHAPTER 10.

1. And the king wrote in respect to his kingdom of the land and sea,

2. And of his strength and manly virtue, and of the wealth and glory of his kingdom: Lo, it hath been written in a book of kings of Persians and Medes for a memorial.

3. And Mardochaios succeeded king Artaxerxes and was great in the kingdom and glorified by the Jondaimns; and being loved as a friend he was accustomed to discourse of his leading unto all his nation, and Mardochaios said,—

These things came to pass from God; For I remembered about the dream-vision which I saw concerning these words. For not even a word of them failed, the little fountain that became a river, and there was light and a sun and much water. Esther, whom the king married and made queen, is the river, and the two dragons are myself and Aman; and the nations that were gathered together to destroy the name of the Jondaimns: and my nation, this is Israel, that called unto God for help and were saved.

And the Lord saved his laity, and the Lord delivered us from out all our calamities; and God caused the signs and the great prodigies that have not occurred among the nations. Therefore he caused two lots, one for the laity of God and one for all the nations; and these two lots came unto an hour and an appointed time, and a day of judicial-trial in the sight of God and for all the nations; and God remembered his laity and justified his inheritance.

And these days shall be for them in the month of Adar on the fourteenth and fifteenth of the month with synagogue and joy and rejoicing in the sight of God generation after generation forever in his laity Israel.

In the fourth year of Ptolemaios and Kleopatra, Dositheos, who said he was a priest and Levite, and Ptolemaios, his son, brought in the foregoing epistle of the Phrourai (watch-days) which they said it was, and that Lasimachos of Ptolemaios in Hierousalem had interpreted it.

END OF ESTHER.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Dear Restitution:

Now comes Mother H. B. Carter and opens the meeting. We can almost see the tears of joy streaming down her cheeks as we hear her say "I love our heavenly Father and all of his children. I am waiting, waiting for the Lord to come." Who can estimate the difference between Sister Carter living with such a hope as she testifies to and a person without hope and without God in the world.

S. C. and E. B. Oliver: "Thirty long years we have waited and watched for the Lord's return. When we by the eye of faith see the earth ruled in immortal beauty, all sin and evil removed, the garden of Eden restored, the tree of life, with its life giving fruit and the river of crystal waters of life flowing from beneath the throne of God. How long we have waited for that time to come." I sometimes think that all true followers of the Master will in time become poets. This brother and sister have spent thirty years in his service and in telling of it their hearts seem to overflow with love and poetical expressions which live the hearts of all who read them.

S. V. Regal: "I feel constrained to say: 'Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me praise his holy name, for his wonderful Gift to the children of men.'"

Sister Jennie Selleck: "I am still looking for the Lord's soon coming. O how I long for that day to come, it will bring so much good to the world."

Dr. J. E. Hollis: "Brethren, the Master saith, 'If you love me keep my commandments,' upon which hangs the promises everlasting. Therefore let us be faithful."

Albert Siple: "I think obedience to this command of Christ, to love one another, will bring more true happiness than anything else we can do."

Fanny Norbury: "When I read the good letters in THE RESTITUTION it cheers my drooping spirit and encourages me to fight on until we meet in the kingdom."

C. J. Johnson: "I praise the Lord that he opened my eyes, and inclined my heart to submit myself to him."

D. F. and Catharine Miller: "It makes my heart rejoice when I read so many good letters from the household of faith."

Eliza and J. W. Simpson: "Dear brothers and sisters, just as we desire to abide in Christ and desire him to love us, we should love each other."

John W. Hull: "Dear brothers and sisters, words and my pen fail to express the love that I have for my brothers and sisters in Christ."

Jno. C. Venable: "The letter drawer is a great satisfaction to ponder, and to hear from afar off ones, who hold the truth in its purity."

John and Mary Allard: "What a grand position. Let us cultivate the fruits of the Spirit that we may all have an abundant entrance into the everlasting and peaceful kingdom."

J. and Lizzie Anthony: "Now good bye, and God grant to give us courage to stand firmly for the truth."

John and Cynthie Claypool: "We are still waiting and watching and hoping for the coming of our Savior and King."

"G. W. and A. S. Bennge: "The dear RESTITUTION, it brings glad tidings."

Roxy Allen: "I feel it a privilege to write to the 'love-feast.' I love to read the letters from the dear brothers and sisters."

Abbie and Oliver Stanley: "We too would like to join in the 'love-feast.'"

Mary M. French: "I think it a privilege to testify for my Master, to say that I am looking and watching for his return to set up his kingdom and reign in righteousness."

Mrs. C. W. Russell: "Let us mind the trials and temptations of this age live like men who wait for the Lord."

Mrs. W. B. Wolfe: "May the Church arise and adorn herself for the coming of the Bridegroom draweth nigh."

J. B. Lent: "Our hearts say, 'Come Lord Jesus, and come quickly.'"

Oscar and Mary Garton: "We are still looking and hoping for the soon coming of Christ."

D. D. Vincent and wife: "It is our most earnest desire to so live, that when the faithful ones are gathered together we may not be left out."

C. and D. T. Scoly: "We have the privilege of once more writing and sending our Christmas greetings. We remember with what pleasure and profit we read the many good letters of THE RESTITUTION last Christmas, and they gave us new life and desire to press forward."

J. F. Pierson: "THE RESTITUTION is always a welcome visitor, the short letters of the dear brothers and sisters are a great help in these hard, dark times."

Many of the children have already manifested their interest in the affairs of the family by their several testimonies. A child is never too young to testify its love for its mother and father. What a beautiful smile of love dimples its little chin and spreads all over its rosy face in appreciation of the gentle words of the mother or the kindly welcome of the father. Oh how beautiful, how sweet is childhood.

How many times have we, with our minds lifted to heaven, repeated the prayer "Our Father who art in heaven," and still do we fully realize the full meaning of the prayer? Yes, God is our Father, the church is our mother and we are the children. The family is complete, Father, mother and children. Are we obedient to the Father, kind and considerate to the mother and loving and hopeful to the other children? We must remember that there is a time coming when the books will be opened and the record we have made will be, not only seen and read by each of us, but the angels will be there, Jesus will be there and our neighbors will be there. The good we have done will make little green spots along the highway of life, which will indeed be beautiful to look upon and contemplate after we shall have reached the gates of the New Jerusalem. "The love-feast" which we are now enjoying, will constitute one of these green spots to all who participate in it.

R. S. DAWKINS.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the one Faith and Hope:

I am one of those who are looking for the soon coming of the great King to reign on the throne of his father David. My hope is firmly based on the unshakable promises of God, who cannot lie, that he will send Jesus back to rescue, comfort and redeem his long tried and waiting children. Pray for me that I may be an overcomer, and meet you one and all in the morning of the resurrection,

MARGARET ANDREWS.

Dear Restitution:

And the dear ones of the one hope greeting. We are striving to be overcomers, husband and I, and we are looking and watching for our blessed Savior and pray that whenever he comes we may be ready to be caught up into the air and be forever with the Lord. We have some Christians here who declare that Christ's kingdom is set up. I think it is a very corrupt kingdom, and not the blessed and glorious kingdom the Bible tells me to hope for. I am looking and longing for a kingdom wherein is righteousness and not fraud, and every kind of evil that we see every day and when men shall learn war no more, and there will be no more sorrow or death or famine, for the desert shall blossom as the rose, and thank God when Christ reigns we shall reign also, if we are faithful. O dear brothers and sisters, is it not worth striving for? O that we one and all may so live that an abundant entrance may be administered unto us into his everlasting kingdom.

May his kingdom soon come is the prayer of your Brother and Sister,

JAMES & ELLEN CROUD.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Inclosed find post office order for two dollars to pay for my paper, which is over due some time since. I confess that I have been negligent about paying, time passes so rapidly. I am here alone with my Bible and RESTITUTION so I cannot do without the paper. It is time for the people of God to watch the passing events that are taking place in the world, war and preparation by all the nations on the earth for war. Patriotism is the great question before the kings and potentates of the world. When the king of the South, Turkey shall rush at the king of the North, (Russia) as Daniel says, he will by the last link in the chain of prophecy before the coming of the Son of Man. The letters from brethren and sisters that I get in THE RESTITUTION are so in harmony, all of the same mind, hoping for the same things. It is the same hope that Abraham had based on the promises of God, the only promises that God has ever made to man. And if we are Christ's then are we Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise to Abraham. Let us all watch and pray for ourselves and for one another is my prayer.

Yours in hope,

JACKSON WALKER.

Dear Restitution:

I will say to you that I do hunger and thirst after righteousness, and it seems that I cannot feed myself fast enough. THE RESTITUTION and the Bible are the only teachers I have. When I read the piece in your last paper entitled "Faith" I read it again and again. It seemed to show me why I had never become a Christian because I am no scholar in history of any kind. I would like to read a piece on prophecy and its fulfillment. Would like to see Rev. i. 7 and xx. 5 harmonized. I would like to know what is necessary to know, believe and understand, and do before obeying the Word.

Yours respectfully,

L. J. SWEET

Dear Restitution:

We cannot do without the paper. It is such a comfort and encouragement, the many letters from the brethren and sisters, and especially Bro. Gardner's translations and the many articles, from Brothers Joblin, Hatch Wilson, and Wines, and many more, and Sisters Wince, Palmer, Howard and others. May the choicest of our Father's blessings rest upon them is my prayer. I will say to the household of faith, wife and I are still firm in the faith, and doing what we can to proclaim the truth to a dying people. I have been called Elder G. W. Smith for thirty years, and for years was a brother to Elder Smith of Chicago. But, oh how thankful I am that my eyes were opened to the truth. Hoping soon to be able to clasp hands with all the people of God, we remain your Brother and Sister in Christ,

G. W. SMITH.

P. S. Will some one tell us trough THE RESTITUTION who the Bride, the Lamb's wife will be?

Dear Restitution:

We would be very lonely without our dear paper, as it is all the gospel we have but the Bible. It is so full of interest to all readers. It is meat in due season for all the household of faith. I am sure God will ever furnish the light to brighten the pathway of his Church, as long as she walks with him. And may his richest blessings fall upon our dear paper until the Lord comes.

Your Sister in the true faith,

KATIE BLACK.

Dear Brother Underwood:

I thought I would have written you before now, but I have been working on the farm and have not had time to write. I gave away all those papers you sent me. Everybody liked them, but the people are too poor to pay 25 cents for it 3 months. The doctrine of the restitution of all things will be received here by the honest in heart and mind. I have a great deal to bear now. The Advents in Alabama say I am teaching false doctrine when I teach the age to come, or the doctrine held by THE RESTITUTION published at Plymouth, Indiana. Well, I will say it is what I believe, and I say that the Advents will not meet me in debate on the points of doctrine we differ on. We have two small churches in this State and I have a call to preach at an Advent church this month. I think they will accept the name of the Church of God and the doctrine held to by THE RESTITUTION. Well, brother editor, if you will send me the paper I will pay for it this fall. I am just too poor to pay 25 cents for it 3 months. We are very poor in the South, the hard times are upon us. We as a farming class never have money but one season in the year, so you see we cannot pay now. We will pay this fall when we sell our cotton. Please send it to Summit, Blount Co., Ala.

Please send me some good tracts to hand out and oblige a Brother hoping and looking for the restitution of all things,

J. W. [illegible]

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Plea for a Conference.

To Whom This May Concern:

Brothers and Sisters in Christ of the State of Illinois, I want to ask the question, Are we asleep? Why don't we have a conference and get some preachers in the field to work? We have not had any preaching for over a year. Brothers and sisters, I think that we could have a confere ce if we would go to work, and by so doing we could get a preacher. Say three or four small churches, as close as they could get go together and hire a preacher, that would make it light on all hands. Dear brothers and sisters, I would like for the secretary of each church in the State to send the number of members to THE RETTITUTION so we could know whether or not we could have a conference. Let us be up and doing while it is day for the night is coming. Let us work in the vineyard of the Lord for the time is short. Let every one improve the talent that they have. Let us all have the same faith, and all put our shoulder to the wheel and the car will move. Of course there will be some time and means required to have a conference, but the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof. I would like to hear from the brothers. Address me at Silverton, Ill.

Your Brother,

B. F. WOODS.

Dear Restitution:

I would like to ask the brothers and sisters of the one faith of Southern Illinois, to come together and have conference work. The brethren of Ingerham, Ill., were up to see us and want the brethren of Mount Moriah, Ill., to help with this work. Now, dear ones of the blessed hope, let us all take part. We are willing here at Moriah, Ill., to do our part. Let us hear a word from you through the blessed RESTITUTION. If you think we can come together and you are willing to help in this good work. If so, speak out. Write me at Moriah, Ill.

Your Brother in Christ,

J. E. BRANT.

Words for the Tract Fund.

Editor Restitution:

In THE RESTITUTION of May 26th Bro. Wilcox asked that there be a fund started for tracts that much good could be done. The Church of God at Salem wish to help with the cause, and think that such tracts as Bro. Joblin's and Jones' should be read wherever there can a person be found that will read them. We send one dollar and forty cents to help with the fund, and if the fund can be established will try to send a sum monthly for that purpose. May the Lord bless Bro. Wilcox in his labor, and all who are striving for the cause of the Master.

ELLA F. KNOWLES.

Dear Restitution:

Please find enclosed money order to pay for my RESTITUTION for another year, and the balance you can use for the tract fund. It is not much but I thought I must help a little for the cause. I can say to the brothers and sisters, that I am still enjoying the love feast. It is a feast I never get tired of, such good encouraging letters and sermons that come from the brothers and sisters through the dear old RESTITUTION helps to cheer me on my way as I am all alone here in my faith.

Your Sister in hope,

MARY A. VERMILLION.

Editor Restitution:

I will herewith send $2.00 for the tent fund of Kansas and Missouri, and fifty cents for the tract fund, if there is one started, which I hope there will be, and if not put the other fifty cents to the tent fund. I expect to comply with Bro. Wilcox's request, namely, to lay by a nickle each week for a tract fund.

ELIZA A. RAHE.

Blessed is the memory of those who have kept themselves unspotted from the world. Yet more blessed and more dear the memory of those who have kept themselves unspotted in the world.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF.
Directors of the C. P. Association.

H. JORLIN, Corresponding Editor.
PLYMOUTH, IND., JUNE 23, 1897.

As there are five Wednesdays in this month, our next issue will bear date July 7.

WE are still sending THE RESTITUTION to trial subscribers for 25 cents. A good way to do missionary work.

WE received a P. O. Order for $1.00 from Eureka, Wis., with no name. Will the party please send us their name.

AGAIN we have good news to report for the Plymouth church. Five more willing souls have taken upon themselves the name of the Master by baptism, and on Sunday, June 20, were received into full membership with this church. May they prove faithful, and receive in the end everlasting life.

MARRIED.

At the Church of the Blessed Hope, Woodland Av., Cleveland, Ohio, Bro. Thos. E. Gildas and Adaline A. Blick, both of Cleveland. Nearly two hundred brethren, sisters and friends witnessed the interesting event; and judging by the number of useful presents made to them, they must be highly esteemed by their acquaintances. Both have been raised in the truth; both have been obedient believers for several years; both have been working in the Sunday School; and both having been mindful of the injunction to marry only in the Lord, it is with much assurance we hope that their barque may be safely guided over the ocean of life, and crowns of glory be theirs at last.

Jewish Restoration.

Father Ignatius addressed a Jewish meeting in London, recently. He said: "There is but one home for the Jews, and it was Palestine—the Holy Land which was the home of Israel's prophets, and heroes, and kings, and poets and law-givers. At the present time when the Eastern Question was exercising the powers it seemed a natural solution of the difficulty that Palestine should be given back to the Jews. And if it were not, then the wealthy Jews—the Princes in Israel—should buy back the land.....Let them give back to the Jews their home. They had a right to it.—it was God's gift to them. The rich Jews should give of their property to help this cause, to remove the inhumane sufferings of Russian persecution, and he offered his chosen meed of praise to the Chovevi Zion Association for its pioneer work. The Providence of him who had guided and chosen Israel was manifested for this great work. The Jews were roused as never before for 2000 years, and politics were rendering the scheme possible. The workings of Providence showed that the time for the return was at hand. Palestine is your home. Stir yourselves up, agitate, work, labor for your cause. I know such a man as Mr. Gladstone is a friend of this movement. You can realize this scheme. I have thought of a motto for your cause, "Israel reestablished, Jerusalem restored, peace and glory to the world!"

The Tract Fund.

A few weeks ago, Brother J. F. Wilcox made a plea through THE RESTITUTION for tracts to be used in connection with tent work. Some have sent money for this purpose, we are glad to say, as this is a work that has been neglected. We have many calls at this office for papers, tracts and books which we would gladly fill if we were financially able to do so. We are now sending several copies of the RESTITUTION to those unable to pay, and never stop the paper if we are informed that the parties really want it. Our friends have aided us in this work through the "Helping Fund," and we thank them for it, but for all that we have more calls than this fund covers. We are now going to start a "Tract Fund," and we hope it will be the means of carrying the truth into many homes. A popular writer in speaking of the usefulness of tracts says: "It is my conviction, that more will have to be done through the press.....Tracts can go everywhere. Tracts know no fear. Tracts never tire. Tracts never die. Tracts can be multiplied without end by the press. Tracts can travel at little expense. They run up and down like the angels of God, blessing all, giving to all, and asking no gift in return. They can talk to one as well as to a multitude and to a multitude as well as to one. They require no public room to tell their story in. They can tell it in the kitchen or the shop, the parlor or the closet, in the railway carriage, or in the omnibus, on the broad highway, or in the footpath through the fields. They take no note of scoffs, or jeers, or taunts. No one can betray them into hasty or random expressions. Though they will not always answer questions, they will tell their story twice or thrice, or four times over, if you wish them. And they can be made to speak on every subject, and on every subject they may be made to speak wisely and well. They can in short, be made vehicles of all truth, the teachers of all classes, the benefactors of all lands. Christian reader, what are you doing for the Lord in this promising field of happy service? You profess to love him. If your profession be truthful, will it not lead you to work for him? You cannot say you can do nothing. Every one can do something; and God can use the weakest things to accomplish the most glorious results. A tract handed to a neighbor, may be, through God's grace, a blessing to him than the wealth of the whole world. Work then, whatever and wherever you can, and pray for a blessing on every message and tidings that you send."

Isaiah ii. 3.

In a recent Christian Visitor a Mr. Jeff Eveman asks his brother, W. A. Crum, to explain whether the above passage refers to the law of Moses as going forth from Zion, or if it be some other law. Mr Crum answers, "Not the law of Moses evidently, but the law of the spirit of life, Rom. viii. 2, or the perfect law of liberty," as it is called by James i. 25, and ii. 12, is. I THINK, the law referred to in Micah iv. 2, and Isaiah ii. 3. "The reasons for so thinking are, The time, the last days. The place, Zion, and all nations would be present, and many nations should be joined to the Lord in that day," Zech. ii. 11; and because Peter in Acts ii. 16, 17 identifies the time as that predicted by Joel.

Bro. J. N. Daviz of Miss. rightly says Mr. Crum has "gotten things badly mixed," and asks us to make some strictures upon his explanation. And

1. We are glad that Mr. Crum only THINKS he has the key to the subject, and may possibly think otherwise, if shown the untenableness of his positions. Of course Mr. C. has a reason for his thinking, and the reason for thinking as he does, is, that it agrees with one of the fundamental doctrines of his denomination, viz, that the "Church of God is

THE KINGDOM OF GOD,

and was set upon the day of Pentecost." We have no doubt the gentleman would admit this. And so, but for that denominational shortsightedness he would have commenced reading at the 1st verse of the second chapter of Isaiah and found out what the Word of the Lord about to follow related to, namely Judah and Jerusalem. He would then have been ready to consider what was to happen to Judah and Jerusalem in the last day: the first event being that "the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and should be exalted above the hills, and shall flow unto it." In order not to make mistakes we must ascertain what the "Lord's house" is, and then find out what the mountain of the Lord's house is. We have the proof in Zech. vii. 2, and in the words of Jesus Matt. xii. 4 that under the law the Temple was called the House of God. That house disappeared with Jerusalem. But for all that read in 1 Tim. iii. 15, and Heb. x. 21 that

GOD NOW HAS A HOUSE,

with a High Priest over it, and that "the CHURCH of the living God" is the HOUSE of God." As there is only ONE God, the God whose house is the Church, in 1 Tim. iii. 15, is the Lord of Is. ii. 2; and it follows, that the HOUSE of God in 1 Tim. iii. 15 is the HOUSE of the Lord in Isaiah ii. 2. And this conducts us to the fact that in the last day the once presented unto banishment and death, are to have a mountain; and that the mountain owned by the Lord's HOUSE or Church, is to be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto IT. [i. e. the mountain, the Lord's House, or Church]. But what is this mountain to be owned by the Lord's House? It is vast ELEVATION OF EARTH'S SURFACE?

THE CHURCH OF GOD

We answer, not and proceed to prove it. Speaking of the same subject, Daniel in chapter 2, verses 31, 35 says that a stone cut out without hands is to smite the image (which represents the human governments) and became a great mountain, and fill the whole earth; and in the explanation which follows, we are told at verse 44 that which the God of heaven is to set up. That is to do the smiting,—in fact, is to break in pieces and consume all the existing kingdoms of men, and stand forever. This is conclusive evidence that it is God's kingdom which is called a great mountain in v. 35, and fills the whole earth. But Is. ii. 2 speaks of the mountain of the Lord's House, which we understand to mean that it will BELONG to the Lord's House, which is the Church, as already proven. It now becomes necessary to prove that the kingdom which the God of heaven is to set up, and which is called a great mountain which will be taken—yea, actually seized and possessed by the Saints of the Most High, who, all will admit, compose the Church or House of God. Happily the same prophet supplies this evidence in his seventh chapter. At the 18th verse we are told in the most unequivocal terms that the saints take the kingdom and even for ever and ever. And the 27th verse says the kingdom and dominion and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heavens shall be given to the saints of the Most High whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him. As the stone smites the image, and becomes a great mountain and fills the earth, and the kingdom to be given the saints, is to be under the whole heaven which is equivalent to saying it will OCCUPY ALL THE TERRITORY.

IT IS A KINGDOM

FILLS THE WHOLE EARTH

POSSESS IT FOR EVER,

We have infallible evidence that the MOUNTAIN is the KINGDOM, and the Church, or House of the Lord will possess it. But what next? There is a good deal that Mr. Crum overlooks. This mountain belonging to the saints after given to them, see v. 27, is to be established in the top of the mountains, and exalted above the hills, and all nations shall flow unto it. As God's kingdom is called a Great Mountain, other large kingdoms of men are here styled mountains, but the mountain of God's House [illegible] exalt above the top of the [illegible] mounts"—Young's Translation. Hills are much less than mountains, and doubtless refer to the smaller governments or

KINGDOMS TO BE BROKEN

and consumed; in a word, both great and small kingdoms give place to God's Mountain or Kingdom. Nothing like this happened at the first Pentecost after the crucifixion, in Judah or Jerusalem. Instead of breaking in pieces and consuming all the existing kingdoms of men, within forty years Jerusalem and the temple were entirely destroyed, hundreds of thousands of Judah's sons and daughters were slain, others sold into slavery and the rest were SCATTERED THE WIDE WORLD OVER.

And those who believed the gospel of Christ only escaped by heeding the warning of Jesus and fleeing to Pella when Jerusalem was first compassed with armies. I cannot think, under such circumstances, that Jesus expected that the mountain of the Lord's House, in fulfillment of Isa. ii., would be established upon the top of the mountains and exalted above the hills,—if he did he was woefully disappointed. Be it remembered this is about not the preaching of the gospel at Pentecost. Mr. Crum must surely forget that Jesus was born to be king of the Jews; must forget that Gabriel told Mary that "the Lord God would give her Son the throne of his father David, and he should reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there should be no end." The promise to Mary is in harmony with Is. ii. 2, 3, the birth of Jesus being the initial step toward the fulfillment of that prediction, but completed only when he returns from the far country where he has gone to receive the kingdom, see Luke xix. 12, and the tabernacle of David which has fallen down, and builds up again the ruins thereof and sets it up. See Acts xv. 16, 17. Mr. Crum must have overlooked the fact stated by Peter immediately after Pentecost, Acts iii. 19, 20, 21 that God shall send Jesus Christ to earth again, when the time comes to

JUDAH AND JERUSALEM,

BUILDS AGAIN

RESTORE ALL THINGS

God's prophets have said should be restored, and this embraces the subject matter of Isaiah ii. 2, 3, 4. Mr. Crum fails to see that God foresaw the rejection of Jesus by his people, a thousand years before he was born, and invited him to a seat at his right hand until his enemies are made his footstool, and saying that his people—the Jews—who rejected him when he was shall be willing for him to reign over them in the day of his power. And adds the significant information, that at THAT TIME he shall send the rod of his strength out of Zion, and rule in the midst of his enemies, and strike through Lues in the day of his wrath, and wound the heads (Rulers, such as emperors, kings, governors, presidents, etc.) over many countries. Mr. Crum seems to take no account of Jesus' promise to the 12 apostles in Matt. xix. 28, that when he sits upon the

A MAN OF SORROWS

THRONE OF GLORY PROMISED HIM,

then shall each sit upon a throne and rule a tribe of Israel. We are aware that the denomination to which the gentleman belongs, teaches that they are reigning over the so-called spiritual Israel, meaning the church, now, by their writings, and so forth. But the fact that some 30 years after Pentecost, we are told in Heb. x. 13 that Jesus was still seated on the right hand of God expecting [waiting] till his enemies be made his footstool is that at that writing, he was not yet upon his throne; and if he has received it since about the year 64 we have not heard of it; if Mr. Crum has, he should kindly give us the testimony. As surely as he is still in heaven, he is still on his Father's throne—see the distinction in Rev. iii. 21, between what he calls his throne, and his Father's throne. And this last Scripture proves most conclusively, that more than 60 years after Pentecost, Jesus had not been seated

INFALLIBLE PROOF

UPON HIS OWN THRONE YET.

And it is HIS OWN THRONE, not his Father's, that he promises to share with the overcomers. See text last cited. These are stubborn facts,—and the next question is, Can Mr. Crum or any one else show that Jesus has taken the throne of glory promised him, since about the year 96? If not, he is as he was when the Epistle to the Hebrews was written, and that means that the kingdom has not been set up; the kingdom we are taught to pray for has not yet come, because JESUS has not come; and his coming or appearing and kingdom are to be simultaneous, 2 Tim. iv. 1; and Matt. xxv. 31 tells exactly when Jesus shall sit upon the throne of his glory; it is when he COMES in glory. His throne is to be

[illegible] EXPECTING IT,

HERE ON EARTH.

If Jesus' Word can be depended upon, inasmuch then, as Psa. ii. 3 informs us that "many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the HOUSE of the God of Jacob; and he [the Lord] will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths," inasmuch as people far and near—many people—all nations talk and act that way, they will certainly have found out that he has come in his glory as he said he would, Matt. xxv. 31. And we hold that the news of his presence on his throne to-day, would by to-morrow be flashed from one end of the earth to the other. If he is enthroned,—if his kingdom has been set up, where is it? If the kingdom came Pentecost

WHAT HAS IT DONE?

Do all nations flow to Jerusalem, as all the States flow to Washington as the place where the Word of the Executive goes forth, and the laws for the nation are enacted? If not, then it is a tremendous mistake to say the kingdom was set up at Pentecost. After a supposed reign of near 1900 years what do we find as the result of his rule, and his rebuke of many people? Have they beaten their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks? Have nations ceased to lift up sword against each other, and ceased to LEARN THE ART OF KILLING?

If not, then either Isaiah was a false prophet, or else Mr. Crum's thinking on this subject is altogether out of harmony with truth. The fact that death destroying implements were never so numerous,—never so destructive,—the fact that the continent of Europe, with its 20,000,000 of armed men is called a vast military camp, furnish the proof that Mr. Crum has been switched off the track of truth by a human theory, that calls the church the kingdom of God, and makes it necessary to read Matt. v. 5 as follows: "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit heaven," instead of "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the EARTH," as Jesus said. Mr. Crum's First, Second, and Third, "The Last Days;" "Zion;" "All nations shall be present," entirely fail to prove that the kingdom of God was to be set up at Pentecost, or that the LAW of Isaiah ii. 3 refers to the law of the Spirit of life.

The gentleman says we are now in the midst of the Last days. That being so, there would be still time in the last days for the setting up of the kingdom of God, and therefore the words "Last Days do not prove what he supposes. Second, Zion was called the

and it is David's throne that is promised to Jesus, and Acts xv. and Amos ix. teaches that he is coming again to build David's tabernacle as in the days of old. So we hold Zion to be the place but it is not the place now but will be. The proof that the word and law of the Lord referred to by Isaiah, was not the word and law it is supposed to be by Mr. Crum, is furnished by the fact, that neither the

SOL NOR LAW GOES FORTH FROM THENCE

now. It is

AN EVER-LASTING KINGDOM

that is to be set up then. Neither the Roman nor all the nations combined could have destroyed the capitol of the kingdom promised to be set up. We must remind Mr. Crum that Isaiah is writing about Judah and Jerusalem. He will never be routed out of the seat of his government and obliged to move it to heaven. Third.

ALL NATIONS

were not at Pentecost, as Mr. Crum supposes. The imaginary proof reads in Alexander Campbell's translation, as follows: "Now there were sojourning in Jerusalem pious men, Jews from every nation under heaven; and when this report [about the miraculous gifts of the apostles] came abroad, the multitude assembled, and were confounded, for every one heard them speaking in his own dialect. And they were all astonished and wondered, saying, one to another, Behold! are not all these that speak, Galileans? and how do we every one hear in his own native language? Parthians and [illegible], and Elamites, and those that inhabit Mesopotamia, and Judea, and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, Phrygia, and Pamphilia, Egypt and the parts of Africa which are about Cyrene, Roman strangers also, both Jews and proselytes, ALL Jews, except some proselytes from Rome.

Conference Report.

According to previous announcement the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith in Indiana convened at Antioch Meeting House, June 11, and continued over the following Sunday. Bro. Wagoner preached Friday evening. On Saturday Bro. Wince preached in the forenoon. Bros. Smith and Oppy in the afternoon and Bro. Conner in the evening. Bro. Reed arrived in the evening, preached Sunday A. M. In the afternoon the communion service was conducted by Bros. Wince and Wagoner; preaching again in the evening by Bro. Reed. There seemed to be no business to bring before the meeting hence the conference proper was not called. A slight error occurred in last report in regard to a P. O. received from Bro. J. S. Hatch, which was $1.00 instead of $1.50 as reported. The weather was fine for the occasion, consequently a very large crowd of people were there on Sunday, some thought more than had ever been before. The preaching was good and generally well received, perhaps some things were presented which all could not concur in, which would only be natural, but they came from earnest hearts and were presented for the good and edification of all. There were seven from a distance, Bro. Conner, wife and little one from Rossville, Ill.; Bro. H. V. Reed from Chicago accompanied by Sister E. A. Allen, editor of The Light; Bro. Oppy and Bro. Chas. Oestermeire and wife of Fort Wayne; also Bro. J. H. Willey, and Bro. and Sister Wince. There were no additions, yet we trust the truth may have found lodgment in some honest hearts and will bring forth fruit in due season.

A real Christian seldom sees a defect in his neighbor. A pure lake reflects the beautiful sky, the clouds, and the whole overhanging trees; but when it is ruffled, it reflects nothing that is pure. A bad man seldom sees a good trait in his neighbor. An imperfect glass seldom reflects anything correctly, but shows its own deficiency. A perfect mirror reflects nothing but bright and pure images.

Fourth of July Excursions.—Low rates via Pennsylvania Lines.

Excursion tickets will be sold Saturday, Sunday and Monday, July 3d, 4th and 5th, from ticket stations on the Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh to any station on those lines within two hundred miles of selling point. Tickets for adults will not be sold for less than 25 cents, nor for children of less than 15 cts. Excursion tickets will be good returning up to and including Tuesday, July 6th. Poetry.

"O Lord, How Long.

They tell me
Some have heard his mighty chariot wheels
Roar in the distance that the world's salt tears
Are clearing their last furrows in her cheeks.
It may be so; I know not. Oh the ear,
Attent and eager for some coming friend,
Can strain such breeze among the vocal boughs
Into the tokens of his wished approach.
But this I know: he lives, and shall stand
Upon this earth, and round him, thick as waves
That laugh with light at noon, uncounted hosts
Of his redeemed.
O dawn, milk-amid day! Come, blessed morn!
Appear, Desire of nations! send thy heavens
And stand revealed upon thy chosen hill.

[An address by H. V. Rest, delivered at the Annual Antioch Meeting, Sunday morning, June 13, 1897.]

Modern Events in the Light of Prophecy.

More than thirty years ago, I stood in this same place and preached a dedication sermon when this house was dedicated to the worship of the Infinite Father. It was built for the purpose of proclaiming to the world the glorious news that the most illustrious Being that ever appeared to humanity was to come again; that in the two-fold manifestation of Jesus Christ our world was to have two great epochs,—one of discipline, suffering and sorrow, with hope; and the other under a crown of glory which would triumph over all evil, that the earth which once bloomed in beauty, robed in life and light, would emerge from its sorrow and tears, and her hills and valleys would be crowned with life and goodness; the Nazarene who warmed the earth with his blood, and made it sacred by his footsteps and vibrated its air with a voice that was pure, peaceful and forgiving, would bring about a state of glory and victory that would bless mankind.

Since then I have been an active agent in promulgating in the various States of this country the gospel of the kingdom of God; that the period of righteousness and peace, prosperity and victory, would come to humanity. In the principal cities of our nation, in hamlet and village, on the broad prairie, in the forests, on the high ranges of the rugged peaks of the Rocky Mountains, in the far-away plains of Old Mexico, I have visited many places and have never evaded an opportunity to express my faith and my hope in the wonderful victory wrought for humanity through the Nazarene, and that he is coming again in power and great glory to achieve a victory for man through the agency of the kingdom of God.

By request I shall speak to you this morning on the words found in Luke xxi. 24: "They shall fall by the edge of the sword and be led away captives among all nations. And Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."

This verse contains the most marvelous prophecy introduced by the Nazarene during his ministry. The circumstances surrounding his appearance among men were peculiar. The Roman empire was at peace. The battle cry was not heard from one part of the empire to the other. From the German ocean in the West to the waters of the Euphrates in the East; from the Rhine and Danube in the North to the African desert in the South, 165 nations had been brought under the banner of the Roman eagles. Under the dominion of the twelve Cæsars the empire was made strong and vigorous. It was the golden age of the world's history. Augustus had arisen to the eminence of the most illustrious ruler of his times. The temple of war was closed. No war cloud was driven through the skies; no trumpet was heard calling the men of war to arms. A great kingdom had succeeded in the conquest of the world, and peace and prosperity reigned. It was during this calm that the announcement was made from Judean hills in the midnight hour, "Peace on earth and good will to men, for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord."

That period soon gave way to the wonderful trial of the Nazarene, who taught the principles of peace and delivered that immutable sermon on the mount, which has withstood the test of the ages and which is the foundation of all moral and literary excellence. As he commenced his teachings and unfolded the principles of his moral science, as he taught the doctrines of truth and righteousness, plans were on foot that involved his life. But before the conflict came he saw the things that were to come to pass in the earth. The events of the future arose before him. He saw that the empire of peace would be shattered by the rude instruments of war. Jerusalem was then quiet. On this occasion he passed over the little brook Cedron. And as they passed by they saw the rich casting in of their abundance, and a poor widow came and cast in her mite. And he said,

"Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all: for all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God: but she of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had."

Then they came and spoke to Him of the temple, how it was adorned with goodly stones and gifts. The Jewish people were proud of that temple, builded so many years ago and reconstructed under Herodias. As they watched where the Shekinah blazed in effulgent glory, where in the midnight hour the fire from the altar had floated away towards God, Messiah said: "See ye not all these things? Verily I say unto you that not one stone shall be left upon another that shall not be thrown down."

Then as he passed over the brook Cedron into the Mount of Olives, they come unto him and said, "Tell us when these things shall be and what shall be the sign of thy coming and the end of the world, or the consummation of the age. Tell us, for you have aroused our curiosity. There is some thing in your prophecy that looks strange to us.

Forty years elapsed before the first evidence was seen that his prophecy would come true. The Roman empire had gained more strength. The Jews had been kept from revolt only by the power of the Roman army. Now came a crisis to the city. Under Simon and John a rebellion arose against the Roman power and the prophecy of Christ came before them.

The downfall of Jerusalem was not to be brought about by famine, or by pestilence, or by the visitation of outside influence of a supernatural character, but by the power of the sword. War was to come. That prophecy was tied down to one channel. It was a war power that was to destroy Jerusalem and raze the temple to his foundation. Then when the hour came and the Jews rebelled, as the very first step in the line, one Cestius Gallus marched toward Jerusalem, but by some strange impulse he returned. About this time a comet appeared in the form of a sword and hung above the city, in the western sky there were seen chariots flitting to and fro in the heavens. These things were interpreted by the priests and wise men of Judea as indications of the protection of Providence and that the city would be preserved.

The struggle began. The great gate that it took twenty men to open, swung back on its hinges without the aid of man. Voices were heard, "Let thee hence, for God has deserted this house." Time rolled on and in the midst of the struggle a man arose by the name of Jesus, and for seven years each time they came up to their annual feasts, they found him standing and crying out, "Woe to Jerusalem! Woe to Jerusalem!" Many endeavored to compel him to hold his peace, but under the influence of some charitable ones he was allowed to make his proclamation, until as he stood under the tower of Antonia and cried, "Woe unto Jerusalem, and woe unto myself," a stone fell upon him, while crying "Woe unto myself," he died.

There was up to this time a hope on the part of the Jews that they would be preserved. When Titus began his campaign, he issued a proclamation to his generals, "Spare that holy house as a tribute to my triumph. Under no circumstances do you allow its destruction." But the Jews became more and more obstinate. The carnage was awful. They were then on the foot hills of Mount Moriah, and a stream of blood flowed like a river down either hillside. The bodies of the slain were six deep on all sides. Titus saw the struggle and cried out to his soldiers,

"Raze that temple to the ground. Leave not one stone upon another." A Roman soldier flung a torch into one of the upper windows, and soon the curtains of crimson and gold blazed up and the Holy House was on fire. The Jews lost heart. The temple fell and the very stones of the foundation were removed. The cry of Titus to his men, given against his will, fulfilled the prophecy of Christ and not one stone was left upon another.

Here then, according to the historians Tacitus and Eusebius, is the fulfillment of that which was announced by the Nazarene 40 years before. What could be more marvelous in the line of prophetic events than this sublime prophecy?

Jesus said also that they should fall by the edge of the sword and be led away captive into all nations. Was that true? Yes. 1,000,000 Jews were taken captive and scattered through the Roman empire until all the markets of the world were glutted with Jews. The vessels of the holy ministry were taken by Titus from the temple to Rome, and you can go to the old city of Rome today and over the archway that leads to the Senate you will see carved the candlestick with its seven golden branches, and all the vessels of the ministry are carved in marble on the arch under which the Romans passed as they returned in victory. These vessels of the ministry, once taken by Nebuchadnezzar six hundred years before, were taken by Genseric and carried to Carthage and kept there until the time of Justinian. On his return they were carried to Jerusalem, and placed in the church of Saint Sophia, from whence the Jews took them, and when the hour shall come the vessels of the ministry shall be reset ored.

In the year 134 the Jews undertook to rebuild the city. A false Messiah appeared and declared that they could reconstruct Jerusalem, and in this attempt the slaughter of Jews was equal to the days of Titus, and then to prevent the Jews from ever going into the city they carved an image of a hog and placed it over the gate of the city under which no Jew will ever pass, and the name of Jerusalem was blotted from the maps of Asia and changed to Adriana Capitolene, and men were not not allowed to pronounce the name; so complete was the destruction of Jerusalem.

This state of things continued until we reach the period of Julian, the apostate, who declared that the prophecy of Christ was false and he would prove it by restoring the Jews and rebuilding their city. So he sent out a proclamation to the Jews scattered over the empire to return and rebuild their city. They came, and we have the testimony of Gibbon and Suetonius, who declared that there were strange voices heard in the caverns and beneath the hills; balls of fire arose from the very ground. The workmen fled in terror. Jerusalem still continued in ruins, and Julian, as he lay dying exclaimed, "Thou hast conquered, O thou Galilean, Thou hast conquered." It was the end of the attempt to defeat the prophecy of Christ.

We come down to the year 637. Chosroes at the head of the Persian army had succeeded in the capture of Jerusalem. Then came the Saracen conquests, and as Omar the successor of Mohammed entered Jerusalem, Sophronius, the bishop of the church of Saint Sophia cried out, "Truly the abomination spoken of by Daniel the prophet has come to dwell in the Holy Place."

From that hour to this Jerusalem has been trodden under foot of the Gentiles. Nine crusades were formed to free the city from Mohammedan rule. Millions of men were summoned to arms from the various parts of the Catholic kingdoms to be led by their generals to obtain possession of the holy sepulchre. But it had been foretold that Jerusalem should be trodden under foot of the Gentiles forty-two months and no power could defeat the words of Revelation.

Some say that the abomination that maketh desolate is the papal power. But the prophet speaks of the "overspreading of abominations" or overlapping, first one and then another. The Catholic power took possession of the Pantheon of Rome 510. 1260 years from 610 brings us down to 1870 in which year the Pantheon of Rome was restored to the civil authorities. 28 years from that time there will be another crisis in 1898 when the time of the Turk will cease in Palestine.

What are the facts then regarding our times? We read that the woman fled into the wilderness where she hath a place prepared of God that they should feed her for 1260 days. Elijah the prophet, went into the wilderness for 1260 days during the apostasy of Israel, when the land was without rain and Obadiah fed the servants of the Lord hidden in rocks and caves. At the end of that time a cloud came forth from the sea, and there arose cloud after cloud until the whole heavens were filled and the land was blessed with an abundance of rain. The ministry of Christ was 1260 days. The two witnesses were to prophesy in sackcloth 1260 days. The desolation of Jerusalem was to continue for 1260 years. The Mohammedans declare that when they shall have occupied Palestine 1260 years their time will be out. The Rothschilds who are the world's bankers hold a mortgage on Palestine which will mature next year. Is not that a singular thing? An architect some ten years ago drew up a plan of the temple, and the Jews have made every part of it in gold and silver and marble and stone, and it is all completed and ready to be brought together without the sound of a hammer. In Munich there is to be held this month a conference of all the influential Jews of the world to organize for the reestablishment of the nation in Palestine. Railroads have been constructed from Jaffa up to Jerusalem. 50,000 people are in the old city. Synagogues have been established, schools of learning and enterprises of every kind are being conducted. The very old lime stone hills that have been barren so many years are disintegrating and becoming fruitful with foliage. The latter rains have returned. Great storms have continued now for almost three weeks,—something unknown in the history of Jerusalem for centuries. All these things are indications of the approaching change. The Jews have become the world's bankers. The Rothschilds hold in their hands $380,000,000 of silver $1,860,000,000 of gold. What is it for? Turn to Isaiah 60 and we read that the British power, known as Tarshish, is to aid in their return.

"Surely the isles shall wait for me and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the Lord thy God."

Can there be a more ominous period than the one we are living in? The seven times of the Gentiles recorded in Daniel 4 are 2520 years. In the year 626 B. C. Nebuchadnezzar inaugurated the first universal empire of the world. 1260 years from that date brings us down to 637, when the abomination of desolation was placed in the holy place. 1260 from that time brings us to the termination a 1897-1898. We are then approaching the greatest period in the world's history. Do not misunderstand me. I do not say there is any chain of prophetic events that rules the day and hour of the Lord's coming. The measuring lines concern Israel and in connection with the restoration of the Jewish people the Lord Jesus Christ is to make his advent. "The Lord whom ye seek shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant whom ye delight in. Behold he shall come, saith the Lord, but who may abide the day of his coming? or who shall stand when he appeareth?" Mal. iii.

Here then we are on the eve of the grandest epoch the world has ever seen. There is to be a time of trouble when this occurs. It is the time of Jacob's trouble, but he shall be delivered out of it. Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until their times are fulfilled.

What is the condition of Jerusalem today? What is the condition of the European world? Every state in Europe and Asia, every kingdom in the world, is prepared for war upon a scale grander than was ever known before. Twelve million men are in arms in Europe. Go where you will through her cities, through her provinces, and you meet soldiers everywhere,—military camps here and military camps there. Everything is ready for war. Greece is south of Turkey. We read that the king of the South shall push at him. Greece has made its push at the Turk and failed. Then the king of the North shall come against him like a whirlwind with chariots and ships, and shall overthrow and pass over. Russia, the king of the North, will take Constantinople and will hold it as the keys of the sea? The Turk will be driven over to Palestine, and will plant the tabernacles of his palace between the two seas in the glorious holy mountain, but he shall come to his end and none shall help him.

At that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince that standeth for the children of thy people, and there shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation, and at that time thy people shall be delivered every one found written in the book.

It is now the Saturday night of the great week of Gentile times. The sun of her prosperity is going down and night becoming on. On the other hand there is the gleaming light of the rising Sun of righteousness coming forth with healing in its beams, to drive away clouds. "For as the lightning cometh out of the East and shineth even unto the West so shall the coming of the Son of Man be." "When ye shall see these things come to pass know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." There are two great proclamations before the world. We read "Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles; prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near; let them come up: Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning-hooks into spears: Let the weak say I am strong. Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye heathen, and gather yourselves together around about: thither cause thy mighty ones to come down, O Lord. Let the heathen be wakened and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about. Put ye in the sickle for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down: for the press is full, the fats overflow: for their wickedness is great. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision. The sun and the moon shall be darkened and the stars shall withdraw their shining. The Lord also shall roar out of Zion and utter his voice from Jerusalem, and the heavens and the earth shall shake; but the Lord will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel." Joel iii. 9-16.

This is the proclamation of war. The Gentiles are prepared today to fulfil these conditions. In Russia plowshares have literally been beaten into swords. The sword of Damascus has been unsheathed in the sunlight and bathed in the blood of the Greek patriots until the Christian nations of the world stand aghast at the persecutions of this power. Six great powers of the world have stood and looked on through the last three years while one hundred thousand Christians have been slaughtered, their homes burned and their goods despoiled, and the only power in Europe, or in Asia that dared to protest was Greece. They tell us that peace will become permanent, but there is no permanent peace. The hour comes when the great bell that hangs in the dome of heaven will toll the dome of the Turk.

There is another proclamation that succeeds this call to arms:

"It shall come to pass in the last days that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills, and people shall flow unto it. And many nations shall come and say, Come and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth from Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." Micah iv. 1-4.

Here then are two great epochs in the history of time. First the proclamation of war, with its booming cannon, and awful destructions; beyond this comes the Nazarene, who walked on the wild waves as if they were marble, and said to the raging billows, "Peace be still," and so calmed the sea. And amid the storms and revolutions of men the blessed Christ shall again speak peace to our troubled world and bring the glorious empire of the kingdom with its white banners streaming over the hills and the bright effulgent beauty of the glorious morning of the ages shining on the new earth.

We stand on the eve of these great events. Over thirty years ago I stood on this platform and argued that these things would come. I believed then as I believe now that I shall live to witness the change of empire; that the stone cut out of the mountain without hands shall smite the image on the feet, and then shall the iron, the gold, the brass, the silver and the clay be broken to pieces together, and the stone that smote the image will become a great mountain and fill the whole earth. It is the consummation of Messiah's glory. In that age of rest and peace no flag will fly at half mast, no new made grave will mark the resting place of dear ones; no battle cry will ring over the mountains. Earth will be robed in her beauty and her great sabbath will begin. The morning of joy lighted by the Sun of righteousness will dawn.

When ye see these things rejoice and be exceeding glad. In that day peace and righteousness shall fill the world, hope will be written on her banners, redeemed humanity will bring their offerings, and the incense of thanksgiving will float away to the God of nations, the glory of the Lord shall fill the earth as the waters cover the sea. May it be yours and mine to enter into that rest and share its glory.

Reports From Different Fields of Labor.

Editor Restitution:

Through my feeble instrumentality the Lord is doing a great work in this country. I have been laboring here for nearly three years, and we have a church of well taught, baptized believers. We have also built us a good comfortable house for worship; have a good first-day school. Two of our young brethren are entering the ministry, namely my son J. H. Anderson and Bro. Jesse Garret. We are greatly in need of tracts, pamphlets and any good reading matter on the line of truth to circulate among the people here, so if any of the dear brothers and sisters having anything of the kind, if they will mail it to me at Pelzer, S. C., it will be appreciated.

E. M. Anderson.

Dear Restitution:

Bro. E. M. Hudler was with the church at Antioch, Ill., Sunday June 6th and preached three good discourses, and to the readers of The Restitution scattered abroad we report, with joy, the addition of three souls to the household of faith. They have willingly obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was once delivered us, and have been made free from sin, and have become servants of righteousness. "But now being made free from sin, and become the servants of God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life." May he who notes the sparrow's fall watch over them, and by his Word, which the Psalmist said was a lamp unto his feet, and light unto his path, keep them and not only them but all of us who have called upon his name, that our feet may never stray from that narrow path which leadeth unto life. May we run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith: who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

L. Boehm.

Dear Restitution, Brethren and Sisters:

We are still in the field or vineyard, working for the cause of Christ, and last Sunday, the 6th of June, two more sisters took upon them the All-saving name of Christ, in the act of baptism. We still hold the fort and expect to a till the Master will come, and feel as though that soon will be, at least to some of us. It will be a short sleep, then the trump of God will sound and the saints will awake, and if I am asleep I shall be satisfied if I awake in the likeness of my Master. Will say to the brethren, that my wife and I contemplate making a trip east to visit our children, brethren and sisters and friends. We will start about the 12th of June and go as far as Kansas at least, and if the brethren and sisters in Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, and even as far as Ohio would love to see us, and are willing to help bear our expenses will write to me at Tempe, Arizona up to the 6th of July, and after that to me at Parsons, Kansas, in care of James Foore, we will try to visit them. We will soon lay down our burdens and exchange them for a crown.

May God bless you all is my prayer,

John Foore.

To the Brethren of Kansas and Missouri:

We will report the tent work by saying on the fifth instant we spread the tent in the park of this place, and commenced meeting the next day and are continuing with good attention. We are very well pleased with the tent. It is 40x54 feet, seven foot wall, the top in three pieces, ten ounce, double-filled duck, ridden proof, with poles, stakes and ropes, gasolene lamps, hatchet and sledge, cost about $140.00. Let all who have not sent in the amount of your subscription do so, as the tent must be paid for the 25th of this month. The tent will probably go to St. Joseph from here.

The reduced rates over the Pennsylvania Lines will not be restricted to members of the organizations mentioned, but may be taken advantage of by the public generally. Excursion tickets may be obtained at ticket offices on the Pennsylvania System and will also be sold over this route by connecting railways. Any Pennsylvania Line Ticket or Passenger Agent will furnish desired information concerning rates, time of trains, return limit, and other details, to all applicants, or the same may be obtained by addressing C. L. Kimball, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.

It may not interest you at this moment, but when you are planning a trip to Chicago, Buffalo, New York or Boston, don't forget that the Nickel Plate Road has a Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains in each direction daily, and that their rates are lower than via other lines.—June 30.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages 84 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

An Artistic Brochure entitled "Summer Outings" is published by the Nickel Plate Road describing vacation resorts along that line. Address B. F. Horner, General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, Ohio., for a copy.—July 15.

Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reel. This clearly sets forth the idea that the "Coming Nation" will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 20 pages, price 10 cts or three or 25 cts.

WHERE DO THE DEAD SLEEP?

These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract, 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

HADES.

A Bible account of this place, with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

DEATH COMPARED TO A SLEEP.

This represents death as a sleep, and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those searching for truth. 16 pages, 5 cents each.

QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS AND THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 96 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Hell and Kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

A PARABOLIC BATTLEFIELD, or Napoleon's WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Council," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother David Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Addie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Hymn.

The Savior comes, his advent's nigh,
He soon will rend the azure sky;
Descending swift to earth again,
Then God shall dwell indeed with men.

O happy day, when wars shall cease,
And contented earth be filled with peace;
When sin and death no more shall reign,
And Eden bloom on earth again!

Saints, lift your heads, the day is near,
When your Redeemer will appear;
He'll take the Kingdom and the crown,
And make his ransomed bride his own.

Communicated.

You Did Not Believe On The Lord Jesus Christ.

That is, when you believed in a Lord Jesus Christ who promised a sky-kingdom for immaterial, immortal souls. In the first place, there is no such thing as an immaterial, immortal soul in existence, it is nothing more than a delusive fancy of the mind, propagated by the idolatrous Egyptians and the dreamy pagans. And also the supposed Lord Jesus promising those delusions, is equally a myth, neither the reward, or such a Jesus ever did exist, or will exist, nor are they even alluded to in the Divine Book: so it must be clear, that when you did believe in that mythical Jesus, you did not believe in the Lord Jesus Christ,—so gloriously and explicitly portrayed in the Scriptures of Truth.

The preaching of another Jesus, not heralded by heaven's appointed messengers, is no new thing. See 1 Cor. xi. 3, 4: "I fear, lest by any means as the Serpent beguiled Eve (with thou shalt not surely die) through his subtility, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ." (How?) For he that cometh preacheth ANOTHER JESUS, whom we have not preached."

"Another Jesus," promising the subtle lie, of the Serpent, wherewith "the serpent beguiled Eve," is everywhere proclaimed from the pulpit as the Jesus to be believed in for salvation, if they want to go to heaven when they die.

Cannot you see a marked difference between that mythical Jesus, and the Lord Jesus Christ of the Bible, to whom the Lord God shall give the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the (restored) house of Jacob forever?

When people seek salvation, the blind guides who preach the subtle lie of the Serpent, tell them to believe on Jesus, and when they die, they shall have a happy home in heaven. The Bible no where tells people to believe on Jesus for salvation, but "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." Acts xvi. 21. There is a marked difference between believing on Jesus, and believing on the "Lord Jesus Christ." The words "Lord," and "Christ" are not a portion of a name of an historical personage, but are official titles, and failing to comprehend what is expressed in those official titles, you fail to "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." Those titles Jesus has acquired, and it is essential to salvation to believe that Jesus is the Christ, if we would be saved. See 1 John ii. 22: "Who is a liar but he that denies that Jesus is the Christ?" A person may believe about Jesus, and still not believe that Jesus is the Christ.

Acts ii. 36: "Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both LORD and CHRIST." Here we can perceive that Jesus has been "made" "Lord" and "Christ," and when the Jews were convicted that Jesus had been "made" "Lord" and "Christ," then they "believed on the Lord Jesus Christ," and were told to "repent and be baptized for the remission of sins."

Today, if sinners would be saved, they likewise must "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ," "repent and be baptized for the remission of sins," "Who is a liar but he that denies that Jesus is the Christ?"

What are we required to understand TO BELIEVE THAT JESUS IS THE CHRIST?

With regard to the Jews there was no difference of opinion among them as to what Jesus meant when he claimed to be "the Christ." Listen: "We have found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Cæsar, saying that he himself is CHRIST a KING." There can be no question whatever but that when he claimed to be "the Christ," it was equivalent to a claim to the kingship. Pilate so understood it, when he asked the question: "Art thou the King of the Jews?" and he confessed that he was born for that express purpose. Again: "Let Christ the King of Israel descend now from the cross, that we may see and believe." Again: "For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior (Jesus) which is Christ the Lord," or which is "the King of Israel."

The wise men from Arabia, asked "Where is he that was born King of the Jews?" "The chief priests and scribes demanded, where Christ should be born?" The answer came, the "Governor who shall rule my people Israel," should be born in "Bethlehem, in the land of Judah." It will be noticed that "Christ" and "King of Israel," are used as synonomous in asking and answering questions. Again: "He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, we have found the Messias, which is, being interpreted, the Christ." Nathaniel "saith unto him, Rabbi, thou art the King of Israel," or "the Christ."

"Philip went down to the city of Samaria and preached CHRIST unto them." "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women." Hence, preaching "Christ" and the "kingdom of God," is the SAME THING. No one can Scripturally "preach Christ" and leave out the kingdom of God. "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ, is born of God." No one can possibly believe that "Jesus is the Christ," and be ignorant of his relation to the kingdom of Israel, and likewise no one be "born of God," and not believe that "Jesus is the Christ," and cannot comprehend what the word "Christ" signifies, and be in ignorance of his official character.

See John xx. 31: "Many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in his book: but these are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God: and that believing ye might have life through his name."

Think of it, all these signs are put on record, that we might believe that "Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God," and the result of such a belief, is that "ye might have life (no immortal soul here) through his name. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved,"—have life through his name."

People who believe in a sky-kingdom for supposed immaterial, immortal souls, have no conception of what it means to "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." As a matter of fact, parties so believing, do not "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ," they are deceiving themselves.

If you have been baptized while believing in that myth of the apostacy, your baptism is invalid, and of no more value to you than a bath to wash away the filth of the flesh.

The gospel alone is the power of God unto salvation. A locomotive is intended to move ponderous trains, but if the requisite power is not applied, the locomotive is perfectly useless. So the only known power that can secure salvation is the gospel; but if the power is not applied, no salvation can be effected. The gospel is not going to save any one independent of your will and action.

The power is centered in only one gospel. Gospels of human origin, are as useless as a locomotive without steam. Says the Apostle: "If any man preach any other gospel unto you, than that ye have received, let him be accursed," and why so? Because they may be deceived by such teaching, and be led to put faith in such a false gospel, and fail to apply the only gospel which has the power to secure salvation to those who seek it.

This gospel is called the "gospel of Christ," or the good news concerning what Jesus as the Christ, will accomplish when he ascends the throne of his father David.

In view of the above clear and explicit evidences drawn from God's Word, can any one who has the capacity to discern what evidence is, have the least doubt as to what is involved in believing in Christ? Comprehending these magnificent truths, how can any one affirm that they believed "in Christ," when they believed, and sang,

"Never-dying soul to save,
And fit it for the sky."

The never-dying soul is a fiction and an eternal abode in the sky, a dreamy fancy. Fiction and fancy finds no place in believing that Jesus has been "made" both "Lord and Christ." It alone points forward to a time when this "same Jesus" shall be revealed from heaven in magnificent glory, to reign victoriously on David's throne, over Israel restored to their own beloved land, never more to be pulled up, and with the world as his dominion, which also comprehends as the final outcome of the eternal abolition of sin, sorrow and death from earth brought back to more than Edenic purity and glory. In this hope fiction and fancy cannot be found, but on the contrary abounds in glorious realities.

Now, to come down to sound common sense, Did you really believe in Christ, when you sought to save something that don't exist, and except an eternal home in a place never promised to any one?

If you can put aside prejudice, and allow common sense, Scripture and reason to predominate, you must confess that you in no sense believed in Christ; when you trusted in that which is proven to be a delusion and a fancy. Such a substitute can never be accepted in place of "believing in the Lord Jesus Christ." By fraternizing with Baptists, Campbellites, or any other portion of Old Babylon, you deny the faith once delivered to the saints. Think seriously about this matter, and obey the gospel.

Our Mission.

As every day brings its duties to the individual so every age provides its work for the Church. This age is called the "gospel age," and so it is; it is the period appointed of God for preaching the gospel to the Gentiles, and by means of it, "taking out of the Gentiles a people for his name;" but not as the morning so is the evening of the day. New duties spring up with new occasions. Not that there is a new gospel for every new error, but with every new phase of the same old system of lies, new emphasis must be placed on the particular line of the same ancient gospel which provides a remedy for it. New perils are continually confronting the Church, and new falsehoods or old falsehoods in a new dress, ever ready to entrap the unwary; so that it becomes the duty of the child of God to "study to show himself approved of God a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth." Faithful servants giving to the household "meat in due season." If therefore, we are confronted in the last days with delusions hitherto unknown, with perils before untried; have we not a special mission to meet and defeat them? If the times are ominous of trouble are we not called upon to point out the way of escape? If the "Master standeth at the door," shall we not say so? What did he mean by saying that "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness to all people, and then the end shall come?" If he did not have in mind some special work to be done near the end, some revival of the ancient "gospel of the kingdom" to be rapidly and effectually proclaimed to a single generation—the last before the end, what did Paul mean by saying that the gospel he preached was already proclaimed "to every creature under heaven." Col. i. 6, 23. According to that "the end" ought to have come in Paul's day, and we are wasting our time proclaiming the end yet to come. So it seems to me that the last days bring with them a special duty to preach and teach as never before "The things concerning the kingdom of God." But another thing, God always prepares his people beforehand by a proclamation of "the present truth." 2 Pet. i. 12. If we are living in the times when the world is being prepared by God's providence for the restoration of his ancient people, and the establishment of the kingdom of God, it may become a severely practical question what this nation, and what each individual composing it, is going to do about it? There is a time coming—now near at hand; when the world will be divided on the question, "shall the Jew be permitted to re-establish his nationality in his ancient patrimony or not?" "The kings of the (Roman) earth," are going to oppose it, and some others are going to favor it. Rev. xix. 19. On which side will this nation be? There is a symbolic war brought to light in this nineteenth of Rev. between Jesus Christ and his army and the "beast," "false prophet" and "dragon." The beast and false prophet are cast alive into the lake of fire and brimstone, and the dragon is bound with a chain. Ezek. 38 and 39 show that the dragon is Gog, all Protestant expositors agree, that the beast (the two-horned) is a revived temporal power of the Papacy, and the false prophet either the Sultan or the Pope. If so, the dread coalition which—headed by the antichrist shall attempt to pervert the establishment of the "kingdom of God" is none other than the Czar, the Sultan and the Pope. But who constitute the armies of heaven, who follow their leader "The Word of God" in battle array? Evidently the antagonist of Gog—"The ships of Tarshish and all the young lions thereof," or England and her colonies and offshoots. But something must be done to prepare the great Anglo-Saxon confederation to enter the contest on the part of "these my least brethren" (or "my little brethren" Leisor's translation Matt. xxv. 40, 45. Evidently they must be brought to see that the cause of Israel is the cause of God, and what can so effectually prepare them as the proclamation of "the gospel of the kingdom?" Is it not a significant fact that this doctrine of the restoration of Israel has been proclaimed more thoroughly among the Anglo-Saxons, and more generally received by them than by any other people in the world? It must become the settled policy of England and all her children—"the young lions," to place the Jew in Palestine. Isaiah tells us that "The ships of Tarshish are to be the first to enter upon this work." Isa. lx. 9. No doubt at first, or for a time the continental powers will acquiesce, but when Gog discovers that Israel in Palestine means English control of Egypt and the Euphrates and waters them of the South and thereby shuts her off from all hope of an outlet by way of the Persian Gulf, she will develop an antagonism which will eventuate in the "great war of God Almighty," and the defeat of the "dragon, the beast and the false prophet" by "the sword of the Lord which proceeds out of his mouth." Is it not our mission then to proclaim the hated doctrine of Israel's return until this nation is so thoroughly indoctrinated with it that she will take her appointed place with the "old lion" in defense of Israel and of Israel's God? Believe me, this is our manifest destiny and our duty. Let us "Cry aloud and spare not," for every man and everything that opposes "will be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it." Zech. xii. 3. But again, as clearly is it our mission to proclaim the ancient doctrine of life only in Christ. It cannot be denied that for ages this precious and plainly revealed truth has been kept in the back ground, hidden as it were from the observation of men; like the church which had it—hidden in the wilderness. But during the present generation it has experienced a notable revival, mainly too in England and the United States. By the aid of strong and learned men, by new translations and new readings, and new discoveries of ancient MSS. this truth has been brought out to the light of day, and pressed upon the attention of the world as never before in its history. The doctrine of natural immortality has been attacked from every quarter, not alone from the Biblical, but from the scientific standpoint and its foundation battered away from beneath it until it has not a stone to stand upon; and it and the whole hideous fabric of superstition reared upon it is in imminent danger of complete collapse. The whole stupendous structure of Romish superstition is built upon that heathenish dogma, that Satanic falsehood—"thou shalt not surely die," and for it there is but one complete cure: the doctrine of Christ, our life. Now let it be clearly apprehended that Rome is yet to say, "I sit as a queen, I am no widow and shall see no sorrow." Rev. xviii. 7. That is we are to look for a revival of Romish pretentions backed by a secular power to enforce them. The two-horned beast or the Papacy revived is to require a mark in the forehead and in the right hand, and is to marshall her adherents to make war with the Lamb and his army. Now what is the mark in the forehead? Evidently an intellectual assent to the errors of Rome; and that in the right hand is effective, co-operation in carrying out her plans. It follows that all who believe with her in doctrine are in danger of being coerced, or persuaded to aid her, and will find themselves in opposition to the King and his kingdom in the great crisis. Indeed, we see unmistakable evidences of the probable success of the schemes for uniting all the great religions of the world under the fatherly leading of Pope Pius XII. It is the dream of the present pontiff to heal all old schisms and bring back to the fold the Greek, the Lutheran and the Anglican communions. And not alone these, but it has long been seen that Mohammedanism itself is but a Christian heresy, and the hope of including these millions in the one fold is not foreign to the breast of "Our Lord God the Pope." When this shall have been accomplished and even Buddha and Brahmah consent to acknowledge his supremacy, only a stubborn faith in Christ, the Life-Giver, can prevent even dissenting Protestants from acquiescing in the grand and universal religion, which will mark the coalition opposed to Christ Jesus and his kingdom. Is it not manifest destiny and duty—the duty of the hour—our grand mission to the world to keep before them the only preventative to the mark of the beast? This supreme antidote to all Rome's errors, which renders it impossible to be deceived by her or drawn into the support of her Anti-christian plans? Who that believes in natural immortality is proof against her wiles or her arguments backed by the logic of the Sword? We may be sure that only the faithful believer in Christ, the only Life-giver, will go to prison and to death rather than to partake of her sins. Referring to this very crisis the Revelator heard a voice saying, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from hence forth." Rev. xiv. 13. Our mission is to teach and to warn every man of these things. Surely to us has been a dispensation committed, happy are we if we recognize it, and discharge our duty faithfully and fearlessly.

May God help us. Amen.

The Spirits in Prison.

I write a few lines on 1 Pet. iii. 18-20. In Gen. vi. 3, we find the following, "And the Lord said, My spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is flesh; yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years." This, I think, gives us a clue as to what the "prison" in 1 Pet. iii. 19, means. God considered that man was flesh, but nevertheless confined his time on the earth to the 120 years in which the ark was preparing. At the end of that time, all mankind (except eight) were cut off by the flood. The "spirits in prison" were the people who were living while the spirit was striving with them, and they were men in the flesh too. Gen. vi. 3. This was while the ark was preparing. The preacher was Noah, and his Guide was the Spirit. "Holy men of old spake as the Spirit moved them." The same spirit that quickened the dead Christ. Christ had an existence before he was born into the world, and by the same spirit which made him alive. He went (in the days of Noah while the ark was preparing) and preached through Noah to the people living at that time.

There are some who contend that while Christ was in the disembodied state he preached to the disembodied spirits of the wicked in hell, and thus gave them a chance to accept or reject the gospel.

This seems to the writer to be a very unsatisfactory view. The "time" of the preaching is not while Christ was in the grave, but it is duly stated that "He went and preached unto the spirits in prison (which were sometimes disobedient) when the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah while the ark was preparing. "When the long-suffering of God," etc. denotes the time of the preaching, and not the time of the disobedience. But, if we admit for argument's sake that it does denote the time of the disobedience, then we have a conclusion like this,—They disobeyed while the ark was preparing, and were cut off by the flood, and put into prison (hell-fire) and kept there until Christ died, and his disembodied spirit went into this place of torment they were in, and preached to them. There seems to be no good reason why all other "disembodied spirits" should be ignored. If people are put into hell for not accepting the gospel, and those people had not heard it until Christ went in his disembodied state and preached it to them, then it would seem that an act of injustice was done them in that they were kept in hell fire from Noah until Christ, for not accepting some thing they had never heard. To illustrate, let us suppose that the gospel has not been given to man yet, but will be in the year 2000. The people are living now, who are ignorant of the fact that in the year 2000 there will be a gospel preached. They all die, and are put into hell fire not believing something that is not to be proclaimed until 2000. What are you going to do with God's goodness, mercy, justice, and infinite kindness. But these all count for nothing when man wants to establish a theory of disembodied spirits, or a post mortem gospel.

Christ died a ransom for all, to be testified in due time. Over half of the people of the earth have never heard of the fact that Christ died for them, have not even heard his name, yet when the "due time" comes, it will be testified unto them. When Christ's prayer "that they may be one" is answered, that is when the saints become of One nature, the spirit beings, as God and Christ are one, (both are spirit beings) then as kings and priests unto God, they will be given power over the nations, and rule them in righteousness, and teach them. This is when the "due time" will come, and the world will then believe, and not till then.

Faith, Hope and Love.

Faith, hope and love must stay with us; all else may fail and cease. On these we lean, by these we stand, and walk, and trust in the Lord. Love stands first in rank: though meek and kind, she claims her place, and all things bear in hope. Is not with pride puffed up. "High born from God to earth she came and dwelt in Christ the Lord. Through him we share, and feel and know her worth." Faith stands with shield to defend and guard her well, and point the way of life and Truth. Hope rests a crown upon her head; with joy she sees and hails the day of peace and rest for all God's sons. The voice of hope is full of cheer, and song and praise are heard where she is guest. With these three life is made glad, God is praised and we are saved.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 7, 1897. NUMBER 25.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Isaiah II. 3 Again.

We had no space to say, last week, in opposition to Mr. Crum's positions, that we know of no evidence that any people at all said, "Come ye let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the House of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths." We have shown that all nations did not flow to Jerusalem at Pentecost; and secondly, they did not invite one another to go up to learn his ways. They went because they had accepted the law of Moses and its ordinances; and we recommend that gentleman to consult the 9th chapter of Isaiah, where still speaking of the same Judah, the same Jerusalem, the same mountain or kingdom of the Lord's House, he says "UNTO US (Judah) a child is [to be] born, unto us [Judah] a Son is [to be] given.. and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of Hosts will perform this." The title, "Prince of Peace," is obtained by causing the nations to convert their implements of war into those of husbandry, and learning war no more, instanted in the second chapter. And in the 89th Psalm God swears that a Son of David shall occupy his throne for ever; and Jer. 3rd chapter and 17th verse, says at that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the Lord," and, what? "And all nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of the Lord, to Jerusalem, neither shall they walk any more after the imagination of their evil heart. In THOSE DAYS [when Jerusalem is called the throne of the Lord, and all nations shall be gathered unto it, yes; in those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the North to the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers. Here we see the same announcement respecting all nations gathering at Jerusalem as that made in Is. ii. 3. "And in those days, the two tribes of Judah will be again united to the ten tribes, so they can be ruled by the 12 apostles, as promised them by Jesus. Matt. xix. 28. We want to give Mr. Crum an opportunity to take reliable soundings, of course he claims to WANT the truth if he does not possess it,—and so we invite him to consider one other Scripture, and see if it will agree with his defined positions—Hosea iii. 4, says, "For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without an ephod, and without a teraphim." They have been many days without a king, surely, and without a sacrifice. Why have they been a long time without a king? Answer, about 40 years after Pentecost they rebelled, and their Roman Masters destroyed their city and temple where alone they could sacrifice. They are in that condition now; but they will not always be, because, Hosea's next verse says that AFTERWARD,—after they have been many days without a king and sacrifice—shall the children of Israel return and seek the Lord their God, and David their king, and shall fear the Lord and his goodness. Has the time—AFTERWARD arrived yet? Are they not still without a sacrifice? Does the Mosque of Omar occupy the sight of the temple? Is not Jerusalem dominated by the Turks? Does not Jesus say in Luke 21, that the Jews should fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations? Are we not witnesses of the fulfillment of this prediction? And also of the next that follows? Viz., that Jerusalem should be "trodden down of the Gentiles," showing that the scattered Jews would be a nation without a national government, without a capital city, and without a land? Calmly, seriously, honestly, let Mr. Crum see if the many days during which Hosea says they shall be without a king, sacrifice, etc., is not the very period during which Jesus says they shall be led captive into all nations? And Jerusalem shall be trodden down of Gentiles? We challenge him or any one else to show to the contrary. Jesus' prediction is the same as Hosea's, in other words, and other particulars. It did not commence to be fulfilled till about 40 years after the crucifixion; it is still in course of fulfillment. But when is it to be fulfilled completely? Can we get a clew? Yes; Jesus tells us how long Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, viz., "Until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled. If words mean anything, the time is coming when Jerusalem shall not be trodden down of Gentiles. If words mean anything.—JEWS WILL AGAIN CONTROL JERUSALEM. But when? When the appointed time for the Gentiles to tread it down, expires. What then is to happen? Jesus gives premonitory signs, see Luke xxi. 25, 26, and adds: "And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory. And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads for your redemption draweth nigh. And he spake to them a parable. Behold the fig tree and all the trees, when they now shoot forth, ye see and know of yourselves that summer is nigh; so likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." This is Jesus' answer as to the when. And now, what of Hosea? He says, after the Jews have been many days without a king, sacrifice, etc., "the children of Israel shall return and seek the Lord their God, and David their king, and shall fear the Lord and his goodness in the latter days." Did they ever thus return yet? Can the unprejudiced reader fail to see that we have here another description of the good time coming described concerning Judah and Jerusalem in the second of Isaiah?

The Question Drawer.

For N. T.,—We will briefly consider the two passages you call attention to; and first, Rev. xiv. 13. If you have the correct idea, we do not see any meaning in the words, "from henceforth." What of all the righteous dead previous to that time, would they not be blessed from your own point of view? We understand that the blessedness occurs at the time indicated in the vision, viz., when Christ is manifested to set up his kingdom. The blessedness of the saints will then be apparent, for they will then have been made immortal and glorious; and thus will, from henceforth be blessed, for they enter into and enjoy the rest that remains for the people of God. In reference to 2 Tim. iv. 6, we would say, Is it a departure for glory that is here indicated? Is it not rather a departure from life, into the death state, from which by nature there is no return? The word rendered departure is analysis. This means a loosing. The reference is doubtless to the nearing end of life, when the spirit would be separated from the body, the latter returning to God who gave it. It is equivalent to dissolution. The idea that the words indicate a departure to glory is destroyed by the context, "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous Judge shall give me in that day." What day? The day of his appearing, and of his kingdom, see v. 1.

For L. P.—Death is real and actual. All evidence attests this fact. Nothing at all survives death as a living being. To contend otherwise is to deny both death and resurrection. Pause before you commit yourself to this destructive error.

For J. L.:—If you will compare the 12th verse of the 3rd chapter of Micah's prophecy with the 18th verse of Jeremiah, you will perceive that the part of Micah's prophecy delivered in Hezekiah's reign begins with the 3rd chapter. Yes; Micah delivered his prophecy within 60 years. Jotham reigned 16 years, Ahas 16 and Hezekiah 61.

BROTHER J. O. Woodruff writes:—"The mystery which is said to have been hidden in God from the beginning of the ages, Eph. iii. 9, is now said to be revealed to the Holy Apostles and Prophets. It is this,—that the Gentiles, since the resurrection of Christ, are made partakers of the Messianic promises of the kingdom, which aforetime was made to the Jews only as Abraham's Seed. Now both Jews and Gentiles without distinction are one in Christ Jesus. How? By believing the glad tidings and being immersed for a union with the name of Jesus. This union is called "One New Man," or the reconciliation of both Jew and Gentile of this dispensation in one body, by the cross;—a body composed of many members, of which Christ is the Head. It is the Church, his Body,—"the completeness of him who filleth all in all."

"If a satellite directed wise men to Jesus' birth place, and the firmament wore a pall of mourning for three hours at his death. If rocks were riven in sympathy, and the veil of the temple was rent. If the spirit caused an earthquake to precede his resurrection,—Is it too much to expect that nature will be mute when the mighty Hero returns to deliver this groaning creation? Zech. xiv. shows that when his feet stand upon the Mount of Olives, again a mighty earthquake will take place. As the angels of God shouted for joy when this system of ours was completed by the Creator, and sang an anthem of praise to celebrate the birth of its Heir, so the voice of the mighty Hero will reverberate through every grave, rock and cave where his imprisoned brethren have been chained by their enemy, death. Oh, what an indescribable thrill of ecstasy and endless joy will seize each heart, when he finds himself in the blissful company of his long absent Son, and all the worthy sages of all ages and climes and tongues!

Reader, believe his gospel and obey it, and continue patiently, waiting and working for this grand consummation."

"REJOICE though now for a season, if need be ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations: that the trial of your faith, being much more precious than gold that perisheth though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise, and honor, and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ." Peter.

THE sermon preached by Bro. H. V. Reed at Antioch June 13, on the subject of "Modern Events in the Light of Prophecy" and which appeared in this paper June 23 was taken as it was delivered by a short hand writer. We have it therefore as it was spoken. So many have asked for extra copies that it will be printed in tract form, and may be ordered at once. Five cents each, or 30 copies for $1.00.

WE have received word from Bro. Wilcox to withdraw notice of meetings at Sacramento Springs. Will those concerned please take notice.

Conference Report.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska was held at the Dunbar School House in Furnas County, beginning on Friday, June 11th, and holding over Sunday as previously announced. The business meeting was opened at 10 A. M. on Saturday with song and prayer. The minutes were then read and approved. The Secretary's report for the quarter was as follows, received in March $1.00, April $15.00, May $35.00, June $6.00, total $57.00. Moved and carried that the report be accepted. The following was the evangelists report for the quarter: money received $57.00, expenses $.85, amount less expenses $56.15. Number of discourses 21, interest good. Moved that this report be accepted. Motion seconded and carried. The votes of the different churches as to the place of holding the next Annual Conference were then read. Remarks. Decided in favor of Cambridge. Remarks about the time of holding it. Moved that it begin on Aug. 20th, and continue ten days. Motion carried.

Committees for the Conference were appointed by the President as follows:

On grounds,—Bro. Trissell, Bro. Patton, and Bro. Chandler.

On program,—Benn Gordon, C. T. Story, and Bro. Adams.

Feed and fuel,—R. P. Story, H. C. Welton and Jas. Welton.

Moved that we adjourn to the call of the President. Motion seconded and carried.

All who attended this Conference enjoyed it very much, and it is declared to be the best quarterly meeting ever held in the State. The house was crowded at each meeting, so much so, that it was necessary to find seats for all, even the aisles and a number of wagon seats were brought in. The preaching brethren present were Bro. J. R. Ogle, Bro. J. P. Glenn and Bro. Almus Adams. Elder Baker, a minister of the Advent Christian Church, was also with us and preached one discourse. The audience listened attentively to the interesting sermons preached by these brethren, and it is hoped that the seed there sown fell into good ground, and will bring forth fruit unto life eternal. May these good meetings continue to be held from time to time, and may they grow in interest until Christ comes, and we are all gathered to that most glorious meeting of which these are only a foretaste.

Submitted in love,
RENA M. GORDON, Sec.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in Michigan, convened as per announcement at Dutton, Michigan, Thursday evening, June 3, 1897, and continued over the following Sunday. Ministers present were Elder L. C. Chase, of Raisin, Michigan; Bro. F. L. Austin of Rensselaer, Ind.; Bro. E. Hoyt, Bro. and Sister Woodward. Bro. Austin and wife reached Dutton a few days before Conference time and commenced the good work. Bro. Chase did most of the preaching, presenting the Bible truths, in that plain and forcible manner, so characteristic of him, capturing the admiration of all who heard him. The preaching was all very good. All the social and prayer meetings were much enjoyed, and as the brothers and sisters gave testimony that their faith was still strong in the Lord it did some of the brethren a great deal of good. Although none put on Christ by baptism, yet much good was done as was shown by the interest manifested by non-professors, some stating that the way looked brighter, and that they intended searching the Scriptures and if they found those things to be so they were ready to obey. The attendance was large from the beginning, and yet, all were not there who have before met with those of like precious faith, some are silently sleeping, waiting. May God comfort those made lonely. Business meeting called to order Saturday at 10:30 A. M. by the president R. C. Hammond. Minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted. The following were elected as officers for the ensuing year, President R. C. Hammond, Vice President Lorenzo Decker, Secretary Emma Jackman, Treasurer A. K. Richardson of Coats Grove, Barry County, Michigan, Evangelists B. W. and M. A. Woodward. Evangelists report work done in Michigan 71 days, baptized 26, funerals 5. Work of evangelists in Indiana and elsewhere, Bro. Woodward sermons 157, Sister Woodward sermons 126, whole 283; baptized 37. After the Sunday morning service the Lord's Supper was administered. There were about 80 partook of the Lord's Supper. It was indeed a pleasure to us all to have Sister Roberts and Sister Taber of Indiana with us. Another joyous and profitable meeting at Dutton is numbered with the many similar ones of the past, and God grant that its influence for good may be felt through the years to come, and help to shape our lives for the kingdom of God.

Announcement.

Editor Restitution:

Please say through the columns of the dear old paper that Bro. Geo. Kidwell, from Madison County, Ark., will commence a series of meetings here at the Hix school house, in Camden Co., 5 miles southeast of Climax Springs on Saturday before the first Sunday in August, at 11 o'clock A. M. He will hold the meeting ten days, then he goes to Spaul Springs, six miles east of Cross Timbers and commence preaching at that place on the 10th of August, hold ten days. We extend an invitation to all lovers of truth. We will be glad to meet with you all. Brethren, let us be up and doing, for the time is short; let us work for the Master while it is yet day, for the night cometh wherein no man can work. Come one and all that can, and let us have a joyous time, for Bro. Kidwell is an able workman, rightly dividing the Word.

Now brothers and sisters, may God's richest blessing rest upon you all is the prayer of a Sister,

MARY E. HOWARD.

Dear Restitution:

We close our meetings at Mound City Sunday evening next and spread our tent at Severance, Doniphan Co., Kansas, on Thursday July 1st for a meeting of two or three weeks. This place is on the St. Joseph and Grand Island R'y about 25 miles West of St. Joe. A general invitation is extended to all.

J. F. WILCOX.

To Bro. J. F. Wilcox:

Thanks brother, for your explanation through THE RESTITUTION as to why Dan was left out in the sealing of the 12000 (thousand) out of the 12 tribes of Israel. But let us not be too hard on a careless scribe for leaving Dan out in the cold. There are a multitude of preachers that would disinherit all of the tribes. You are perhaps correct as to the matter of Dan being left out; and in one sense you are correct as to the cities of Ezekiel's and John's prophecy, for it takes the literal city and citizenship to complete a city. Ezekiel records the boundaries of a literal city, in his book of signs. John beholds a city that is pure gold like unto transparent glass, in this book of signs. This city represents the Bride, the wife of the Lamb. See Rev. xxi. 9 to 11. The married woman. As Jerusalem the city of Ezekiel's vision is to be the city of the great kings, what else is to be the citizenship, if not the king and his queenly wife? What could be a more fitting sign of a lawless power than a wild beast, a compound of the leopard, the bear and lion; or of a fallen Church, than a prostitute woman? Again, what would be a more fitting sign of the redeemed and glorified Body of Christ than a city that is pure gold? If it can be proven that the dimensions of the two are the same, it would only prove that the citizenship was proportioned to the city, a kingdom must have a capital, and Jerusalem builded on her own heap, according to the plan recorded by Ezekiel will be the capital of the kingdom of God, and the Lamb and his wife will be the royal citizenship. But to return to the sealings of the 144,000 out of all the tribes of Israel, if Dan was left out by a careless transcriber, what if we are not sealed with the Holy Spirit, the Spirit of the promise? If we have not this seal we may be hurt by the locusts of Rev. ix. 4, 5.

Yours in a work and labor of love; let brotherly love continue,

J. C. KIMSEY.

To the brethren of Northern Missouri and Kansas and Southern Nebraska:

Our gospel tent will be spread at Sacramento Springs, Brown Co., Kan. on Sunday July 25th for a two weeks' meetings. The meetings will begin Sunday morning at nine o'clock on that day and continue till Sunday evening August 8th. This is a public resort 7 miles northwest of Morrill on the St. Joe and Grand Island R'y. Let all who desire to come write to Bro. E. M. Saylor at Morrill, when you will be there and teams will meet you at that point. Let all who have them bring living or camping tents. Tents can be rented for the occasion of C. J. Baker, Kansas City, Mo. All desiring to rent tents can do so through me. A table will be spread on the ground for the accommodation of all comers. Bring your own bedding and sleep in the large tent if you prefer. Now brethren, far and near, make preparation to attend this meeting. Come with hearts full of love and the spirit of prayer and self-sacrifice. Bring your burdens, and your sorrows, and your sicknesses and lay them down at the feet of the blessed Master whom you will surely meet. If you will you may go away like giants refreshed with new wine. Come, let us take sweet counsel together and strengthen each other for what still remains for the "good fight of faith" before we shall rejoice "to see him face to face and tell the story saved by grace." I can be reached by letter at Severance, Doniphan Co., Kan., until about Wednesday July 21. Bro. J. F. Pierson, Bro. Green, Bro. Bitner, Bro. Adams, Bro. Winslow, Bro. Allerton and all our preachers within reach of time and place will take note and be there if possible prepared to stay the entire time allotted.

Hoping for a joyful and profitable season I remain faithfully your brother waiting for the King,

J. F. WILCOX.

Dear Restitution:

I was much interested in the articles recently in THE RESTITUTION on the subject of "Spirit." While I differ somewhat on this subject, I want to learn and accept nothing but that which is Bible truth. I would like for Bro. Joblin or some one to explain Acts v. 23, as this text is generally omitted. I do not wish to continue this subject merely for discussion, but for truth. We are having a good Sunday School at the Fairview school house this summer with an average attendance of 50. Bro. N. H. Hornaday is superintendent. Brethren, why should we not put forth every effort to advance his cause, only a little while longer to work. "For our life is as a bubble that appeareth for a little while and then vanisheth away." The world is full of so called Christians "who profess that they know God, but in works they deny him." Let us take warning from the failure of others and observe Paul's instruction to Titus. "That the aged men be sober, grave, temperate, sound in faith, in charity, in patience." "Young men likewise exhort to be sober-minded." How much we need sobriety. There is too much frivolity among some professed Christians. We ought to live every day with the same sobriety that we would harvest a prayer meeting. It is high time to awake out of sleep, for now is our salvation nearer than when we believe." "But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ and make no provision for the flesh to fulfil the lusts thereof."

Yours in hope of coming victory through Christ,

J. J. CADY.

OBITUARY.

Lorenzo M. Goudyear was born at Camden, Oneida Co., N. Y., Jan. 26, 1820, and died May 29, 1897; aged 77 years, 4 months and 3 days. Dec. 28, 1847 he was united in marriage to Mary R. Ransom. To them were born eight children; five sons and three daughters, all of whom were present at the funeral. In 1885 he left his native State and moved to his farm near Dixon on which he has since resided. He was esteemed and respected by all his friends and neighbors, who en masse attended services at his home. The writer spoke words of cheer and comfort, using 1 Thess. iv. 13, as the base for the remarks, to which was given marked attention. It is thus we are called upon to note the death of one of the faithful followers of the meek and lowly Jesus—a soldier of the cross, a hero in the Christian warfare, one of that noble band of warriors who has ever battled for the eternal Word of Truth, being clad in the whole armor of God, his loins were girt about with truth, he wore the breastplate of righteousness, his feet were shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace, and with the shield of faith was able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. Upon his brow gleamed the helmet of salvation, and in his hand the Sword of the Spirit glittered in the radiant sunlight of the Word of God. He has fought a good fight, finished his course and kept the faith. After a long and weary, but valiant struggle in the defense of his Master's cause he has fallen; but will rise again in that bright morn when the tramp of God shall call to life immortal the righteous dead. Then will ring forth the grandest song of triumph ever sung on earth when that mighty host join in singing,

"O death, where is thy sting?
O grave, where is thy victory?"

Then will they bear palms of victory and wear the crowns of glory. Then will the righteous shine forth as the brightness of the firmament. Then will they see the Prince of Peace, the Captain of our salvation. Then will we behold with undimmed vision the beauties and glories of the everlasting kingdom where we hope to meet our brother, and with him share in the promised blessings from our kind and loving Father, to whom be all the glory for ever. Amen.

D. M. HOPPER.

Another saint numbered with the dead, Sister Anna C. wife of Bro. Geo. Downing of Philadelphia, died June 16, 1897, aged 82 years. Our Sister was an ardent believer in the personal coming and reign of the Messiah, and a liberal supporter of the gospel of the kingdom. For many years she like Anna of old looked for the Lord's salvation, though not permitted to see the King in this mortal life. She will behold him in his beauty. We wish her to rest in Laurel Hill. She sleeps on the banks of the Schuylkill, quietly resting and waiting for the voice of the Life-Giver. She leaves a husband and two children to mourn their loss.

"She doth sleep but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn;
We shall meet to part, no never,
On the resurrection morn."

Services were conducted by the writer, remarks founded on the fourteenth chapter of Job.

Reasons Why This Earth and Not Heaven Is To Be The Home Of The Righteous.

Because "No man hath ascended up to heaven" except Christ. John iii. 13.

"David is not ascended into the heavens," but "is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day." Acts ii. 20, 34.

Because Jesus said "Whither I go you cannot come." John vii. 33 34; xiii. 33.

He will bring our reward with him. "Behold I come quickly and my reward is with me to give every man according to his work." Rev. xxii. 12.

Because "The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever and of his kingdom there shall be no end." Luke i. 32, 33. David's throne was and will be on earth.

Because "The Lord (Christ) shall be King over all the earth." Zech. xiv. 9.

"The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. xv.

Because "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth." Psalm lxx. 8; Zech. ix. 10.

Because "The righteous shall be recompensed in the earth." not in heaven (Prov. ix. 31) at the resurrection. John v. 28, 29; Dan. xii. 2; Luke xiv. 14.

Because the meek and all who keep his ways shall inherit the earth. Psalm xxxvii. 9, 11, 22, 29, 34; Matt. v. 5.

Abraham and his seed are to inherit the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession. Gen. xiii. 15; xvii. 8; Heb. xi. 8-13, 39. Canaan is on earth.

Because "The heavens are the Lord's, but the earth hath he given to the children of men. Psa. cxv. 16.

Because the earth abideth forever. Eccl. i. 4; Psalm civ. 5; cxix. 90.

"The righteous shall never be removed" from the earth. Prov. x. 30.

"The Lord shall reign in Mount Zion and Jerusalem." Isa. xxiv. 23.

"The kingdom and dominion and greatness of the kingdom UNDER the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him. Dan. vii. 27. Such a kingdom could not be set up in men's hearts or on Pentecost.

Because "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above and cometh down from the Father of Lights." James i. 17.

Because "he cometh with clouds and every eye shall see him." Rev. i. 7.

"He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth." Job xix. 25. We are in the latter days and may expect him to appear at any time.

Because, The law shall go forth from Mount Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem. Isa. ii. 3; Micah iv. 2.

Because "Unto them that look for him shall he appear a second time without sin unto salvation." Heb. ix. 28. Is the world looking for his second coming?

Because he says "I will come again." John xiv. 3.

Because "Thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests and we shall reign on the earth." Rev. v. 10.

Because the throne and kingdom of David will be established forever with Jesus Christ, his Son, as King forever. 2 Sam. vii. 12-17; Psa. ii. 6-9; lxxii. 9-11).

Because no Scriptural interpretation warrants the belief of a sky kingdom, but the reverse is true.

Reasons Why Man Does not Possess an Inherent Immortal or Deathless Nature.

Because God only hath immortality. 1 Tim. vi. 15, 16. We are to SEEK for immortality (Rom. ii. 7): and if we possess immortality by heredity why should we be commanded to seek for it? It is a gift only to the righteous. Rom. vi. 22, 23.

Because we are to put it on at the resurrection. 1 Cor. xv. 52-54.

God said to Adam "Dying thou shalt DIE" (Gen. ii. 17, margin): and "Dust thou art and to dust shalt thou return" (Gen. iii. 19); and to Hezekiah that he should DIE and NOT LIVE. Isa. xxxviii. 1.

Because "In death there is no remembrance of thee; in the grave who shall give thee thanks?" Psalm vi. 5.

Because "None can keep alive his own soul." Psalm xxii. 29.

"He is forgotten as a dead man out of mind." Psalm xxxi. 12.

"His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish." Psa. cxlvi. 4.

Because "There is no work, nor device, nor wisdom, nor knowledge in the grave whither thou goest." Eccl. ix. 10.

Because "The dead know not anything" * * and their love, hatred and envy are perished." Eccl. ix. 5, 6.

Because "The soul that sinneth it shall die." Ezek. xviii. 4; James v. 19, 20.

"The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence." Psalm cxv. 17.

Because immortality is to be conferred upon the body, and not upon an invisible mentality—"Who shall change this vile body that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body. Phil. iii. 21; 1 Cor. xv. 44.

Because man and beast die alike, have one breath, go to one place. Eccl. iii. 19-20.

"His sons come to honor and he knoweth it not, they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them." Job xiv. 21.

Because a merciful God placed cherubim and flaming sword to guard the way of the tree of life, lest man have continual access to it and eat and live forever in sin. Gen. iii. 24.

Because if we believe we naturally possess immortality we accept Satan's word ("Thou shalt not surely die.") in preference to God's Word ("Thou shalt surely die.") Let God be true and every man a liar. Rom. iii. 4.

Because the apostles preached Christ and the Resurrection (1 Cor. xv. 15-23); and not Christ and the immortality of the soul, as is now popularly taught. See also John v. 28, 29; vi. 40, 44, 54; xi. 24; Acts iv. 2; xvii. 18; 2 Cor. iv. 14; v. 4; Rev. xx. 6.

Because Christ has spoken from heaven: "I am he that liveth and was DEAD, and behold I am ALIVE for evermore; Amen, and have the keys of hell and of death." Rev. i. 18. The firstfruits of them that sleep. 1 Cor. xv. 20.

Because Jesus Christ, our High Priest, has entered the holiest of holies (heaven itself, at the right hand of God) and is there making intercession for us by the sprinkling of his own blood, shed once for all (Heb. iv. 14; v. 10; vi. 19, 20; vii. 1; ix. 24) and none can follow him there, for it was certain death to enter (Heb. ix. 7-12; Lev. xvi. 17; Num. iv. 17-20), look into (1 Sam. vi. 19) or touch (2 Sam. vi. 6) even the typical holy of holies, save by the high priest and those appointed by God.

Because nowhere do the Scriptures teach that man possesses an immortal soul and not once are the terms immortal soul, deathless spirit or never-dying soul used therein. But immortality only on condition of obedience is taught. Rom. ii. 7.

The Coming of Jesus Christ.

"The Lord himself shall descend from heaven."

I. Testimony from the patriarchs. Enoch, Jude 14; Job xix. 25-27. Balaam. Num. xxiv. 16, 17.

II. Testimony of David. Psa. i. 3-6; cii. 16; xcvi. 10-13; xcviii. 7-9

III. Testimony of Prophets. Isa. xxv. 9; xxvi. 21; xxxv. 4; xl. 10; xii. 11; lxiv. 1; lxvi. 15. Jeremiah xxiii. 5-6. Ezekiel xxi. 25-27. Daniel vii. 13-14; xii. 1. Zech. xiv. 3, 4.

IV. Testimony of Apostles. Paul, 1 Cor. xv. 22, 23; Phil. iii. 20; 1 Thess. i. 9-10; ii. 19; iii. 13; iv. 16, 18; 2 Thess. i. 7-10; ii. 1-8; iii. 5; 2 Tim iv. 1; Titus ii. 13, 14; Heb. ix. 27, 28; x. 37. Peter, Acts iii. 19, 20; 1 Pet. i. 13; v. 4; 2 Pet. i. 19; iii. 14. James v. 7-9. Jude 14. John. 1 John ii. 28; ii. 2; Rev. i. 7; vi. 16, 17; xix. 11-16.

V. Testimony of Angels. Acts i. 9-11; Rev. xxii. 6, 7.

VI. Testimony of Christ himself. Matt. xvi. 27; xxiv. 30, 31, 39, 42, 50; xxv. 13, 19, 31; Mark viii. 38; xiii. 26, 34-36; Luke xii. 36, 40, 46; xvii. 24, 30; xxi. 27; John xiv. 1-3, 18, 28; Rev. xvi. 15; xxii. 7, 12, 20.

Here are seventeen witnesses who declare

1. Christ will come personally. Acts i. 9-11; 1 Thess. iv. 16; Heb. ix. 28.

2. He will come visibly. 1 John iii. 2; Matt. xxiv. 30.

3. Gloriously. Matt. xxv. 31; Mark viii. 38; Luke ix. 26.

4. With his holy angels. 2 Thess. i. 7; Matt. xiii. 39; xxv. 31.

The objects of his coming will be—

1. To raise the dead. 1 Thess. iv. 13, 16; 2 Tim. iv. 1-8.

2. To judge the world. Acts xvii. 31; 2 Tim. iv. 1-8; Matt. xxv. 31, 46.

3. To save his people. Heb. ix. 27; Isa. xxv. 6, 9.

4. To destroy the wicked. 2 Thess. i. 8, 9; ii. 8; Isa. xi. 4.

5. To restore all things. Acts iii. 21, 23; Rev. xxi. xxii.

6. To reign for ever and ever. Rev. v. 10; xxi. 5; Matt. xxv. 31; 2 Tim. iv. 1.

The High Calling.

Paul says, "Forgetting the things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Phil. iii. 13, 14.

Dearly beloved, we are called to be heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ in his kingdom. Are we, like Paul, forgetting the things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before? Have we believed the gospel of the coming kingdom and been baptized (immersed) into Christ? If so we are buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life; for if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection. We must sacrifice all worldly pleasures, desires and aims; for our wills are buried into the will of Christ, that henceforth we should not live unto ourselves, but unto him who bought us with his own precious blood. By the baptismal wave we show to sinners whom we leave and to Christians whom we join, that we are dead to sin and would not live any longer therein.

"Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God; therefore the world knoweth us not because it knew him not. Beloved now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him." John iii. 1, 2. True the world knoweth us not, but if we seek to please the Lord, we shall be known of him. Should we not willingly sacrifice the love of the world to gain the love of the Father and the Son? "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." 1 John ii. 15. "For we know that the whole world lieth in wickedness." 1 John v. 19. We are commanded to set not our affections on things on the earth. "For we have here no continuing city, but we seek one to come." We should not seek to possess more of this world's goods than the necessities of life; but rather we should use our means in spreading the gospel and in helping the poor. The apostles of Christ owned very little of this world's goods; and even our Lord when he was on earth said, "The Son of Man hath not where to lay his head." He became poor for our sakes: that we through his poverty might be made rich. 2 Cor. viii. 9.

In Isaiah it is written,
Our sorrows he did bear;
And all our griefs he carried too,
O what a load of care.

"Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows. He was wounded for our transgression, he was bruised for our iniquities. The chastisement of our peace was upon him: and with his stripes we are healed." Isaiah liii. 4-5. Therefore let us walk in his footsteps, patiently enduring all things and strive to overcome evil with good. If we walk thus through life, when our Savior takes his great power to reign, he will say unto us, "Come ye blessed of my Father inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." And we shall with him rule and bless the nations one thousand years. "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Rev. xx. 6. "Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power. For he must reign till he hath put all his enemies under his feet." 1 Cor. xv. 24, 25.

The signs of the times indicate that Christ's second advent is near, when he with his glorified saints will rule the world in righteousness. "Behold a King shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment." Isa. xxxii. 1. This time has never been, nor will it be until Christ cometh into his kingdom.

"Let us walk worthy of the vocation wherewith we are called with all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love." "Let not our adorning be outwardly, but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." 1 Pet. iii. 3, 4. "Him that overcometh will I make a pillow in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out; and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of city of my God, which is New Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name."

"Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus who is the author and finisher of our faith; that in the morning of the resurrection we may sing the song of the redeemed, and meet with those who now sleep in Jesus. They are dead now, their thoughts have perished, they praise not the Lord; but when Christ sets up his kingdom they will be raised incorruptible to dwell with him forever.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep;
From which none ever wakes to weep."

Let me say to the young, "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth before the evil days come." Eccl. xii. 1. For he hath saith, "They who seek me early shall find me."

"Blessed is the man that feareth the Lord that walketh uprightly in all his ways."

"May thy kingdom soon come when thy will shall be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

On Calvary, Christ the Lamb of God,
Laid down his life for me;
That he might by his precious blood,
Redeem us from the curse.

But he has been exalted,
Never again to die;
For being faithful unto death,
He dwells with God on high.

And in that future gold a age,
When he shall take his seat;
To rule the world in righteousness,
May we our loved ones meet.

For this has been the promise,
To those who've faithful been;
Together with the Lord their Head,
One thousand years should reign.

Then sin and death shall cease! And peace
Like one vast ocean roll;
And Christ himself will subject be,
To God who is all in all.

tening) and to apprehend words o thoughtfulness.

3. And to receive turns of word
(metaphors) and to apprehend tru righteousness and to make judgment straight;

4. That he might give subtilty to the guileless and perception and re flection to a young child.

5. And a wise man moreover who hath heard them will be wiser, and th one who apprehendeth them will ac quire the art of guiding: (lit steering as a pilot does.)

6. And he will apprehend a parable and a dark saying, and an oracular sayings of wise men and enigmas.

7. A beginning of wisdom is the fear of the Lord, and a good understand ing is there for all those who practice it; such true reverence for God is a be ginning of perception: but irreverent men despise wisdom and chastening.

8. Hear O son the chastening of thy father and throw not away the bond of thy mother.

9. For a garland of graces wilt tho receive for the crown of thy head an a golden collar for thy neck.

10. O son, may irreverent men no lead thee astray nor be thou coun seled.

11. If they entice thee saying, Come participate with us in blood, and le us hide a guiltless one in the earth u an unjust way:

12. And let us swallow him alive even as death (Hades) the grave and take away the remembrance of him from off the earth:

13. His acquisition of great value let us seize and fill our houses with spoils:

14. Cast in thy lot with us, and let us acquire a common purse all of us, and let our bag become one bag.

15. Do not go thy way with them, but incline thy foot away from their paths.

17. For not without a reason are nets stretched for birds;

18. Yea those who participate in murder are treasuring up for them selves bad things, and the catastroph of men who are evaders of law is bad one.

19. These are the ways of all those who consummate their lawless acts
For in their irreverence they are tak ing away their own soul (life.)

20. Wisdom singeth praise in way out and in public squares leadeth free speech.

21. Upon citadels of walls she her ableth at gateways of men of influ ence she taketh her seat, and at a city's gateways she saith with encour agement,

22. As long a time as the well-dis posed hold on to righteousness they will not have been put to shame; but those devoid of sense in their haughty pride, who are inordinate in their de sires, and have become irreverent, have hated perception,

23. And have not become amenable to reproofs. Lo I am going to deliver beforehand to you an oracular saying of my breath, and I am going to teach you my word.

24. Since I have called and ye have not hearkened, and I have extended words and ye have not heeded,

25. But have made my counsels of no effect and have distrusted my con vincing proofs,

26. Therefore, I also am going to laugh at your loss and exult when de struction cometh upon you.

27. And when tumult suddenly reacheth you, and catastrophe arriv eth like a cyclone, and when tribula tion and blockade come unto you or when utter loss cometh unto you.

28. For it will be when ye shall in voke me I will not hearken unto you:
evil-doers will seek me and will not find me;

29. For they hated wisdom and the Word of the Lord they did not not prefer;

30. Nor were they willing to heed my counsels, and they mocked at my reproofs.

31. Therefore will they eat the fruit of their own way, and with their own irreverence will they have been filled:

32. For because they wrongful chil dren will they have been slain, and a searching examination will destroy ir reverent men:

33. But the one who hearkeneth unto me will pitch his tent upon hope and will be in quietude without fear of any evil.

CHAPTER 2.

1. O Son, when thou hast received an oracular saying of my command ment, if thou shalt hide it at home, without, in other words as a

it has throughout an esoteric and ex oteric significance. The exoteric has to do with natural morality and the a b c of the spiritual; while the eso teric unfolds to the thinker trained in the mind of Christ the first principles underlying the profounder mysteries of God that have been graciously re vealed to the deiver for them.

The word translated "proverb" C.
V. and R. V. is the same word used in John's gospel for "parable" and so translated in C. V. and R. V. Another illustration of the inconsistency or prejudicial bias of the translators
There are two words in the origina both meaning what we mean in Eng lish by "a parable" and there ar other words in the original, several o them meaning what we in Englis mean by a proverb, a wise law or say ing, in short such traditional wis sayings as are handed down fro generation to generation in all na tions, peoples and tongues.

The word in the original oftenes used in the Scriptures for a parabl
we have neglected into parabl which means literally "cast along side" of course for the purposes of comparison in this use of which we are talking. The other original word thi word in question, means literally t

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

An Artistic Brochure entitled "Summer Outings" is published by the Nickel Plate Road describing vacation resorts along that line. Address B. F. Horner, General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, Ohio., for a copy.—July 15.

Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism, by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. 10 cents each. Send to this office.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 156-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS AND THOUGHTS FOR THE QUESTIONED.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 90 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Hell and kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. This clearly sets forth the idea that the Coming Nation will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 26 pages price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

A PARLIAMENT BATTLEFIELD, OR, EDMUND'S WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those enquiring for truth. 16 pages 5cents each.

Necessity of Baptism. A 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Bible Plan of Salvation. A 4-page tract telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. 2 cts each or 15 cts per dozen.

An open Letter to J. A. Conrad. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Letter to Dr. Talmage. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Passages Supposed to Teach Consciousness after Death, by W. H. Wilson, which shows that eternal life is conditional—and not inherited. 3 cents each, or 25 cents a dozen.

Where Do the Dead Sleep. Three are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Hades. A Bible account of this place with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

Death Compared to a Sleep. This represents death as a sleep and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

The Wicked Dead and Plain Truths. The two combined. 2 pages ten copies for 10 cents

Praise to Jehovah.

L.! the Lord Jehovah liveth!
He's my rock, I bless his name.
He, my God, salvation giveth;
All ye lands, exalt his fame.

God, Messiah's cause maintaining,
Shall his righteous throne extend;
Ev'ry the world the Saviour reigning—
Earth shall at his footstool bend.

O'er his enemies exalted,
Great Redeemer! see him rise!
Though by powers of hell assaulted,
God supports him to the skies.

Jesus, hail! enthroned in glory,
Through all ages to abide;
All the heavenly host adore thee,
Seated at thy Father's side.

"Our True Model of Belief." No. 2.

SECOND SET OF QUESTIONS.

Question 1, "Referring to Answer to Question 1, first set—What proof is there that Jesus and the Apostles preached any of those earliest things except (c)—'The Kingdom of God is at hand.'"

Answer. There is no proof. I did not state that Jesus and the Apostles preached any of these. I gave a brief reply to the question, "What was the gospel of the kingdom: namely the glad tidings concerning the approach of the restored government of Jehovah over the twelve tribes of Israel gathered to the land of their fathers." The items a, b, c, and d, were introduced as proof of the origin and history of the Divine Kingdom, and the items f, g, h, i, j, to account for the fact that although the kingdom was preached as "at hand," it had not come at the period of our assension, but was still a matter of hope. The four facts referred to (a, b, c, d,) were well known to the first hearers of the proclamation that the kingdom of God was at hand. They were Jews, and could have no difficulty in understanding the plain meaning of the preaching.

Question 2. Is there nothing personal about the gospel of the kingdom?

Answer. It is not quite clear to me what is intended by "personal" here. The gospel was preached by a person to persons, and persons believed it. The principal preacher was the Messiah. The first preacher, John the Baptist, was supposed by the people to be the Messiah. "The people were in expectation, and all men mused in their hearts of John whether he were the Christ or not." John said, No! "but one mightier than I cometh," etc. This must have at once pointed out to the people that this Messiah was about to appear. When Jesus began to preach, he was at once identified as the Messiah. Nathaniel, and such as he, would be at no loss to accept the gospel of the kingdom in its true Israelitish sense, and to make his true confession—"Thou art the Son of God: thou art the King of Israel." True, it may be said that the Jews desired chiefly political deliverance. But what of such persons as Zacharias and his wife Elizabeth; Mary the mother of our Lord; the aged Simeon; Anna the prophetess; Joseph of Arimathea; and the woman who "followed Jesus from Galilee, and ministered to him of their substance?" These may surely be viewed as typical of many others, who combined a patriotic sentiment with a deep feeling of piety resting on the faith of Abraham. Whatever of personal salvation they hoped for in connection with such a faith, must have been intensified by the proclamation of the restored kingdom, and the appearing of the Messiah, apart from any formal intimations of benefits appended to it by the preachers.

Question 3. "Why must teachings which in their nature are gospel or good news, and which have express reference to the kingdom (such as the Beatitudes and many of the parables) be excluded from the gospel of the kingdom?

Answer. The question that suggests itself here is, Why should such things be included? Waiving this, however, I have to answer (1) Because whatever may be the intrinsic character of such teachings as are "in their nature gospel or good news," there is no evidence that they are ever spoken of as "the gospel." I fail to see how any one has authority to apply names to Bible things other than those given by our Lord and his Apostles. The birth of Christ was announced to the shepherds as "glad tidings;" and if I should say that even such an important event as this is not to be identified with "the gospel," I might find support from Paul's definition of the gospel in 1 Cor. xv. 1–4, where the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ, without any mention of his birth, are categorically set forth. (2) Although the twelve apostles and the seventy disciples were associated with their Master in his public ministry, there is no evidence that they had any part in such general teachings. The record is that their services were limited to the public preaching of the gospel of the kingdom. It should be noted here that while the parables were spoken to the multitudes, they were explained only to the disciples, who had already believed "the gospel of the kingdom." I submit that this fact is sufficient to set aside the idea that the parables should be included in the gospel.

Question 4. "What evidence is there that the gospel was necessarily a "public proclamation?"

Answer. If the word "necessarily" is intended to indicate that the gospel was not exclusively a "public proclamation," and that therefore there was [illegible] to hinder it from being [illegible] ered privately, I have no objection; but whatever may be the proper term to denote the setting forth of the gospel, whether "preaching" or proclaiming, or any other, the fact is plain that it was certainly of the most public character." Jesus went about all Galilee teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom..... ...and his fame went throughout all Syria..... and there followed him great multitudes from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from beyond Jordon." The twelve were to "go over the cities of Israel," and the seventy to every city and place, whither he himself would come." As to the term "preach" or proclaim, it is not of very great importance which is preferred. The popular signification of the word preach, however, ("to deliver a discourse on a religious subject") while it might apply to our Lord himself, I submit that it is not applicable to the twelve or the seventy who evidently limited themselves to our Lord's injunction "As ye go, preach saying, The Kingdom of heaven is at hand." Again, the word rendered preach is defined in the Greek Lexicon, "to proclaim as a herald," "announce openly and publicly." We have an instance of this primary meaning in Luke xii. 3, "proclaimed on the housetops." It is only in a secondary sense that it is used with a more general application. The brief terms in which "the gospel" is always described, is sufficient to determine that the word is there used in the primary sense. Paul's long discourse at Troas, (Acts xx.), is denoted by an entirely different word.

Question 5. "Do not 'the benefits and privileges to be enjoyed by believers of the gospel' form a part of the gospel? Can the ten items of Answer 1 (1st set) be gospel to any one without 'the privileges' being also made known?"

Answer. I have already explained my use of the ten items (Answer to Question 1 in present article.) I fail to see any reason to think that "the benefits and privileges" must necessarily be made known. In the first proclamation already referred to, there is no evidence that benefits and privileges constituted part of the preaching. For one thing there was no necessity, so far as the Jews were concerned. When they listened to the intimation, "The Kingdom of God is at hand," they knew perfectly what the effect of the restoration of their kingdom would be. Some may have had only national hopes in the matter; others both national aspirations and personal hopes in view according to the intelligence and faith of the individual. See remarks on this point in Answer to question 2 in this article. To Gentiles (and even to ignorant Jews) some information of a preliminary nature would be necessary, to put them on a level with those better informed. This is, however, apart from the gospel as disclosed in the record.

Question 6. (a) "Repentance and remission of sins were to be preached in his name among all nations" (Luke xxiv. 47.) and (b) "The gospel of the kingdom" was similarly to "be preached unto all nations." (Matt. xxiv. 14.) Are (a) and (b) entirely distinct from one another; do they partly coincide; or are ... different expressions of the same?

Answer. The two passages are in perfect agreement in one point, namely, the universal extent of the proclamation after the ascension of our Lord. This was a new feature in the work of the Apostles; for it had been previously confined to Israel, excluding even the Samaritans. This was evidently the principal point in our Lord's commission: and this is confirmed by the reports of it as given by Matthew and Mark, "make disciples of all nations," "preach the gospel to every creature." Repentance and remission of sins, however, was not a new feature. From the first both were accompaniments of "the gospel" proclamation. Repentance took the form of a command—"Repent ye and believe the gospel" John in Matt. iii. 2; our Lord in iv. 17, and Mark i. 15; by the Apostles in Mark iv. 12. Remission of sins by John (Mark i. 4; Luke iii. 3. This ... [illegible] ... arms. Luke i. 17.) I fail to see how a command to repent, followed by "and believe the gospel," can be made a constituent element of that gospel.

Coming now more particularly to Matt. xxv. 14 and Luke xxiv. 47. The former mentions simply the subject of gospel preaching—"The Kingdom," without any of its accompaniments—Repentance or Remission. These would of course be understood by the hearers (the Apostles) to be implied, from their previous connection. Luke only mentions the duty of repentance, and the effect of it—remission of sins. Here again the hearers would understand that "the gospel of the kingdom" was necessarily implied. The probability is that the evangelists gave abridged accounts of the commission, and that our Lord really included these different points in his message to his Apostles.—Note also that the phrase "The gospel" is applied to the kingdom in Matt. xxiv. 47. This is corroborated by the subsequent preaching of the Apostles. See Acts ii. 30, 38; iii. 19.

J. CAMERON.

What Are These? And Whence Came They?

"And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, what are these which are arrayed in white robes? And whence came they?" Rev. vii. 13.

Seeing that some of the brethren are much exercised in trying to locate this great crowd of people that John saw, I too will "show mine opinion." After John had seen the seal of the living God (which was his name and that of his Son) written on the foreheads of the one hundred and forty-four thousand of the children of Israel. He says, "After this I beheld, and lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and peoples, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands." ver. 9. After this, one of the elders calls the attention of John to this great crowd by the use of our caption. He then proceeds to answer, by saying, "These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." Taking what John and the elder says about this great crowd of people, we conclude that they are a very highly favored class of people, because they had come out of great tribulation, had washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Not only so, but were commended by being set before the throne, holding palms in their hands. Not only so, but they serve God day and night in his temple. And he who sits on the throne will dwell among them. They hunger and thirst no more, neither are they affected by the light and heat of the sun, for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters: and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." Now, who are they? and whence did they come? Brethren, can you tell? Do I hear you say—"I believe they are a recent crowd of ransomed Alliance Christians who in their blind zeal overlook and repudiate God's law of adoption, holding their tradition sacred instead of God's commandment?" Well, well, that would certainly place a great premium on ignorance and rebellion. Does the Master justify the evil deeds of many who will come up and ask for admittance, and are rejected. If they are shut out of the kingdom, which is under the whole heaven, then where will they be? Or if they lose the royalty, and find all that is said of the great crowd, what have they lost? And if they find all that is said of the great crowd, what will be not lost? And can a person be washed in the blood of the Lamb and be a Christian, a follower of Christ, who rejects God's symbol of the death, burial and resurrection of his dear Son, choosing "manism" instead? The fact is, it seems plain to me that there is an Anti-Christ in position who is [illegible] and [illegible] people out of [illegible] and believe that they do believe [illegible] is false! Having failed thus far to find the counterpart to this great crowd of people, we ask—Who are they? And we will briefly suggest they are what is left of them, that [illegible] represent God's royal people selected and chosen as the Bride, the Lamb's wife, to rule and reign as kings and priests on the earth. Note, this people is selected out from all nations, and kindreds, and peoples and tongues, Ver. 9. While the royal family who are to reign with Christ, are redeemed and selected out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation, ch. v. 9, one class had washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb, while the other class had been redeemed by the blood of the Lamb. Are they not the same class? I have read and studied my Bible for more than forty years, yet I confess that I have not studied it enough to learn that thousands and millions of sincere men and women who have been led to reject and reject God's plan of salvation—the gospel of Christ, God's power of salvation, to those who believe and obey, are saved. Yet I may have overlooked much that is there, and will kindly submit the foregoing to the brethren for their candid consideration. Praying that our Father in heaven may bless his truth and his faithful children abundantly for Jesus' sake. Amen.

A Serious Mistake.

"Jesus answered, Verily, Verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." John iii. 5.

The above clear and decisive language of the Savior excludes from an entrance into the kingdom all who will not comply with the requirements our Lord has seen fit to impose. The human heart is prone to disobedience, and thus seeks out methods to evade the force of language, and to ally themselves in their disobedience.

Baptism, or being "born of water," has encountered the special hostility of large numbers of people who call themselves Christian people they seek to make the force of Christ's words "born of water" as applies to baptism, to be entirely otherwise than the words would seem to indicate. Such a perversion! We all know of instances such a birth in no sense whatever [illegible] to the salvation of those [illegible] it. Jesus is teaching Nicodemus a lesson, that neither himself, or any other person, can possibly by any other means be granted an entrance into God's previous kingdom. He is dealing specifically as to

THE ONLY WAY TO ENTER THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

That has no reference to a birth of the flesh, or activity of the will of the flesh, is evident from his own language as follows:—"As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, (how?) even to them that believe on his name: which were not born of blood, nor of the will of man, but of God." John i. 12, 13.

Further on he is discoursing to Nicodemus about how "sons of God," are born—and not children of flesh.

Each line of evidence, that cannot be logically controverted, those deniers of Christ's teaching insist that [illegible] is reference to a birth of flesh, when Jesus said, "Except a man be born of water" etc. How lowering to the dignity of the language of Christ, to make affirm that that which is nonexistent, or never had any being, cannot enter into the kingdom of God." Intellects of a low order can know that much, without any teaching. It is simply an insult to the learned Ruler of the Jews, and to the Son of God, in whom dwelt all the fullness of wisdom, to attribute such an ignorance to either teacher or pupil. It requires but little perception to see that he was speaking of the existent and not the nonexistent, when he said: "Except a MAN be born of water" etc. The word "MAN" has reference to an existent being, who has come to maturity, has passed the [illegible] and according to Jesus' own words it is "A MAN" that can experience the birth of water, or be excluded from the kingdom.

Before the birth of water takes place, there must previously be a begetting by the Word of Truth. See James i. 18: "Of his own will begat he us with the Word of truth, that we should be a kind of firstfruits of his creatures." There can be no legitimate birth of water unless preceded by a begetting by "the Word of Truth," and then "the firstfruits of his creatures" are the result of the birth. Nothing but the real genuine "Word of Truth," will be efficacious in bringing forth the "firstfruits."

1 Cor. iv. 15: "In Christ Jesus, I have begotten you through THE gospel." How beautifully this harmonizes with Jesus' commission: "He that believeth (is begotten by the gospel) and is baptized (born of water) shall be saved."

1 Pet. i. 23, 24, 25: "Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever. * * * The Word of the Lord endureth forever. And this is the Word which by the gospel is preached unto you." "The gospel" is the only seed, which will [illegible] to birth the "firstfruits," "the sons of God," or "the children of the kingdom."

Jesus said many would seek to enter the straight gate, and would not be able. Right here is where they fail. They trust something else than the pure "Word of Truth," and ignore Jesus' words with regard to being "born of water," after a begetting by the "Word of Truth," or "through the gospel."

They will find to their sorrow that the vain mystifisms of the apostacy will not be accepted as a substitute in that day.

Tracts! Tracts!!

I want to say a few words to the readers of THE RESTITUTION through the paper. I sent and got some of M. Jolliffe's tracts for distribution and have read some, and while reading it was so grand, so clear, and so full of truth that it seems every one who reads them must be convinced of the truth and obey, and the thought occurred to me while reading that I would ask each reader of THE RESTITUTION to send and get a hundred or to the tracts and distribute them. We can't all preach, and not many as Bro. Jolliffe can, but we have the blessing of the printing press, and if we can't talk we can act, and we should act for we must give an account of our actions or inaction, whichever it is. We are commanded to give a tenth of our income. Do we do it? How much better could we do than to distribute these grand tracts of truth. Step off a train in the cities and you will meet some one with tracts full of our present day theology, but not the truth. They are zealous as we should be, and in their desire to serve Christ they are at work trying to improve that one talent. Are we to be less zealous who have the truth? and give occasion for Christ to say when he comes, "Depart, I know ye not; I was an hungered and ye gave me no meat." Let us rouse up and give them meat; put our hands down in our pockets according as God has blessed us and circulate broadcast. The Kingdom of God—Strangers to the Covenants of Promise—and others as good, and see if God won't open the windows of heaven and pour out such spiritual blessing as we never dreamed of. Now, brothers and sisters, wake up and be doing, for the time to work is short. The plan I have adopted is to send tracts by mail to the preachers first, then to all others.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the judgment-rendition of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Yours in faith.

E. W. MEAD.

Editor Restitution:

I will now try to write a few lines for the paper. One month from today, if I should live, I will be 77 years of age. I feel truly thankful that my life has been spared to this time. Many of the readers will remember that, I for a long time was severely afflicted with asthma. I am glad to report that here at Waterville, Wash., I am clear from it.—have not been troubled with it for many years—but once when near Portland, Oregon for a short time. The climate here is responsible for my good health. Where I live is about 2,500 feet above sea level. And am blessed with such good health and strength I have been able to spend considerable of my time in preaching. With the result that in Waterville and vicinity the church here has a membership of about sixty. I have also done considerable preaching in other localities with some good results. We have to hold our meetings in schoolhouses. The orthodox churches do not desire their houses should be used by people who do not endorse the doctrine of the immortality of the soul. That seems to be the dividing line. The issue is a very clear one. God said man should die. And the serpent contradicted by saying "Ye shall not surely die." It does seem to be a question that people ought to settle without any trouble as to which we will believe. If we believe man does not die, necessarily there must be some place for these supposed living souls to stay until their bodies are made alive again. Therefore men have assumed that the righteous go to heaven, and the wicked go to hell at death and at the resurrection and judgment both classes must come to be judged. Does not this imply a second judgment? It is much easier to believe the plain Bible teaching, that man dies—and is unconscious, and that each class will receive their wages—after judgment. On the sixth day of last May my wife and I passed our fiftieth wedding anniversary. Three of our sons and our daughter and their families who live near us, and a few others called upon us on that day and ate dinner with us; and before leaving presented us with a purse which is highly appreciated. From our absent children and my only living sister and husband (William and Mary Gladden) we received substantial tokens of remembrance. Many great changes have occurred in the last 50 years. Are we ready for the events of the next half century? Within that time the kingdoms of this world may become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ. May we be ready.

In hope.

EXAMINE

The label on your paper, and if it bears a date previous to this time please RENEW NOW. Do not wait for other notice to be sent, but PLEASE RENEW TODAY.

REMEMBER.

That perhaps your subscription to THE RESTITUTION has expired, and please REMEMBER that the Editor must live, the printing and paper bills must be paid, Uncle Sam refuses to send out mail unless the postage is paid, and that many other bills are constantly on hand ready to take money. REMEMBER, those of you who have received statements lately, and do not throw them aside, but look to your account, and if the bill is right, please make an effort to pay it. If it is not right point out the error, and it will be made right. It is not unlikely that errors have occurred, but we have tried to be careful. We most earnestly hope that those friends whom we have trusted, at their solicitation, and whose promise to pay has been in our hands for some time, will at once redeem these pledges by renewing their subscriptions. It is quite an expense to make out statements of these accounts, and the postage is a big item. The price of our paper is low and every leak is felt. Please give us no more anxiety on this score, but renew at once. At any rate we want to hear from you.

REMEMBER, that we will send THE RESTITUTION to the poor, at their request, so long as we can get the means to publish the paper. Let all our brethren who have means to use in sending the good news to others, REMEMBER the name of some friend or relative, and send us an extra amount, to send the paper to them. If you cannot think of any such persons send the money, and we will apply it where it will be appreciated and return blessings on the doner.

REMEMBER that this is written for you, if you are in arrears, or have not renewed. Do not say, "Well, I'll attend to it in a few days," but not right NOW. We need the money at this present time.

REMEMBER, when sending your remittance that many sums of money are lost every year by the careless manner in which many send their subscriptions. REMEMBER, all remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. If you are compelled to send postage stamps buy those of the one or two cent denominations. We do not want large ones.

REMEMBER this is addressed to you in the kindliest spirit possible, hoping that you will receive it in the same manner.

REMEMBER that we are very grateful to our friends who have helped us in our work heretofore, not only in a financial way; but with their words of encouragement. We are doing our best to give you a good paper, and we hope to be able to do so as long as we have it. May our dear Father help us all, is our prayer.

"THE fire of discord is more ruinous to the church of Christ than the fire of persecution."

"SPECULATION is poor stuff to fill up a sermon with. It is possible that this or that may be true," can be offset with, "It is possible that it is not true." What would have taken place if certain things had not happened, is nothing to anybody; because they have happened, and therefore what has taken place is what has to be considered. Men who have not accepted the conditions of salvation are in too great peril to listen to a palaver about whether the stars are inhabited, or not. Don't by philosophy falsely so called make more difficult the settlement, What is truth."

"WORTHY of being kissed is that rod that beats out our sins."

"THE fear of man will make us hide sin, but the fear of the Lord will cause us to hate it."

CHRISTIAN Scriver says a lock was shown to Gotthold, constructed of rings which were inscribed with letters, and could be turned round until the letters represented the name of Jesus. It was only when the rings were disposed of in this way that the lock could be opened. The invention pleased him beyond measure, and he exclaimed: "O that I could put such a lock upon my heart!" Our hearts are already locked, no doubt, but generally with a lock of quite another kind. Many want to hear only the words, "Gain," "Honor," "Pleasure," "Riches," "Revenge;" at the sound of these words their hearts fly open in a moment. Lord engrave thou thy name upon my heart, that it may remain closed to worldly joy, and worldly pleasure, self-interest, fading honor and low revenge, and open only to thee."

"A GREAT many talents are laid away. This means that a great deal of capital is hidden that ought to be in active service. When faith flags napkins come into use, just as money is concealed when commercial confidence is shaken. The indications are, that more talents are hidden than are used. The hiding of talents, be they what they may be, is both wasteful and dangerous. The use of it is lost and the talent too. Opportunities pass,—ability departs, spiritual life dies out. Indolence becomes more indolent, selfishness more selfish, ignorance more ignorant, and indifference more indifferent. When light becomes darkness, how great is that darkness! If we have only one talent the only safe way is to use it. By using, it is sure to become two, the two to four, and the four to eight. 'To him that hath it shall be given.' The worst thing to do, is to wrap our talent in a napkin."

WE take the following clipping from the Chicago Tribune of July 18: There is no reliable information available regarding the course of the Sultan in Eastern affairs. Reports from Constantinople continue to be sanguine one day and despairing the next, and it is safe to say that nobody will know the solution of the crisis in advance of the event itself. Least of all can the declarations of the Sultan himself, be they defiant or conciliating, be taken as any indication of his real purpose. It is certain, of course, that he will insist upon his claim to Thessaly as long as there is any possibility of success of actual resort to force against Europe. His most earnest protestations no longer command any respect or credence from the ambassadors or the public, even an unconditional promise to evacuate would carry no weight, and Europe now refuses to believe anything short of the fact itself. Few believe that he has yet exhausted his powers of procrastination.

Ever With The Lord.

"It would be quite a good deal to be with Enoch, or Abraham, or Moses, or Elijah, or Paul, or Peter, or John,—much to share their fellowship, and converse with them concerning the things of God, and the story of their wondrous lives; but how much more to be with the Lord! To be, like Peter, at his side, or like Mary at his feet, or like John in his bosom; to have met him on the streets of Jerusalem, or at the Sea Galilee, or at Jacob's well; to have heard him mention our names, or have saluted us as we we passed, with the wish of peace,—to have dwelt in the next house to him at Nazareth, or to have sat at the same table with him at the home of Lazarus, or to have slept under the same roof, would seem to have been wonderful privileged. Why we would treasure them above gold, or silver, or precious stones. Nay, even to hear of his love, or to have a message from him, saying that he was gracious to us, and kept us in mind, how we would esteem it! But what is all this to being with him in glory? With him as friend with friend. With him as the Bride with the Bridegroom.

Yes; ever with the Lord. Brethren and sisters, does not this thought sooth all sorrow, and sum up all joys even now, if we can say gladly and surely, "I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. O, how much more glad, and surely shall we be able to say it then!

"Forever to behold him shine,
For ever more to call him mine."

"This is what we look for: this is our watchword and our song, even in the day of absence and sorrow. It is this that makes the expected morning a morning of joy. "As for me," says the Psalmist, "I will behold thy face in righteousness. I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." Beloved, I trust none of us who have taken his sin-covering name will be satisfied with anything short of his likeness. It looks as if he contented to gather his saints unto him,—those who have made a covenant with him by sacrifice, will soon be given. Let us be on the watch."

The Question Drawer.

In reply to M. L. we say that [illegible] xiii. we are told that we may speak like an angel, understand all mysteries, and have all faith, and bestow all our goods to feed the poor, and give our bodies to be burned, but it will amount to nothing without love. Then we are told what love does. It prevents envy, prevents boastfulness, —prevents puffing, or swelling up with importance, and prevents people from being touchy, for true they will not be fully appreciated,—prevents them from acting in an unbecoming manner,—prevents them from seeking what is not their own,—prevents them being easily provoked, and from thinking evil, and impugning the motives, and causes them to put the most charitable construction possible upon the actions of others, and causes them to bear or cover all things instead of noising things abroad that do not suit. With these burning words well in mind you can readily distinguish the working of the flesh,—and place the cause—it is absence of love. The Word of God is sharper than a two-edged sword. The X ray are wonderful, but they do not [illegible] graph the mind nor disclose the thoughts and intents of the heart, and show how little progress has been made in the Divine life, as does the Spirit's Word. There are many more [illegible] we cannot notice here; but there is one which should not be passed; amongst them is this:—The man or woman who sets aside the Master's instruction respecting offenses and talks to others of [illegible] wrongs, is a sinner—a double sinner, we may say, for he sins against the wrong-doer, and he sins against God. To back-bite is to speak evil of, or to the disredit or disadvantage of an absent person: and God has shown us how he abhors this conduct by classing it with the foulest and most iniquitous deeds, in the first chapter of Romans,—yes, on a level, even, with fornication and murder. And long before Paul, the Psalmist said that those who back-bite with their tongue, and take up a reproach or evil report against his neighbor, shall not dwell in God's Holy Hill.

For W. H. W., and all whom it may concern. "In reference to the question 'Why God has not kept the copies of the Scripture free from error as well as the originals, we may say, there is every reason to conclude that the copies were as free from errors as the autographs. If there be errors they are likely due to the translation into other languages. God has not seen fit to preserve every Gentile translation, and this course is in harmony with his working in other things, that we do not fully comprehend. You might go a step further, and ask why he does not control men's quotations of it, and still further, why he does not direct the readers of it to the same conclusions. He has exercised a providential guardianship of it; and besides that his Book is a self-interpreting Book, a self-correcting book in any language. Remember "it is the glory of God to conceal a thing, but the honor of kings, and kings to be to search out a matter."

The Way of Life.

[illegible]

On Saying No.

"It is easy to obey Aunt Margaret," I heard a little girl of twelve say not long ago. She says 'no' just as pleasantly as she says 'yes.'"

Now the clear logic of a child often illuminates a dark subject, and it seemed to me this little girl's remark contained a truth that was worth thinking of.

So I began to observe the way my friends say 'no' to their children. Here is one instance:—

A little boy of two was sitting in his high chair at table where his mother was making cake. He was an active child, and had been there some time, quiet and good. There was a glass near, and he took it.

"No, no, Freddie," said his mother sharply. "Put that glass down this instant."

The baby glanced at his mother, with a look of sudden defiance, and immediately dashed the glass onto the floor.

"You naughty boy!" cried the mother, and, dropping her spoon, she slapped his hands severely, and turned his chair to the wall for further punishment while she swept up the fragments of broken glass.

"I never saw such a child," said she in angry tone "I never forbid him anything that he does not instantly disobey me if he can."

The poor baby sobbed with rage: my heart ached as I thought of all the the years of struggle and bitterness before him. I saw how his nature would be warped and injured by such treatment, and I knew that if he was not utterly ruined it would only be by the mercy of God.

I watched other mothers to see what their methods of refusal were.

"No, you cannot."

"No; not don't you ask me again."

"No; and stop teasing."

"No; do go away somewhere."

"'no' is all when I say 'no' I mean 'no.'"

These forms of refusal were common in a number of families. I heard them repeatedly, and they were always spoken in an irritated tone: one mother said "No; and if you ask me again I'll whip you."

Perhaps you think the mothers were rude uncultured women; but no, they were ladies: with both social and intellectual advantages, most were church members, Christians no doubt, and loved their children: if any hurt or ill came to their tender bodies, they suffered with them, but any hurt they gave the loving hearts and tender spirits of the children they never recognized. My soul was deeply moved. I did not blame the little ones for the wrathful though impotent protest made against injustice and tyranny. I felt I should rebel if treated so. It takes years of practice in self-control to enable one to bear insult calmly: what can we expect of a little child?

"But," said a mother with whom I dared to remonstrate, "I have to be severe with my children. If I were not they would not obey me at all."

I sighed. How could I show that mother that she was mistaken.

"I am sure" said I, "that children can be taught that it is just as necessary to obey a pleasant 'no' as an cross one, and it is so much easier for them to obey when they are refused kindly. The spirit of combativeness is not roused, and all they have to do is to bear the disappointment, whatever it may be, and that is often hard enough for their eager little hearts to endure. But if they love you and trust you; and you give them as much sympathy over their troubles as you would for a cut finger for instance, you will be surprised at the brave way they will resign a forbidden pleasure, having faith that 'mamma knows best.'"

I was sitting with a friend once when her 12 year old boy sprang into the room, eager and impetuous.

"Mother," he shouted, "can I go out to the swimming hole this afternoon? All the boys are going."

The mother quietly shook her head. "I'm sorry; but you cannot go," she said.

The boy did not swear, but straightened himself defiantly, "I will go," said he.

He met by a look of reproof and coming of came into the mother's face, she silently looked her boy in the eyes. He softened. "I want to go awfully" said he.

"I know it," she answered gently, "but your father has decided that you are not a sufficiently expert swimmer to go into the water without him, he can't go today. Here is Miss B. will you speak to her?"

He came and shook hands politely, but his bright eager looks had vanished: evidently he was bitterly disappointed. He went to the porch and sat down a moment in silence. Finally he came in again.

"Mother," said he, "I don't believe Harry H. can go swimming either. If I can get him, may we go over to Pelham woods together?"

"O yes," answered his mother cordially, "and there are fresh cakes in the pantry, take some for a lunch."

Tom's face brightened; he made a plunge for his mother, gave her a hug, which disarranged her hair and crushed her neck ruffle entirely. "I just love you, mother," said he.

"So do I you, Tom," she answered quickly.

Tom dashed out of the room.

"Well," said his mother laughingly, "how would you like to possess a young bear like that?"

"Ah," I returned, "I think you are a fortunate mother to be able to govern so impetuous a lad!"

"It is a very anxious business, though," she responded, "this saying 'no'. I am often afraid he will break away from me, he is so intense and so eager; but he loves me, and if I can give him a little time, his affection for me wins. He knows that I always say 'yes' when I can."

"You will keep him, never fear," I answered.

"A boy who loves his mother, and is sure she loves him and longs to make him happy, will never break away, for love is the strongest tie in the world."

Reserve Power.

No engineer plans a machine or a bridge or a boiler that is just large and strong enough for the work required. There is always provision for a larger load or a higher pressure than the builder ever expects to be used. Such reserve power in human character is a possession much to be desired. Young people especially are apt to neglect this element in themselves and in others. There are quiet Christians about us whom we do not appreciate, because no great occasion has yet called out their finer qualities in a conspicuous way. They have plenty of reserve power waiting for the emergency when it will become necessary. Such people contract unawares ably on first acquaintance with those who show their whole depth to every casual acquaintance, but time proves true worth. Reserve power of character is to be accumulated in just the ways that all Christian growth must be maintained—by prayer, study of the Bible, and daily communion with Christ. If our ordinary prayers are perfunctory and superficial, when there arrives a great crisis in our lives we are not prepared for it, and find ourselves, to our own dismay, unacquainted with God; our wills are not subject to the will of Christ; we are not masters of ourselves. "Fair weather Christians" are of little use in a storm. The reserve power so necessary for strong Christian character is not always the sort that expresses itself freely in speech. It is not necessarily the most fervent exhorter whose moral courage is greatest. This is not a matter of prayer-meetings and church services so much as it is of steady, consistent Christian living at home, doing humble duties faithfully, and serving God year in and year out. When the emergency call comes, such people are the ones to be depended on.

What Does This Mean?

A perusal of the history of the railway transactions during the past four years shows us that this period has been the most disastrous, from a financial standpoint, of any other of the present decade. Under the circumstances it would almost seem as though the further development or improvement of railway facilities must cease. Yet, strange to say, many notable instances prove that the contrary is true. In numerous instances, first class roads, despite the hard times, and general business depression, have made very decided advances, not only in the improvement of the material condition of the road itself, but likewise the equipment and service. And the public has been a great gainer by the public spiritedness of the roads.

One of the most notable cases of railway development is the Nickel Plate Road, which seems to have forged right ahead with its improvements and has exhibited an unrelenting determination to give the public the best possible facilities, in spite of the hard times. And how well this corporation has succeeded in its laudable efforts, the excellent condition of its system bears ample evidence. Yet the secret of this success is obvious: The people have responded very generously to a generous effort to give them the worth of their money. That is all. The people's money has enabled the road to better its facilities in every respect; thus the work has been of a mutual and reciprocal character. The liberal patronage accorded the road has brought a handsome return to the people in the shape of improved facilities for travel, yet at lower rates.

And now, it seems, the Nickel Plate Road is still engaged in further efforts to serve the people well. It has a high class roadway to begin with; a most excellent equipment to run it with, and a safe, fast, and reliable service for the delectation of its patrons. All in all, it offers a most attractive mean to travelers bound east or west in the shape of "A Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains."—George A. Benham, Special Correspondent.

Poetry.

True Worship.

O worship the King, all glorious above,
And gratefully sing his wonderful love;
Our Shield and Defender, the Ancient of Days,
Pavilioned in splendor, and girded with praise?

O tell of his might, and sing of his grace,
Whose robe is the light, whose canopy space;
His chariots of wrath the deep thunder-clouds form,
And dark is his path on the wings of the storm!

Thy bountiful care what tongue can recite,
It breathes in the air, it shines in the light,
It streams from the hills, it descends to the plain,
And sweetly distils in the dew and the rain.

Frail children of dust, and feeble as frail,
In thee do we trust, nor find thee to fail;
Thy mercies, how tender! how firm to the end!
Our Maker, Defender, Redeemer and Friend.

Parables Of Salomoon.
Chapter 3.

1. O son, ignore not my lawful injunctions, and let thy heart watch to keep my ornecular words:

2. For length of lifetime and years of life and peace will they add to thee.

3. Acts of mercy and acts of faith may they not have ceased being thine; but fasten them upon thy neck and them wilt find favor.

4. And anticipate noble things in the sight of the Lord and men.

5. Be one who trusteth in God with all thy heart and rely not upon thine own wisdom.

6. In all thy ways make it known that he may set all thy ways straight.

7. Be not thankful by thyself merely, but fear God and incline away from every evil thing.

8. Then will there be healing for thy body and care for thy bones.

9. Honor the Lord from thy pains-taking labor, and offer a first-fruits of righteousness.

10. That thy inner-chambers may be filled to satiety with food, and thy wine-vats may gush forth with wine.

11. O Son, do not make little of the Lord's chastenings, nor faint when convicted by him.

12. For whom the Lord loveth he convicteth, and he scourgeth every son whom he receipteth.

13. Blessed happy the man who hath found wisdom, and the mortal who hath perceived in a thoughtful way.

14. For better is it to make merchandise of it than of treasures of gold and silver;

15. And more precious is it than very precious stones: nothing wicked will resist it. She is well known to those who draw nigh unto her and nothing of value is worthy of her.

16. For length of life-time and years of life are in her right-hand and in her left riches and glory; from out her mouth righteousness goeth its way, and law and mercy she carried upon tongue.

17. Her ways are noble ways and all her paths are in peace.

18. A tree of life is there for all who hold to her, and for those who rely upon her as upon the Lord security.

19. God in wisdom founded the earth and in thoughtfulness made the heavens ready.

20. In perceptive thought abysses were rent open, and clouds dropped dew.

21. O son, do not let them slip by, but watch to keep my counsel and reflective thought,

22. That thy soul may live and grace may be around thy neck; and there will be healing for thy flesh, and cure for thy bones:

23. That thou mayest go all thy ways confident in peace, and thy foot shall not stumble.

24. For if thou sittest down thou wilt be without fear, and if thou liest down thou wilt sleep sweetly.

25. And thou wilt not have feared anything that may have come to smite, nor coming onsets of irreverent men.

26. For the Lord will be over all thy ways and will make thy foot reliable so that thou wilt not reel.

27. Do not refrain from doing good to one in want, whenever thy hand hath to give responsive help.

28. Do not say when one hath come, return again, tomorrow I will give, when thou art able to do good; For thou knowest not what the morrow will bring forth.

29. Do not devise evil things against thy friend, who is sojourning beside thee and hath confidence in thee.

30. Do not show enmity to a man without cause lest he do thee some harm.

31. Do not acquire the reproaches of evil men nor be envious of their ways.

32. For every evader of law is unclean in the sight of the Lord, and he doth not take his seat in a council of justified ones.

33. God's curse is on the houses of the irreverent, but the court-yards of the justified are commended.

34. The Lord arrayeth himself against the haughty; but he giveth grace to the lowly.

35. The wise will inherit glory, but the irreverent have exalted dishonor.

CHAPTER 4.

1. Many ye have hearkened to a father's instruction, and give heed to know celestial

2. For a good gift am I giving you: Forsake not my law.

3. For I also became a son obedient to a father and beloved in the face of a mother

4. Who said and taught me, Let our word be firmly fixed in thy heart. Watch to guard commandments; ignore them not, nor disregard an ornecular saying of my mouth.

6. Nor forsake it, and it will flower out for thee. Love it and it will watch to keep thee.

8. Fence it in and it will exalt thee: Honor it that it may enclose thee

9. That it may have given unto thy head a garland of graces, and may crown thee with a garland of delight.

10. Hear, O son, and accept my words, and years of thy life will have been multiplied, that many ways of livelihood may be thine

11. For ways of wisdom am I teaching thee, and in right circuits am I conducting thee.

12. For if thou goest thy way thy steps will not have been impeded and if thou runnest thou wilt not grow weary.

13. Lay hold of my instruction, do not let it go, but watch to guard it with thyself for thy life.

14. Approach not ways of the irreverent, nor be envious of ways of evaders of law.

15. In whatever place they encamp, go not there, but incline away from them, and pass them by.

16. For they do not sleep unless they devise evil: their sleep is taken away and they do not lie down to sleep.

17. For perceive, they eat the food of irreverence, and they become drunken with the wine of evasion of law.

18. But the ways of the justified shine like light, and they go their way on before and give light until the day shall dawn.

19. The ways of the irreverent though are dark: They know not how they stumble.

20. O son, heed my ornecular-saying and lay thine ear along side my words.

21. That thy fountains may not have failed thee: Watch to guard them with heart.

22. For life is there for those who find them and healing for all flesh.

23. With all guardianship watch to keep thy heart; For therefrom (the esoteric and exoteric watch to guard and keep) are issues of life:

24. Take away from thyself a perverse mouth, and unjust lips put far from thee.

25. Let thine eyes look straightforward and thine eyelids wink right things;

26. Make correct circuit for thy feet, and restore thy ways to uprightness.

27. Incline not out to the right-hand nor the left; Turn thy foot away from an evil way; For God knoweth the ways at the right hand; but those at the left are perverse: and he will make thy circuits correct and thy journeyings will be lead on before in peace.

COMMENT.

The variations from the C. V. and R. V. are so numerous that the reader should compare verse by verse in order to observe the differences of translation and judge for himself whether he be a scholar or a common sense Christian. Take the 1st verse of this 3rd chapter for example. The R. V. reads as follows. "My son forget not my law; but let not thine heart keep my commandments." This translation reads as you will observe "O son, ignore not my lawful injunctions; and let thy heart watch to keep my ornecular words." Now to any one who has made a careful study of the Word of God there are differences enough in this one verse to base a whole new creed upon and to start a whole new theology with.

The same is true of the 2nd, 3rd and 4th verses only more so. Read and compare and if a scholar verify for yourself.

The sudden transition in the middle of the 15th verse from wisdom in the abstract to the metaphorical personification of wisdom as a woman, instead of at the beginning of the 15th verse as in the R. V. is noticeable and raises the query as to how the translators did it with the text as it is. Then many commentators have taken this personification of wisdom as an appellation of the Holy Spirit or the third person in the "Godhead" so-called and have drawn doctrinal conclusions from such passages in this book that are entirely unwarrantable, using these passages as proof-texts.

The reader will observe "the esoteric watch to keep" and the exoteric watch to keep or in brief "guard" are especially emphasized in these two chapters I have given, and I consider a proper understanding of these two words absolutely necessary to any proper and profound understanding of the divine teaching. For as well-defined terms they run through the whole Scriptures from Genesis to the Apocalypse, and are always rendered, both words observe rendered by our English one word "keep" which is very misleading. For in-stance Paul is made to say "I have kept the faith," etc. when he actually say "I have watched (esoterically) to keep the faith"—in other words did the Jews he could under divine help and illumination, a very different thought.

Again, in Genesis 3rd chapter 15th and 16 verses which reads in Orig. C. V. and R. V. "It (the woman's seed) shall bruise thy head, and thou (the serpent) shall bruise his heel." This in fact reads as follows and there is absolutely no variation of text in the passage—"He (the Seed of the woman of course) will be on his guard against thy head and thou wilt be on thy guard against his heel." The word here used being the one that means "to keep the esoteric watch."

The main idea of watchfulness though must always and invariably be preserved in any translation.

Another illustration for instance of "the esoteric watch to keep" is this. Mary the mother of Jesous is said "to have kept all these things (the ornecular sayings of the child Jesous) in her heart," which freely rendered into English thought would be equivalent to saying that she got them by heart" or "committed them to memory by heart" or "learned them by heart."

Again wherever David says "I have kept thy law," one or the other of these words is used, and he means to say that he has done the best he could consistently with the weakness and inability of his human nature or of the flesh to esoterically watch to keep, that is to keep in his own mind and heart the law of God or to exoterically watch to keep, that is to guard and enforce the law of God as a guardian of law in a public and representative way. There are many other points to make in these two chapters, but time and space forbid.

CHAS. GARDNER.

Jesus.

As the Seed of the woman we see in Jesus the promised Deliverer, who is destined to restore that which was lost by the Fall.

As the Seed of Abraham we see in him the future inheritor of the land of Canaan, through whom all the nations of the earth shall be blessed.

As the Seed of David we see in him the heir of David's throne, and who is destined to reign in Jerusalem as King over all the earth.

As the prophet "like unto Moses" we see him in the past proclaiming the will of God to his kinsmen, by whom he was rejected, and in the future will reclaim them from their present degradation, and raise them to the first place among the nations of the earth.

As the Son of God we see in Jesus the child of the Virgin Mary, begotten by the direct operation of the Holy Spirit,—who from his early years to the end of his life was wholly occupied in doing his Father's will.

As the "man of sorrows" we see him bruised in the heel by the seed of the Serpent, on account of the transgression of others.

As the Lamb of God we see in him a pure, spotless sacrifice which was offered up to take away the sin of the world,—to abolish sin and death.

As the one Mediator we see in him a great High Priest who has entered into the Holy of holies as intercessor for his people.

As the Bridegroom we see in him he who so loved the Bride (the Church) as to die for her,—and is about to return from heaven to be united in marriage.

As a Judge we see in him an infallible arbitrator, who is to decide the destinies of this world, breaking in pieces the oppressor and executing righteousness and judgment in the earth.

As the antitype of Moses, and John, and David and Solomon and Melchisedec we see in him a kingly priest who will provide necessary means for imparting to all people a correct knowledge of the only true God and his Son Jesus Christ.

Christ was made sin for us in being treated as a sinner when he was not a sinner. He was made a curse for us (a synonymous expression) in becoming subject to curse in the mode of his death, for it is written, "cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree." Undeserving of curse and guiltless of sin he was made a curse and made sin, in dying as one under curse and a sinner. He died thus for his brethren who were sinners and accursed. He bore our sins in his own body on the tree. The testimony he died for us is equivalent to saying that he was "made sin for us." These elliptical expressions are but another form of Isaiah's testimony, "it pleased the Lord to bruise him or put him to death, or to be bruised, he hath put him to grief," etc. We contend, and need not go nearer than this, I was the arrangement of God's love for the deliverance of those who had no ability to help themselves. "God commendeth his love toward us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us;" that is in our behalf. His love preceded ours.—"we love him because he first loved." "If God be for us who can be against us?" Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? Will God who justifies? Who is he that condemneth.—will Christ who has died,—yea, rather that hath risen again? Yes, "risen again for our justification. Let us, then, try to realize the importance of Christ's resurrection. Its importance cannot be magnified, for on it hinges the whole Christian system. The absorbing idea of the Disciples was that the Messiah would abide forever—therefore, they very indefinitely understood Jesus when he told them (a short time before it happened) of his death and resurrection. They were slow of heart, to believe the prophet's testimony of the sufferings of Christ, and in consequence languished them for their unbelief. This misunderstanding led them to give up their hope when he died. Their hope was buried with him. His resurrection revived their hopes, and they remembered his words, and all was made plain; for after his resurrection, and just before his ascension he told them, "These are the words that I spake unto you while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled which were spoken of in the law of Moses, and in the Psalms, and in the prophets concerning me. Then opened he their minds that they might understand the Scriptures, and said, "Thus it is written, and thus it behooved the Christ to suffer and to rise from the dead, and that repentance and remission of sins might be preached in his name, beginning at Jerusalem.

J. O. WOODRUFF.

The Seed of the Woman.

Many are the deep things of God, revealed in types, and shadows, and dark sayings, and it is only by earliest prayer and study that we can find the truth revealed. Our attention has lately been called to the "Seed of the Woman," and perhaps it is well to give it some thought and consideration. There are three things that demand our attention:—1st, the Woman; 2nd, the Seed of Woman; 3rd, the Serpent. 1st, Who is the Woman? If we say Eve, or all, or any of her posterity, including Mary the mother of Jesus, I ask has the Serpent's head been bruised? Orthodoxy would say yes,—when Jesus was murdered by the Serpent power. But it looks to me (it did to him) as if the Serpent had all the advantage then. Again, Paul says, Rom. v. 14, that Adam was a figure of him who was to come; and if so, was not Eve also a representative of a woman to come? Eve was taken out of the side of Adam; so is the church from the side of her Lord. Adam said she is bone of my bone, and the twain become one flesh, or figuratively the church will be one with the second Adam. Paul speaking of this union says, I speak of Christ and the Church; the Jesus born of Mary was born in sin, and partook of sin's flesh, and what is the Serpent but sin in the flesh—if so he was in no condition to destroy the Serpent. But when he arose from the dead to a pure and spotless nature, all power and authority was given unto him, and the proclamation went forth that he would destroy death and him that had the power of death (that is the Diabolis. We all know this is not done yet, but will be when sin and death will be banished from the earth. It is unreasonable to say of what nature was sin—conquered sin. In that case the house would be divided against itself, all flesh is under sentence of death, and Jesus could be no exception, for he condemned sin in his own flesh—although the least tainted of any, not having yielded to its motions. Then who is the woman whose Seed shall crush the Serpent's head? Surely, she who is the mother of us all. Jesus included. See Gal. iv. 26, etc. Our Lord by faith in the Father's promise of things to come, inherited the promise the same as ourselves, and if we ever inherit with him, it will be because we exercise the faith he did, then what conclusion can we come to but that not in the flesh of sin. Was the Serpent and his brood to be bruised and killed, but in spirit nature. There always has been and always will be enmity between the two natures—one is doomed to destruction, the other to life everlasting.

Selections.

Jesus Christ The Son of God.

The remark is very common among skeptics of all classes, that Jesus Christ was a good man, but that he was not the Son of God, neither did he possess any supernatural power.

The whole contradictory system of infidelity can furnish nothing more absurd and inconsistent than this. If he was (as they nearly all admit,) a good man, he would claim nothing for himself that was not justly his. He speaks repeatedly of God as being his father, and also says: "I am the living bread which came down from heaven, if any man eat of this bread he shall live forever." John vi. 51. He invites the world to partake of the waters of life, in the following words: "If any man thirst let him come unto me and drink." John vii. 37. When he opened the eyes of the blind he declared himself to be the Son of God, and the man who had been blind responded earnestly "Lord I believe." John ix. 37, 38.

He announced himself as the resurrection and the life. John xi. 25, and proved that he had held the keys of the grave by opening the gates of death, and bidding the sleepers come forth. He holds them still, and if his voice do not call the long roll then death must be an eternal sleep.

He declared that he came to save the world. John xii. 47, and the offer is still open to the children of men, that all who will may avail themselves of its glories.

He is the only mediator between God and man—the man Christ Jesus. He is the only hope of a fallen world—the only way of eternal life—the only Shepherd of the scattered sheep, and the only Head of the church.

He shall be the Desire of nations—the King of kings and Lord of lords, and the armies which are in heaven shall follow him. He shall then be the glory of the risen host, for it is his blood that hath made white the raiment of the redeemed, and he shall be the light of the city, when the nations of the saved shall walk therein, and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honor into it. Rev. xxi. 23, 24.

When the seals of the book shall be opened, when the golden vials full of odors shall be offered before the throne, and the new song shall be sung, both earth and heaven shall echo with the words: "Blessing and honor and glory and power be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb forever and ever."

Patience.

Be patient toward all men. The cold manner saddens the boy from. He who would govern others, must first learn to govern himself. Passion is blind. Cool, deliberate, and at the same time energetic action, makes itself felt in every department of life.

Be patient toward your brethren. Some men are slow to see into good things. They want to do right, but it takes them a good while to determine what is required of them. Every member of the body of Christ is not an eye. To get out of patience with these dull ones will not help either them or you. Give them time and they will do their duty. We all have our infirmities. Let us bear with each other.

Be patient toward sinners. Think how long God bore with you. We should bear with wicked men while God bears with them. But if we get out of patience with them, they can have no confidence in our religion. They will say they are as well off as we are, and so they will harden themselves in sin.

To be patient you must have patience. The stream cannot flow if the fountain is dry. The fruit will not grow without the tree. Resolutions alone, against impatience, will not answer. You must pray as well as resolve. Ask God, not merely to help you in your outward conduct, but to give you the inward grace. Unless you get that, you will fail as you have failed before. Be determined on victory in this. Unless you get that, you will fail as you have failed before. Be determined on victory in this respect. No matter how much money a man may make by day, he will never grow rich if he is robbed of all at night. Impatience is the thief that steals your grace, and leaves you weak and faint. Remember that peace, and gentleness, and long-suffering, are as truly fruits of the Spirit as love and joy.—Earnest Christian.

"Where Are The Nine?"

Out of every ten who knows what it is to be born again, and to obtain the pardon of their sins, how many are there whose lives are a glory to the God who created and redeemed them? Go to the members of our churches who are supposed to be converted people. Of how many could it be said, "He lives only for the glory of God: God shines through all his business transactions: God's presence is always felt where he is: his house is hallowed by the breath of God: his words are full of grace: his spirit is gentle and like the Lord's?" Is it not so, that in every church the sad question of the Master has to be asked, "Were there not ten converted, but where are the nine?" In the prayer meeting, "Where are the nine?" By the side of the sick and dying, "Where are the nine?" In the raising of the fallen, "Where are the nine?" In the mission to the heathen, "Where are nine?" In representing Christ in the shop and in the family, "Where are the nine?" In the forgiving of injuries, "Where are the nine?" In the restoring of the brother who is overtaken by a fault "in the spirit of meekness," Gal. vi. 1, "Where are the nine?" When the Master comes to reckon with his servants who have traded with or neglected his talents, where will be the nine? When the bride of Christ hath made herself ready, and the virgins have trimmed their lamps, where will be the nine? Reader, are you of the nine?—Mrs. M. Baxter.

Discouragement.

One of the most fatal things in the life of faith is discouragement. One of the most helpfulness. A very wise man once said, that in overcoming temptations cheerfulness was the first thing, cheerfulness the second, cheerfulness the third. We must expect to conquer. This is why the Lord said so often to Joshua, "Be strong and of a good courage;" "Be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed;" "only be thou strong and very courageous." And it is also why he says to us, "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." The power of temptation is in the fainting of our own hearts. Satan knows this well, and he always begins his assaults by discouraging us, if he can in any way accomplish it.—Secret of a happy life.

What God Will Say.

Our ears are quick to hear the words of men. We are careful to retain their good opinion, and sensitive to their reproofs. Often our outward lives are shaped by regard for what men will say. Their scoff drives us from duty, their reproach covers our faces with shame. But alas, how rarely do we ask what will God think, or what will God say, of the course we take, or the works we do. And yet his opinion is all we need to care for. If he approves who can condemn? If he condemns what matter who approves?

There is a wild flower in Turkey that is the exact floral image of a humming bird. The breast is green, the wings are a deep rose color, the throat yellow, the head and beak almost black.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Dear Restitution:

It has been some time since I have written to the dear brethren and sisters through your pages, but I want to say that I have not been asleep, I am wide awake to the work in the vineyard of the Lord; and am waiting and watching for the coming of the King in his glory, and trying in my feeble way to teach others also the way the Lord has laid out to be traveled that the great hopes of a priestly crown, a kingly crown with eternal life may be theirs. The visits of THE RESTITUTION are to me like a refreshing shower on a warm dry, sultry day. Indeed, with my Bible, which was my mother's and father's meat, drink, solace and comfort, I can read their pages rejoicing that so much truth is being culled out, weekly, yes hourly and daily, and cast abroad unto the great field of God as good seed to root and grow to the honor of God and his Christ in those who are to be redeemed to a more faithful and a closer walk with God. Our love feast has been running on for some months and seems not to wane. Speak on, brethren and sisters, and let not your testimonies be only in words, but in deeds, in council, in love; exhort, rebuke, teach with all long suffering, knowing your reward is kept in store for you by him who will never deceive nor forsake, but who in the proper time will reward, and as we have been so long together in council and love, may I be permitted to ask the brotherhood to join me in singing those sweet, touching, heart-inspiring words of the Psalmist David, not for the purpose of closing the feast, for we should praise as well as pray.

"If I in thy likeness, O Lord may awake,
And shine in pure image of thee,
Then I shall be satisfied,
When I shall break the fetters of flesh and be free."

I know this stained tablet must first be made white,
To let thy bright features be drawn:
I know I must pass through the darkness of night,
To witness the coming of dawn.

Oh, I shall be satisfied when I can rest,
The shadows of nature all by:
When those dreary scenes from my vision have passed,
And there is an unclouded sky.

I feel that bright morning is now drawing near,
When earth's fairest objects will fade
'Tis then in thy likeness, O let me appear,
In glory and beauty arrayed.

To see thee dear Lord, as thou art,
When freed from the wearisome day:
My spirit is longing, and ever my heart,
It sighs for the dawn of that day.

Then when on thine image in me thou hast smiled,
Within those blest mansions, and when;
The arms of my Father encircle his child,
O, I shall be satisfied then."

Let us sing these lines all together at nine o'clock, the second Lord's day morning in July, in concert, and thus praise his holy name.

DR. J. E. HOLLIS.

Dear Restitution:

Seeing Bro. Woods desires the report of each secretary of the number of members of each church in the State of Illinois, in regard to the Conference work, will say we in Winterrhode, have only twenty in number, but are most strong in the faith, and feel that there should be an effort made to get some preacher to spread the gospel of the coming of our dear Savior. We know by studying the signs of the times that it can be at no great distance. And Oh! let us be up and doing to show our readiness to respond to his call. We are not able to support a minister alone as we are few, and none are wealthy, but thank God we can meet at different places from time to time and hold services in his honor. We have had no preaching for over a year and think some good could be done in this vicinity. Although it all seems to be against us at times, still we have the blessed Bible for our guide and counsel. Our prayers are ever for those dear brothers and sisters who are all alone in their belief, and hope they will still cling to the precious promises he has made to those who will obey.

LIZZIE WOODS, Sec.

Dear Restitution:

As our time is past due for the paper we will send $1.50 to pay for the good old paper and 25 cents for the tract fund. We know a great deal of good can be done if we only had more tracts. We love to read THE RESTITUTION and to hear from the brothers and sisters. We rejoice with you all dear ones. And our prayer is that the good Lord will soon come and that we may all meet in the kingdom of God.

W. H. & S. J. GARTON.

Announcement.

Editor Restitution:

Please say through the columns of the dear old paper that Bro. Geo. Kidwell, from Madison County, Ark., will commence a series of meetings here at the Hix school house, in Camden Co., 5 miles southeast of Climax Springs on Saturday before the first Sunday in August, at 11 o'clock A. M. He will hold the meeting ten days, then he goes to Spout Springs, six miles east of Cross Timbers and commence preaching at that place on the 10th of August, hold ten days. We extend an invitation to all lovers of truth. We will be glad to meet with you all. Brethren, let us be up and doing, for the time is short; let us work for the Master while it is yet day, for the night cometh wherein no man can work. Come one and all that can, and let us have a joyous time, for Bro. Kidwell is an able workman, rightly dividing the Word.

Now brothers and sisters, may God's richest blessing rest upon you all is the prayer of a Sister.

MARY E. HOWARD.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith in Iowa will convene at Marshalltown, Aug. 19, and continue over Sunday, Aug. 29. Brothers and sisters of the one faith, we once more appeal to you to come and enjoy a short season, talking over the things concerning the kingdom of God. Oh, we do need your help this year as never before. There are so many things on which we should counsel together. To advance the cause in the State begin at once to arrange for this meeting. Marshalltown is situated at the junction of the C. N. W. and the C. G. and W. and Iowa Central railways and is easily reached from all parts of the State. May God give you a desire to attend this meeting and we hope for the largest attendance we ever had.

O. J. ALLARD, Sec.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

Our gospel tent will be spread at Sycamore Springs, Kan., on Sunday, August 29th, and continue two weeks or more as the interest may require. It is a farming locality and this date is chosen to suit the farmers. Let all who have them bring living or camping tents. Tents can be rented for the occasion of C. J. Baker, Kansas City, Mo. All desiring to rent tents can do so through me. Bring your own bedding and sleep in the large tent if you prefer. Hoping for a joyful and profitable season I remain faithfully your Brother waiting for the King,

J. F. WILCOX.

Editor Restitution:

To all who will attend the tent meeting at Sycamore Springs, Kan., Aug. 29th to Sept. 13. I have received from C. J. Baker, at Kansas City, prices for the rent of tents and cots for the occasion by which I can furnish to all who desire them, delivered on the ground at the following rates.

Tents 9½x12, 3 feet walls,	$1.50
Tents 12x14, 3½ feet walls,	2.00
Cots for one person, each	.50

Bring your own bedding and dishes, food can be procured on the grounds. By joining together and running a common table your living will cost you less than at home. All who decide to come will please write me not later than the middle of August so I can order tents in time. Be sure to state size of tent wanted and number of cots. Direct all letters to St. Joe, Mo., from which point they will be forwarded to me as I direct.

J. F. WILCOX.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism, by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. 10 cents each. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Green Bonerill. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send 10 cents to this office for a copy.

QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS AND THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 96 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Hell and kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and will be had for 6 cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed, Philadelphia, on the idea that the Coming Nation will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 24 pages price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

A PARALLEL BATTLE-FIELD, OR ENOCH'S WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

THE DESIGN OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those searching for truth. 16 pages 6 cents each.

Necessity of Baptism. A 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Bible Plan of Salvation. A 4-page tract telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. 2 cts each or 15 cts per dozen.

An open letter to J. A. Conant A 4-page tract being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Letter to Dr. Talmage. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Modern Events in the Light of Prophecy.—This is the sermon preached by H. V. Reed at Antioch, which has since been printed in tract form, and may be had at this office for five cents each, or 30 copies for $1.00.

Passages Supposed to Teach Consciousness after Death, by W. H. Wilson, which shows that eternal life is conditional and not inherited. 4 cents each, or 25 cents a dozen.

Where Do the Dead Sleep. Three new Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 8-page tract 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Hades. A Bible account of this place with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

Death Compared to a Sleep. This represents death as a sleep and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

The Wicked Dead and Plain Truths. The two combined. 2 pages ten copies for 10 cents

Poetry.

True.

How gentle God's commands!
How kind his precepts are!
"Come, cast your burdens on the Lord,
And trust his constant care."

While Providence supports,
Let saints securely dwell;
That hand which bears all nature up
Shall guide his children well.

Why should this anxious load
Press down your weary mind?
Haste to your heav'nly Father's throne,
And sweet refreshment find.

His goodness stands approved,
Down to the present day;
I'll drop my burden at his feet,
And bear a song away.

The New Jerusalem. No. 1.

While in St. Joe, Mo., in May I undertook to get the following article and the succeeding one into the Sunday Gazette, together with an editorial notice. At first the editor seemed anxious for them, but while I was absent at Brookfield, etc., I think he submitted them to some religious "Oracle" and on my return would not print them unless I paid $5.00 to cover composition. I did not have the $5.00 and so they were not published. If any brother will send me the $5.00 I will put them before the St. Joe readers just before I go there with my tent in the fall. They will serve as an advertisement of my work and a good introduction for the tent. I particularly invite Bro. Kinsey's attention to them as settling the question of the reality of John's city.

J. F. W——

Of the New Jerusalem of Rev. xxi. Bible students everywhere cannot fail to be greatly gratified at a solution I am able to offer them of a longstanding difficulty in the interpretation of this obscure portion of the Scriptures. That this difficulty may be clearly seen and the solution correspondingly appreciated I will quote entire the portion in which the difficulty is principally to be found. "And the city lieth four square, and the length is as large as the breadth: and he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length and the breadth and the height of it are equal. And he measured the wall thereof an hundred and forty and four cubits, according to the measure of a man, that is of the angel." To reduce this to miles we divide 12,000 furlongs by 8, the number of furlongs to the mile and obtain 1500 as the quotient. Of course a city built in the form of a cube of 1500 miles is an absurdity, and has always been a stumbling-block to faith in the credibility of the account. To accept inspiration of the book has compelled men to adopt the hypothesis that the city was not real or literal, but only a bold figure or symbol of the Church. Yet instead of relieving the situation this only deepened the embarrassment, as the city is clearly set forth, not as the Church but as the home or residence of the redeemed. Hence expositors have long ago given up all effort to solve the difficulty and have by common consent left it among those riddles which eternity alone will unravel. Now, however, by a happy chance, or Providence, I have hit upon a solution which is at once complete and satisfactory because demonstratable, and, as always happens in such cases, easy and natural, whence once discovered. A reading in the vatican MSS. No. 1160 as given in a foot note of the Emphatic Diaglott first suggested a solution. It reads "He measured the city to twelve times twelve thousand." A literal rendering of the Greek would be "And he measured the city with the reed to furlongs twelve times twelve thousands." Of course the word "furlong" is to be retained as a correct rendering of the Greek "stadia" the difficulty is increased by enlarging the city twelve times. So that we should then have a city built in the form of a cube 18,000 miles on a side. But it suggested the possibility that the true reading might be "twelve times twelve thousand," leaving us to supply a word; and we should then have 144,000 ——something. But the trouble was to get rid of the word "furlong." A long examination of various readings and versions followed, but the Greek word "stadious" stubbornly retained its place. But in the course of the search I found the Syriac (Murdoch's translation of the Peshito) to read, "To twelve furlongs of twelve thousands," and the light shone a little brighter. Here was clearly an ellipsis "To twelve furlongs of twelve thousand"——something, each. Now as the angel measured the height of the wall with the same reed with which he measured the length and breadth, and expressed the result in "cubits" (Greek puxon) we would expect him to give the length and breadth in the same denomination of units. But if so, then we would have "twelve furlongs of twelve thousand cubits each:" which would be like saying "he measured ten rods, each a mile long." As an English furlong is only 606 feet and 9 inches long we had reached a laughable reductio ad absurdum. But, we had accomplished something for we could see now that the reading might be "To twelve—— something, of twelve thousand cubits each," and had located the difficulty. It was certainly in that word "furlong." Now we must go to the lexicons. In the word "furlong" a correct translation of the Greek "stadia?" And so we consult Liddle & Scott, and find among other statements that the "stadia" was an eighth of a Roman mile and nearly equal to the 10th of an English mile. Now a Roman mile was 4,841 feet and 4 inches, and an eighth was 605 feet and 2 inches, which was therefore the length of a "stadia." But an English furlong is 606 feet and 9 inches; therefore the word "furlong" is not a synonym of the Greek "stadia," but is 19 inches longer. Now my experience with the Word of God does not justify or tolerate such inaccuracies. When the Holy Spirit would dictate 605 feet and 2 inches we are not justified in substituting 606 feet and 9 inches, on the ground that it is nearly correct. I saw therefore that "furlong" must go; but what are we to understand by the word "stadia" then? And now comes the astonishing part of it. The very first definition, the primary, the foundations of all the meanings or uses of the word is "a fixed standard measure." Then any fixed standard of measurement would be a "stadia," so we just insert these words "To twelve fixed standard measures of twelve thousand cubits each" and the puzzle is solved. Now we have twelve times twelve thousand cubits, or 144,000 cubits as the entire circumference of the city and 144 cubits as the heighth of its wall. And this has stood on the face of the record for ages and no man has been able to see it. Doesn't it seem incredible? But there are other questions to dispose of. First, how did the Roman "stadia" come to be a Greek "stadia" or a "fixed standard of measure?" Why to be sure because it was just the length of the Olympic Race course; and as everybody was familiar with that, it became a natural and easy unit of measurement. So they would say that two places were so many "stadious" apart and thus the word gradually came to signify the same as "stadi" or 605 feet and 2 inches. For this reason it also came to signify the race itself, by an easy and natural transition. But John tells us that "the length, breadth and heighth of it are equal." What shall we do with this? Well the word equal is only a slight error of translation of the word "isos," which as an adverb signifies "like" or of proper uniform or "like" proportion. How the heighths of a wall of 144 cubits is "iki" its length of 144,000 cubits is easy to see and it will be in proper proportion throughout. Now to reduce these dimensions to English terms we must ascertain the cubit used. This John himself defines to be "the cubit of a man, that is the angel." The Jews had no less than three cubits as given in the Gemara viz. 18, 21, 6, and 25, 2 inches respectively. The 18 inch cubit was the one usually employed by workmen in building, as is shown in the Siloam inscription at Jerusalem. Now adopting this the common cubit "The cubit of a man," then 144 cubits or the heighths of the wall would be 216 feet, and the circumference of the city 216,000 feet. This would be 54,000 feet on a side or eleven and four-elevenths miles square. You will notice that the Angel informs John that the wall was pierced by twelve gates, 3 on a side; and now if you divide the 54,000 feet into three equal portions you have just three "standard measures of 12,000 cubits each" on a side, and four times three are twelve, or "twelve measures" in all. It is significant corroboration of this conclusion that the Egyptian Schenous, the longest "fixed standard of measure," or unit of length employed in Egypt, was just 12,000 cubits long, and Dr. Schliemann actually found this marked on the Memphis and Fainm road: Showing conclusively that our unit of measure employed by the ancients was just what we have discovered John to apply to the New Jerusalem, namely, 12,000 cubits long. And twelve such measures compass the entire city.

Of course there are many theological questions which arise when discussing this subject and which will adjust themselves upon a more intimate knowledge of the matter, but with those I have nothing to do. I have, however, made—if possible, a more astounding discovery in regard to this city, which grew out of the facts laid before you in this article, but which I must reserve for another paper and will lay whole before you in the next issue.

J. F. WILCOX.

The Sweet and The Bitter

In the above we refer to the two Books, that were eaten, the one by Ezekiel, see ii. 3; the other by John, Rev. x. 9,10. Ezekiel ate the Book or Roll, that was given to him, and was told to go and speak to the house of Israel. John ate the bitter Book that he received from the hand of the angel, and was told that he must prophesy again over peoples and nations and tongues and many kings. This bitter Book of prophecy was sweet as honey in John's mouth, but it was bitter in his bowels; sweet when but tasted, but bitter when digested. He prophesied until he had recorded the contents of said Book, or until the vision of prophecy was a finished Book; no words to be added to or taken from it, and was told not to seal the words of this prophecy for the time is at hand. He was told to seal up what the seven thunders spoke, but not to seal the sayings of this Book. He sealed what the thunders spoke, by not writing the words. As he did not seal the words of prophecy of this Book, it follows that he did write them. Then we have the Book before us that John ate; and the peoples and nations and tongues and many kings of whom he prophesied are brought to view in the Book. This little Book was open in the hand of the Messenger. Having in his right hand a little Book, having been opened, implies that it had been sealed up. John had prophesied of a Book that had been sealed up. The Book when sealed was in the right hand of the occupant of the throne. The Lamb takes this Book that he may open its seals. We identify this Book as follows. First, we have learned that to seal was not to write. The sealed Book was an unfinished Book. When written by John it was not sealed. This Book is a revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave to him to point out to his servants the things that must be done in haste. One portion or section of this Book explains another section. The Lamb, or Jesus Christ, receives this Revelation, (this Book) from God, the occupant of the throne. Second, Rev. i. 1, 2, we have a statement of the source from whence this prophecy emanates from God, the designer thereof; to point out to his servants the things that must be done in haste, then the agencies employed. He sent, having signified by this angel to his servant. John the Messenger of chapter 10 is said messenger. It follows that this Revelation must be communicated to said Angel. In other words the sealed or unfinished Book must be opened to the Messenger, else how could he signify these things to John. The Messenger, the Book open in his hand, makes a proclamation on the time question. We have before us three different translations of his words. First, he swears by the Creator of all things, that time shall be no longer. Second, that the time shall be no longer delayed. Third, because time not yet shall be. As the truth is what we are after we will test these different renderings by the contents of the Book. According to no one the mystery of God would be finished and time would end. In the days of the voice of the seventh angel when he begins to sound. From the little Book we learn that after the seventh angel sounds, the kingdom of the world becomes our Lord's and his Christ's, and he shall reign forever and ever, or for ages and ages. As there are ages and ages after he begins his reign, the message could not have said that time shall be no longer. To say that the time when the secret of God shall be finished (shall be no longer delayed) cannot be correct, for there is no evidence of delay in the Book. Quickness is the watchword of the Book. The things that the servants must do, must be done quickly. the warning voice, "I am coming quickly," rings out like a trumpet blast. We will have to accept the third rendering given above, a literal or word for word translation. The angel swares by the Creator of all things, because time not yet shall be. The sum of the matter would be as follows: the time when the secret of God shall be finished is not yet; the mystery referred to in the Book that Paul refers to in 1 Cor. i. 54, 55, the resurrection of the dead and the change of the living saints. The event in order after the seventh messenger sounds is that the kingdoms of the world become our Lord's and his Christ's. As the saints of the Most High will take the kingdom, they must first be raised, as the messenger is so very positive he must find recorded in the open Book, events that havn't yet occurred, that must and will occur before the secret of God shall be finished. As we have the Book before us and no seal upon it, it being a finished Revelation, we shall be able to determine what events, if any, are to come before the resurrection. In doing this we may discern some of the bitter ingredients of the Book. If it was bitter to John it may be bitter to his brethren and co-partners in the affliction and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ. All those brethren who have but tasted the contents of the Book have seen no bitter persecution unto death between them and the kingdom. If they will do as Ezekiel was told to do, fill their bowels with the Book; in other words digest the words of this prophecy, they will learn to take the bitter as well as the sweet. This Revelation concerns the servants of Jesus Christ, the great Apostle, and the peoples and nations and tongues and many kings that John prophesied of. Then the question arises, Have the nations and the many kings all been developed? The Messenger made his proclamation with his right foot on the sea and his left foot on the earth. Who can point out to us the Wild Beast that rises out of the sea, or to the Beast that arises out of the earth? Yet the Beast that arises out of the sea will make war with the saints and overcome them. After that he will make war with the King of kings and his armies of resurrected saints, and be destroyed in the lake of fire. He must after he arises continue in existence until those things are done. He is not now visible, hence he must yet come up. His career of 42 months is before us.

Oaths are vulgar, senseless, impious: like obscene words, they leave a noisome trail upon the lip, and a stamp upon the soul. They are inexcusable. They gratify no sense, while they outrage taste and dignity.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 28, 1897. NUMBER 28.

Dear Brother Underwood:

I send a clipping handed me by a friend who asked me to explain it. I told him I could not, but would ask some one else to. If some one will answer they will greatly oblige me.

ELLEN FROUD.

WHERE WAS METHUSELAH DURING THE DELUGE.

This is the question which Dr. Halsey L. Wood, raises, and to which he finds no satisfactory answer. He argues:—"This distinguished patriarch seems to have been forgotten at that time for no mention is made of him as one of the chosen few to enter the ark; and on the other hand, we are told that every living creature perished without the ark, and every man. Now Methuselah lived nine hundred and sixty and nine years, and since he had fully ten months of life left to him at the beginning of the flood, he could have completed his grand total of years nowhere else than inside the ark. At Noah's birth, Methuselah had full six hundred years to live. In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, the windows of heaven were opened, and in the self-same day entered Noah, and Shem, and Ham, and Japeth, the sons of Noah, and Noah's wife, and the three wives of his sons with them into the ark. Noah was therefore 599 years old when the flood began. Methuselah had still ten months to live ere his 969th year was complete. Where was he? The dwellers in the ark did not issue from it for a year and ten days after their entrance. Methuselah must have therefore died during the interval, and presumably he was buried; but, strange to say, nothing is said of this singular circumstance.

Dear Restitution:

I am still one of the lone ones and have THE RESTITUTION and my Bible to help me till the kingdom comes for which Christ taught us to pray. I ask an interest in the prayers of all God's saints that I may keep a live faith till I can meet them all with the Lord in the kingdom.

Your Sister in faith,
HATTIE E. PADDOCK.

Dear Restitution:

I, a child of God, believe that no man has immortality. The belief that the soul is immortal was planted by Satan in the garden of Eden. Will we serve Satan or God, choose for yourself. Are we immortal? Are we equal with God? Ezek. xviii. 4, "Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the is mine: the soul that sinneth, it shall die." 1 Tim. iv. 16, "Who only hath immortality dwelling in the light." Eccl. iii. 19, 20, "For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts. All go unto one place; all are of the dust and all turn to dust again." My dear brethren, if you are in doubt about this question, study the Bible and see what God says about it. The Bible says, "Let God be true, but every man a liar." Rom. iii. 4.

WALTER TRUSDELL.

Dear Restitution:

As I have not seen in our dear old paper how the brethren scattered abroad spent the 4th of July, I thought they would like to hear how we (the little church of Freedom, Nebraska) spent ours. The brethren all met at Center point (also at a brother's house) took their baskets well filled with good things. A large table was spread under a long shade. After dinner all entered the house (as many as could get in) where singing, social talk, Bible reading, essays, recitations and Bible talk was held. Bro. Almus Adams came in unexpectedly, but was warmly welcomed. He gave a short address on the Independence that made it press more closely upon our minds of the time to come, where the children of God would be together in joy and happiness, where sorrow and sadness is not known. Early in the evening all started for their homes feeling they had all enjoyed a day long to be remembered, and also trusting they had celebrated a day for the Lord more than to celebrate the birthday of our land, and all hoping that the day would soon come to celebrate the birthday of our Lord's kingdom where there is no parting.

Your Sister waiting for that glorious day,

SARAH SELLECK.

To the Household of Faith:

What joy it will be when the night is spent and the morning of the Lord's coming is here, and we will be permitted to meet our Lord and Savior to remain with him forever.

"We are waiting for the long-expected day,
When the Master to his heritage shall come—
When the shadows of the night have rolled away,
And the children of the King are gathered home."

Is it any wonder that we are waiting and watching so anxious for the morn to dawn? Surely the budding of the fig-tree, and the signs of the times indicate the near approach of the year of Jubilee. He who the world once despised and crucified is coming, not to curse; but to bless; and how anxious all would be for his coming, if they only knew the blessings he will bestow on all mankind.

He is coming, he is coming,
Not as once he came before,
Wailing infant, born in weakness,
On a lowly stable floor;
But upon his cloud of glory,
In the crimson tinted sky,
Where we see the golden sunrise,
In the rosy distance lie.

He is coming, he is coming,
Not in pain, and shame, and woe,
With the thorn-crown on his [illegible]
And the blood-drops trickling slowly,
But with diadem upon him,
And the sceptre in his hand,
And the saints raised up to meet him,
Raised from death, in sea and land.

He is coming, he is coming,
Let his lowly first estate,
And his tender love, so teach us,
That in faith and love we wait,
Till in glory eastward burning,
Our redemption draweth near,
And we see the sign in heaven
Of our Judge and Savior dear.

Then we'll shout the victory,
Yes, we'll shout the victory,
Hy and by, when he comes.
Then we'll shout the victory,
Then we'll shout the victory,
Yes, we'll shout the victory when he comes.

Yours, waiting for the Master.

CARRIE WILE CHAMBERS.

Dear Restitution:

I thought I would write a few lines for our dear paper. I feel that I cannot edify any one, as the times are so sad for me. I am still looking for that

"That beautiful morning which in splendor will dawn,
Our lives will be ended, our sorrows all gone."

Five months ago we took the loving hands of our darling Iva, and promised to meet her in the kingdom of God. With all the celebrations there will not be a gathering like the coming of our dear Redeemer. Then we will meet with our dear Savior and our loved ones. Dear brothers and sisters, is it not a grand thought that we will meet with the One who died for us that we might live, and through him have eternal life. I hope with God's help to meet the Lord when he comes to wake our sleeping ones.

"Joyful, joyful, will the meeting be
When from sin and sorrow we are free,
Yes, we will gather Savior with thee,
In our eternal home.

Brothers and sisters, let us not faint by the way, but stand like the brave, so that when Jesus comes to give every one according as his work has been, that we will have our share.

Hoping to meet you all "Some Sweet Day."

MRS. JOHN SELLECK.

A poor toper, as a last resort for more drink, took his Bible to pawn of for more liquor, but the landlady refused to take it. "Well," said he, "if she won't take my word nor God's Word, it is time to give up." And he went and signed the pledge and kept it faithfully.

"The Word of His Grace."

The following beautiful lines were published in an English Magazine twelve years ago, without the name of the author. We transcribe them for the benefit of our readers,—hoping they may be enjoyed by all, as they are by us:—

"What is the chart that marks the way,
To guide poor pilgrims, lest they stray,
To the bright age of endless day?
God's guiding Word.

What is that food, so pure and sweet,
Milk for the babe, and strength meet
For those of riper age to eat?
God's strengthening Word.

What is the medicine of the soul,
The balm that makes the wounded whole?
O spread the fame from pole to pole—
God's healing Word.

What is that Lamp that burns so bright,
That shines amidst the world's dark night,
And gives so true and safe a light?
God's shining Word.

What mine is that we call our own,
An ancient mine of wealth unknown,
A mine of truth, and truth alone?
God's precious Word.

What is that Sword so sharp and bright,
With which all Christ's true soldiers fight?
And put their numerous foes to flight?
God's mighty Word.

What makes throughout, the Savior known,
Points all to him and him alone,
And bids us claim him as our own?
God's saving Word.

NEXT week we will give the first of a series of articles on "The World's Coming King," written by Bro. H. V. Reed. This is specially prepared for us, and will be worth of itself a year's subscription price.

BROTHER H. V. Reed was in Plymouth last Sunday, and gave the people two discourses such as he alone is able to give. Notwithstanding the extreme heat, and absence from the city of many, our church was filled at both services. In four weeks we shall expect him again.

ROGER Bacon declared that the four grounds of human ignorance were:—"Trust in inadequate authority" the force of custom; the opinion of the inexperienced crowd; and the hiding of one's own ignorance with the parading of a superficial wisdom." Although this was written in the thirteenth century, it remains every word true at the close of the nineteenth."

"WHAT is success? It is not to be determined by any commercial standard. Success is not to be measured in terms of wealth, or of fame, or social position, even what, then, is success? It is the realization of a Divinely appointed destiny,—full-orbed manhood, which is obtainable by striving lawfully, and which receives its ultimate coronation, is held before us an ideal to which we are to attain."

"THE difficulties in our daily path were not intended to stop us, to make us give up, or faint, or turn back. They were meant solely for us to overcome, and the power to do it waits only upon our will. When we overcome them, we acquire their strength. If we allow them to overcome us, they take away ours. Therefore our mission, our destiny is to overcome all difficulties. Regarded in this light, the obstacle which seemed formidable yesterday possesses no terrors today."

FROM statistics obtained from the clerk of the Court of Common Pleas of Cuyahoga County, Ohio we learn that 541 divorce cases were instituted during the fiscal year just closed, something less than two per day. There were 8,100 marriage licenses issued in the year, and therefore one divorce case was instituted to every six licenses issued. Evidently the moral status of this community is not improving. At least this part of the world is not being converted. And from all accounts published it appears that Cleveland, Ohio is not an exceptional place in this respect. And as all other phases of immorality abound everywhere, the truth is forced upon us that human efforts to elevate the the race have failed. Only Divine interposition can remedy this condition of things. Only when God's judgments are abroad in the earth will the inhabitants learn righteousness.

To Bro. Cady, we would say, we hardly expect to see eye to eye in all things now. Would it not have been better to have stated what the difference is. We could have compared notes then. If you think Acts v. 23 out of harmony with our position in Spirit articles, we think you misunderstand us. If we knew what your difficulty was we might be able to remove it. At least we could try. Or, if you see a lesson in Acts v. 23 that others have overlooked, kindly give it to us. In the meantime we commend to your notice the article in this number from the pen of our venerable Brother Woodruff, entitled:—"The Holy Spirit and the Word."

OF Jesus Christ, Geikie says:—"Of all the race he is The Man. Of all the race there is none to be so gazed on and persistently studied. We ponder the thoughts of others; we smile at their weaknesses; we allow for their prejudices; we condemn their errors; but in this Man there are no weaknesses, nor prejudices or errors. His judgments are ever accurate; his morals are ever perfect; his emotions are ever pure. No personal ambition, or hatred, or love, or interest sway him an instant. He thinks as before God. All he does is right. By him alone was the precept ever fulfilled: "Whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

BARROW says virtue is not a mushroom that springs up of itself in one night, when we are asleep, or regard it not,—but a deliate plant that grows slowly and tenderly, needing much pains to cultivate it,—much care to guard it, much time to nature it. Neither is vice a spirit that will be conjured away with a charm, slain by a single blow, or dispatched by one stab. Who, then, will be so foolish as to leave the eradicating of vice and the planting of virtue in its place for a few weeks or years. Yet he who procrastinates his repentance and amendment does so with his eyes open, and abridges the time for the longest and most important work is a fool."

THE Jewish Chronicle speaks of the arrival of "The Maccabaean party's arrival at Jaffa," and of the enthusiasm with which they were received there by the officers of the Chovevi. They paid a short visit to "Mikveh Israel," the Agricultural School and then passed "Rishon Le Zion" colony on their way to Ramleh, where they took the train for Jerusalem. After their arrival they went directly to the Western Wall of the Temple, where they were in time to join in the evening prayers. On the first and second day of the feast they visited the synagogues, some public institutions, the recent excavations on Mount Zion, the tombs of the kings, and the Mount of Olives. Several deputations waited upon them, conspicuous among them being a company of twenty-five able-bodied mechanics, who urged upon the visitors their trying circumstances from lack of work. The entire party left after three days for Galilee, travelling on horseback, and arrived three days later; and spent the last days of the Festival at that place."

DR. GEIKIE says: "Character grows, for the most part, insensibly as the life grows at first. Now and then it gets notable impulses which we can mark, but commonly it grows imperceptibly, like our bodies. It drinks in food, like the tree, from both earth and sky, and from hidden sources in both, and, like it, shows its whole history in its boughs and branches from the first. The sunshine and the storm, the cold north wind and the soft south wind, the knife or the neglect write themselves all over life in its knots and gnarls, or smooth branches, in its leaning this way or that, in its stunted barrenness, or broad shadow its bending fruitfulness or its woody wantonness—not a leaf but leaves its mark, not a sunbeam but has told upon it, not a raindrop but has added to it. The same tree that is soft and spongy in a fat swamp, with its heavy air, grows hard and noble on the hillside. Spitzbergen forests are breast high, and Nova Scotia hemlocks mourn their cold wet skys in long weird shrouds of white moss. The influences around us are self-registering. Our spirits, like the winds, unconsciously write their story in all their fulness on the anemometer—life; slowly in light air, quickly in storms, all goes down. Little by little the whole comes in the end. Single acts may show character, but they seldom form it, though some are supreme and ruling. It grows ring by ring, and the twig of this year becomes the bough of the next. Our habits are another name for it, and they grow like the grass. The man's face lies behind the boy's, but it comes out only after a round of winter and summer."

Something to Think About.

Man is called immortal in the Bible—not once. He is said to have an immortal soul, in the Bible—not once.

The words, "immortal soul," "undying soul," "deathless spirit," "immortal spirit," occur in the Bible—not once.

The words, "endless pain," "eternal pain," "eternal torture," "everlasting sorrow," "everlasting misery," "eternal hell," and "death that never dies" and many other words and phrases in common use, and of like import, occur in the Bible—not once.

The Question Drawer.

For J. C. No; we do not understand that "the 109th Psalm should be taken merely as an outcry of David for revenge upon his enemies, to whom he should have been more forgiving." We rather look upon that Psalm as an inspired indication of the position of lying and deceitful men; that is, those who without cause are the enemies of the righteous, and who reward evil with good and hatred for love. We also think it embodies a prophetic element which finds special application to Judas Iscariot in his relation to Jesus. Acts iv. 30-35. It is true that Jesus prayed for enemies, of whom he said: "They know not what they do;" but we have no record that he prayed for Judas, to whom he referred as "the Son of Perdition."

Can Matter Think?

"Oh, no; it is the immaterial soul in man that thinks and remembers, and is the seat of consciousness. If living, organized matter could think, dogs and cats and horses and the whole animal kingdom could think; but brutes do not think. It is true, however, that they do what appears to be the result of calculation; but that cannot be so; they have no souls and therefore cannot think. If they could think they would possess immortal souls. It is mere instinct that causes them to do many things that appear to be the result of—reason or memory or both. A few years ago it was quite common to hear such utterance as the above; but it is different now. The evidence that brutes think accumulates so fast that few say anything about "mere instinct," now-a-days. Indeed, we heard one of the leading Presbyterian ministers of Cleveland, saying he expected to meet horses and dogs and elephants, and other intelligent animals in "the other world," wherever that is. The reason assigned for this expectation was, that it is the immortal soul of man that thinks, and matter cannot think; and as these creatures certainly think, they, too, must have immortal souls that survive the death of the body. But few go this length. The majority still treat the matter as an unsolvable mystery. Will our readers consider the following despatch, and then say whether or no brutes can think. Burlington, Ia., July 11.—"What is evidently a case of premeditated suicide on the part of a dog occurred here last night. On the night of June 22, Matt Madison, a man about town, was drowned. "Tip," his dog, was with him, and refused to leave the spot until the body was recovered. Afterwards he acted guard over it, and mourned and howled in the greatest distress. Ever since the burial the dog has suffered from the deepest melancholy. Last night Tip ran through the saloon and club room above which Madison frequented, barking and looking for his master. Finally he ran up the stairs to the flat roof above, the skylight being open for air. After runing back and forth along the roof, and once scrambling back after a half-hearted effort to cast himself down, the dog stood squarely upon the edge of the roof and leaped to the brick paved street below. The fall broke his back, and bystanders who had watched proceedings with the greatest concern, put him out of his pain. The dog and his master had been inseparable in life, and the dog deliberately ended his own life because his grief was greater than he could bear."

Communicated.

The Holy Spirit and The Word.

"If any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of his." "The Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you," etc. "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price." "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." "The words that I speak unto you" says Jesus, "they are spirit and they are life." "Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom..... And in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him." "For this cause I bow my knees," etc.....That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith." If Christ is thus formed within us the hope of glory, by the indwelling of his precious words, to such an extent, do we not have the Holy Spirit? Not, however, on the plane of speaking with tongues and working miracles as the Apostle did on the day of Pentecost. They were then endued with power from on High in fulfillment of the promise of the Savior just before his ascension. This was only an earnest of that spoken of by the prophet Joel, and a taste of the powers of the Age to Come, of which the harvest will be realized when Jesus returns

WHATEVER YE DO

TO SET UP HIS KINGDOM.

These wonder-working displays before the multitude on the day of Pentecost were necessary to confirm the Word, and were to be used by the Apostles as their credentials during their mission, and to convince their hearers; they were the called and sent of God. We, having the WORD thus confirmed, in these last days,—it is unnecessary to confirm it over again by the working of miracles, etc. God hath magnified his WORD above all

THE ATTRIBUTES OF HIS NAME."

This Word (being the testimony of the Spirit) is able to make wise unto salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus. It is profitabl for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." Thus, by making the Word "a lamp to our feet and a light to our path," we are

LED BY THE SPIRIT OF GOD,

and so become sons of God. The Spirit is to the Word as cause and effect, and by a very common figure of speech, the one is put for the other, in speaking of them relatively to the mind and heart of man. So that the phrase "Renewed by the Holy Spirit" is equivalent to "Renewed by the belief and obedience of the truth testified by the Holy Spirit." "Sanctify them, O Father, through thy truth—thy Word is truth." "Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." The prophets, Jesus and the Apostles were channels through which the mind and will of God was communicated to man; the knowledge of which when received into good and honest hearts; and because God is the author of it. It is styled "the knowledge of God," or "the Word of truth," by which he begets sinners to himself as his sons and daughters. (Read the first chapter of James). "Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us by the bath of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Spirit." Paul also says "We are renewed by knowledge." He does not contradict himself in this, but makes one phrase explanatory of the other, as if he had said, "We are renewed by the Holy Spirit through knowledge." The Holy Spirit renews or regenerates man through knowledge—through

BECOMES POWER,

THE TRUTH BELIEVED AND OBEYED.

Thus the Bible is made to harmonize. We need not exalt one doctrine at the expense of another, but let each have its proper place. "The Word of the truth of the gospel;" "the gospel of the kingdom;" "the incorruptible Seed;" "the Word;" "the Truth as it is in Jesus;" "the Word of reconciliation;" "the Word of Faith;" "the Sword of the Spirit which is the Word of God;" "the Word of Christ;" etc., etc. are all phrases richly expressive of the power of God by which he saves his people from their sins, and translates them into the hope of the kingdom and glory to which he invites them. The truth is the power that makes men free indeed. Hence Jesus says, "My words are spirit and they are life." "The Word of God is living and powerful, sharper than a two-edged sword," etc. "Now ye are which I have spoken to you." By continuing in that Word we shall know the truth, and the truth shall make us free." Our prayers for the spirit will never be answered unless we are often in company of Moses and the prophets, Jesus and the Apostles—custodians of the truth;—learning thence what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God. By so doing we may be filled with the SPIRIT, by having the precious WORDS of the Spirit dwelling in us richly.

CLEAN THROUGH THE WORD

J. O. WOODRUFF.

The Final Victory.

Life is one continuous battle, the battlefield is the world. Two grand armies are ever on the alert for the struggle. Six thousand years the conflict has been going on. The earth has been strewn with the dead and in love she has placed her robes of dust above the vanquished—what a conflict! billions have been engaged in the great war. The seas have been reddened with blood, and the broken ships have drifted on the storm-tossed waters, with broken masts they have become wrecks on the shore—cities have been built and captured, and then levelled to the ground, and their inhabitants driven to the mountains bleak and cold. Desolation now reigns where once the pens of victory and the shout of warriors fell in sweet harmony on the ears of conquerors—monuments have been reared in honor of heroes, and kings have reigned on thrones ornamented by diamonds wrested from the bosoms of captive maidens. Wealth and poverty, heroism and cowardice, right and wrong, truth and error, liberty and oppression have been the watchwords of contending armies. But all these must end, a new day is coming on. The shield and helmet must give place to the pruning hook. Peace must spread her white wings across the path of nations, and the loud cry of war must be hushed, while the songs of love and good will to men shall fill the world. The warfare of humanity must end in triumph for the lasting crown of peace. The final victory is coming. Over the hills we see the banners waving in the soft air, on their folds are the words, "King of kings." Come O thou mighty Conqueror, bring life, crown humanity with the emblems of love and banish death and sin from our world.

For Our Children.

There's a Boy in the House.

A racket, a rattle, a rollicking shout
Above and below, and around and about;
A whistling, a pounding, a hammering of nails,
The building of houses, the shaping of sails;
Entreaties for paper, for scissors, for string;
For every unthinkable, bothersome thing;
A bang of the door and a dash up the stairs
In the interest of burlesome business affairs,
And an elephant hunt for a bit of a mouse
Made it easy to know there's a boy in the house.

But oh if the tops were not scattered about,
And the house never echoed to racket and rout;
If forever the rooms were all tidy and neat,
And one need not brush after wee, muddy feet;
If no one laughed out when the morning was red,
And with kisses went tumbling all tired to bed;
What a wearisome, work-a-day world, don't you see,
For all who loved wild laddies 'twould be;
And I'm happy to think, tho' I shrink like a mouse
From disorder and din—there's a boy in the house.

THE SOJOURN AT SINAI.

In our last lesson, we explained the meaning of the word Atonement, and showed you the difference between Sin-offerings and Trespass-offerings. In this lesson we are to talk about but before we begin, we will say that the Trespass-offering was killed on the north side of the altar—just where the Burnt-offering is to be killed—that the fat and some other parts of the body were burned, and, that the rest belonged to the priests and must be eaten in the holy place. Lev. vii. 1-8.

THE BURNT OFFERING,

You must hunt up and read all the references. You can help one another in doing this. One can call them off and some one else can read them from the Bible. In this way you will learn much more, and will become familiar with all parts of the good Book.

You are ready now for the lesson Turn to Lev. vi. 8-14, and Lev. i. 3-7.

Brother Wagoner at our pleasant Antioch meeting, spoke of the searching knife, that pierced every part of the burnt-offering,—fat and joint and marrow, and said "If any impurity was found, the offering was cast aside." Do you know what he meant? I think you will understand as we go on. The Burnt-offering as its name implies, was to show that the man who offered it, gave himself wholly to God. He, himself, was the real offering

His act said as plainly as words could say that, "he too like the offered animal, wanted to become clean and spotless, that he might be accepted of God." He "hoped to become so through the forgiveness and mercy of the kind Father above." "The life of the bullock had been given to the service of God, so did he want his life to be given." I do not think that the people at Sinai ate opium and tobacco and drank whiskey, but they did other wrong things that clouded their minds and made them unfit to do the work of the Great King and they knew they must break off from all these or they would be cast aside like a blind, or broken, or maimed or scabbed animal. Lev. xxii. 22.

It seemed very solemn to me when Brother Wagoner spoke about "the searching knife." I thought, "we are the offerings now, and the knife must search us, just as it did the sacrifices that were brought to the altar of old." The Bible is that sword or knife. It will pierce "Even to the dividing asunder of the joints and the marrow." It will bring the lie, the envy, the deceit to light. If these are not put away, we cannot be accepted, for "sin when it is finished bringeth forth death." We cannot live wicked lives and hope in God's mercy. Eternal life can never be attained by those who will not obey the gospel of God, no matter whether in this world or in the world to come.

The gospel is the power that is to change our lives. By obedience to what it says, we are to be made clean and fit for the Master's use.

If we mind it, we will not get angry at the dear ones in the church, nor hate them nor say hard things against them but no matter what happens, will go on singing, talking, praying, giving, attending meetings, and teaching others

We are "To present our bodies a living sacrifice holy acceptable unto God which is our reasonable service."—that is our every day life, in everything must be such as he can approve.

The Burnt-offering must have been instituted shortly after Adam and Eve had sinned in the garden of Eden. A Savior was promised to Eve, and some symbol must have been given her that would point to him as the one through whom they must hope for redemption from death. And so we find Cain and Abel shortly after making their offering to God, and Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, following in their steps, all showing that the dross must be burned out of our lives.

We sing:—

"My all is on the altar, I'm waiting for the fire,"

but when the fire of reproof and chastening comes we shrink from the very proof of his love and acceptance! We dread the fire, though it would burn out the sin: we rebel and flee from the field where he has set us to work! Think of this my dear young friends, when you fall into trouble. Auntie Winee has been thinking about it, and is trying to be patient. A cup of suffering was put into the hands of Jesus. He did not quite fill it up, Some of your tears and heart-aches must go into that cup. Not otherwise can you be made perfect. We lay ourselves on the altar, that we may be accepted. The fire that burns the offering is the proof of acceptance. The word "olah" —burnt-offering, comes from a Hebrew root which means "to go up," "to ascend to God." It goes up to him "for a sweet savor" and "for a savour of rest." The word applied to the burning of the sin-offering, was entirely different; it meant to burn up, to destroy.

The burnt-offering of a man, must be made "of his own voluntary will, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the Lord, and he shall put his hand upon the head of the burnt-offering, and it shall be accepted for him to make atonement for him."

God does not make people come to him. If they want to be saved they must come of their own accord. They are free to choose or to refuse, but if they do come, they must come in his appointed way.

The animals used for burnt-offerings might be from the flock or herd or from the fowls. They were not burned outside the camp—remember, as the Sin-offerings were, but upon the altar, "their blood was sprinkled on the altar, and their skins were given to the priests for clothing." Lev. vii, 8.

They were to be offered every morning and evening, every Sabbath day, the first day of every month, the seven days of unleavened bread and the day of Atonement. They were offered at the consecration of the priests, Levites, kings, sacred plans, the purification of women, Nazarites, lepers, after mercies, before war, and with sounding of trumpets at feasts. Num. xxviii. 1-18; xxix. 1-37.

There was always a burnt-offering upon the altar. Num. xxviii. 3. the fire never went out. God is always ready to accept.

The Sin-offering was offered before the Burnt-offering, because there must be a way of forgiveness made before there can be dedication of the life to God, and acceptance by him of that life. We have our Sin-offering. We plead the merits of Jesus, when we come, asking for forgiveness. Then we give ourselves as a living sacrifice, to God, for acceptance of him.

In our next lesson we must look at Meat-offerings and Peace-offerings.

Poetry.

Olivet.

My faith looks up to thee,
Thou Lamb of Calvary,
Savior divine,
Now hear me while I pray,
Take all my guilt away,
O let me from this day
Be wholly thine.

May thy rich grace impart
Strength to my fainting heart,
My zeal inspire;
As thou hast died for me,
O may my love to thee
Pure, warm, and changeless be,—
A living fire.

While life's dark maze I tread,
And griefs around me spread,
Be thou my guide;
Bid darkness turn to day,
Wipe sorrow's tears away,
Nor let me ever stray
From thee aside.

When time's eventful years,
With ills and toil and tears,
Shall cease to be,
Blest Savior then in love,
Death's cold dark shade shall prove,
My every ill remove,
And me crown me.

How to Become an Overcomer.

"Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown. Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God." Rev. iii. 11, 12.

Momentous are the results which will accrue to the one who will merit the approval of heaven as having become an overcomer.

To attain this much desired position, one must start right, otherwise he will not end right. An overcomer is a victor over that which threatens to impede his efforts in obtaining the mastery, and every contestant must bear aloft the victor's banner, before the crown can grace the conqueror's brow.

All who would enter the list as Christian warriors must first enlist as Christian soldiers, otherwise the Captain would not recognize them as a part of his command. No one is crowned "except he strive lawfully." Having entered as a Christian warriors, they must renounce their allegiance to the master they previously served. We owe service to the master we obey. Our Guide speaks of two masters that are antagonistic to each other. One is named Sin, and the other Righteousness. Concerning these respective masters, it says: "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey, whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?"

The renunciation of allegiance to Sin, and loyalty to Righteousness is accomplished by the following enlistment service: "God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you. Being then made (legally) free from sin, ye become the servants of righteousness." That "form of doctrine," signifies some specific form, not any form fancy may dictate. No other form is legal or valid. The Captain calls the form which contains deliverance, "The Gospel," and says: "He that believeth (the gospel) and is baptized shall be saved, (delivered) but he that believeth not shall be damned," (or will still be in the service of sin, and out of the army of the Lord, unless that specific form is obeyed.) No matter how hard we may try to live a moral life, unless the obedience required is rendered, it counts nothing as being an "overcomer."

Having first legally put away past sins, and changed masters, the way is then open to become an overcomer, such as will merit the smile and approval of heaven.

The heart not instructed as to the Divine purpose concerning man and earth, is sure to stray away from accomplishing the Divine will, and failing in this, will also fail to obtain the blessing those will receive whose life has been spent in harmony with God's will, as revealed in the Sacred Volume. Ignorance cannot avail as a plea, seeing that God in his love and mercy has made it so plain, that the wayfaring man though a fool may not err therein.

True, many well-meaning people are honest in believing error. Neither is this excusable, because they were instructed to "Search the Scriptures," and had they been obedient, they need not have stumbled on account of following blind guides.

A foreigner may come to this country and admire and believe in American institutions, yet his belief, and admiration, will never give him the privileges enjoyed by American citizens, unless he complies with the laws regulating citizenship. Neither can a person acquire the benefits set aside for citizens of the commonwealth of Israel, unless he believes and acts in accordance with the rules giving such an one an interest in the commonwealth of Israel. See Eph. ii. 11, 12, and you will learn that "strangers from the covenants of promise," (or the gospel of the kingdom) are "without Christ," "having no hope, and without God in the world." Now, a striving to live a moral life, while in a condition described as being "without Christ," will be of no avail. Hence, a person wishing to become an overcomer must first legally take Christ. This can only be done, by first becoming acquainted with "the covenants of promise," and then "as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Omit either one of these, and you are "without Christ."

Hence, when we commence to live the life of an overcomer, we must start it with properly taking Christ. A correct moral life apart from this, will not count. Having thus made a correct start, then the battle commences, and by the followers of blind guides you will be considered an heretic. Paul was so considered he says: "This I confess unto thee, but after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and the prophets." Acts xxiv. 14.

At this point commences the aggressive work of a Christian warrior, having enlisted as a soldier of Jesus Christ, according to proper form. At the time of enlistment all past sins are pardoned, and henceforth we are not to give sin any quarter, not in any form, but being clothed in Christian armor, fight valiantly until victory shall perch upon our banner, upon which is inscribed: "He not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good."

The Christian soldier's tactics differ materially from a soldier who uses carnal weapons, but is nevertheless more efficacious and powerful in subduing an enemy. For instance, if an enemy is to be subdued, the following method has never been known to fail, and that is: "Heap coals of fire on his head." It will melt him right down if done as follows: "If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink." By thus doing you will not only overcome your enemy, but you will yourself gain strength and courage to make further conquests. But if you "render evil for evil," you will loose strength, and the enemy is apt to overcome you.

If any enemy persecutes you, the following rule will remedy the difficulty: "Bless them which persecute you; bless, and curse not."

Persecution for persecution will only increase the difficulty.

No enemy can successfully resist the following hot shot of a Christian soldier: "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you."

Use the practice of the flesh—"Give him as good as he sends," and you will be overcome and grow weaker, and make a complete failure of a Christian life. But a "soft answer will turn away wrath," and make you feel happier, better and stronger.

Now, if we would be overcomers in the name of Jesus, we must not only put away the unfruitful works of darkness, hasty words, any impure acts, but maintain an uncompromising fidelity to the Word of faith. If you do so, the enemy will doubtless test your fidelity, by calling you an uncharitable bigot, narrow minded, etc., but never mind, what care we, as long as we have a conscious approval of him who has called us to be an overcomer. One can easily fail of being an overcomer by maintaining a weak and vascilating and compromising position with regard to the true faith of the gospel.

The popular churches of our day are a veritable confusion, both in doctrine and practice, and God has called his people out of old Babylon and her daughters. The Apostle Paul foresaw all this, when he said, grievous wolves in sheep's clothing, would enter, not sparing the flock.

In this case what would be our duty? What should be our concern? Should not our sympathy be with the flock, in place of the wolf? Love, good will, and our duty toward God and the flock, should lead us to tear the mask from the wolf, that the sheep may see the true character of that which was under mask. I am aware that in so doing we are often charged with bigotry, and being narrow-minded and uncharitable. The exterior of the wolf is often very fine, attractive and charming, and pleases those who look no deeper than the surface, and think you lack tenderness of heart if you cannot say smooth and charitable words about the wolf. In my opinion tenderness of heart and kind forbearance should be with the sheep always, but severity in divesting the wolf of its exterior, that its hideousness may be apparent to the sheep, is commendable.

The Scriptures further reveal this same character as a harlot mother and her daughters, and right here I think it would be well to quote the language of one, who in a strong and vigorous manner, paints the hideous apostacy in vivid colors. I quote this, because I believe that no one who imbibes from her intoxicating cup can ever be overcomers, and so must eat loose from it in every form; and the most efficacious way to show up its hideousness, is by the use of strong language that cannot be misunderstood. This system in Holy Scripture is styled "The Mother of harlots and the abominations of the earth," and likewise, "the mystery of iniquity." such is the vivid picture given by inspiration. "She has been iniquity mystified—iniquity veiled—iniquity dressed in a robe of religious pretence—iniquity tricked out in the splendid paraphernalia of regal pomp and civil authority—iniquity of the deepest dye, draped in holy garments—a white sepulchre of mystified iniquity, showing a beautiful exterior, and inviting all nations to worship at its cursed shrine of rottenness and dead men's bones. This depraved, hypocritical, corrupt, impulsive, tyrannical Church of Rome, with which it is now becoming fashionable at religious meetings to hand compliments, and speak respectfully of, and which blinded and bereaved charity would make room for, and deal liberally with, as an institution doing good in its own way, and advancing the cause of Christ. She is an execrable mistress of witchery, whose cunning arts of simulating kindness, and ornaments of learning, are entrapping thousands in its bondage. Rev. xvii. 3, 4, pictures her as a gaudy, betrinketted whorish woman, drunk with the blood of saints, and having in her hand a cup of abominable liquor, wherewith she intoxicates. She administers free libations of her bemuddling doctrines, with which all nations are drunk. She revels in lust and lucre, and is drenched in all her garments with the reeking blood of the righteous slain, whom she has put to death for their testimony.

She has waged open war upon the Word of God. She has done her utmost to extirpate it from among men. She has made the study of it a crime, and the possession of capital offence.

She has deified the ghost of a dead woman, and commanded the world to worship the Queen of heaven under the blasphemous title of the Mother of God.

She has decreed the heathen fiction of the immorality of the soul to be the cardinal point of the Christian faith, and has exalted the Pagan dreams of Hell and Elysian Fields to the same. She has turned away from the truth, and given heed to fables. She has made lies her refuge."

How are we to know the daughters of this foul woman? They are known by having the same foundation faith decreed by the Mother, viz.: "The immortality of the soul to be the cardinal point of the Christian faith."

Every daughter has the SAME CARDINAL FAITH as the mother. Now, then, can these who are associated with churches who hold the foundation faith promulgated by the Mother of harlots be in harmony with God's plan and purpose?

Can those who were baptized while believing the "cardinal faith" of this corrupt vile system, called the mother of harlots and her daughters, imagine they have obeyed the gospel, or that God will accept the faith of that foul woman, as a substitute for the gospel? He never will, don't deceive yourselves. Unless this system is abandoned, and obedience to the gospel rendered, you can never be accepted as an overcomer.

The time draws near when the overcomers will be caught away. According to the best light we have, but a few months remain before the angel-reapers will gather in the firstfruits. At this time our chief concern should be to perfect ourselves as overcomers. Beginning with the obedience of faith, go on to perfection of character in harmony with God's Word. May God help us all to live in harmony with his will, and at last be accepted in the Beloved.

In Answer to Humanity.

Editor of the Cataract, Niagara Falls:

I notice you have given considerable space to the letters of Benson, Justice, Freedom and Humanity, and I trust you will therefore give space in your paper to this, my letter, in reply. With all his many shines he seems to be ashamed to give his name to the public, and hence evidently cannot establish a good foundation for his doctrines. What have his ideas, or any other infidels, done to elevate mankind? He is willing to tear down, but fails to give anything in the place of the good being done. I take it for granted all these different shines are the one and same person, as special pains have been taken to send me a copy each time, properly marked and addressed under the name of reverend. I am not a clergyman or divine, only a common railway clerk. The title of the reverend, which is used so freely, is only once used in the Bible, (Psalm iii. 9) and there is applied to God only. To apply this to to one self is a misnomer. I have wondered why some of the clergy who claim to be servants of God, have not replied to these letters. While I do not wish to ridicule, I would like to present to him for his consideration, as well as others, the real truth of the Bible, which is not being taught to the people today. The popularity and each forming additions to the various creeds is not the Bible, only confusion, mystery. Babylon, (Rev. xvii. 5). I don't wonder others fail to see anything in Christianity. They claim to be the light of the world—are they? What makes the light? Psa. cxix. 130, "The entrance of thy Word giveth light, it giveth understanding unto the simple." Isa. viii. 20, "If they speak not according to this Word it is because there is no light in them." The preaching of today under the name of gospel heading—"My Trip to Europe," "Ideal Woman," "Four ways to Get to Heaven." The great commission given by Christ was, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel; he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; he that believeth not shall be condemned." So Paul says, (Rom. i. 16), "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." Now, if the gospel is the power, is it not well to know what the gospel is? What did Christ preach? Mark i. 14, "Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom." Do we hear much said about the kingdom? Psa. xiv. 1, "The fool said in heart, There is no God." John v. 40, "Ye will not come to me that ye might have life." It is well to go to the Word of God to find out something about it. Eccl. vii. 29, "God hath made man upright, but they have sought out many inventions." John xv. 20, "If they have persecuted me they will also persecute you." Where are they who are being persecuted? Matt. v. 11, "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you." Luke vi. 22, "Blessed are ye when men shall hate you and when they shall separate you from their company and shall reproach you and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of Man's sake." So with him who tries to be popular. Luke vi. 26, "Woe unto you when all men shall speak good of you." Oh, this is too literal, but it is just as it is meant and everything is being spiritualized. It is meant for my neighbor, not me. "The meek shall inherit the earth." Popular idea, no heaven! Jesus said to the apostles, (John xiii. 33), "Whither I go ye cannot come." Acts ii. 34, "David is not ascended into the heavens." If David and the apostles did not go to heaven how can we expect to go there? The heaven is to be on this earth. Acts iii. 19-21, "The final restitution of all things, which God has spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." Some of the best scientific men readily recognize the fact that science and true Christianity are the harmonious elements of truth and righteousness—the earth and the Book contain revelations of God's will. Time and space will not permit me to go into the subject of prayer, but because it is used against the will of God at times foolishly, it is no sign that prayers are not answered by the all-wise Creator, who does everything after the counsel of his own will. Because there are many quack doctors are we to ignore all the rest? How many have the strong abiding faith of the prophets and the apostles and believe their teachings? "Fear not, little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. Strait is the gate and narrow the way, and few there be that enter therein." It is given to the true ones to know. Mark iv. 11, "Unto you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God. Unto them that are without all things are done in parables, that seeing they may see and not perceive; hearing they may hear and not understand." John viii. 31, "If ye continue in my Word then are ye my disciples indeed, and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." 2 Thess. ii. 10-11. "Because they received not a love of the truth that they might be saved, and for this cause God shall send them a strong delusion, that they should believe a lie." Many are working under this strong delusion.

It is well understood by some of the most intelligent men that the prophecies of the Scripture, according to history, have been truly fulfilled. Christ said the land of Palestine was to be desolate. The prophets said in the latter day God would restore the land by the latter rains which have been coming for the past ten years, and the land is becoming more and more fruitful. The Jews were to return. God has raised up a persecution and driven them from their land. What is this for? Daniel, second chapter, describes a large image and gives the interpretation, which has been fulfilled down except the toes, which will be fulfilled and ye shall know the truth indeed, and yet shall make you free." 2 Thess. ii. 10-11. "Because they received not a love of the truth that they might be saved, and for this cause God shall send them a strong delusion, that they should believe a lie." Many are working under this strong delusion.

The Jews were to return. God has raised up a persecution and driven them from their land. What is this for? Daniel, second chapter, describes a large image and gives the interpretation, which has been fulfilled down except the toes, which will be the final termination of the kingdoms of this world. The formation of these kingdoms are now quietly taking place in Europe, and when they are finally established, (Dan. ii. 44), "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to the people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." The stone cut out of the mountain must strike the image upon the feet, not thighs, as popularly taught. This is all given, (Dan. iv. 17), "To the intent that the living may know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men and giveth it to whomsoever he will."

When this takes place Christ will then become King of kings, and the kingdoms of this world will become the kingdom of our Lord and Christ. Rev. xix. 16 and xi. 15. "The promises were all made to Abraham. In thee and thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed—not cursed." Read Isa. li. 1-2; now turn to Gal. iii. 1-2; now turn to Gal. iii. 7th verse to the end—note the last verse—"As in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive." 1 Cor. xv. 22. "God's plans will not fail. Those who truly obey will have eternal life." Others will come up in the resurrection but will be subject to death. Adam lost the dominion of the earth. Christ came and restored that which was lost, and will have it as predicted. Acts iii. 19, "He will set up his kingdom at Jerusalem and will reign over the earth. Dan. vii. 13-14 and 27. Man in order to obtain eternal life, must do as required by God, not as taught by precepts and doctrines of men. Isa. xix. 13; Matt. lix. 19. The preaching and teaching of today are smooth things. Isa. xxx. 10. Popular preaching is, prepare to die. Why? Have we not all got to die? Why prepare, then? The Scriptural idea is, prepare to live. 1 Cor. xv. 21. "Since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead." Job xiv. 14, "If a man die shall he live again?" Isa. xxvi. 19, "Thy dead men shall live together; with my dead body shall they arise." John v. 28, "Marvel not in this, for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice." It will be in God's own appointed time. Read the 37th chapter of Ezek. and see how it will take place. The popular preaching and the Scriptures do not agree. Let any one examine and they will soon conclude to follow Paul's advice. Rom. xvi. 18, "For they that are such serve not the Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly, and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple."

The gospel was preached to Abraham, (Gal. iii. 8), and it is the kingdom to be set up on earth. People are praying "Thy kingdom come," and don't know what they are praying for. All the dead are to be raised. All things restored to their Edenic purity. Christ is to be King over all the earth. He will be the one that will convert the world, with the assistance of those who are being called out, tried and tested now. They are to reign with him as his body, as rulers and teachers. The church of the Bible is the Church of God, or body of Christ.

In view of this evidence is it not good news or glad tidings that we are to live again, instead of going into that hell fire, brimstone and what not, and then call God a God of love ready to torture. This is a grand subject to understand, and I have hardly time to do it full justice. Tim. ii. 15, "Study and show yourself approved unto God."—not man—and he will open up your eyes to his plans. Rom. ii. 7, "Seek for glory, honor and immortality and you will obtain eternal life."—Fred Greiner.

The Greek Episode Closed.

It is the expected that has happened this time. The conflict between Asiatic barbarism and Western civilization is not over, nor will it soon be, but the startling Greek episode in this conflict is ended.

Ten weeks ago Greece, worsted in the war with Turkey, committed its case to the tender mercies of the European sovereigns for them to adjudicate with the Sultan. That was a risky thing to do, but in the hazard of war the Kingdom of Greece had already risked its own existence. The formal peace negotiations began June 3. Since then Greece has been "hanging by the gills," until now at last the acceptance by the Sultan of the terms exacted by the six powers of Europe, for once acting in concert to a purpose, has closed, for the time at least, Greece's part in the dramatic act.

But the closing of the Greek episode in this matter is not necessarily the day of judgment. Bad as was the blunder it was not without some redeeming features. The rest of Europe, that only stood and looked on while the Sultan went on with his deliberate policy of massacre and extermination, is not in position to throw stones at the little kingdom whose sympathetic people, with the thousands of widows and orphans and other refugees in their midst, could not sit still. Nor is the real fate of Greece decided yet. It will not be decided by the powers nor by the Sultan. Its destiny is in its own hands today. It is more than possible that the present disaster may prove in the end more a cure than a curse.

The Greeks have some splendid qualities as well as provoking faults. But they have more conceit than is useful to them. Their sense for veracity and commercial honesty is so poorly developed it leaves them especially prone to be the victims of self-deception. They keep on jabbering when they should be thinking. The imagination is apt to get the upper hand of their judgment. The traditional glories of classic Greece are fine matters to dream about, but lose their usefulness when they only serve to inflate the vanity of the people and make them content with mere illusions.

The collapsed vanity and bitter disillusionment of Greece is the experience which is now testing the character and stamina of the people. It is an experience which especially calls for some just and powerful leadership. It is a man that is wanted—the man for the hour. King George has amiable and excellent qualities, and should not, perhaps, be blamed overmuch. Crown Prince Constantine as a military leader has been a miserable failure. The "Hellenic federation," with great possibilities for usefulness, has wretchedly and criminally blundered. But whatever may be the thought of this humiliating result, the world has not lost its interest in the Greece that is to be. There may yet come to the front in Greece some statesman of commanding character and fitness for leadership. Some who claim to know him well believe that the new Prime Minister, Rallí, is the man for the emergency. He is said to have intellectual honesty, straightforwardness, and moral courage—a man without illusions, who makes more of facts than of words, and who has the kind of patriotism which makes him dare to be equally frank both with the King and the people. If he can hold the confidence of the King and command the loyalty of the people, and keep in check and manage the fickle, chattering horde of Athenian politicians, he may develop the resources of his country, emancipate it from practical bankruptcy, and so clear the way for a new and surer order of things and prove the beginning of a new and more glorious era for Greece. —Tribune.

My song shall always be of him
Who gave himself for me;
Who bled, a sinner to redeem,
And died upon the tree.

I never can his look forget,
Who suffered for my good;
His wounded head, hands, side, and feet,
Poured forth the sacred flood.

Like him on earth I wish to be.
That, when he doth appear,
I may rejoice his face to see,
And his blest voice to hear.

REMEMBER.

That perhaps your subscription to THE RESTITUTION has expired, and please REMEMBER that the Editor must live, the printing and paper bills must be paid, Uncle Sam refuses to send out mail unless the postage is paid, and that many other bills are constantly on hand ready to take money. REMEMBER, those of you who have received statements lately, and do not throw them aside, but look to your account, and if the bill is right, please make an effort to pay it. If it is not right point out the error, and it will be made right. It is not unlikely that errors have occurred, but we have tried to be careful. We most earnestly hope that those friends whom we have trusted, at their solicitation, and whose promise to pay has been in our hands for some time, will at once redeem these pledges by renewing their subscriptions. It is quite an expense to make out statements of these accounts, and the postage is a big item. The price of our paper is low and every leak is felt. Please give us no more anxiety on this score, but renew at once. At any rate we want to hear from you.

REMEMBER, that we will send THE RESTITUTION to the poor, at their request, so long as we can get the means to publish the paper. Let all our brethren who have means to use in sending the good news to others, REMEMBER the name of some friend or relative, and send us an extra amount, to send the paper to them. If you cannot think of any such person send the money, and we will apply it where it will be appreciated and return blessings on the donor.

REMEMBER that this is written for you, if you are in arrears, or have not renewed. Do not say, "Well, I'll attend to it in a few days," but act right NOW. We need the money at this present time.

REMEMBER, when sending your remittance that many sums of money are lost every year by the careless manner in which many send their subscriptions. REMEMBER, all remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. If you are compelled to send postage stamps buy those of the one or two cent denominations. We do not want large ones.

REMEMBER this is addressed to you in the kindliest spirit possible, hoping that you will receive it in the same manner.

REMEMBER that we are very grateful to our friends who have helped us in our work heretofore, not only in a financial way; but with their words of encouragement. We are doing our best to give you a good paper, and we hope to be able to do so as long as we have it. May our dear Father help us all, is our prayer.

Announcement.

Editor Restitution:

Please say through the columns of the dear old paper that Bro Geo Kidwell, from Madison County, Ark., will commence a series of meetings here at the Hix school house, in Camden Co., 5 miles southeast of Climax Springs, on Saturday before the first Sunday in August, at 11 o'clock A. M. He will hold the meeting ten days, then he goes to Sprout Springs, six miles east of Cross Timbers and commence preaching at that place on the 10th of August, hold ten days. We extend an invitation to all lovers of truth. We will be glad to meet with you all, Brethren, let us be up and doing, for the time is short; let us work for the Master while it is yet day, for the night cometh wherein no man can work. Come one and all that can, and let us have a joyous time, for Bro. Kidwell is an able workman, rightly dividing the Word.

Now brothers and sisters, may God's richest blessing rest upon you all is the prayer of a Sister,

MARY E. HOWARD.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith in Iowa will convene at Marshalltown, Aug. 19, and continue over Sunday, Aug. 29. Brothers and sisters of the one faith, we once more appeal to you to come and enjoy a short season, talking over the things concerning the kingdom of God. Oh, we do need your help this year as never before. There are so many things on which we should counsel together. To advance the cause in the State begin at once to arrange for this meeting. Marshalltown is situated at the junction of the C. N. W. and the C. G. and W. and Iowa Central railways and is easily reached from all parts of the State. May God give you a desire to attend this meeting and we hope for the largest attendance we ever had.

O. J. ALLARD, Sec.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

Our gospel tent will be spread at Sycamore Springs, Kan., on Sunday, August 29th, and continue two weeks or more as the interest may require. It is a farming locality and this date is chosen to suit the farmers. Let all who have them bring living or camping tents. Tents can be rented for the occasion of C. J. Baker, Kansas City, Mo. All desiring to rent tents can do so through me. Bring your own bedding and sleep in the large tent if you prefer. Hoping for a joyful and profitable season I remain faithfully your Brother waiting for the King.

J. F. WILCOX.

Editor Restitution:

To ab who wil attend the tent meeting at Sycamore Springs, Kan., Aug. 29th to Sept. 13, I have received from C. J. Baker, at Kansas City, prices for the rent of tents and cots for the occasion by which I can furnish to all who desire them, delivered on the ground at the following rates.

Tents 9½x12, 3 feet walls,	$1.50
Tents 12x14½, 3½ feet walls,	2.00
Cots for one person, each	.50

Bring your own bedding and dishes, food can be procured on the grounds. By joining together and running a common table your living will cost you less than at home. All who decide to come will please write me not later than the middle of August so I can order tents in time. Be sure to state size of tent wanted and number of cots. Direct all letters to St. Joe, Mo., from which point they will be forwarded to me as I direct.

J. F. WILCOX.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in it at.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism, by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. 10 cents each. Send to this office.

FIT TO BE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in the subject to get the work by a talented author. Send to us, cost to us of collector a copy.

QUESTIONS FOR PREACHERS AND PRIESTCRAFT FOR THE CHURCH.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 96 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Reformed Kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF OUR KINGDOM OF HOPE.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5 cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. This clearly sets forth the idea that the Coming Nation will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 96 pages price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

A PARABOLIC BATTLEFIELD, OR ECHOES FROM WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those searching for truth. 16 pages 5 cents each.

Bible Plan of Salvation. A 4-page tract telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. 2 cts each or 15 cts per dozen.

An open Letter to J. A. Comatt. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Letter to Dr. Talmage. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Modern Events in the Light of Prophecy.—This is the sermon preached by H. V. Reed at Antioch, which has since been printed in tract form, and may be had at this office for five cents each, or 30 copies for $1.00.

Passages Supposed to Teach Consciousness after Death, by W. H. Wilson, which shows that eternal life is conditional and not inherited. 2 cents each, or 25 cents a dozen.

Where Do The Dead Sleep. These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Hades. A Bible account of this place with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

Death Compared to a Sleep. This represents death as a sleep and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

The Wicked Dead and Plain Truths. The two combined. 2 pages ten copies for 10 cents.

The Malice of Silence.

Is it thy boast that no malicious word
Of any one escapes thy pen or tongue?
That through thee mischief never has been stirred,
Nor any heart been wrung?

Remember malice may with silence dwell:
Just praise thou owest, malice may withhold.
Thou canst do better, though thou dost well:
Hide not what should be told.

THE WORLD'S COMING KING.

"The Kingdom of heaven is likened unto a nobleman who went into a far country to receive for himself a Kingdom, and to return."

NUMBER 1.

Christ's Coming Personal and Future.

"So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many, and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Heb. ix. 28.

All who believe the Scriptures are united upon the one important fact, that Jesus Christ appeared in the world once personally and visibly. Whatever may be the views in regard to his advent, all agree that it was a personal presence. It is also freely admitted by all Christians that the Scriptures of the prophets could not have been fulfilled without such a personal coming. On the other hand, while the Jews deny that Christ is their Messiah, they yet admit that their own Scriptures cannot be fulfilled without the coming of a personal Messiah.

If then it be an established fact that the first coming of Christ was personal and real, it is only reasonable to believe that his second coming will be personal and real. The same terms and predictions which rendered it necessary for him to appear the first time visible to the world, require that he shall appear the second time in his own proper personality.

In addition to this fact, the language of the New Testament is such as to establish and emphasize this particular point. Christ himself declares that he shall come in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory, and that all the tribes of earth shall see him. Matt. xxiv. 30. And in the Acts of the Apostles the angels testified directly upon this point:—"Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Acts i. 11.

It is admitted that he went away in his own proper person and that a cloud received him out of their sight, and the language is emphatic that he shall so come in like manner as he was seen to go away. The Apostle Paul is unmistakable in his testimony upon this point:—"For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God." 1 Thes. iv. 16.

In the Book of Revelation it is declared, "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him." Rev. i. 7.

He himself says, "And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." John xiv. 3.

In the light of these testimonies, it would be as consistent to deny his personal ascension as to deny his personal return. Indeed the language cannot be considered in any other way than that he must come again in his own proper person in order to fulfil the Scriptures.

THE TIME OF HIS COMING.

While it is admitted by nearly all that the second coming of our Lord is to be a personal event, there is some difference of opinion regarding the time of his advent. Some claim that he makes his second advent whenever people die; others that his second advent takes place in connection with great reforms and religious movements in the world. But it should be borne in mind that those who hold to these views are not willing to admit that his coming is personal, but rather figurative, that the events themselves constitute his second advent. In the light of the Scriptures such a view cannot for one moment be entertained; neither has it any Scriptural support.

Others who are sanguine regarding the time of his advent, claim that it took place in connection with the destruction of Jerusalem by the Roman army.

DID CHRIST COME AT THE DESTRUCTION OF JERUSALEM?

A number of texts are relied upon to prove that our Lord's return took place when Jerusalem was destroyed by the Romans; that he came in judgment upon the Jewish polity and destroyed their institutions and that this was in complete fulfilment of all the promises bearing upon his second advent. We shall here examine the texts which are quoted to sustain this hypothesis.

"When they persecute you in one city, flee ye into another: for verily I say unto you, Ye shall not have gone over the cities of Israel until the Son of Man be come." Matt. x. 23.

The inference taken from this language is that the second advent would take place before the disciples had finished their ministry among the people of the Jews, and that, consequently, his advent must have occurred before the complete and final destruction of Jerusalem. But it is evident that the passage has no reference to his second coming, but that he himself would meet them or overtake them before they had finished their ministry under that special commission. In proof of this position, the reader is referred to the following text: "After these things, the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face, into every city and place whither he himself would come." Luke x. 1.

This language clearly explains what is meant by Matthew, and it will be seen at once that it has no reference to his final coming to judge the world.

THE TRANSFIGURATION.

Another text used in proof of his coming at the destruction of Jerusalem reads as follows:—"Verily I say unto you, there be some standing here which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom." Matt. xvi. 28.

The peculiar construction of this language and its connection can hardly justify the conclusion that his final advent was to occur within the life time of some of the apostles, for it is evident that he alludes to his personal manifestation in his glory on the mount of transfiguration, which was to illustrate to his disciples the future glory and coming in his kingdom at the end of the age, for the very next statement after this promise is the account of the transfiguration:—"After six days Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart, and was transfigured before them. And his face did shine as the sun, and his raiment was white as the light. And, behold, there appeared unto them Moses and Elias talking with him. Then answered Peter, and said unto Jesus, Lord it is good for us to be here: if thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles; one for thee, one for Moses and one for Elias. While he yet spake behold a bright cloud overshadowed them: and, behold, a voice out of the cloud which said, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased: hear ye him." Matt. xvii. 1-5.

It will be seen that in this vision of glory on the mount of transfiguration all parts of his future kingdom are beautifully illustrated. He was transfigured so that his glory was that of a king in majesty, and Moses and Elias, representatives of the two dispensations of the law and the prophets, were both brought to view, and the apostles, three in number (the ones alluded to in the 28th verse of the preceding chapter, "There be some standing here which shall not taste death until they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom,") Peter, James and John, were present to complete the illustration. That this is the view afterwards entertained by the apostles is very evident from the application made of the scene by Peter: "For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of his majesty. For he received from God the Father honor and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased, and this voice which came from heaven, we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount." 2 Pet. i. 16-18.

This testimony clearly shows that the Apostle Peter understood that Christ illustrated by the scene of transfiguration his future coming and glory in his kingdom. And this took place before his death and can in no way be referred to the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans.

The whole make-up of the scene in connection with the promise would seem to foreshadow to the disciples the wonderful majesty and glory of his kingdom and of his exalted position as King of kings and Lord of lords when he shall come to reign in the earth. The allusions made to his coming and kingdom in this connection cannot refer to the destruction of Jerusalem, but must have reference to his future glorious coming when he shall reward his people. The 27th verse which immediately precedes the text under consideration brings out this striking fact. "For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels, and then shall he reward every man according to his works." Matt. xvi. 27.

It is impossible that this language could have been fulfilled at the destruction of Jerusalem. He is to come with his angels; he is to come in the glory of his Father, and he comes to reward every man according to his works. Nothing of this sort took place at the destruction of Jerusalem, and therefore the explanation of the passage here given is the only consistent view to take of the text under consideration. The transfiguration scene was the prefiguration of his coming kingdom, of His personal advent, of the resurrection of the righteous dead, of the salvation of those who lived under the law and in the age of the prophets, including the ministry of the apostles and its results in the ages of the Gentiles. This exposition dignifies the passage and at once relieves the text from a view which would dwarf the glory and majesty of Christ's coming and kingdom into a war between a fraction of the Jews and a Gentile nation, leaving God's people entirely out of the grand blessings and rewards connected with his reign and glory.

As I promised you in the last issue so now I proceed to lay before you the other discovery I referred to; and that is that the Prophet Ezekiel described and located this city 570 years before John wrote of it. That don't sound very wonderful does it? But don't be in haste. When you fully fathom the immense significance of that fact I shall have hard work to convince you of it I fear. And now I want you to get out your Bibles and maps of Palestine and prepare to do some hard thinking and plenty of reading for you won't dismiss this in a hurry. Are you ready? Then read the very last verse in the book of the prophecy of Ezekiel. "It was round about 18,000 measures: and the name of the city from that day shall be "the Lord is there." Isn't that just what John says of his city? Rev. xxi. 3, "I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them and be their God."

Now turn to Ezekiel xxxvii. 27 and read "My Tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be their God and they shall be my people." If you will read this whole chapter you will see more clearly what the Prophet is talking about and discover that it is this very city which he calls by the very name John gives it "The Tabernacle of God." Now don't be alarmed because you have discovered before I tell you of it that Ezekiel's city is to be located in the land of Palestine. This is no invention of mine, nor do I object to its discoverer. No doubt Christians have seen and remarked upon the fact before; but I have discovered the absolute identity of the two cities; and the importance of that discovery will grow upon you amazingly as we proceed. Now before giving you any further proofs of this it will be necessary to follow the prophet, and locate the city with greater accuracy. Get out your map of the division of the land among the twelve tribes by Joshua. Please note the irregularity of that division. It was done by lot and is all helter-skelter, no order about it. Over here on the East of Jordon we find Reuben, Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh, while the other nine and a half tribes are west of that river, in Canaan proper. Notice Dan, off by the sea-coast, west of Judah and Benjamin. And you see Judah is south of Jerusalem and Benjamin is north of it—please note that particularly. Now if these peculiarities are fixed in your mind turn to the 48th chapter of this prophet and carefully read down to the 7th verse. After giving the northern boundary of the land, which is practically the same as that promised to Abraham—(and right here I would ask you to compare Ezekiel xlvii. 13-23 with Numbers xxxiv. 1-15, and you will see that this was the full extent of the land under David and Solomon,) he goes on to give seven tribes their inheritance, all in parallel strips from the desert of Syria on the East to the Mediterranean Sea on the West. Beginning with Dan he adds Asher, then Naphtali, Manasseh, Ephraim, Reuben and Judah; which brings us down to a strip of country 25,000 measures wide and the same in length as the others. Now passing that for a moment read from the 23d verse to the 29th inclusive and you will see the rest of the tribes are provided for in the same way, commencing with Benjamin, then Simon, Issachar, Zebulun, and Gad the last; all in parallel strips—a little over 20 miles wide, as we shall see, from the Eastern to the Western border. Of course this is not the place to discuss the questions involved in the boundary of the land, but I will just say that if you have a good map of the kingdom of Solomon you can easily prove for yourselves that the boundaries are substantially the same, having Hamath and the Euphrates River on the North, the Syrian and Arabian deserts on the East, the Red Sea and the Peninsula of Mt. Sinai on the South, and the Great Sea on the West. The river of Egypt mentioned may be the Nile, but probably not. Now to return to the Holy Oblation, read carefully from the 8th verse to the 23d at least 4 or 5 times. If you have the LXX. in the original, or a translation, or the Douay or Lesser's translation, or the Revised, use them all, and when you are through you will have a clear conception of what I am going to tell you. Out of this central strip which is 25,000 measures wide lay out a square 25,000 measures. Place the Northern line of this strip or the Southern line of Judah 10,000 measures North of Jerusalem as it stands on the map, and the northern line of your square will correspond with this line. Now draw a line east and west through this square on the meridian of Jerusalem and you have the portion for the sons of Zadok. Now cut off another strip of the same width parallel with the first and you have the Levites portion with the city of Jerusalem on the line between the two. You will observe that the prophet does not use the name Jerusalem; he says "The Sanctuary of the Lord shall be in the midst thereof," leaving us to learn from other parts of his prophecy and from other prophets that the sanctuary will be in the City of Jerusalem. But of this later on. Now, we have disposed of 20,000 measures of the 25,000, leaving 5,000 measures, which the Prophet looks after in the fifteenth verse. "And the 5,000 that are left—shall be a profane place for the city, for dwellings, and for suburbs; and the city shall be in the midst thereof." Here is the city we are looking for; here is the city of John; here is the New Jerusalem. Now follow me closely and see if I don't prove it. You see the city and the sanctuary are separated by the priests' portion; a strip of country 10,000 measures wide. In English miles this is accurately twenty-two and eight-elevenths miles wide by fifty-six and nine-elevenths long. The sanctuary is the great temple which he fully describes in the preceding chapters from the 40th to the 47th inclusive, so you see he does not place a temple in his city, and John says "I saw no temple therein for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it." Rev. xxi. 22. Now take careful note, and read Ezek. xxvii. as far as the 12th verse. What do you make of that river? Compare Rev. xxii. 2. Isn't it the same river? There are the trees of life on each side, the fruit for food, the leaf for medicine. But, you say, John says it comes from under the throne of God and the Lamb, and Ezekiel says it issues out of the temple or sanctuary. Yes, but what if I prove that the throne is in the temple? Turn over to the 43rd chapter and read carefully to the 7th verse. Speaking out of the house the Lord God of Israel says "Son of Man, the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel forever, etc." There you have it, and no word juggling either. A plain "thus saith the Lord?" We can't be mistaken; the throne of "the Lord God of Israel" of this prophecy can be no other than the throne of God and the Lamb, of John; unless we have one God of the Old Testament and another of the New. But this prophet is not the only one which speaks of this river.

To J. W. Gamble.—Expository. No. 1.

There is no broken cog in the machinery so far as Dan. xii. 2 may be involved. There is no doctrine taught in this text that is not clearly affirmed by other writers of equal authority: "Many that sleep in the dust shall awake." Some to the life of the age, and some to the shame and contempt of the age. Two classes awake, but they do not awake to or for the same thing. Daniel in the 15th verse again recognizes the two classes, and styles them "the wise and the wicked." The wise are the tried and purified ones, who shall understand, while the wicked antithetically related to the wise shall not understand though having the same source of knowledge as "the wise. A man may have knowledge, and still not be truly wise. It is the right use of knowledge in the fear of God that brings wisdom, and understanding. With knowledge comes responsibility. Where there is no law there is no consciousness of sin. It is the knowledge of the truth—the law of God, that enables a man to see himself a sinner, and alienated from the life of God. Those who are responsible to God may be either obedient or disobedient. To the former class the gospel is a "sweet savor of life unto life," while to the latter it is a "Savor of death unto death." This the way Paul states the case, and it enables us to see that character created by the knowledge of the truth is the basis of resurrection. Where there is no character there is nothing to raise. It is not mere flesh that awakes from the dust of death; for there is nothing in the flesh of sin, that entitles it to resurrection. Peter affirmed that it was impossible that Jesus should be held by death. Why? Because he was a man "approved of God," in that he was obedient in all things, and therefore possessed a character that was sinless, upon which death had no claim. It is not morally the old man in Adam, but the new man in Christ that attains unto the life of the age. Daniel says many shall awake. Many does not mean all. He, however, defines who the many are, in dividing them into two classes, nevertheless related to the law of God, and therefore responsible to their Creator as persons of character either good or bad.

"If our gospel be hid or concealed," says Paul, "it is hid to those that are lost." This class of persons would not come under the head, or within the line of resurrectional responsibility, and are not therefore a constituent element of Daniel's many.

I am not unconscious of the fact that some contend that Dan. xii. 2 affirms the resurrection of the righteous only. It is hardly necessary to turn aside here to refute their reasoning as to this text. The true import of the text will appear, as we work the combination that unlocks the secret of divine wisdom. In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established. If there was only one witness, the textual critics might greatly confuse, but where there are many we have no fear of them.

The life of the age to which some awake is an honorable and glorious life,—for "they shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and as the stars forever and ever." Such is the destiny of the obedient. But what is the reward of the unrighteous? Is the prophet silent here? Is there for nothing in store for the unfaithful, who have been favored with the knowledge of God, but who have abused their high privilege, in a career of negligence and disloyalty? The answer to this question is too definite to be mistaken. They shall "awake to shame and contempt." If a man despises the riches of God's goodness, and hardens his heart—he treasures up wrath against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God, who will render to every man according to his deeds." Rom. ii. 4-6. "Tribulation and anguish" awaits the disobedient, but glory, honor and peace is in reserve for those who patiently endure unto the end." Rom. xxvii. 8. Daniel the prophet, and Paul the apostle, are in perfect harmony on this subject of retribution. The testimony of John is also in place here. "Abide in him that when he shall appear we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming." 1 John ii. 28. The apostle well knew that those to whom he was writing would not be alive at the advent, but nevertheless admonishes his brethren to abide in Christ if they desire to escape disgrace and shame in the presence of the coming Judge. If the unfaithful do not awake where would there be any room for a want of confidence, or how would shame be possible before him at his coming? How then is the third witness in accord with the prophet? Why seek a crooked way, when the straight path of truth is before us? We must bow to the Word of God, instead of giving away to our own feelings and desires. We may not be able to see just why the Creator purposes to do certain things, but nevertheless we may rest assured there is a valid cause and reason, and if we continue to study and think on the line of what the Word teaches, instead of philosophizing on the basis of our emotions we may discover, what heretofore has been obscure to us. Man is naturally presumptive, and the only way to guard against this forbidden vanity is to educate ourselves to submit to the testimony of the Holy Oracles.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 4, 1897. NUMBER 29.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The largest freight-carrier afloat is the new Hamburg-American line steamer Pennsylvania. Her capacity is 19,000 tons of cargo. She has in addition accommodations for 200 first cabin, 150 second cabin, and 1000 steerage passengers. Her length is 585 feet, her breadth of beam is 62 feet, and her depth 42 feet.

It is not widely known that Queen Victoria rules over more Mahometans than the Sultan of Turkey, over more Jews than there are in Palestine, and over more negroes than any other sovereign who is not a native of their country.

"PRESERVE your conscience soft and sensitive. If but one sin force its way into that tender part of your soul and dwell easy there, the road is paved for a thousand iniquities."

ALL other teachers' words become feeble by age, as their persons become ghostly, wrapped in thickening folds of oblivion; but the progress of the Church consists in absorbing more and more of Christ, in understanding him better, and becoming more and more moulded by by his influence.

"WE all complain of the shortness of time, and yet have much more than we know what to do with. Our lives are spent either in doing nothing at all, or in doing nothing to the purpose, or in doing nothing that we ought to. We are always complaining that our days are few, and acting as though there would be no end to them."

THE Expository Times of Dec. 1896 contained a remarkable article by Principal David Brown of Aberdeen, on "What the Bible Teaches about the Human Body," in which he says "The idea of the body being a cage or prison house which at death will set the spirit free," is an old heathen idea quite foreign to the Bible.....What the Father gave Christ was the disciples' whole selves—not their souls, but their whole man. This from such a source is decidedly refreshing. But what about his Professorship?

FROM the Chicago Tribune we clip the following:—Constantinople, Aug. 2.—"From present indications the powers will be compelled to send another ultimatum to Turkey. The action of Tewfik Pasha in submitting a series of amendments to the draft of the treaty of peace completed at Saturday's sitting of the Ambassadors is regarded as meaning a delay of two or three weeks in the signing of the preliminaries of peace, and it is further thought it will possibly necessitate another threat in the nature of an ultimatum.

Paris, Aug. 2.—A special dispatch received here from Constantinople says that the Ambassadors are determined to maintain the wording of their draft of the treaty of peace without any change."

MEYER says, and very truly: "We have all cherished our life-purposes. We have anticipated our future, as liable to lie in a certain direction, and have dearly desired that it should do so. When hindrances have come in our way, and when we have met with strong opposition and rebuff, we have clung to our hope. Only very slowly have we yielded and accepted the inevitable. To renounce it has been like tearing out our heart. We have not realized that the Lord's plan was so much wiser and grander than our own, till long years have passed. Then suddenly we have awoke to discover that while we were desiring to do one thing, God was leading us to do another, and what we had counted secondary was primary for his glory, and the lasting satisfaction of our own heart."

Preparing for War Still.

Turkey has contracted for the reconstruction of her navy, and the building of six new ironclads, three of the first class with a displacement of 10,000 tons, and three of the second class with 6000 tons displacement, for £5,000,000. The firm will employ Turkish workmen under British management, and will use native coal. In the event of its being found necessary to import coal and machinery from Britain an exemption from custom dues will be enjoyed.

France proposes to make additions to its navy at the expense of £10,000,000.

The Italian government proposes to make considerable additions to their navy.

The German Reichstag has passed a supplementary vote of £1,500,000 for new artillery.

Russia is still accumulating gold at a brisk rate, and the Scotsman says its demand for the precious metal seems inevitable, the outside market being swept bare of its supply of bars, and as the amount in sight is insufficient to meet the pressure of this demand, 200,000 sovereigns which are about to arrive from Australia, have already been purchased. Russia's perpetual borrowings abroad, ostensibly for railway purposes, and her incessant absorption of gold in the Western markets, coupled with her retention of that which is produced by her own mines, would seem to point to a determination to build upon great reserve for political contingencies. France and Germany have devoted years to the same end, and both are ahead of her in this respect. France is said to have £170,000,000, Germany £137,000,000, Russia £137,000,000.

Small Sins.

We commend to our readers the following from Dr. Maclaren on the above subject as worthy of their serious consideration. He says: "Properly speaking, the words 'great' and 'small,' should not be applied to things about which 'right' and 'wrong' are the proper words to employ. The magnitude of a transgression does not depend on the greatness of the act which transgresses—according to human standards—but on the intensity with which the sinful element is working in it. Acts make crimes, but motives make sins. If you take a piece of prussic acid and bruise it down, every little microscopic fragment will have the poisonous principle in it, and it is very irrelevant to ask whether it is as big as a mountain or as small as a grain of dust; it is poisonous all the same. So to talk about magnitude in regard to sins is to introduce a foreign consideration. Still, recognizing that there is a reality in the distinction that people make between great sins and little sins, though it is a superficial distinction and does not go down to the bottom of things, let us deal with it.

Small sins by reason of their numerousness, have a terrible accumulative power. They are like the green flies on our rose bushes, or the microbes so much talked of. Like them, their power of mischief does not depend on their magnitude; and, like them, they have a tremendous capacity for reproduction. It would be easier to find a man who had done no sin, than to find one that had sinned only once. And it would be easier to find a man who had done no evil, than a man who had not been obliged to make the second edition of his sin an enlarged one. For this is the present Nemesis of all evil, that it requires repetition, partly to still conscience, partly to satisfy excited tastes and desires; so that minimal indulgence in drink and the like is a type of what goes on in the inner life of every man, in so far as the second dose has to be stronger than the first in order to produce an equivalent effect.

Then, remember that all our evil doing, however insignificant they may be, have a strange affinity with one another; so that you will find that to go wrong in one direction almost inevitably tends to a wholesories of consequential transgressions of one sort or another. You remember the story of the old soldier who was smuggled into a hay cart, and opened the gates of a virgin citadel to his allies outside. Every evil thing great or small, that we admit into our hearts, is charged with the same errand as he had. He takes "with him seven other spirits worse than himself, and they dwell there. "None of them" says one of the prophets, describing the doleful creatures that haunt the ruins of a deserted city, "shall by any means want its mate," and the satyrs of the islands and the woods join together and hold high carnival in the deserted city. So our little transgressions open the door for great ones, and every sin makes us more accessible to the assaults of every other.

Repeated acts of trivial transgression make up a large portion of our lives, and are a powerful instrument for making us what we are. If we indulge in slight acts of transgression, be sure of this, we shall pass to greater ones. For one man who leaps or falls all at once into sin which the world calls gross, there are a thousand who slide into it. The storm only blows down the trees whose hearts have been eaten out and their roots loosened. And when you see a man having a reputation for wisdom and honor, all at once coming crash down and disclosing his baseness, be sure that he began with small deflections from the path of right. The evil works underground, and if we yield to little temptations, when great ones come we shall be their victims.

The Papacy and The Bible.

The following interesting article is from a leaflet recently issued by the Vicar of Colwich, near Stafford, England:

The Papacy cannot live in the light of an open Bible. The people are not encouraged in the Church of Rome to possess the Scriptures and to prove all things thereby. Let us then go to the official documents of the Papacy in order to prove that the people are not encouraged to possess the Holy Scriptures.

The fourth rule of the "Congregation of the Index of Prohibited books," approved by Pope Pius IV. A. D. (1559-65) runs thus: "Since it is manifest by experience that if the Holy Scriptures in the vulgar tongue be suffered to be read everywhere, without distinction, more evil than good arises, let the judgments of the Bishop or Inquisitor be abided by in this respect, so that after consulting with the parish priest or the confessor, they may grant permission to read translations of the Scriptures made by Catholic writers, to those whom they understand to be able to receive no harm, but an increase of faith and piety from such reading, which faculty let them have in writing. But whosoever shall presume to read these Bibles or have them in possession without such faculty, shall not be capable of receiving absolution of their sins, unless they shall have given up their Bibles to the ordinary. Booksellers who shall sell, or in any other way furnish Bibles in the vulgar tongue to any one not possessed of the license aforesaid, shall forfeit the price of the books, and shall be otherwise punished at the pleasure of the said Bishop.

In the year 1713 Pope Clement XI. in his bull "Unigenetus," condemned 101 propositions of a good Oratorian priest named Quesnel. Among the propositions are these: "79. It is useful and necessary at all times, in all places, and for all kinds of people, to study and learn the spirit, holiness, and mysteries of the sacred Scriptures." "80. The reading of the Holy Scripture is for all." "82. The Lord's day ought to be hallowed by Christians with pious reading, and above all of Holy Scripture. It is dangerous to attempt dissuading Christians from this reading." "84. To take the New Testament out of the hands of Christians, or keep it shut against them by taking away the means of understanding it, is to close Christ's mouth to them." "85. To forbid Christians the reading of the Holy Scriptures, especially of the gospels, is to forbid the use of light to the children of light, and to make them undergo a sort of excommunication."

These five propositions of Pasquier Quesnel, with the other ninety six, were condemned by the Popeas "false, scandalous, pernicious, seditious, impious, blasphemous, and heretical."

Pope Leo XII. in a Encyclical, May 3, 1824, addressing the Latin Bishops, says: "We also exhort you.....reprove, entreat, be instant in season and out of season.....that the faithful committed to you to be persuaded that if the Sacred Scriptures be everywhere indiscriminately published, more evil than advantage will arise thence, because of the rashness of men."

The present Pope, Leo XIII., on Feb. 25, 1896, issued an "Apostolic Constitution on the Prohibition and Censure of Books." The Catholic Times of Friday Feb. 12, 1897, gives the text of this constitution, and from it I quote.

"Section I. The Prohibition of Books. Chapter III.—Versions of Holy Scripture in the Vernacular" (that is in the mother tongue.)

"7. Since experience has proved that on account of man's boldness more evil than good arises if the Sacred Books are allowed to all without check in the vulgar tongue, wherefore all versions in the vernacular, even though made by Catholics, are entirely forbidden, unless approved by the Holy See, or issued under the care of the Bishops, with notes taken from the Holy Fathers of the Church, and from learned Catholic writers."

Section II. The Censorship of Books, chapter v.

"(18) Those who without the approbation of the Ordinary print or cause to be printed the books of the Sacred Scriptures, or notes or commentaries upon them, fall ipso facto (that is, by the fact of printing them) under excommunication unreserved."

"How plain is it therefore that the people are not encouraged in the Church of Rome to possess the Scriptures, and prove all things thereby.

"This crushed the intent of Mons. Laserre. He says, the gospel is very rarely read even by those who profess to be fervent Catholics, never at all by the multitude of the faithful."

Why not? because they did not possess it. He accordingly gave them the four gospels in popular style. It was received with the utmost eagerness, till suppressed by the Papacy as not being accurate. Why, in the name of Truth, did not the Papacy immediately cause an accurate edition to be prepared? And why did not the Pope say, "Here my children is a quite correct edition of the gospels? In our zeal for truth and clarity for souls we were compelled to suppress the work of our dear son, M. Laserre, because containing various inaccuracies, but having caused this translation to be prepared, we exhort, beseech, nay, command you to receive it, to possess it, to hide it in your hearts, and count it the most precious treasure we could bestow upon you.

And why does not the Pope cause a translation of the whole New Testament to be made in the mother tongue of each of the peoples under his obedience? And why does he not cause it to be issued for 3rd. so as to put it within reach of all? And why does he not issue an Encyclical urging every one of the faithful to possess it, to read it daily, and to prove all things thereby? The statement stands unshaken that the people in the Church of Rome are not encouraged to possess the Scriptures, and to prove all things thereby" The reason is plain. The Papacy cannot live in the light of an open New Testament.

Intelligent Roman Catholics would naturally wonder that they could find nothing in the New Testament about St. Peter being Bishop of Rome; nothing about the Bishop of Rome being supreme over all other bishops; nothing about his being infallible; nothing about taking away the cup of the Lord from the laity (in much to the contrary); nothing about indulgencies; nothing about the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary; nothing about praying before statutes. They would naturally wonder that while the late Pope, Pius IX., could not write a single Encyclical in which the name of the Virgin did not occupy a prominent place, we have in the Bible twenty-one Apostolic letters, and her name does not occur in one of them, "The Papacy has therefore every good reason to discourage Bible readings in the Church of Rome."

Overcoming.

What comes more quickly and naturally than discouragements? Sometimes we have to use all our resources to find encouragements; but discouragements come singly one after another or in groups, without being called. They spring up before us whatever path we take and annoy us like mosquitoes, or swing us like bees, or affright us like lions. They seem to conspire to turn us back. We are not to go up-hill, we are to go down-hill; we are not to follow in the narrow way, but take the broad road. If we yield to difficulties we shall never taste the heights, never breathe the delicious mountain air, never regale ourselves with the magnificent outlooks from the towering peaks.

It was never meant that we should be overcome. No man is tempted beyond what he can bear. Strength is given us sufficient to surmount every obstacle. It is weakness to surrender at every challenge, "Who goes there?" Either man or a weakling. If a man, he asserts his will; if a weakling, he takes alarm and runs back. Manhood has glorious powers and likes to assert them. Those who always take counsel of their fears are like the comics, feeble folk. What is a discouragement? It is an unsuccessful attempt. You try to do something and fail. If you are a man with the love of manly power you will try again. If you have made a habit of surrender, you will finally cease to try at all, and move in the direction which seems to offer least resistance.

It is a shame to a soldier to have arms and refuse, like a craven, to use them. It is a shame to a policeman to have authority, and refuse to protect the innocent and helpless. So it is a shame to a man to be formed for noble ends, with divine endowments and splendid powers, and show an unwillingness to use them. These powers are meant for use, of course, just as much as the muscles of the body or the cells of the brain. If one should refuse to walk because the feet or legs got tired, or to move the arms or hands because the muscles got sore, he would be little more than a cripple. He should and mind the little discomfort which comes in this way, but train himself for larger and easier effort. How it dwarfs a man, physically, mentally, morally, to give way to little discouragements! Inured to no hardship, enervate of no effort, what is he in a world of action? No more than a wooden image. Life is activity. It is work or die, swim or sink, overcome or be overcame.

Discouragements are not impossibilities. They only call for a little more determination, a little more perseverance, a little more exertion, a little more willingness to bear fatigue. Christ commissioned his disciples to do great things: but it seemed at one time as though they would all fail to do even a little thing for him. They slept when he wanted them to watch, they forsook him in the hour of his great trial, they denied him when he was in peril. But afterward they made full proof of their love for him, and accomplished greater works than they had ever dreamed of. They found, indeed, that all things are possible to them that believe.

Discouragements are generally little things—things growing out of habit, or temper, or inclination. They beset the Apostles, but they despised them. Paul especially. Paul glorified in his trials and afflictions and sufferings. He counted them as nothing. Not because they were all light and easy to bear, but because they were of no moment compared with the end in view. These light afflictions, he said, which are but for a moment work out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. He gives a catalogue of them in the sixth chapter of second Corinthians, showing how apostles in those troublous times approved themselves as ministers of God's afflictions, necessities, distresses, stripes, imprisonment, tumults, labors, watchings, fastings; by long-suffering, kindness, honor and dishonor, evil report and good report; chastened they were, but not killed, sorrowful yet always rejoicing; they had nothing yet possessed all things. Who has in these days such discouragements as Paul and his co-laborers had in the days of the early Church?

What are our discouragements? We get weary in welling-doing, we get tired of watching and working, we find continued self-denial hard, our shoulders ache from heavy burdens borne continually; we lack patience for the little tasks, results do not come quickly enough or seem large enough; we discover weaknesses where we imagined we were strong; God seems at times to desert us; duty, now and then, wears a most forbidding look. It is, finally, a long climb and a hard climb.

So it is. But it is good for us. It makes such beautiful characters; it shows forth so grandly man's magnificent powers; it makes our human nature so wondrously like the divine; it demonstrates man's ability to overcome; it reveals the vastness of the possibilities of future development; it manifests the power of God, brings the world nearer to him, and is some recompense to Christ for the sufferings of his atoning sacrifice.

It is hard to fight, but is glorious to overcome.—Independent.

A Pleasure Book.

She is an old woman, but her face is serene and peaceful, though trouble has not passed her by. She seems utterly above the little worries and vexations which torment the average woman and leave the lines of care for every one to read. The Fretful Woman asked her one day for the secret of her happiness, and the beautiful old face shone as with a newly risen joy.

"My dear," she said, "I keep a Pleasure Book."

"A Pleasure Book. Long ago I learned that there was no day so dark and gloomy that it did not contain some ray of pleasure, and I have made it the business of my life to write down the little things which mean so much to a woman. I have a book for every year since I left school, and a place for every day. It is but a little thing; the new gown, the chat with a friend, the thoughtfulness of the husband, a flower, a book, a walk in the field, a letter, a concert or a drive; but it all goes into my Pleasure Book, and when I am inclined to fret I have only to read a few pages to see what a happy, blessed woman I am. You may see my treasures, if you will."

Slowly the peevish, discontented woman turned over the pages of the books the friend brought her, reading a little here and there. One day's entries ran thus: "Had a pleasant letter from mother. Saw a beautiful lily in a window. Found the pin I had lost. Saw such a bright, happy girl on the street. Husband brought some roses in the evening."

Bits of verse and lines from her daily reading have gone into the Pleasure Book of this world-wise woman, until its pages are a storehouse of truth and beauty.

"Have you found a pleasure for every day?" the Fretful Woman asked.

"For every day," the low voice answered: "I had to make my theory come true, you know."

The Fretful Woman remembered that on one Christmas day the only son of her friend had been brought home dying. Half afraid, she turned to the page for December 25th. At the top was written: "He died with his hand in mine, and my name upon his lips," and below the lines from Lowell:

> Love watches on the mountain height,
> Its right position to its child
> The first long sun of coming light
> Flood all the thirsty east with gold.
> Yet God sees not things as we sight
> More worthy them our twilight dim,
> For meek obedience, love, is light,
> And following that is finding Him.

She closed the book lingeringly. "Was that a pleasure?" she asked, softly; and the other answered:

"Not pleasure, perhaps, but it was balm."—Myrtle Reed in The Woman's Home Companion.

Eventide.

Abide with me! Fast falls the eventide
The darkness deepens—Lord with me abide!
When other helpers fail, and comforts flee,
Help of the helpless, O abide with me!

Swift to its close ebbs out life's little day.
Earth's joys grow dim, its glories pass away;
Change and decay in all around I see—
O thou, who changest not, abide with me!

I need thy presence every passing hour;
What but thy grace can foil the tempter's power?
Who like thyself my guide and stay can be?
Through cloud and sunshine, Lord, abide with me.

I fear no foe, with thee at hand to bless,
Ills have no weight, and tears no bitterness;
Where is death's sting, where grave's victory,
When thou dost deign in all to abide with me?

Parables Of Saloomoom. Chapter 5.

1. O son, heed my wisdom and put thine ear along side my words.

2. That thou mayest watch to guard good corrective thought, and the perception of my lips may enjoin thee.

3. Heed not a frail woman: for honey distilleth from the lips of a harlot, who anointeth thy throats betimes with it:

4. Afterwards though thou wilt find it more bitter than gall and sharper than a two-edged sword.

5. For the feet of folly lead those who use it down along with death into Hades and her footsteps do not return.

6. For she doth not approach ways of life and her circuits are delusive and not well known.

7. Now then, O son, hearken unto me and be not insubordinate to my words.

8. Make thy way to be far from her: Do not draw nigh to the doors of her (folly's house) house.

9. That thou yield not thy life to others, and allow not thy lifetime to be without mercy.

10. That others be not filled with thy strength and the results of thy painful toil come not into the houses of strangers.

11. And thou repent at last when the flesh of thy body be worn out.

12. And say, How I hated chastening and how my heart inclined away from convincing proofs.

13. I did not hearken to the voice of one who was chastening me and teaching me, nor did I lay my ear alongside.

14. Within a little did I come to be in every evil in the midst of a church and a synagogue.

15. Drink waters from thine own earthen vessels and from the spring of thine own wells:

16. Let not waters from out thy fountain overflow for Thee: but let thy waters go their way through thine own public squares.

17. Let thy possessions be thine alone, and let no stranger share them with thee.

18. Let the fountain of thy water be thine own, and rejoice along with the wife of thy youth.

19. Let the doe of friendship and the maid of gracious acts keep company with thee: but let thine own wife lend on before thee and be with thee in every period. For with this one's friendship thou shouldst become familiar to the greatest degree.

20. Be not much with a strange woman and yield not to the embraces of one not thine own.

21. For a man's ways are in the sight of God's eyes and he vieweth all his circuitous paths.

22. Evasions of law bind a man down, and each one is being bound with cords of his own sins.

23. He cometh to an end with need of chastening, and hath been cast out from the fullness of his own misdemeanor and hath perished because of folly.

CHAPTER 6.

1. O son, if thou become surety for thy friend, thou wilt give thy hand to an enemy.

2. For a strong snare is a man's lips and he is being taken with the lips of his own mouth.

3. Do two things, O son which I am directing thee and be safe: For thou art coming into the hands of evil men for thy friend's sake: know it when not released, and cast it for thy friend also for whom thou hast become surety.

4. Give not sleep to thine eyes nor slumber to thine eyelids.

5. That thou mayest be safe as an antelope from hunters and as a bird from a snare.

6. Go to the ant thou sluggard and be reminded, when thou hast perceived his ways, and be wiser than he is.

7. For though he hath no captain nor any one to compel him and is not under a master.

8. He getteth ready his sustenance in the summer, and maketh much provision in the early harvest: or go thy way to the honey-bee and learn how a female worker is, and her employment how respected she maketh it: the results of whose toil kings and distinguished people procure for health: yea she is one desired by all and renowned: Though weak in bravery as to strength, she hath been promoted because she honored wisdom.

9. How long art thou going to be lying down, thou sluggard, and when will thou awake from sleep?

10. Sleep a little forsooth and lie down a little and slumber a little and fold thy hands a little.

11. And then poverty like a bad wayfarer overtaketh thee, and want like a good runner, but if thou hadst been diligent, thy early harvest would come like a fountain, and want would give up the race like a fast runner.

12. A man without good sense and an evader of law goeth his way by ways that are not good:

13. He indicateth with his eye and signalleth with his foot and teacheth with indications of his fingers.

14. With a perverse heart he deviseth evil things: in every period such an one is promoting disturbances in a city.

15. Therefore suddenly doth his fate come, smiting and irreparable ruin.

16. Because he rejoiceth in all those things that God hateth, and he is crushed because of uncleanness of soul.

17. Such is the eye of the haughty, an unjust tongue, hands that shed the blood of the justified.

18. And a heart that deviseth evil thought and feet that haste to do evil.

19. An unjust witness floweth out with lies and promoteth the judicial proceedings between brethren.

20. O son, watch to guard thy father's laws and thrust not away the bonds of thy mother.

21. But bind them upon thy soul always and clasp them around thy neck.

22. Whenever thou walkest take her along and let her be with thee: and when thou liest down to sleep let her watch to guard thee, that she may talk with thee when thou awakest.

23. Because law's commandment is a lamp and light, a way of life and reproof and chastening.

24. To safely guard thee from a married woman and from the slander of an alien tongue:

25. Let not an inordinate desire for beauty overcome thee, nor be a prey to thine own eyes nor be snatched away with her eyelids.

26. For the price of a harlot is only as much as a loaf of bread, and a woman taketh as prey valuable souls of men.

27. Shall any one bind up fire in his bosom, and his outer garments not be burned?

28. Or shall one walk upon coals of fire and not burn his feet?

29. Even so he who goeth in unto a married woman will not have been accounted guiltless, nor any one who toucheth her.

30. It is not strange if one be taken stealing: For purchasure he stealeth that he may sate his soul because hungry.

31. And if taken he will pay seven fold and by giving all that he hath will deliver himself:

32. But the adulterer in his want of good sense bringeth loss to his soul.

33. And incurreth woe and dishonor, and his reproach will not have been wiped out forever (probably during his life time meant).

34. For her husband's anger is full of jealousy: it will not spare in a day of judicial trial.

35. He will not exchange his enmity for any redemption price nor shall one be released for many votive-gifts.

The Denouement of Earth's Tragedy.

I have been struck lately by the good tone of the correspondence in THE RESTITUTION, in regard to the interpretation of prophecy which corresponds. Each is pregnant with suggestions yet is free from that dogmatism which has been so common sometimes.

It is easy to frame a theory but it seems to be hard after we have gone to work to frame one to have patience with any one who tries to kick it over, yet some of us have lived to see good many prophetic theories crumble crushed by the roll of time and, so we all ought to speak modestly and it is in this spirit I would attempt to suggest a few thoughts.

Nothing it seems to me is more plainly revealed to the Bible as a whole, than that there is to be an overwhelming and tremendous climax, a meeting of the forces, a testing of the powers. John Milton in his description of the war in heaven and the casting out of the old serpent the dragon (Paradise Lost) was very much too previous, for during all the long passing of these centuries the forces are still accumulating, and since the death of that much respected author they have multiplied enormously.

All the trend of modern politics is brute force, the really interesting problem that the nations have put themselves to task at is how to shoot straight and strong. "They have no thought but how to kill two at one blow" as Burns puts it. This is the sum of this so-called Christian civilization. True that underneath all this dominant stand of militarism there is a latent spirit of humanity, a wide spreading sense of the common brotherhood of humanity that only waits for the breaking of the "metal image" to be released and revealed.

Another thing that appears to me is although we have this terrific accumulation of war munitions and so forth, we have a mutual sticking together, (not to call it union) of the powers. The arrangement as it is at present going on will probably be complete when we have a combination universal peace trust, with improved liberal "think-as-you-please-as-long-as-you-subscribe religious attachment.

Some of the old interpreters were looking for great and sweeping wars. But, brethren there are many things worse than war. War is the lightning discharge that often clarifies the moral atmosphere in the long run if it does stir up the mud at the time, at the worst it only kills and there are worse things than death, the stalk of the military oppressor, for instance the paw of the "beast" spread out and laid down, the lion, bear and leopard animal with the friendly and helpful dragon to bar the pass so that no man can rise up or escape without the name and the number. Over Bannockburn, and Waterloo, and Gettysburgh, the grass grows green but what can flourish beneath that desolating paw. Yet how they glory in the night of it with all its pride and pomp and glorious circumstance how one might be tempted to despair of the race, but that it has all been "figured out" and to the Bible student it has not come to the worst yet, at least I don't think so. I have concluded from my reading of the Word, that the empire that precedes the kingdom of God will be in some way universal, the complete form of Nebuchadnezzar's image seems to suggest not only the toes but all the rest is there massed and united, "bright, excellent, terrible." The same idea is borne out in the four beasts of Daniel. The fourth and last is dreadful, terrible and strong exceedingly,.....devoured brake in pieces and stamped the residue with its feet. More in detail the Dragon, Beast, and false Prophet of the Revelation seems to convey the same idea.

In a late discussion in your columns it was asked by one of the correspondents if Jesus would make war with the Turk and conquer the world piecemeal or something to that effect. It was a legitimate question from a perverted point of view. In the case of a distinguished world of individuality subdued by a long process of continuous warfare, but if I read aright the power of earth's dominion is broken at a blow, only one is necessary. It is the contemplation of this fell swoop that taxes the capacity of language to convey the idea of "When the Lord arises and bares his arm in the eyes of all the nations."

To me there is nothing so awfully impressive of the majesty and power of the far-seeing God, as the contemplation of these wonders. How hollow is human power, how helpless human aid against the wide swing of the eternal power of the universe, yet he is the God of Jacob, and the God of help. May he stay us in our need.

J. F. GELLETLY.

Matthew x. 28.

"And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell."

The above passage of Scripture is one of the strongholds of the orthodox world, and how quick they fly to it when you deny to them that the soul of man is now immortal, and yet after all is said and done the words "immortal soul" are not found in the text, neither was it so understood by our Savior himself, as you will see further on.

Not long ago I heard two men talking in private conversation on this subject and one at once quoted this passage to prove that man was now in possession of the two principles one called the body the other called the soul. This the text does prove to be true by the way it reads. The other man took the position that the soul was the future life, as some of our people usually do. At the same time he could not get around the position that the true believer was now in possession of them both and he was very near stymied under. I saw at once that such a position would not do to hold, in fact it never was satisfactory to me, but I did not know of a better one then, but think I do now, and will here give it. While they were busy talking my thoughts were busy at work, and saying, Is there not some better way to make this Scripture plain? One thought after another came to my mind, at the same time remembering that the Greek word for soul is "psuche" and not "zoe" and that it has direct reference to the present time or life of the body, hence [illegible] of Paul to Timothy came my mind in full force where it says, "Having the promise of the life that now is," I Tim. iv. 8, and that this life is the character that this body has to perform in order to be made perfect, hence it must follow that there are three lives, 1st, the natural life, 2nd, the cross-bearing life of faith and hope which our bodies have to perform or work out, which is the promise of the life that now is, which is the soul life of the true Christian, and 3rd the life that is to come. Now with this understanding before us we read our text again. "And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul" that is, the soul life of the Christian, which is hid with Christ in God, Col. iii. 3. This righteous character formed cannot be killed by man, "But rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell."

The correct business of the child of God is to fear him who can destroy both soul and body in hell. He says he can destroy it, but he don't say that he will do it; but at the same time we are to fear him. The kind of soul-life which he will destroy or burn up in hell, which is the second death, Rev. xxi. 8, is the bad character formed which will be the soul-life of the wicked when the body of the wicked is burned up, the bad character goes with it, and ends in the second death, and is gone to all eternity, hence, God has no good use for the bad character in the outcome.

In The Field.

Dear Restitution:

Meetings at this point are still in progress with promises of success. No baptisms as yet and no certainty that any will desire it, yet the work done has been so far attended with success. I have never held a meeting where I met with such stolid indifference combined with dense ignorance and unreasoning prejudice. Yet there are a goodly number from all churches and no church who have laid aside their prejudice and are attending the preaching of the Word constantly and with increasing interest. There are quite a number of intelligent young people especially interested and of whom I have some hope. In any event I have sown the good seed of the kingdom, and trust to time and the good providence of God to bring forth fruit. I expect to close the meeting Wednesday evening Aug. 4th and remove to Eagle Springs this same County—Donophan—where I begin another meeting on Sunday Aug. 8th to remain until time for the meeting at Sycamore Springs, Aug. 29th. Eagle Springs is a health resort in the hill country between Hyland Station on the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad, and the Missouri River. I shall remain there until the 25th inst. and look for a large hearing and good results. All brethren within reach who want a vacation can spend it pleasantly and profitably at this place. The Springs are widely known for their medical qualities, the surroundings are of a most picturesque and delightful character, and last but not least Mr. and Mrs. Plank give the most careful attention to the comfort of their guests at a very moderate figure. Write them when you will be at the Station and the bus will meet your trains—distance 2½ miles from the Springs. Will Bro. Pearson and family bring a few blankets and dishes and share my big bedroom during the meeting? I shall be glad also to see Bro Chaffee and son, and both of their families on the ground during the entire meeting. Will isolated brethren who may see this notice come if possible and help to make the occasion successful in the advancement of the cause we love.

Faithfully yours in the gospel hope.

J. F. WILCOX.

The Contrast.

In this world we are the children of God by faith. In the world to come we shall be children in fact, having the angelic nature physically.

In this world they are corruptible; in the world to come they are incorruptible; in this world they are subject to death; in the world to come "they can die no more" in this world they are subject to the rulers of this world; in the world to come they will be the rulers of the world; in this world they are only begotten children; in the world to come, they are the children of God, being "the children of the resurrection," or being born from the dead by the Spirit: in this world they are the children of the kingdom by promise; in the world to come they will possess all things promised: in this world they are heirs of the kingdom; in the world to come they will be inheritors of the kingdom; and, finally, in this world the children of God have natural, earthly, deshly bodies,—bodies mortal; but in the world to come they will have spiritual, heavenly, immortal bodies, fashioned like unto his (Christ's) glorious body.

Then the difference in the sense of the same terms when used to describe the condition of the children of God in this world and the world to come is simply this,—In this world they have all promises concerning the kingdom, and in the world to come they have all the things promised.

J. O. WOODRUFF.

Terrific Syllogistic Refutation.

Dear Brother Underwood:

I find the following in my scrap-book and I forget where the credit belongs, yet it is too good to lose, or remain idle.

1. "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living." Matt. xxii. 32.

2. God is the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Conclusion, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, are alive.

If this conclusion is a truthful one, it may become the basis of another syllogism. Let us try it.

1. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob are alive.

2. Living men are not the subjects of a resurrection. Therefore, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob will never be raised. Again, 1st, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob never will be raised from the dead. 2nd, God is not a God of the dead. Therefore he is not their God.

Now let immortal-soulism rally to the rescue, and meet this fairly if it can. If not, let it blush and hide its immaterial head for shame.

Announcement.

The twelfth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held in the park at Cambridge, Nebraska, beginning on Friday, Aug. 20th, and holding over Sunday. We earnestly hope that this will be the largest and the best meeting ever held. Let us one and all work for this end; and let us make up our minds that, if we possibly can, we will attend this meeting, and we will try to get others to attend. Come with a desire to work for the Master and to receive his blessing; and we feel sure that you will not have come in vain. Before the Conference, each church in the State is requested to meet and vote for the persons whom they wish to have fill the offices of President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, Evangelist, and Assistant Evangelist for the coming year; and to send the votes to the Secretary by the 16th of August. Please do not neglect this as we wish for the votes of all. Once more requesting you to come and spend ten days with those of like precious faith, in the service of the Master, I am your Sister in Christ,

With five delightful stories in the August Cosmopolitan, one might judge that it was intended solely for light reading in mid-summer; but a second glance shows that it contains as well much of serious interest. The second paper by the special commissioner sent by The Cosmopolitan to India tells a tale, the like of which has never before appeared in any period-ical. We have in histories second-hand accounts of great famines, but they lack that startling distinctness which comes from beholding at first hand the sights described. Twenty millions of people slowly starving to death, many of them in sight of the railways! No American can form any idea of the state of affairs now existing in India. Mr. Hawthorne has gone into the interior and stood amongst the dead and dying. It is the first time we have had an American investigation of the condition of affairs in India. The report will open the eyes not only of the civilized world, but of the English Parliament and the Queen herself to the necessity of extraordinary exertion in behalf of these unfortunate millions.

My soul be on thy guard,
Ten thousand foes arise;
The hosts of sin are pressing hard,
To draw thee from the prize.

O watch, and fight, and pray;

Renew it boldly every day,
And help divine implore.

Never think the victory won,
Nor lay thine armor down;
The work of faith will not be done,
Till thou obtain the crown.

Japan has an income tax, and this is the way they enforce it. If a taxpayer protests that he is rated too high by the officials he is thrust into a dark room and told to "think it over carefully." Sometimes a man stays there twenty-four hours, buried in darkness and thought, and finally he is apt to agree with the officials that he is richer than he had at first supposed.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Dear Restitution:

I will write a few lines for the love feast. I enjoy reading the letters from the brethren, and also the many articles printed in the many pages of THE RESTITUTION. I have not heard a gospel sermon for nearly five years, but I am still trying to overcome the trials and temptations of this life. All the promises are made to the overcomers, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things." I firmly believe that the time of the "restitution of all things" is very near, even nearer than we think perhaps. My daily prayer is that we may be ready to meet our Savior when he comes. Oh, that we may soon meet in that glorious kingdom, where sorrow will be o'er is the wish of your Sister.

NANNIE OSBORN.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I got in my buggy Saturday and drove near thirty miles to a little town called Self, Texas, and preached at night and three times on Sunday to intelligent and attentive audiences desiring to know the truth concerning the kingdom of Christ. I baptized Sister Eva White, an intelligent young lady, who will win others to the cause with her godly walk and conversation. God bless THE RESTITUTION: it is doing a grand work where ever it goes.

Your Brother in Christ,
S. R. CLINKENBAERD.

Dear Restitution:

As I have never written to THE RESTITUTION, I will drop a few lines, as I felt like saying something for my Master, as it will not be long before he will be here to rule this sin-cursed earth. I am still striving to gain an inheritance in the kingdom soon to be established on the earth, and I hope that I may meet all of the household of faith there. THE RESTITUTION comes to me once in awhile as I am still to poor to pay for it. It is such a comfort to me in my isolation, it would be hard to get along without it, it is all the paper I have to read. If you felt so disposed to send it to me I would feel very grateful to you. I do so love to read the letters from the dear brothers and sisters, I thought perhaps some would like to hear from me, a poor Sister striving and watching and waiting for the Savior to come and reward all his servants that love and obey him. Now, I say to all be faithful, love one another, help those that are in need, visit the sick, rejoice in the Lord always. Oh, dear ones, I have no one here to talk to and my heart longs to meet with some one of the blessed faith. I cannot do without THE RESTITUTION isolated as I am from those of like precious faith. It encourages me to read the letters from the brethren and sisters from various parts of the country and glad to know that they are ready and willing to give a reason of their hope and are clinging to the record that God gave his Son. I pray that we in our week way may so live by the help of God, who is rich in mercy as to gain a home in the kingdom when Jesus comes to reward his servants is the prayer of a Sister in the one hope. Now may the peace of God be with you all. Amen.

Your Sister,
MRS. JESSIE HAZARD.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

Our gospel tent will be spread at Sycamore Springs, Kan., on Sunday, August 29th, and continue two weeks or more as the interest may require. It is a farming locality and this date is chosen to suit the farmers. Let all who have them bring living or camping tents. Tents can be rented for the occasion of C. J. Baker, Kansas City, Mo. All desiring to rent tents can do so through me. Bring your own bedding and sleep in the large tent if you prefer. Hoping for a joyful and profitable season I remain faithfully your Brother waiting for the King,

J. F. WILCOX.

Editor Restitution:

To all who will attend the tent meeting at Sycamore Springs, Kan., Aug. 29th to Sept. 13. I have received from C. J. Baker, at Kansas City, prices for the rent of tents and cots for the occasion by which I can furnish to all who desire them, delivered on the ground at the following rates.

Tents 9½x12, 3 feet walls,	$1.50
Tents 12x14, 3½ feet walls,	2.00
Cots for one person, each	.50

Bring your own bedding and dishes, food can be procured on the grounds. By joining together and running a common table your living will cost you less than at home. All who decide to come will please write me not later than the middle of August so I can order tents in time. Be sure to state size of tent wanted and number of cots. Direct all letters to St. Joe, Mo., from which point they will be forwarded to me as I direct.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

What Would You Do?

"If the foundations be destroyed what can the righteous do?" Psa. xi. 3.

What would you do if you woke some morn
And how would the morning seem,
If you found that your faith in the Son of God
Was only a midnight dream;
And the world full of its heavy sin and woe
There was no God on high—
No higher word for your appeal,
No one to care for your woe or weal
Or to hear your cry?
That the City of God was only a myth,
The thought of a poet's brain;
There was no Christ for the heart's deep want,
No cure for its hunger and pain?
As you sank, and the chilling words of doubt
Were closing above your head,
You would clutch for help, and nothingness
Would be found in your grasp instead.
If all of the light and all of the love,
All that is good on earth,
Should go out of your life like a wind-blown lamp,
What would you do?

Communicated.

THE WORLD'S COMING KING.

"The Kingdom of heaven is likened unto a nobleman who went into a far country to receive for himself a Kingdom, and to return."

NUMBER 2.

Christ's Coming Personal and Future.

"So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many, and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Heb. ix. 28.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

Those who contend that Christ came at the destruction of Jerusalem, argue that the end of the Jewish state was the end of the world referred to in connection with his coming: that the phrase "end of the world," means the end of the Jewish dispensation, and that this end took place when Jerusalem was destroyed.

In reply to this position we remark that there is not one text in the New Testament wherein the phrase "end of the world" occurs that refers to the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, and on the other hand, we have the most explicit testimony that the end of the Jewish world, or age, or system of things, took place at the crucifixion and not at the destruction of Jerusalem, or the execution of judgment on the Jewish polity. In proof of this position, the reader is referred to Paul's testimony: "For then must he (Christ) often have suffered since the foundation of the world, but now, hence in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself." Heb. ix. 26.

Again in Romans x. 4 it is declared that Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth, and in Colossians Paul says, "Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to the cross; and having spoiled principalities and powers, he made a show of them openly, triumphing over them in it. Let no man therefore judge you in meat or in drink, or in respect of an holy day or the new moon or the sabbath days, which are a shadow of things to come, but the body (substance) is of Christ." Col. ii. 14-16.

This passage clearly proves that the law came to an end; that the legal dispensation reached its completion in connection with the death on the cross. The old Covenant with all its rites and ceremonies died at the cross, and the language is explicit that this was in the end of the world or age.

Nothing can be clearer or plainer than that the whole legal system of the Mosaic age reached its completion and perfect fulfillment in connection with the first advent of Christ. Therefore instead of Christ's coming the second time in the end of the Jewish world at the destruction of Jerusalem, he came in the end of the world at his first advent, at which time all that pertained to the Jewish cosmos reached its end, and under the new economy, he sent forth his apostles to proclaim the gospel of the kingdom of God and to announce the end of another age at the conclusion of the preaching of the gospel to all the world.

"THIS GENERATION."

Perhaps the text most relied upon to prove that Christ came at the destruction of Jerusalem is the language of Christ in his great prophecy recorded by Matthew. He says, "This generation shall not pass away until all these things be fulfilled. Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." Matt. xxiv. 34.

It is claimed that the phrase "this generation" referred to the men living at the time Christ gave the prediction and that all of the events of the prophecy, including his own personal coming, took place before the generation then alive passed away.

This conclusion, however, is not necessary. A number of interpretations have been given, any of which obviate such a conclusion. John Wesley would have the phrase "these things" refer to the matters of the temple, and that the generation then alive saw the fulfillment of those particular things, but that Christ was not referring to the general scope of his prophecy.

Others understand that the Greek word "genea" refers to the race of the Jews, and that it should continue to be a race of people until all the things predicted were fulfilled.

Others find a solution in the fact that the word rendered "fulfilled" (genetai) refers to the commencement of that grand series of events and not to its completion. Hence Martin Luther translates the text as follows: "This generation shall not pass away until all these things commence."

Wicks: "Until all these things begin to be."

Bickersteth: "Until all these things are n-fulfilling."

The passage as quoted in the Apostolic Constitution is as follows: "This generation shall not pass away until the destruction begins."

The antiquity of this quotation when the Greek language was well understood by the early fathers, would seem to indicate that they did not understand that the events were to be completed at the destruction of Jerusalem, but that the generation then alive would see the beginning of that grand series of events which should continue until the things foretold should be accomplished.

There is another view of the text which may be here stated, and that is that the phrase "this generation" refers to the present cosmos or order of things which should remain until the completion of all the events mentioned in his great prophecy. In the book of Genesis it is stated: "These are the generations of the heavens and the earth when they were created." Gen. ii. 4.

Here the word "generation" refers to the creation itself or the world itself,—the whole cosmos. The language used by Christ in this immediate connection would seem to justify this application; for he at once adds, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my Word shall not pass away." If the phrase "this generation" refers to the present order of things or the "heavens and the earth which now is" as mentioned in Genesis, then the language of Christ would seem to indicate that he means to say that the present order of things should remain as they are until the great events in his prophecy should be fulfilled. This view is strengthened by another quotation recorded by Matthew: "Think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil, For verily I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law till all be fulfilled." Matt. v. 17, 18.

Here we have the word "fulfilled" and the phrase "heaven and earth," and the construction is exactly similar to that which is here given in the statement of our Lord. Tertullion, the great scholar and early champion of the Christian faith, incorporates the two texts into one as follows: "Heaven and earth shall not pass until all these things be fulfilled."

From the foregoing expositions it will be seen by the reader that it will be inconsistent to attempt to tie down the great events connected with the return of our Lord and the intervening history of the ages to the destruction of the city of Jerusalem by the Roman army. Indeed it would be impossible for any one who is unbiased to argue that all the glory of Messiah's kingdom, the wonderful events connected with the judgment and resurrection of the dead, the overthrow of the powers of sin, the times of the restitution of all things and the complete establishment of universal peace in the world, all of which events are intimately connected with the second coming of our Lord:—we say it is impossible for any one to conclude that all of these grand events are to be dwarfed and made to refer to the destruction of Jerusalem and of the Jewish people by the Roman army.

We have now examined the leading passages which are supposed to refer to Messiah's advent a second time to the world as a past event, and we feel safe in stating that no text can be taken from its connection and forced into such a narrow construction. A grander and broader view of the Divine purpose must be entertained by all who study the Scriptures.

HOW TO ABIDE IN CHRIST.

We get into Christ by believing into him. In other words we become indoctrinated in mind and heart by believing the testimony concerning him. So that his faith, hope and obedience takes possession of us, and we in the mean time are reconciled unto God through him, by becoming one with him in mind and affection. Faith that works by love and purifies the heart, begets in us the mind and spirit of Christ. "You are all the children of God by faith," says Paul. It is true baptism is the outward manifestation, the visible development of the new man in Christ, and hence we are said to be buried with him in baptism,—a formal putting off of the old; and putting on the new man.

It is possible however for a man to be baptised, and still not be in Christ, and yet he can hardly be in Christ without baptism. The obedience of faith is the evidence thereof, and therefore the answer of a good conscience toward God. "As many of you as have been baptised into Christ, have put on Christ," Gal. iii. 28. and hence in him and clothed with his righteousness. Having thus through faith and obedience been inducted into Christ we come to what is equally necessary, that is to abide in him. The apostle John perhaps oftener than any other invites the attention of believers to this essential requirement. "Let that therefore abide in you which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Son and in the Father." 1 John ii. 24. "The love of God is perfected in the man who keepeth his word." "He that saith he abideth in him, ought himself also to walk, even as he walked." John ii. 5, 6. "He that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in him." 1 John iii. 24. "He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son." These quotations from John need no comment. In the time when these warnings were written many had departed from the truth, as the apostle says "they went out from us, because they were not of us." They grew weary of the restraint the truth imposed, and turned aside to walk in a more liberal way. Their faith became feeble and hence they did not abide in the doctrine of Christ, but cultivated friendship with the world.

Legally they had been inducted into Christ by faith and baptism, and were therefore related to the true vine and tame olive tree as branches but unfruitful and naked as they were without foliage as well as fruitless. To become spiritually dead is described as a state of mental and moral nakedness. It is virtually casting away the blood-cleansed robe of righteousness wherewith they had been clothed. How forcible therefore the warning words of Jesus "Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garment lest he walk naked and they see his shame." These words are prefaced by the statement "Behold I come as a thief." Rev. xvi., showing when the shame and disgrace of apostates and all unfaithful servants will be manifested to their companions. That day will be very disappointing to many among the living and dead who will be found naked. Self-deception when discovered is of all things the most humiliating, because the injury it has wrought cannot be repaired or excused by regrets.

Daniels statement that some shall awake to shame and contempt of the age, is confirmed by the admonitions and warnings of all the apostles. I cannot call to mind a single instance under the law where disobedience escaped punishment.—"How then shall we who are under the gospel escape if we neglect so great salvation." Possibly some one is thinking that our heavenly Father is too abundant in mercy and goodness to punish the disloyal and rebellious. If however such were the case then moral discipline would be useless, and patiently enduring hardness unnecessary.

Moses informed Israel that Jehovah was long-suffering, and abounding in mercy, but he adds, he "will not forgive your transgressions."

The history of the faithless generation that perished in the wilderness fully confirms his statement. Only the God-fearing escaped a violent death. "But," says one, "I cannot see any reason or justice in raising up the unfaithful dead ones, simply to kill them the second time." This kind of talk from one professing a knowledge of the truth is very unpleasant and distasteful. Nay more it is very disheartening, for it is indicative of a disposition to reject what does not please man's notion as to what is fit and wise. It was this kind of reasoning that crucified Jesus. He did not meet their idea or conception of the Messiah, so they rejected him. But did they not treasure up wrath against the day of wrath? We should ever remember that God's ways are not man's ways, and that we cannot know the divine mind and purpose only as it is revealed to us through the Holy Oracles. Jehovah does not raise from the dead the unjust, simply to kill them again. Such an idea gives evidence of a very feeble perception or apprehension of God's dealings with men. Man's conception of Justice cannot be trusted, for the basis of all his reasoning is selfishness, and it is remarkable that his sympathy runs in the direction of unrestrained indulgence. God does not execute judgment upon men twice. There is a second death, but it does not follow that God inflicts death more than once as punishment.

Even toward the rebellious he is patient giving space for repentance, and only when the heart is hardened, and the conscience ceases to respond to his favor and goodness does he abandon the froward, permitting them them to fill up the measure of their evil-doing. Loyalty to his Word and truth he requires, if presumptively we attempt to do more it is offensive,—if negligently we do less, it is a breach of trust and merits his displeasure.

The New Jerusalem. No. 3.

Joel iii. 18, mentions the fountain that comes forth of the house of the Lord and waters the valley of the Acacias. Zech. xiv. 8, tells us that "living waters shall go out from Jerusalem: half of them towards the eastern sea and half of them towards the western sea, in summer and in winter it shall be." Now note the time; it is when "the Lord shall be King over all the earth." 9th verse. Then note where one branch empties, it is into the Dead Sea. Then observe that it issues from Jerusalem. Doesn't that locate the "House of the Lord," the "Sanctuary," "the temple" in the City of Jerusalem? I think so. Read Zech. viii. 3. "Thus saith the Lord I am returned unto Zion and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and Jerusalem shall be called a city of truth: and the mountain of the Lord of Hosts, the Holy mountain." Now read Micah iv. 1-7, and parallel passage in Isa. ii. 2-4, "And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's House shall be established in the top of the mountains—and all nations shall flow unto it—for out of Zion shall go forth the law and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem." Thus puts the Lord's House in Jerusalem beyond a doubt; but these passages are only a few of the many bearing upon the same point which you may examine at your leisure. Now we have settled this point that the temple will be in Jerusalem, hence this other city of Ezekiel is not the old Jerusalem rebuilt, but it is located twenty-two and eight-elevenths miles to the south of it. Now don't go into spasms yet: if you are going to have fits wait till I am through, there is more to come; and if it turns your theology topsy-turvy just put the blame where it belongs: its no invention of mine. Now its time we attended to the measurement of this City of Ezekiel and see if it is of the same size with the New Jerusalem. If you have read this article with your Bible in your hands you will have noticed that the angel who does the measuring has a builders line of flax and a "reed" in his hands and all the dimensions are expressed in multiples of this reed or in cubits. Now we will see if we can ascertain what these units signify in English. Turn to the 40th chapter and 5th verse; here the prophet tells us that the "reed" was "six cubits long, by the cubit and a hand-breadth." That is the cubit he used was not a common cubit, but was a hand-breadth longer.

In the 43rd chapter and 13th verse he again defines the cubit to be "a cubit and a hand-breadth:" and in the 8th verse of the 41st chapter he tells us that the "reed" was six "great cubits" long. Now bear in mind that there were a good many different cubits in use among the ancients, and as the Prophet was in Babylon when he wrote and himself defines the cubit to be a great cubit we are justified in using the Royal Babylonian cubit and adding "a hand-breadth" to that. Without entering into the details of the argument further it is sufficient to take the results of the very best scholarship as our guide and following Boeckh (universally regarded as the very best authority in such matters) we arrive at the following results.

The Royal Babylonian cubit equals 20.800 inches; the hand-breadth equals 3.1752 inches; total 23.9812 inches. This, as you see, only lacks .0188 inches of being two feet or 24 inches. But as this fraction is smaller than a hair we allow for possible errors in computation and place the cubit used by the Prophet at an English two foot rule, and the "reed" at 12 feet. Now let us proceed. Turn again to the last verse of the book. "It was round about 18,000 measures," or reeds. Multiply this by 12 feet to the reed—now what is the product? 216,000 feet. There you have it. We have already learned that this is exactly the size of the New Jerusalem. 144,000 "cubits of a man," i. e. of 18 inches each, exactly equals 108,000 "great cubits" of 24 inches each. Doesn't this complete the identification? Well, what more do you want? Of course you have already noticed the other features of identity? Let us see: they are square cornered and the sides are equal; both have a wall; both have 12 gates; these gates are after the names of the 12 tribes of Israel: both are on the earth; the Lord God Almighty dwells in both; the river of life flows through both; (I forgot to show that the western branch of the river possibly, the whole stream flows through Ezekiel's city) the trees of life grow in both; and finally all this is at the time when the "Lord is King over all the Earth," or in the New Heavens or New Earth state.

Now, I can't take time or space to consider objections and remove difficulties, all you have to do is to study the prophecies and they will all melt away of themselves.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion, in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

"The Father Himself Loveth You."

Christ did not create—he revealed the love of God. You do not say that the dawn makes the sun, nor that the incoming ships cause the flow of the tide; nor that the flowers create the summer. No! The dawn is the sign that the sun is coming,—it is caused by the sun. The ships are carried in by the tide, and only reveals its current. The summer makes the flowers, and they declare its glory. Why do you say that Christ made or brought, or in any other way procured the love of God, when it was God's love that sent him forth on his mission. Jesus bearing our sins on the cross, and sins being laid on him is not the actual sins themselves, but the effect of sin. Death is the effect of sin. That there was no substitution whatever in the death of Jesus,—in the infinite wisdom of the Deity, the death of one spotless in character was necessary as a basis of reconciliation for sinners. Thus the Father permitted him to be bruised—to be made an offering for the sins of those who had no ability to help themselves. "They were our griefs he bore. They were our sorrows he carried." "Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he (Jesus) laid down his life for us." And again, "In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him." "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation (not propitiator) for our sins."

"Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought to love one another."

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Editor Restitution:

I want to read the RESTITUTION until "The times of restitution." I am anxiously watching developments in the European situation, and hope we may soon see him coming who will do more for humanity than the "great powers will or can do. We know we are very imperfect, yet we long for that time to come. May we all be ready to meet the Savior when he comes is my prayer.

Editor Restitution:

Enclosed please find money for subscription. Did not receive the number containing H. V. Reed's Sermon, which I had felt interested in seeing, not only for instruction; but on account of personal friendship for himself and family.

The promises as revealed in God's Word have never been so precious, and the sense of their soon fulfillment never so vivid as now in my mind.

Yours, sincerely.

Dear Restitution:

I am so glad always to hear from the brothers and sisters in THE RESTITUTION, to think there are a few of them scattered over the land trying to serve their Master. I for one am trying to live in a way so that I won't be ashamed to go when the Lord calls for me. Pray on, brothers and sisters, I hope we'll gain the crown. Oh, just once think of what he has promised us, he said, "Fear not, little flock, it is my Father's good will to give you the kingdom; for Christ says behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me and to give unto every man as his works may be." Oh, brothers and sisters, let us keep our lamps trimmed and burning and gain the crown he has prepared for us. Brothers and sisters, pray for me that I may hold out faithful.

From your Sister in the one faith looking for the soon coming kingdom.

MRS. R. C. ELLIOTT.

Carnal hearts are apt to think they are as good as they should be, because, they are not so bad as they have been.

LAMOUTH, IND. AUGUST 11, 1897.

FROM our correspondent's we learn that THE RESTITUTION is a welcome visitor, not only to many households, but to many isolated believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God. Many say that it is the best exponent of Bible truth published. We are conscious of the fact that as in all things human it has its faults, still we hope and pray that it may be the medium through which the knowledge of some very important, though much neglected truths may be communicated. We thank our friends for all their words of cheer.

THERE is great excitement on the Pacific Coast over the discovery of immensely rich gold mines in Alaska. Hundreds and perhaps thousands are flocking thither and braving every danger, and making every sacrifice of present comfort, and risking all because they believe the report, and are fired with hope of returning in a little while with a golden fortune. But the transcendant love of God as manifested in those exceeding great and precious promises, which include divine nature of existence, and possessions of his world-wide everlasting kingdom as co-partners with Jesus, who is the resurrection and the life of all who believe the Glad Tidings—this is totally disregarded. Millions upon millions—hundreds of millions of Bibles have made known God's unspeakable gifts to those who will accept them on his conditions, but not one in ten thousand believes a word of it. Harder and harder is it to persuade people to believe God. But while this is a source of grief,—it confirms our faith in the Word that portrays the moral condition of the world just before the coming of the Lord, the second time. Yes; the Lord, we verily believe, is at hand to come for those who are his. Inasmuch as the saints accompany him when he first interferes with the rulers of the present world, they will have been glorified before that. Let us be ready.

FROM the Chicago Tribune of Aug. 8th, we clip the following, which we think will be very good news to our readers. It seems that the signs in regard to the restoration of the Jews are being fulfilled so rapidly that it would be almost impossible for any true Bible student not to believe them. God's ways are past finding out, but his way is the best way. Let us wait patiently for the time when he shall save his people.

KINGDOM OF JEWS IN PALESTINE.

"Fresh evidence comes from Europe that the rich Jews have made considerable progress in their project to establish a Jewish kingdom in Palestine. This progress as yet has not been material or tangible, but it is apparent the idea has not been allowed to grow cold, and that from mere discussion, which served chiefly to arouse the interest and support of Jews generally, the leaders of the movement have reached the point where practical work can be inaugurated.

Dr. Theodore Hertzl of Vienna seems to be the most outspoken of the group of men who are handling the great enterprise. He declares it is his purpose to send an expedition to examine thoroughly the land where settlement will be desirable, and to establish systems of telegraph and other modern conveniences before the removal of Jews there is begun. He has interested the London representatives of the Baron Hirsh charities in the undertaking, and has instigated the formation of Jewish organization throughout the world whose sole object is to awaken and keep alive the sentiment favoring such an independent Jewish state.

There has always seemed something visionary and impossible about the idea that the Jews could ever again be rulers of Palestine, but certainly there are many evidences in the present condition of the movement that this achievement is not far off. There seems to be little doubt that Turkey would be willing to sell Palestine, but even if the Sultan should be obstinate and refuse, the Jews can reasonably expect to obtain the country from the powers when the inevitable disintegration of the Ottoman empire takes place.

A Jewish congress is to be held at Basle on Aug. 29, when all the main points in the scheme will be taken up. Dr. Hertzl confidently expects that this congress will be the "redeemer of the Hebrews." He thinks it will result in bringing the whole project to a head, and will crystallize the sentiment of the Jews which now is overwhelmingly in favor of it. A Jewish company will then be formally organized with a capital of 250 millions, and if the hopes of the promoters are realized negotiations will be started with Turkey at once for the purchase of Palestine.

If this project of the Jews is realized, it will certainly be the marvel of the history of the world. Nothing imaginable could exceed in grandeur the spectacle of a million men and women, now scattered over the world, journeying back to Palestine with all their racial peculiarities intact even after 1,800 years of persecution.

There is room for a million Jews to live in comfort in Palestine. Who can say that this wonderful restoration may not be accomplished?"

At The Breaking of Bread.

Brothers and sisters, it is a hallowed privilege we enjoy of meeting with the adopted children of God from week to week, to exhort one another in view of the fast approaching day. The world outside is opposed to God and his truth. We have nothing in common with it;—are entirely out of harmony with our surroundings, and we could hardly over-estimate the privilege of exchanging words and thoughts concerning the Father's will and his kingdom. It is pleasing to God to find his people thus occupied. Even in Old Testament times we find by the words of the Spirit in Malachi that Jehovah looked with peculiar interest and favor upon the meeting together of his chosen ones, and talking over the things concerning his kingdom. "They that feared the Lord even in the troublous times after the dispersion and partial return of Israel, managed to

SPEAK OFTEN ONE TO ANOTHER,

and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord and thought upon his name." There is a crumb of comfort here for those who think they cannot speak out in meeting. But what follows as the result, is most glorious. "And they shall be mine saith the Lord of Hosts in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them as a man spareth his own son that serveth him." With this grand truth before the household of faith, is it not astounding that any who have tested that the Lord is good should need to be exhorted to not forsake the assembling of themselves together? It certainly is; and I do, brethren, when you speak you will emphasize this point. If we

NEGLECT THE SPIRIT'S ADVICE,

if we cease to think of the things which abide when the cares and anxieties of the present have passed into oblivion; if we concentrate our minds, and affections, and energies upon present things, the advantage will not last long. Oh, no! We cannot shake off old mortality; we cannot put back the finger of time. We cannot renew our youth, nor keep back wrinkles, or grey hairs. With all our care, even with the aid of the world's good; we cannot live long beyond the three score years and ten, and then we pass away, and in a little while are forgotten. The things we hope for, and which bring us together this morning are Eternal things. The life we seek is a lasting one;—

A LIFE THAT WILL NEVER WEAR OUT;

that will know no decay; will ever be fresh, vigorous, youthful.—the mind ever buoyant and free from care. Time will make no wrinkles,—toil no weariness, pain no anguish,—and tears there will be none.—and existence will be a perpetual delight. Think of a life like this forever! If we overcome we shall be like Christ; we shall see him as he is. Just think of his perfect, glorious nature now.—possessor of length of days for ever and ever! Think of the form once pained with deepest anguish,—

ONCE MARRED AND HOIY,

once hanging on the cross with nails through his quivering flesh;—once treated with contempt and scorn,—once laid in a borrowed tomb, now glorious, incorruptible, divine,—think of it! It is he who shall change our vile bodies and fashion them like to his own most glorious body, and equal unto the angels! Oh, can one who realizes the grandeur of the Hope, and the greatness of the destiny to which we are called need to be urged to come to this Memorial Feast, this hallowed circle where Jesus has pledged to make one among us every time? Oh, brethren, if trifles keep us away from this board our professions have little value if the thought of

MEETING WITH HIM

who died for us does not cause us to make strenuous efforts to be here. I am persuaded that he will not care to own us by and by. If amid all the strife and turmoil and sin of this age it does not thrill us with holy desire to meet with his followers and do this in remembrance of him who died for us and rose again, you may settle it for a fact that there is something radically wrong. Depend upon it we are deceiving ourselves: a searching

EXAMINATION IS IN ORDER.

Thank God, we are yet where what is wrong may be righted,—and such symptoms exhibit that the world has looked in and crucified out the love of God. It becomes all such to call a halt,—review the things that remain: go back to God's grand old Book and see again that the friendship of the world is enmity against God.

If we dwell upon the riches of God's grace stored up in the Anointed Jesus for those who prove faithful to the end of life's journey,—that we are called to God's kingdom and glory, it would excite within us the utmost solicitude as to our conduct. It would make us careful not to participate in anything while our Lord is absent, that we would not do nothing that we could not ask him to join us in, or share with us. The destiny to which we are invited is UNSPEAKABLY GREAT: something infinitely more than the riches and honors of earth combined. More and more may these realities win our admiration, excite our hope, move us to effort, and incite our desires. We shall then long ardently for the Master's appearing; long to hear the voice of the archangel,—long to know the ancient graves have been stirred: long to see manifested in the earth:—long to see the injustice of the present give place to the reign of righteousness: long to see the oppressor destroyed, the tyrant dethroned; long to see the poor cared for, the lowly exalted, the hungry filled, the proud scattered and the ungodly rich sent empty away!—Ah, long to see the whole

PRACTICE IN HIS PRESENCE.—

THE POWER OF CHRIST

EARTH FILLED WITH THE GLORY OF GOD, and its teeming population all righteous, contented, peaceful, pure. Some of us have been scanning the political heavens for 40 years, but the glory has not come yet. Again and again we have strained our eyes to catch a glimpse of his appearing,—but dear old joyful comrades few as we are, we can say to the young ones all around us our faith does not waver, and we feel like

HOLDING FASTER THAN EVER,—

can we not? "YES, YES." I knew we would each say that, for we long ago proved him faithful who promised, and learned to heed the injunction to "cast not away our confidence which hath great recompense of reward; for yet a little while and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry." But this tenth of Hebrews gives us more wholesome advice. It says:—

"YE HAVE NEED OF PATIENCE that after ye have done the will of God ye might receive the promises. Our trials do not compare with those of Apostolic times. They were a gazing stock both by reproaches and afflictions, but they took joyfully the spoiling of their goods, even, knowing that an enduring substance awaited them. What if our organs and pictures and tables and bureaus, and what-nots were destroyed or confiscated because we followed the despised Nazarene, without redress,—

WOULD WE TAKE IT JOYFULLY?

Would we? That depends upon the strength of our faith in God. We are wonderfully privileged in some respects; but do not be deceived: the testing of the metals goes on all the same as in the apostolic times. The dross is being purged by other means, and we need patience still. The voice from heaven still says

"HOLD FAST TILL I COME,"

and this means me, and it means you my sister, and you my brother, and you, and you, and you. It means that we are all in danger of losing our hold. Would he send a special messenger from heaven to warn us if he were not deeply concerned for us? And now, dear ones, did it ever occur to you that if we lose our hold? We are not our own. We have no right to throw ourselves away. We belong to him. If we desert him we rob him of part of his purchase, and awful to contemplate, our own existence will go out in the blackness of darkness for ever. To prevent this awful ending we must set a good example to each other. The day is fast rolling on, and we must not be afraid to talk plainly, and yet affectionately, for when eternal realities burst upon us we shall not regret these plain talks. Finally may God help us to keep the narrow way, exercise patience, trim our lamps of faith and hope. The announcement will soon be made, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him. Only those who are ready will go in." May we all be ready I pray.

WE WILL WRONG HIM

BE FAITHFUL TO EACH OTHER,—

For Our Children.

A Lesson for Little Folks.

A wasp there was in sad distress one day,
In fear as the less that were flitting that way.
"They rob me!" she cried, "then go buzzing with glee
Their honey sweetness. Come! Ah me!"
She was chagrin with what she called
Which caught the attention of a bright humming-bird.
"Oh, who speak so rudely to a dancer," said he.
"Why sigh forth your sorrow so deathly?"
"Ah, I feed on the sweets of the sunniest air,
But had never yet food that you knew of to share."
And while you were busy on the bright air around
I had never suspected that you could be
And why should it cause such unseemly display.
Though the bees draw some share of your sweetness away?
They were made by your all wise Creator and mine
As a means on links in his power design.
Air, water and earth, the sun and the shower
He made to contribute to form you a flower;
And this glad reflection should soothe all distress.
You, with sweetness extracted, share none the less."
Besides, I have heard of a great universal man,
Whose joys were enhanced in his infinite plan,
Who received satisfaction for gains each an hour,
The chatter and the words of the flowers and the bees."

Our Eyes and How to Use Them.

If you ever sat for your picture you remember the curious machine the photographer pointed at you while you were sitting. Inside of this machine was something that made an exact picture of you in a short time.

You may be surprised to know that your eyes are constantly making pictures for you, from the time you open them in the morning until you close them at night.

The trees, the flowers, the faces of your friends, everything you look at is formed into little pictures on the inside of your eyes. And if you will get near enough to look down into the mother's or brother's eyes, you will see there a picture of your own face.

Just where the pictures are made are little nerves that tell the brain how the pictures look, and as soon as you close your eyes the picture is gone.

People's eyes differ in color. Some are blue, some gray, some black or brown. The part that gives color to the eye is a curious curtain for letting just the right amount of light into the eye. In the middle of the curtain is the round black spot called the pupil. It is simply a hole in the curtain. When you go from a dark room into a strong light, little muscles, fastened to the inner rim of the curtain, quickly draw it more closely around the pupil. This shuts out some of the light and keeps it from blinding the eye. When you go from a light room into a dark room the muscles loosen their hold on the curtain and let it draw away from the pupil. This lets more light into the eye, and you soon begin to see dimly where at first you could see nothing.

It is a great blessing to have good eyes, and a great misfortune to lose the use of them or have them injured in any way.

The eyes may be injured by too strong a light. It is bad to read or write with the sun shining on your book, or to look at a black board when you have to face a window close beside it.

You should not sit facing a bright lamp in the evening when you are reading or sewing. Sit so that the lamp-light shines over your left shoulder.

The eyes may be badly strained by trying to read or sew in a poor light. You are very apt to strain your eyes if you read until dusk, after the sun has set. A good rule is to stop and look away from your book for a minute, then look back again. If you cannot see the print easily without straining your eyes and holding your book nearer the light you should stop at once.

You should not read when you are lying down. The eyes are not then in position for such work, and are likely to be strained.

You should not read when you are ill. Like other parts of the body, the eyes are too weak for work.

When anything gets into the eye, quickly take hold of the eyelashes of the upper lid and draw the lid away from the eye. Hold it steadily away until the tears come, and they will wash out the cause of the trouble. As you hold the lid with one hand you may rub it gently with the other, but be careful not to rub the lid against the eye. Anything sharp like a piece of cinder would be likely to injure the eyeball if pressed against it by hard rubbing.

The right action of all our senses depends upon our nerves and brain. It is the nature of both alcohol and tobacco to dull the senses by dulling the brain and nerves.

The nerves of sight are sometimes badly injured by alcohol and tobacco. Doctors tell us of persons who have lost their eyesight from the use of these poisons, or have gained it again after the bad habit of using them had been given up.

What an Old Man Noticed.

I have noticed that all men are honest when well watched.

I have noticed that purses will hold pounds as well as pounds.

I have noticed that in order to be a reasonable creature, it is necessary at times to be down-right mad.

I have noticed that some men are so honest that necessity compels them to be dishonest in the end.

I have noticed that silks, broadcloths, and jewels are often bought with other people's money.

I have noticed that whatever is, is right with a few exceptions—the left eye, the left leg, and the left side of a plum pudding.

I have noticed that the prayer of the selfish man is, "Forgive us our debts," while he makes everybody who owes him pay to the utmost farthing.

I have noticed that he who thinks every man a rogue is very certain to see one when he shaves himself, and he ought, in mercy to his neighbor, to surrender the rascal to justice.

I have noticed that money is the fool's wisdom, the knave's reputation, the poor man's desire, the covetous man's ambition, and the idol of all.

I have noticed that all men speak well of all men's virtues when they are dead, and that tombstones are marked with epitaphs of the good and virtuous. Is there no particular cemetery where the bad are buried?—American Workman.

Making Character.

Many people seem to forget that character grows; that it is not something to be put on, ready-made, with manhood or womanhood: but day by day, here a little and there a little, it grows with the growth and strength, until good or bad, it becomes a coat of mail.

Look at the model man of business,—prompt, reliable, conscientious, cool and cautious, yet clear-headed and energetic. When do you suppose he developed all these admirable qualities? When he was a boy. Let me see the way in which a boy of ten years gets up in the morning, works, plays, studies, and I will tell you what kind of a man he will make. The boy that is late at the breakfast table, late at school, who never does any anything at the right time, stands a poor chance to be a prompt man.

The boy who half washes his face, half does his sums, half learns his lessons, will never make a thorough man. The boy who neglects his duties be they ever so small, and then excuses himself by saying, "O, I forgot! I didn't think!" will never be a reliable man.

The boy who finds pleasure in the pain and suffering of weaker things will never be a noble, generous, kindly man—a gentleman.—Christian Repository.

How to Retain Youth.

Take frequent recreation, but not so much as to rob it of its zest.

Preserve the feelings and habits of youth as late in life as possible.

Keep free of intense excitements. They wither the physical energies like fire.

Keep a clear conscience and lead a life void of offense in the sight of God and man.

Insist upon an abundance of regular sleep—so much of it as possible before midnight.

Avoid excesses of all kinds, whether of work, pleasure, eating, drinking, or any other wise proper enjoyment of mind and body.

A man cannot long keep young who gives up all the active, health-giving exercises of youth. Take a [illegible] treat him as a good many middle-aged men treat themselves, and he would soon notice the deterioration of his physical powers.

It is intense excitement, the excitement of social life, the ball-room, the theater and the various forms of fashionable dissipation, that makes our American girls fade so rapidly. If they took life more quietly and reasonably they would preserve their beauty and physical vigor longer.

TOMMY—Pa, the Chinese invented gunpowder, didn't they?

MR. FIGG—Yes; but it never really amounted to much for killing purposes until the Christian nations took hold of it.—Indianapolis Journal.

Praise God.

Praise God for wheat so white and sweet of which to make our bread!
Praise God for yellow corn with which his waiting world is fed!
Praise God for fish and flesh and fowl he gave to man for food!
Praise God for every creature which he made and called it good!
Praise God for winter's store of fuel!
Praise God for summer's heat!
Praise God for fruit-tree bearing seed: "To you it is for meat!"
Praise God for all the beauty by which she world is fed!
Praise God, his children all, to whom he gives their daily bread!

Supplemental to The Gospel.

"The things concerning the kingdom of God AND the name of Jesus Christ." Acts viii. 12.

To properly appreciate matter supplemental to the gospel, we must first have a clear conception of the subject-matter of the gospel, and then we can discern the difference between the gospel, and matter supplemental to the gospel, and avoid the dilemma of preaching two gospels.

THE GOSPEL.

We cannot do better than cite Jesus as to the subject-matter of the gospel. "Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom." Matt. iv. 23.

"Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God." Mark i. 14.

The subject-matter preached by Jesus as the gospel, is the "kingdom of God," this cannot be set aside, the language is too explicit.

"The kingdom of God," then, must of necessity be the kingdom God gave Jesus, if we can ascertain that fact, then we may locate the kingdom Jesus preached as the gospel.

It is fortunate that we have direct evidence both as to the throne and people God gives Jesus to reign upon, and over. See Luke i. 31-33. "The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." The throne will be the throne of David," and the people he will reign over will be the house of Jacob and the duration of the reign will be forever," "and of his kingdom there shall be no end." This is the endless kingdom of God Jesus preached as "the gospel of the kingdom of God."

Dissociate the gospel from the restored "throne of David," and his reign over the "house of Jacob," and you have another and different gospel than that Jesus preached. This must be clear to any unbiased mind.

After the resurrection of Christ, the same gospel was preached, but something supplemental was added which was not preached before. This is shown in Acts viii. 12: "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God (restored throne of David) AND the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women."

The gospel, and the matter supplemental to the gospel, you will observe is connected by the conjunction "AND." Again: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God AND his righteousness." Matt. vi. 33. "And his righteousness," is the same as is involved in "the name of Jesus Christ." "The kingdom of God" must not be ignored, but must be sought "first," and then add to it, "his righteousness." Ask a popular theologian, and he will not direct you to "seek first the kingdom of God," but may tell you to "pray for the extension of the kingdom," meaning simply the growth of the church. With such a view of a kingdom, pray what do such teachers know about "the gospel of the kingdom?"

The things concerning "the name of Jesus Christ," which is the "only name which is given under heaven, whereby men may be saved," relates primarily to his sacrifice for sin, his resurrection for our justification, as typified in baptism. The things of the kingdom and name cannot be separated without rendering such an one an unfit subject for baptism, and defeating him of things involved in his name, which name is put on in baptism. This, all can be assured of who are simple enough to receive God's Word as a little child. For example: "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God AND the name of Jesus Christ they were baptized both men and women."

Some maintain that there are two gospels—"the gospel of the kingdom" and the "three fact gospel" of popular theology. Paul stoutly insists that there is but one gospel, and invokes the anathema of heaven upon any one, be he angel or man, who would dare preach any other than the one gospel.

Previous to the sacrifice of Christ, the kingdom alone was preached as the gospel, since then, the kingdom and the name comprise the one gospel. The things of the name render it possible for men and women during the gospel dispensation to become "heirs of the kingdom." In fact, the things of the name are "the mystery of godliness," "this righteousness," which was "hid," and becomes the modus operandi by which all who "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," may participate with the Christ in "the glory which shall follow," the humiliation and sacrifice.

If I may so express it, the Heading together of the things of the kingdom and name, "believed prior to baptism," is the combination lock to the kingdom of God. You may depend upon it, that the gates of the kingdom will never open in answer to any other combination. This is the "secret" or "mystery" revealed. Omit to "seek first the kingdom of God," and the remaining portion of the combination will never open the lock. Neither will any combination open a lock unless it is practically applied. So while the things of the kingdom and name may be the proper combination, it will be of practical utility to only those who are after comprehending the same, put on the name in baptism. Right here, let me quote the following: "This is a solemn statement, deserving, nay, demanding most attentive consideration. It is a certain decree of exclusion against all who do not humbly and joyfully believe in the glad tidings concerning the kingdom of God. It is fatal to the skeptic, whatever may be his excellence of character. It shuts out the man who is so engrossed in the business and pleasures of this life as to be indifferent about the future, blindly trusting that all will be right if he pays eight shillings to the dollar. It debars the pseudo-liberal man of the nineteenth century, who in the supreme wisdom of a scientific cramming talks contemptuously about theology. But it is equally fatal to another class who think they have nothing to fear. What does that professing orthodox Christian say to it? What say they to the kingdom of God? Do they receive it as a little child? Let them be told about God's purpose to send Jesus Christ to earth again (Acts iii. 20,) to establish him in the city of Jerusalem as universal king on earth (Isa. xxiv. 23; Jer. iii. 17; Micah iv. 2-7); to give power to his accepted people as de-facto co-rulers with him of the nations of the earth. Rev. ii. 26, 27; Isa. v. 9, 10; Dan. vii. 27. Let them be told of the mission of Jesus Christ to raise up the tribes of Jacob (Isa. xlix. 6); to gather again the children of Israel from all nations among where they are scattered (Ezek. xxxvii. 21, 22); and there to constitute them a glorious nation. Let them be told of all these things which are plainly written in the Word of Truth, and what will they say? Do they not reject them with scorn, and throw all the ridicule which their mouths can frame upon those who direct their attention to the same?"

Tell me, reader, those of you who in time past were allied with gross darkness, and have since seen the light, and were baptized while in ignorance of the combination that will open the door of the kingdom—"The things concerning the kingdom of God AND the name of Jesus Christ," do you feel safe in trusting an obedience rendered while allied with, and believing the delusions of an apostacy? Pride often hinders such from yielding obedience. They dislike by that act to confess their ignorance in time past. Let us remember that the attitude of a true follower of Jesus is humility and lowliness of heart, that will receive the kingdom of God as a little child, and not resist it.

God's Word says: "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God AND the name of Jesus Christ they were baptized both men and women." A child-like faith asks, did I believe those things when I was baptized? and if the answer is, I did not, then an obedient childlike simplicity will seek the earliest opportunity to render obedience. But spiritual pride will lead many who know they did not believe those things, to allow the above language of inspiration to have about the same effect on them, as water on a duck's back.

Remember Israel in the wilderness, the gospel did not profit them not being mixed with faith in them that heard it.

Parables Of Saloomoon. Chapter 7.

1 O son, watch to guard my words, and my commandments hide close beside thee; O son, honor the Lord and thou will be strong; Fear no other beside him;

2. Watch to guard my commandments and modes of life and my words even as pupils of eyes.

3. Put them around thy fingers and write them on the breadth of thy heart.

4. Tell wisdom to be thy sister and obtain well-known thou, kindness for thyself.

5. That she may watch to keep thee from a strange and wicked woman if she encounter thee with the words that seem to error.

6. For at an the window of her house she peepeth down, into the public squares

7. At whatever young lads she may see of the children without good sense.

8. Going his way by the corner on the cross-streets that pass her house and speaking out familiarly in the evening darkness whenever there is the quiet of night and of storm.

10. And the woman meeteth him, he seeing that she hath a harlot's way that meeteth hearts of young men to flatter;

11. And she is a fly-away and desireth and her feet do not stay quietly at home:

12. For betimes she rambleth about outside and betimes she seateth herself in the public squares beside any corner.

13. And then she hath laid hold of him and kissed him, and with shameless face hath addressed him like this:

14. My sacrifice is a peace-offering, today I am paying my vows:

15. Therefore have I come out to meet thee; longing for thy face I have found thee:

16. With cords have I streweled my couch with shaggy reversibles from Egypt have I spread it;

17. With saffron have I stuffed my bed to bursting, and my house with cinnamon.

18. Come let us lavishly enjoy affection until morning. Come hither and let us wallow in (sensual) love.

19. For my husband is not at home, but hath gone a long journey;

20. Having taken in his hand a bundle of money at the end of many days will he return to his house.

21. And she hath led him astray with much converse and with ruin from her lips hath she run him aground:

22. And easily enticed he hath followed her, and like an ox as he being led away to slaughter, and like a dog to his bonds.

23. Or like a deer smitten with an arrow in his liver; and he hasteth like a bird to a snare, not knowing that to is running for life (soul).

24. Now, then O son, hear me and attend to or ruin the words of my mouth.

25. Let not thy heart incline toward her ways;

26. For she hath wounded and cast down many, and numbered are those whom she hath murdered;

27. Ways to hades her house, ways that lead down to the chambers of death.

COMMENT.

We have in the 1st verse: the 5th chap. an illustration of the primitive meaning of the word "parable" used as a verb—"put thine ear along side my words," as well as an illustration of the use of the word meaning "to watch to guard" or "exoteric watch," about which I commented at length in the last number.

The reader should distinguish carefully in the 3rd verse and what follows between the warning against harlotry and the more general warning against folly personified as a woman. Bearing in mind the teaching in the early "Church Constitutions" the fact namely that under the general teaching in regard to demoniac possession certain vices are denominated or designated as "male demons," and certain others as "female demons." In the 8th verse the general reference is to folly personified as a female demon, while the specific reference is to the harlot so possessed with the demon of folly. In the 18th verse we have the parable use again illustrated in the phrase "lay my ear alongside."

In the 14th we learn that the "son" here addressed was a church-member and in a synagogue. The rest of the chapter from the 15th verse to the end is so different from the C. V. or R. V. that the reader is exorted to compare and see for himself. The beautiful and striking figures of speech in the 19th verse are entirely obscured and the most important therein taught entirely lost—namely that the higher love or the divine friendship manifested in gracious acts in Judea (in marriage relation and is best illustrated by it as here shown. Again we have a whole philosophy in epitome in the 22nd and 23rd verses.

The 6th chapter opens with a very practical teaching in the matter of becoming surety for a friend, and this is apt to be one of the first demands of any friendship. Many a man from his own experience can testify to the truth of the wisdom here taught, and will say yes, I lost not only my money, but my friend for whose sake I became surety. The divine teaching is to give if you have to give, but do not bank on uncertain sureties and it is always a harder thing to do to give outright expecting no return except from the Lord to whom you are really lending. This requires faith, and nils into line with "Owe no one anything except to love one another."

The 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th verses are good illustrations of parable teaching in the sense of the general reading of this book—that is teaching by comparison or likening one thing to another. Here male chef and industry exemplified by the ant and female chef and industry by the honey-bee. This distinction is destroyed in the C. V. and R. V. by making the working ant a female and leaving out the honey-bee portion of the parable entirely, which is a part of the 8th verse of the text.

Compare the 9th, 10th and 11th verses with the C. V. and R. V. and see how they have been murdered in the house of their friends and robbed of their beautiful rhetorical drapes. The 12th, 14th and 15th verses are hardly recognizable in the R. V. when compared with the text. The 16th is entirely changed and interpolated you will see if you compare. There is nothing said about six or seven in it. The 17th, 18th or 19th are recognizable in thought but not complete in expression. The law of father and mother is personified in the 22nd verse as a female. This fact is ignored in the R. V. and the neuter "it" is used where "her" and "she" should have been, taking away force and vividness from the picture.

The statement in the 26th verse is so much more significant, read and weigh it.

The important thought in the rest of this chapter is redemption as illustrated in kinds and degrees of sin to which the flesh is constantly subject and as viewed even from the human standpoint of judgment.

The seventh chapter opens with an exhortation to keep the exoteric watch over the divine words of revelation. How carelessly this has been done in the past years of apostasy is what I am trying to point out and a herculean task I find it. The oracular Word we are here told is our true talisman and a familiarity with it under the figure of sisterhood and true thoughtfulness is our best protection from every temptation and the wiles of the adversary.

Read and compare the balance of the chapter with the C. V. and R. V. I do not think this translation will loose anything by the comparison, and I know the reader will get some information at least that is not in either of the others.

To the Brethren and Sisters of the Abrahamic Faith in Iowa:

We are glad to be able to announce that Brother J. Wilson of Chicago, Brother D. M. Hadler of Muscatine, Iowa, and Brother Geo. Moyer of Clarksville, Iowa, and others have promised to be with us this year at our Annual Conference at Marshalltown. Remember the date August 19 to 29. It is needless to say that there is a feast of fat things in store for all who will make it a point to attend. Resolve at once to come and help advance the cause in Iowa.

O. J. Adams.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

Last Saturday July 31st, I had the pleasure of immersing into the all-saving name of Jesus five willing souls, four married ladies and one young lady, two of the daughters of Bro. and Sister A. J. Kever, two others were daughters of Bro. and Sister John Pruitt, the other a granddaughter of Sister Harriet Burgett, whose obituary appeared in our paper a few weeks ago; thus the ranks are being filled. To God be all the praise.

Your Brother in Christ,

Obituary.

Died at her home near Circleville, Ind., Sister Sallie McLelland. She was born June 7th, 1814, died July 30th, 1897; aged 83 years, one month and 23 days. She was married to Alvin McLelland February 7th, 1833. There were born to them five sons and four daughters, of whom four sons and two daughters survive to mourn the loss of a dear good mother. To know her was to love and respect her, for she was good and kind to all. She used to be like a mother to me when I would come with Pa to his meetings. When we came to this State to live it so happened that we got a farm near hers, and I have so often visited her during her sickness. So many times last winter we would think she could not be with us long, but she would improve, and quite recently we had begun to hope that she would soon be able to visit us. Her house was always open to welcome whoever would come and was a home for the preachers when there was meeting near. My father, J. S. Hatch, preached her funeral to a large audience. After which she was laid beside her husband who died July 13, 1888. An order of the household of faith has passed away; the ranks are being thinned. We pray that the King in his beauty may come and put an end to death and all sorrow.

Your Sister,
Azubah M. Hatch Simmons.

Elijn C. Byers was born in the State of Maryland, Aug. 4, 1851, and died at his home in Warren Co., Ind., July 29, 1897, aged 66 years, 11 months and 29 days. Brother Byers was a man of unquestionable character,—honest and upright in his business transactions, ever holding honor and moral obligation above any legal responsibility. From the time of the organization of the Pleasant View Church of God, some twenty years ago, he was one of its main stays and substantial supporters. He was an intelligent believer of the gospel, interesting and pleasant in conversation, charitable and progressive. During the past few years he was afflicted with rheumatism, and was unable to attend service of the church, some six miles from his home, regularly, but this had no effect upon his faith in the gospel, he supported and contended earnestly for it unto the end. Of his immediate family he leaves a wife and one son, together with other relatives, brethren and neighbors, who mourn the loss of one highly valued and esteemed in each and every department of society in which he moved. A large procession followed him to the beautiful cemetery at West Lebanon, where he was tenderly laid to rest in the silent chamber of the dead, to await the coming of the Master whom he had served as a faithful soldier. In harmony with his idea a short funeral service was conducted at his grave by the writer.

Constantinople, Aug. 5.—The Turkish government officials are now manifesting a desire to expedite the settlement of the peace negotiations owing to the straitened state of finances, rendering it impossible under the present circumstances to contract a new loan because of the unhealthy condition of the troops in Thessaly, where many of the soldiers are dying, and for political reasons. The attitude of Bulgaria, Servia, and Montenegro is regarded as threatening.

London, Aug. 7.—The Athens correspondent of the Daily Telegraph asserts that the frontier line upon which the powers have agreed gives the Turks possession of the height situated on the right bank of the River Salambria, west of Canitza, and also of the defiles of Kalmakas Nerlal, thus rendering the defense of Larissa and the Salambria valley forever impossible to the Greeks. The correspondent says that this line places Greece completely at the mercy of Turkey.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says the French cruiser Iduois has been ordered to Crete from Toulon and will start at once. The cruiser Perbin is preparing to follow.

London, Aug. 7.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Tabriz, North Persia, capital of the Province of Azerbaijan, says that serious trouble has broken out on the Turko-Persian frontier, and that both governments have dispatched troops and guns to the scene of difficulty.

Assassination of Spain's Premier.

The assassination of Senor Antonio Canovas del Castillo, the Premier of Spain, has profoundly shocked the civilized world. While sojourning at Santa Agueda, away from the nation's capital and enjoying the baths and the partial relaxation from the exacting duties of his official position, he was shot down in cold blood by a deliberate murderer who had tracked his victim to the place where the crime could be perpetrated with more certainty of success. Like President Carnot of France, the distinguished Spaniard fell before an alien and an Italian. The assassin admits that he is an Anarchist and asserts that he killed Canovas to avenge the Anarchists who were executed for the bomb-throwing at Barcelona. He professes no personal antagonism to the man he killed except as a representative of a rule of oppression. The burden of evidence is in favor of the theory that the murderer acted practically for himself, and not as the agent of any organized society.

The assassin is a typical Anarchist who has suffered already various punishments for his zeal in advancing what he termed the cause. He had fed ravenously on anarchistic ideas for months until he had been worked up to a point of deadly antagonism to every form of governmental power. His crime undoubtedly represents chiefly his personal murderous instinct, nurtured by his anarchist environment, but not abetted in any formal manner by any anarchistic organization.

The important national problems that have come up recently in Spain for solution have naturally brought the name of the Premier frequently before the public. Americans, who care little about the internal affairs of Spain or the parties which contend for supremacy in that country, knew Canovas chiefly in connection with Cuba—as the head and front of the cruel and odious policy which has been pursued toward the island. He called it an attempt to put down rebellion and maintain the integrity of the national domain. Americans saw in it only an attempt to deprive the oldest of Americans of their natural right to freedom.

But that part of Canovas' career with which Americans were less familiar was creditable to him, even when viewed from the American standpoint, which differs materially from that of Spaniards.

In many respects the Spanish leader was a remarkable man. His early inclinations were all toward a literary career, but the swift moving politics of the time drew him out into public life. His services to his country were continuous and constantly growing in importance up to 1868, when, at the time of the revolution, he was exiled for his defense of the policy of blending liberal ideas with the constitutional monarchy. And yet, on his return from exile and in the face of a triumphant revolution, he "hoisted the standard of legitimate monarchy in the full constituent assembly," and on this act of intrepid loyalty rests his greatest fame. He became at once the director of the fortunes of the Alfonsist party, and when Alfonso XII. was proclaimed King on Dec. 31, 1874, Canovas was made President of the Council and Chief of the Cabinet. He has been at the head of the Cabinet ever since, with brief intermissions caused by political upheavals.

Although so active in politics, he never fully renounced his literary activities and made many contributions to the literature of his country. His death leaves a void in the Conservative forces of Spain which from present appearances must remain unfilled for some time.—Tribune.

Infidelity.

A refined and subtle infidelity has poisoned our literature and our education. It lurks too often under the attractive guise of pleasant tales and novels, or it is published under the form of so-called learned "Essays and Reviews." It hides itself with duplicity under the prophet's mantle, and it is given forth, instead of the oracles of God, from the professor's chair and from too many of our pulpits. Our universities and our public schools are infected with it; and the men who have sworn at their ordination to "banish and drive away all erroneous and strange doctrine contrary to God's Word," are now corrupters of youth, their guides in the path of irreligion and the tenders of infidel

Hence the hollow condition of things all over Christendom, social and political, and morals are all broken together. Infidelity and unbelief are the parents of disintegration, of dislocation, and of disorganization, and of disorder; they corrode the cement which binds society together. Where there is no religion, there is no bond of union. Nations and communities which are leavened with infidelity are like timber that is worm-eaten, or like walls and battlements without mortar, ready to fall to pieces at any moment.

The Truth of God.

It is indeed interesting to contemplate the various methods employed by the Divine Father, in communicating his word and purposes to man. We have only to examine the Mosaic, Prophetic and Christian Scriptures to learn how wonderfully this great truth has been exemplified.

God has spoken to man through all the senses. His truth has been seen in symbols; heard in songs, prayers and earnest pleadings; tasted in the bread and water of life; revealed in the fragrant incense upon the golden altar, and felt in all pure hearts by the indwelling spirit of love and faith.

The truth has been written on parchments, in books, and on stones. It has been spoken by men and angels, it has been proclaimed from the altar and the throne, from the valley and the mountains, from temples and from prisons. The sun, the moon, and the stars have been clothed as symbols of its glory and beauty. Clouds have borne it on their wings; rivers and seas have lifted up their voices in its praise. The children of the needy have talked of its goodness, and kings have won the sceptre by its power. It is written in blood upon the cross, and will shine victorious upon the crown.

Good Rules.

1. Never put off till to-morrow what can be done to-day.
2. Never trouble others to do what you can do yourself.
3. Never spend your money before you have it.
4. Never buy what you do not want because it is cheap.
5. Pride costs as much as hunger, thirst, and cold.
6. We never repent of eating too little.
7. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.
8. How much pain those evils cost us that never happen.
9. Take things by their smooth handle.
10. When angry, always count ten before you speak.

Our comforts are doubly sweet when we can see them coming from the hand of God.

Announcement.

The twelfth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held in the park at Cambridge, Nebraska, beginning on Friday, Aug. 20th, and holding over ten days. We earnestly hope that this will be the largest and the best meeting ever held. Let us one and all work for this end; and let us make up our minds that, if we possibly can, we will attend this meeting, and we will try to get others to attend. Come with a desire to work for the Master and to receive his blessing; and we feel sure that you will not have come in vain. Before the Conference, each church in the State is requested to meet and vote for the persons whom they wish to have fill the offices of President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, Evangelist, and Assistant Evangelist for the coming year; and to send the votes to the Secretary by the 16th of August. Please do not neglect this as we wish for the votes of all. Once more requesting you to come and spend ten days with those of like precious faith, in the service of the Master, I am your Sister in Christ.

REXA M. GORDON, Sec.

Editor Restitution:

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith in Iowa will convene at Marshalltown, Aug. 19, and continue over Sunday, Aug. 20. Brothers and sisters of the one faith, we once more appeal to you to come and enjoy a short season, talking over the things concerning the kingdom of God. Oh, we do need your help this year as never before. There are so many things on which we should counsel together. To advance the cause in the State begin at once to arrange for this meeting. Marshalltown is situated at the junction of the C. N. W. and the C. G. and W. and Iowa Central railways and is easily reached from all parts of the State. May God give you a desire to attend this meeting and we hope for the largest attendance we ever had.

O. J. ALLARD, Sec.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

Our gospel tent will be spread at Sycamore Springs, Kan., on Sunday, August 29th, and continue two weeks or more as the interest may require. It is a farming locality and this date is chosen to suit the farmers. Let all who have them bring living or camping tents. Tents can be rented for the occasion of C. J. Baker, Kansas City, Mo. All desiring to rent tents can do so through me. Bring your own bedding and sleep in the large tent if you prefer. Hoping for a joyful and profitable season I remain faithfully your Brother waiting for the King,

J. F. WILCOX.

Editor Restitution:

To all who will attend the tent meeting at Sycamore Springs, Kan., Aug. 29th to Sept. 13. I have received from C. J. Baker, at Kansas City, prices for the rent of tents and cots for the occasion by which I can furnish to all who desire them, delivered on the ground at the following rates.

Tents 9½x12, 3 feet walls,	$1.50
Tents 12x14, 3½ feet walls,	2.00
Cots for one person, each	.50

Bring your own bedding and dishes, food can be procured on the grounds. By joining together and running a common table your living will cost you less than at home. All who decide to come will please write me not later than the middle of August so I can order tents in time. Be sure to state size of tent wanted and number of cots. Direct all letters to St. Joe, Mo., from which point they will be forwarded to me as I direct.

J. F. WILCOX.

Tract Fund.

We the undersigned, realizing that the distributing of tracts is a good way to spread the truth, and that the time is short in which we can work for the Master, do hereby agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of raising a fund to be used in supplying tracts to those who will distribute them free.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts, get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Notice.

WE, our friends please remember that we do not have the books and tracts at this office that are advertized by Brother Joblin, or Brother Wiley Jones. Do not send to this office for them, but send to their address as given in the advertisement. This will save both trouble and delay. PLEASE REMEMBER.

Kansas and Missouri Tent Fund.

We the undersigned agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing a tent to be used in evangelizing in the States of Kansas and Missouri. Subscriptions and pledges may be sent to THE RESTITUTION or direct to the Chairman of the Committee, Joseph Shellenberger, Mound City, Mo.

Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism, by the late Mrs. T. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. 10 cents each. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Olcott Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS AND THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 96 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Hell and kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

OF ALL THINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. This lecture is said to be the one that the Coming Nation will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 36 pages; price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

A PARADOXIC BATTLE-FIELD, OR ISRAEL'S WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus question. 10 cents a copy.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those scrutinizing for truth. 16 pages 5 cents each.

Necessity of Baptism. A 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stevenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Bible Plan of Salvation. A 4-page tract telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. 2 cts each or 15 cts per dozen.

An open Letter to J. A. Conant. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Brother Daniel Rearick and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1895. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Letter to Dr. Talmage. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Sister Abbie M. Howard to Dr. Talmage and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1895. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Modern Events in the Light of Prophecy.—This is the sermon preached by H. V. Reed at Antioch, which has since been printed in tract form, and may be had at this office for five cents each, or 30 copies for $1.00.

Passages Supposed to Teach Consciousness after Death, by W. H. Wilson, which shows that eternal life is conditional and not inherited. 3 cents each, or 25 cents a dozen.

Where Do the Dead Sleep. These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Hades. A Bible account of this place with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

Death Compared to a Sleep. This represents death as a sleep and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

The Wicked Dead and Plain Truths. The two combined. 2 pages ten copies for 10 cents

The Judgment Morning.

I dreamed that the great Judgment morning
Had dawned, and the trumpet had blown,
I dreamed that all people were gathered
To Judgment before the white throne
From the throne came a bright shining angel
Who stood on the land and the sea,
And swore, with his hand raised to heaven
That time, no longer should be.

Chorus.—
Then oh! what a weeping and wailing,
As the lost were told of their doom,
They cried, for the rocks and the mountains,
To hide them from him on the throne.

The rich man was there, but his money
Had melted and vanished away,
A pauper, he stands in the Judgment
His debts are too heavy to pay.
The great man was there, but his greatness
When death came, was all left behind;
And the angel who opened the record,
No trace of his greatness could find.

The widow was there and the orphan,
God heard and remembered their cries;
No sorrow for them now is yet,
God wiped all tears from their eyes.
The gambler was there, and the drunkard
And the man who had sold him the drink
With people who granted the license,
There was weeping and gnashing of teeth.

The moral man came to the Judgment,
But his self-righteousness would not do;
The man who had not obeyed Jesus,
But trusted in self, was lost too.
With the people who put off salvation,
Saying, "Not to-night, I'll obey by-and-by."
No time now to think of the Savior,
But at last they had found time to die.

THE WORLD'S COMING KING

"The Kingdom of heaven is likened unto a nobleman who went into a far country to receive for himself a Kingdom, and to return."

NUMBER 4.

Social Signs of the "Last Days."

"When ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." Luke xxi. 31.

When John commenced his proclamation he announced that the kingdom of heaven was at hand. Christ and the apostles also followed with the same declaration; but at the conclusion of the Gentile times, when all the great events mentioned in the prophecy should have occurred, he adds the emphatic language of our text. "The kingdom of God is nigh at hand." The period between the "kingdom at hand" and the "kingdom nigh at hand," covers the whole duration of the tribulation, the downfall of Jerusalem, the scattering of the Jews, the spread of the gospel among the nations, the continuous war among the nations, down to the period when the tribulation shall end and Jerusalem shall cease to be trodden down of the Gentiles.

That we are living at the time when it can be said that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand, there can be no question. The events now occurring are so manifold and distinctive as to leave no question but what they refer to those things spoken by the prophets and by Jesus, the Nazarene. Certain things are spoken of which are to take place in the last days, and the coming of Messiah is to be the conclusion of a series of events thus named.

DENIAL OF HIS COMING.

We are assured by the Apostle Peter that in the last days men shall cease to recognize the Word of prophecy and will repudiate all promises pertaining to his coming. This language is distinctive and describes unmistakably the attitude of certain religious teachers of our own times that we give the Apostle's own words: "Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying where is the promise of his coming? For since the fathers fell asleep all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation." 2 Pet. iii. 3, 4.

The time designated in this prophecy is the "last days." The fact is clearly inferred that some have been relying upon the promise of his coming, and the apparent delay of his advent has caused many to ask the question. "Where is the promise of his coming?" As much as to say that the promise of his coming has proved a failure, and the ones thus indicated are not only familiar with the teaching of the Book, but have become skeptical in regard to its plainest and simplest promises.

The Apostle immediately assures us: "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but it is long-suffering to usward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance." vs. 9.

The reason for the apparent delay of his coming is here plainly stated and is based upon the mercy and goodness of God rather than upon any failure of the promises.

"AS IT WAS IN THE DAYS OF NOAH."

Instead of the world becoming universally Christianized, it would seem that there is to be a general state of disorganized disbelief similar to that which preceded the deluge. This point is clearly stated by our Lord in his memorable prophecy as recorded by Matthew: "But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be." Matt. xxiv. 37–39.

It is stated that before the flood, "The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence. Gen. vi. 11.

This general wickedness obtained and men disbelieved the things spoken by Noah who proclaimed the impending destruction for one hundred and twenty years previous to the final overthrow of wickedness. We are assured by the Master that thus it shall be in the day when the Son of Man is revealed. Surely there is no possible prospect of the world's conversion previous to his coming in the light of statements so emphatic as these predictions by our Lord.

THE LAST DAYS CHARACTERIZED AS "PERILOUS TIMES."

Instead of the world being brought to a full recognition of the gospel of Christ in the conclusion of these days, we are assured by the Apostle that the very opposite of things will obtain, that there will be a great declension from the faith of the gospel and that men will become thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the world and will have lost sight of the fundamental principles of personal honor and will be in all respects brokers of covenants, boastful and lawless. A more graphic picture could not be drawn of the times than is given by the Apostle Paul in these words: "This know also that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce-breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than of God; having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof: from such turn away." 2 Tim. iii. 1-5.

There are here enumerated eighteen distinct and separate passions which corrupt human character, all of which show that instead of men having become reconciled to the fundamental principles of truth and goodness, they are subservient to every evil passion and conformed to every system that stands opposed to the law of faith as illustrated in the life and teachings of the Nazarene.

Whoever will compare the state of the so-called Christian world, with the description here given by the Apostle of the "last days," will readily discover a complete fulfilment of this most graphic prophecy in our times. The men are boastful, full of self-conceit, and do openly blaspheme the Divine Father and his Word; that all manner of intrigue and deception is practiced by those in high places and in all departments of human society; that there is a fierce and constant struggle for place and honor; that men hesitate not to use every artifice to gain position, and are utterly indifferent as to the welfare of others; that they are without natural affection, the true fraternal spirit having become supplanted by selfishness and all manner of greed, these seem to be the characteristics of our times. Truly no one can look upon the present condition of things and believe that the world is growing better. Knowledge may have increased; many of the problems connected with science and the operations of nature may have been solved, but the increase of crime in all departments of society is an admitted feature. Socialism, anarchy, monopoly, indifference, political corruption and bribery, conspiracies, embezzlements; all these and many more that might be mentioned indicate clearly that the social system is permeated with the forces of destruction.

That there are many strong efforts being made to reform the world cannot be questioned; that they do good in many ways is freely admitted, but the great mass of men are untouched by the social reforms and when we look at the reformers themselves we see place-hunters and unscrupulous intriguers among their acknowledged leaders, and hypocrisy is manifested in the various reformers as much as in the world outside. It may be more covert and polite, but the spirit of the times has penetrated all social systems and they reflect the same evils that exist in the world outside. In fact it is to this particular class that Paul refers: "having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof, from such turn away."

DEMONOLOGY.

Another characteristic of the last days given by the Apostle is that of Demonology, or seeking knowledge from supposed spiritual agencies that are accepted as teachers. Men turn to the various systems of demonology and exalt human beings as the mediums of spiritual communications and through them obtain knowledge from the spirit world without admitting the authority and sufficiency of the gospel of Christ.

This feature of the last days was to become so marked that cognizance of it was taken by the prophet in Spirit as recorded in Timothy: "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils (demons); speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron; forbidding to marry and commanding to abstain from meats, which God hath created to be received with thanksgiving of them which believe and know the truth." 1 Tim. iv. 1-3.

"And when they shall say unto you, Seek unto them that have familiar spirits, and unto wizards that peep and that mutter: should not a people seek unto their God? For the living to the dead? To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this Word, it is because there is no light in them." Isa. viii. 19, 20.

We have soothsayers, astrologers, clairvoyants, writing mediums and a multitude of other forms of spirit communications which indicates clearly that the world is now seeking to solve the problems of the present and future life, not by means of the revelation of God but by the agency of those who claim to have entered into special covenant with the spirits of the departed who are willing to dispense the knowledge thus acquired for money. This is strictly characteristic of our age, and the Apostle has pointed it out with such exactitude as to leave no doubt that he referred to this particular condition of society in the last days.

In our time apostates are indeed few, but the offspring of the apostacy can be counted by the million. Before a man can depart from the truth he must know it, but after he has once turned away from the gospel, he can transmit his perverse teaching to coming generations and while they would not be the legitimate children of the Apostacy, they could hardly be styled apostates. But the children are like their fathers, and in looking over the names and denominations of our day it is not difficult to identify the progeny of those whom both Peter and Jude condemn.

"God, the Son, the second person in the trinity" is not the Jesus preached by the apostles—in fact we are justified in affirming that it is denying the Anointed Son of God and therefore denying God, the Father of the Son. The Apostle makes this charge of denying both the Father and Son against those whom he styles the "ungodly." They were not ungodly, nor were they infidels in the popular sense of the present time. They were very religious, and additions to build up the Church, and get to themselves a name in the earth,—they were prosperous and doubtless said like their offspring of modern times, See, how God's blessing attends us in the great work we are doing. In course of time—they multiplied their teachers—trained, and educated men, in every way qualified to captivate the multitude, and they did it. Whereas unconscious, or even approximately cognizant of the evil consequences that has resulted from this forbidden departure from the gospel? Moreover who can say in the light of the testimony that their shameful corruption—their spiritual debauchery, and heroine lewdness that even to this day defiles almost every channel of literature, will not receive its just punishment? Is it a light thing to pervert the gospel, and in turn deceive others who are seeking, but not able of themselves to find the strait gate? If the reader will compare Jude with 2 Peter ii. he will see not only harmony of thought but such a striking resemblance in language and phraseology that had they written their epistles anonymously we would infer that both emanated from the same pen. It is difficult to see how an intelligent and earnest reader can compare the two and not discern that the phrase "to whom the mist of darkness is reserved for the age" is but another form of expressing what Daniel terms the "shame and contempt of the age," or as the same apostle puts it in different words "the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." How can we reconcile this testimony with the assumption that there is no awaking from death's slumber of the ungodly? It would seem that all the cunning ingenuity of textual critics would be unable to overcome sound judgment and reason in considering so much testimony bearing upon one subject. But this is not all, in almost every conceivable form of language the certainty of future retribution is either implied or expressed, and under the loads of many warnings and admonitions.

RESURRECTION OF JUST AND UNJUST SIMULTANEOUS.

The uniformity of Bible teaching upon this aspect of the subject is so remarkable that it is difficult to see how it could escape the reader's attention. Nevertheless most persons cherish the conviction that the resurrection of the two classes are separated as to time by at least a thousand years. The reason or evidence offered to sustain this view instead of convincing my mind would make doubly doubt its soundness. There is only one text offered as proof, and one witness is not enough, even in the absence of contradictory testimony. It is unwise,—even dangerous to accept of one text to settle a question of doctrine—and when only one is adduced as proof it is safe to reject the theory built upon it. It is a best principle that at least two witnesses are necessary to convict, and we cannot afford to overlook this fact in all matters of faith and practice. The Lord Jesus in all his teachings represents both just and unjust as being present on his coming—there is not to my knowledge one statement to the contrary in all that he says upon the question.

All the parables illustrative of the overthrow of unbelievers, are in complete harmony with his plainest statements. Take for example the parable of the Nobleman taking his journey into a far country, on his return call to his presence all his servants, good and bad, and every man is rewarded according to his works. The parable of the Marriage Supper and its invited guests, shows very conspicuously the presence of him not attired in the wedding garment. In view of this fact, the blessing promised to him that "keepeth his garment is not only appropriate, but gives a note of warning as to impending shame that will fall upon him who appears at the marriage banquet morally naked. It is doubtless fit and wise, that all who have been favored with divine goodness and have come under law to God should appear before him at one and the same time. All are under trial for the same purpose—all cherish a common faith and hope, and are responsible to him who has entrusted them with his goods during the time of his absence, commanded to "occupy till I come." After his departure he sends a message of encouragement to his servants,—saying. "Behold I come quickly and my reward is with me to give every man as his work shall be," and in the same message he repeatedly warns the slothful, and disobedient of his open displeasure against all who shall be found unworthy of their high calling and trust. The fact that some have fallen asleep before his return does not change their relationship to him who is both Lord of the living and dead.

In the parable of the wheat and tares, the same thought is clearly expressed—both grow together until the harvest,—then separation follows, not before, nor after. Also, in the parable of the net cast into the sea,—it gathers fish both good and bad, and both are drawn to shore together, and the work of separating the good from the bad proceeds. The gospel net is now submerged in the sea of nations and no man can undertake to forecast the disclosures that will be made manifest when that net shall land its contents upon the shore of a coming day.

Does the Resurrection Effect Our Bodies?

This is a subject that is plainly taught in God's holy Word, and yet, how wrongly it is understood. It does seem almost impossible that the Bible could be misunderstood as it is, but the preachers of the so-called Orthodox churches of the day teach God's Word in such a way that the hearers of the popular preaching are blinded to the truth by taking the preacher's word for it and not investigating for themselves, and of course come to the conclusion that their bodies will not be raised, because, if the spirit goes to God at death and remains forever with God in glory they they have no more use for the bodies. Let us examine what such a conclusion brings us to. First, why is there a resurrection spoken of or a judgment day mentioned in God's Holy Word? Does he not mean what he says? We will examine some passages upon this subject. Turn with me to Rom. viii. 11, "But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his spirit that dwelleth in you." Here the bodies are spoken of 21 verse. "Because the creation itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God." 1st Cor. xv. 35, "But some man will say how are the dead raised up and with what body do they come?" 44 verse, "It is sown a natural body it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body." 51st verse, "Behold, I will show you a mystery, we shall not all sleep but we shall all be changed." 53rd verse, "For this corruptible must put on incorruption and the mortal must put on immortality." This surely is the body that is mortal. Phil. iii 20, "For our conversation is in heaven from whence also we look for the Savior the Lord Jesus Christ." 21st verse, "Who shall change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself." 1st John iii. 2, "Beloved now are we the sons of God and it doth not yet appear what we shall be but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him for we shall see him as he is." Rev. xx. 6, "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ and shall reign with him a thousand years." Psalm xvii. 15, "As for me I will behold thy face in righteousness I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." Job xix. 25, "For I know that my Redeemer liveth and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth." 26th verse, "And though my skin worms destroy this body yet in my flesh shall I see God." 27th verse, "Whom I shall see for myself and mine eyes shall behold and not another, "Though my rein be consumed within me." Now, why in all these passages do we not find something about the immortal soul going to heaven at death, and coming back to the bodies at the resurrection to be judged? Oh that the brethren would sound out the true gospel loud and long, that the number would be converted to the truth to make up the bride that Jesus will come, and begin to restore all things back again as God made them good and very good. Then all sorrow, sickness, death, earthquakes, wars, and all kinds of destruction will cease to an end, and love, peace and contentment will reign. I ask an interest in the prayers of the dear ones.

We cannot get along without THE RESTITUTION. We are watching anxiously the movement in the East, for we are very anxious that things speedily come to pass that will bring our dear Lord back to the earth.

According to an official estimate made in the Treasury department, the present population of the United States slightly exceeds 77,000,000. [It is not to exceed 72 millions.] This indicates an annual increase of more than 2,000,000 since the last federal census was taken in 1890, when the total population of the country was found to be more than 62,000,000. We are now within three years of another federal census, at which, it is reasonable to anticipate, the total population of the United States will exceed 80,000,000. [Call it 76 millions and be satisfied.]

Out of Finland the only form of missionary work permitted in Russia is the spread of the Bible, and that is by no means little, for the British and Foreign Bible Society sends to Russia one-seventh of its total output. As the Russian Church has never committed the sin of Rome in forbidding the Word, but has approved its circulation, the government provides free transport for the books and those engaged in selling them on all the railways, and in other ways affords facilities unknown in England.

A Christian Cycle Club has been formed in New York, with the following pledge: "I promise that I will not use the bicycle on Sundays to attend meets, runs, or races, nor for mere pleasure riding, nor in such a way as to interfere with public quiet, personal rest, or Divine worship.

"The Psalter may be regarded as the heart's echo to the speech of God: the manifold music of its windswept strings, as God's breath sweeps across them."

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 25, 1897. NUMBER 32.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and remission in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, and a holy life essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

A. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND., AUGUST 25, 1897.

"It is easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows on like a song,
But the man worth while is the man who will smile
When everything goes dead wrong;
For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it always comes with years;
And the smile that is worth the praise of earth,
Is the smile that shines through tears."

BROTHER H. V. Reed preached in Plymouth last Sunday, both morning and evening. The house was filled at each service, and both sermons were closely listened to by those present. Brother Reed expects to attend the meeting held in Argos, beginning on September 10th.

Those who deny Moses' writings deny the prophets,—deny Christ himself, and deny the apostles. To deny Moses' writings is to say history has no meaning, and God no being. They are all one together as warp and woof in one fabric. It is less difficult to believe the Bible is true in all its parts than disbelieve any section of it. It is like the human frame fearfully and wonderfully put together. Destroy one part and you disturb the whole.

The Question Drawer.

For M. H.—"The angel's food referred to in Psalm lxxviii. 25, where it is also called the "corn of heaven," was the manna which was rained down upon Israel in the wilderness; and the words employed seem to imply that angels eat, as well as men. We know they have partaken of human hospitality, as in the case when Abraham entertained three of them with fresh-cooked calf, and fresh-baked cakes and butter and milk. see Gen. xviii. In addition to this, we know that those who are to be made their equals in the possession of immortality, will eat and drink again at the table of their immortal head in the kingdom of God. We know also that Christ partook of food during the forty days that he remained with his disciples after his resurrection. Evidently eating is an institution both in the mortal and immortal states; but what is in case of necessity in flesh and blood may be pure luxury in the perfected family of God. Of course there are many things we do not know, but we expect to find out all about them some day.

Our Conferences.

At the present time the State Conference of Iowa is going on, and although we have not heard anything from it, we hope that those who have been anticipating the pleasure of it may be made happy in realization also. THE RESTITUTION has had many faithful friends in Iowa, and may it still be worthy of their friendship. In Indiana the State Conference will begin on Sept. 10th, and continue over Sunday. We hope that many will attend this meeting, and that our State will try and rally to the work as never before. We have done good work in Indiana in days gone by, and why not do more? Especially, let us try to do more evangelistic work. All we need is a united, systematic way of working and money, (which will come if asked for) and we feel sure that God will give the increase. Remember that it is only a loan to the Lord that is asked of us. We have thought much on this subject, and hope that others also have thought about it. The interest manifested in behalf of the truth was never greater than now, and if we have means at hand and neglect or refuse to use them it is God that will estimate the damage done. The Nebraska Conference will be held at the same time as the one in Indiana and we also wish for them a successful meeting. "The Lord is coming." This thought should at all times be the one that lifts us above all vexations and that encourages us to strive on for the crown that is to be given to the overcomers. Let us to the work!

"The Young Lions."

"The Royal celebration in England furnished an opportunity for bringing closer the bonds that bind the Mother country to the great self-governing colonies of Canada, Australia, the Cape, New Zealand, etc. The great military developments and combinations upon the continent of Europe that have taken place in recent years are a menace, not only to Great Britain, but to the interests of the English speaking race all over the world, of which England is the Mother. Under these circumstances England needs the help of the colonies, and the colonies see that their safety lies in defensive union with the Mother country, rather than in becoming detached republics, as was the tendency a few years ago. The Colonial Secretary thought that the Jubilee would afford an opportunity to make much of the Colonies by inviting their premiers to come and take a prominent part in the state functions. Invitation was also given to the colonies to send over a representative contingent of their soldiers for the Jubilee procession. There was banquetings and speech-makings in abundance, in which the burden of the song was —the closer union of all parts of the Empire. This is exactly in the direction indicated in the Word of prophecy. Ezekiel in his picture of the Aggressor in the East, represents her as opposed by "Sheba, Dedan, the Merchants of Tarshish, and all the young lions thereof." Singularly enough Punch published a cartoon during the Jubilee week. It will be remembered that the largest naval display ever seen—over twenty miles of ships, and those but half of the British Navy, Punch depicted an old lion habited as a "Jack Tar," rowing out to the review a boat carrying a group of "young lions" dressed in sailor costume, and with flags bearing the name of the colonies. And the old lion was represented as saying, "Bless you my hearts, I was never so proud of you in all my life."

The Soul.

"The Greek word soul, in all places of its occurrence in the New Testament, is Psuche—usually pronounced Psyche as in psychological, psychologist, psychology, and psyche-glass (i. e., a full length mirror). In the following passages, and many more, it is easy to see that it is used as a synonym for animal life:

"The natural (Greek, soulical) man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God," 1 Cor. ii. 14.

"It is sown a natural body (Greek, soulical) body; it is raised in spiritual body. There is a natural (Greek, soulical) body, and there is a spiritual body. And so it is written, the first man Adam was made a living soul, the last a quickening spirit." 1 Cor. xv. 44.

"That was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural (soulical or animal); and afterwards, (at the resurrection) that which is spiritual." Cor. xv. 46.

Psuchikos (soulical) is rendered sensual, in the following passages, which Young's Lexicon defines to mean animal, sensuous, sensual:"

"These be they who separate themselves, sensual (Greek soulical), not having the Spirit," Jude 19.

"This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual (Greek soulical) and devilish."

In the light of these illustrations, which might be greatly extended, how impossible is it to regard the soul as immortal. To do so is simply preposterous—pre-post-erous, or a having of that first, which ought to be last. So contrary to the Word which says, "that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural," (soulical or animal). On the principles thus illustrated we can understand how the Greeks apply the term psyche to a butterfly; or how it is that we have such terms in our mental philosophy, as psychology, or such words in the dictionary (Collins) as Psyche-glass, signifying a full length mirror, in which the whole human soul can be viewed at once."

Persecution of Jews in Persia.

The Daily Chronicle of London, says: We have information from a correspondent occupying an official position at Teheran, describing the outbreak of a terrible persecution of Jews in Persia. We cannot guarantee the authenticity of the story, but it comes from what appears to be a well informed source.

The writer says:—

Sayid Reyhan Allad, one of the petty Moshtahed of no popularity or distinction, has planned a plot for the extermination of all the Jews in Persia. About fifteen days ago he summoned the Chief Rabbi and informed him that either all the Jews must accept the Mohammedan faith or he will do all he can to oppress and exterminate them should they refuse his offer. All that could be done was done to quiet him, but with no result. He has now formulated the following restrictions to oppress the Jews:—

1. That every Jew must have all the hair of his head cut off.

2. That the Jew must never ride an animal throughout the city or elsewhere.

3. That a Jew is not to wear nizam (a European style of dress).

4. That every Jew must wear a mark upon his clothing so that he may be distinguished from a Mohammedan.

5. That no Jewish woman must put on a veil.

6. That a Jewish woman is not to wear chador or chaghchoor (an outdoor dress which the Persian manners and etiquette expect every woman to wear out doors).

7. That a Jew must not build a house higher than that of a Mohammedan neighbor, and that the entrance to his house must be so peculiarly constructed as to be distinguished from that of a Moslem.

8. That no Jew is to come out of his house on a rainy day.

9. That no Jew is to touch any articles of food.

10. When a Jew dies, any relative who has become converted to Mohammedanism may possess all his property.

11. That any Jew who, having once adopted Islamism, renounces it is to be put to death.

On May 9, 1897, a band of fanatic Moslems attacked the Jewish quarters, pillaged the houses, and dragged every Jew they could put hands on out of his house, brutally beat him, cut off his hair, and put a red patch on his clothes. They even attacked the house of Hacam, a famous Jewish physician, who is much respected among the Moslems. Many other Jews have accepted the offer of Islam to save their lives. The Jews cannot leave their houses, women are outraged, and houses plundered. The fury and religious hatred of Moslems raised by this Molla have reached such a climax that they have several times endeavored to obtain the sanction of the chief Mushtahed (the Pope of the Mohammedan church) for slaughtering all the Jews in one day. They are falsely accusing the Jews of some crime or other every day, and are trying to bring a dead body to the Jewish quarters under the cover of night, in order to be able to accuse the Jews of killing a Moslem; by which means they wish to accomplish their wicked end. The government has been appealed to for protection, and the Jewish quarters have been for the last nine days guarded by soldiers despatched by the authorities. The persecution has grown so terrible that it seems almost beyond the power of the government to protect us. We, helpless and almost hopeless, lying in sackcloth and ashes, cry to heaven for help. The situation is considered so grave in official circles that the Shah has almost almost the idea of going to Europe, and the government has ordered a mark with the word "Mossahih" (a follower of Mosses—a Jew) written on it to be worn by every Jew, to distinguish him from a Moslem. We beseech you, give yourselves no rest till you have by every means in your power made known throughout England our calamity. We appeal to every lover of freedom, to every English man and woman, in the name of humanity, in the name of common brotherhood, and above all, in the name of heaven, to come to the rescue of the small remnant of the despised race before it has altogether perished. We may be all put to death, for no other reason than because we refuse to become Mohammedans, before you receive this letter. But as long as we have breath, we will, fasting and in sackcloth, pray to heaven for help, and knock for assistance at the door of the English with the words of Mordecai upon our lips, "For if thou altogether holdeth thy peace at this time, then shall their enlargement and deliverance arise to Jews from another place."

We look for the outcome of this fearful condition of things to be the exodus of great numbers who will help to build "unwalled villages," in the land covenanted to Abraham and his Seed, the Christ. We regard it as an omin ous sign that the Deliverer will soon come to Zion, and turn away ungodliness from Jacob."

Let us unitedly pray

"Lord save thine Israel,
Restore unto Israel
To their own land;
Let Jacob's seed return,
While scattered now they mourn
Oh! give them soon their own
Beloved land.

"They have been long cast off,
Long been the Gentile's scoff,
Without a home;
Their land by strangers trod,
Their tears below its sod,
Oh! they have felt thy rod
Now bring them home

[illegible]
And on them [illegible]
And he [illegible]
Remember Abraham's Seed,
And in [illegible]
O gracious Lord

"All hail the glorious day,
When through the heavenly way,
He shall come
While they who pierced him, wail;
His promise shall not fail:
Saints, see your Lord prevail:
Great Savior, come.

"Now Zion build again,
Ever thy temple's fane
In glory bright:
The palace city raise,
Where men shall give Him praise,
And nations learn thy ways
By truth's new light."

"Now is the Accepted Time."

If the above language means what it says, then we are not to look thousands of years to the different classes of mankind who have lived and died and returned to their native dust, and who shall up the cup of their iniquity and reaped their wages,—both. Remember, in the Scriptures the death penalty is not qualified, i. e., as "Personal," "Temporal," "Eternal," or "Spiritual. Death primarily, is the antithesis of life,—a total cessation of all the functions, where the organs have not only ceased to act, but have lost the susceptibility of renewed action. Now the question arises, Is God responsible for the coming into being of the vast myriads of people that have come and gone during the past 6000 years? The curse upon the woman on account of disobedience, viz.: "I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception," etc. This may account to some extent for the vast surplus of humanity. When we look at the teaching of the Bibleas a whole we do not find a very high estimate placed upon the natural man. The testimony is, "Behold, the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are accounted as the small dust of the balance;" and in repeating this truth, the prophet says, "All nations before him are as nothing,—and they are counted less than nothing, and vanity." And in the Psalms we read, "Verily every man at his best state, is altogether vanity." And Peter speaks of the righteous as "scarcely saved." These, with many other Scriptures of the same kind, teach that natural or fleshly birth, and which we get from Adam the first, gives us no right to a resurrection life to any but to those who have become worthy of it through faith and obedience or, in other words, have become united to the last Adam,—the second man, the Lord from heaven. He will become the resurrection and the life to all such. By one man (Adam) came death,—so by Christ (the second Adam) came a resurrection of dead ones. Christ is the first fruits of those who sleep—(his followers). "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth into me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and he that liveth (when I come) shall not die to the age." "Because I live ye shall live also." It is a truism that all in Adam die, but it is not true that all in Adam shall be made alive. The first Adam forfeited life through transgression. God has provided another Adam, (Christ) in whom is life. This second Adam (the Life-Giver). We must get into Christ—such will be made alive. "As in Adam all die so in Christ—or all who are in Christ shall be made alive." The distinction must be made between the two classes, viz., "Those who are in Adam the first, and those who are in Adam the second (Christ). The latter only would become eligible to be made alive by a resurrection. Thus the 15th chapter of 1 Cor. is in perfect harmony with itself. The resurrection which that chapter brings to view is the resurrection of those who are Christ's at his coming. In the teaching of Jesus we find the resurrection set forth as a reward in itself: as in the 6th of John we have it four times repeated, viz., "I will raise him up at the last day," showing the resurrection is of a certain class who look to the Son and believe on him. Jesus in his answer to the Sadducees concerning the resurrection: "They who are accounted worthy to attain that age, and the resurrection of the dead can die no more, for they are equal to the angels, for they are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." Let us, then, like Paul, do our utmost—that "If by any means, we may attain to the resurrection from the dead."

"The New Jerusalem. No. 2."

Having received THE RESTITUTION, we proceed to consider Bro. Wilcox's more astounding discoveries as to the identity of Ezekiel's and John's cities. Passing his discovery as to the time when Ezekiel located the city, we will consider our Brother's work in locating and having as he claims located the city. John's city and Ezekiel's being one and the same.

He finds a temple or house separated from the city by a strip of country that is 10,000 measures in width. Conclusion. No temple, no John's City, no temple in Ezekiel's City, the two are one and the same.

In this temple thus separated from the City he finds the throne of the God of Israel. But the throne of God and the Lamb is in the City of John's vision. the throne of God, and of the Lamb shall be in it,—in the City. Rev. xxii. 3.

Our brother finds a river issuing from underneath the threshhold of the house or temple, in which he finds the throne of the God of Israel located: but the river of John's vision proceeds from out the throne of God and the Lamb, in said city.

He reduces the dimensions of John's City to fit the dimensions of Ezekiel's City, and gains an extra river. But thus it is with us all, if we attempt the impossible. From our esteemed Brother's effort for one, I have learned one thing that has grieved me, and as I am an old man he will allow me to tell it. Our beloved Brother has not studied these things as closely as he should to assume the positive mood in which he writes.

A word to brethren all along the line. Be sure you are right, then go ahead. Ezekiel was correct, and John was correct, let us be correct. If brethren were not satisfied as to the location and identity of the city of the city of the great King, we might consider the matter. A city implies a citizenship and a Royal City implies a Royal Citizenship. As the City of the Great King was to be built unto the Lord, so also the citizenship was also to be builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit. As the fallen women or church of John's vision develops into a great city that reigns over the kings of the earth, so the true and loyal woman develops into a holy, a heavenly city, or community that will reign for ages of ages. It is not a new thing under the sun for a citizenship to take the name of the city. Did not Jesus say to the overcomers, "I will write on him the name of my God, and the name of the City of my God, which is New Jerusalem, that comes down out of heaven from my God and my new name." The overcomers developed into an incorporated community. Each unit in the general assembly having the name written upon it, what would be the name of the city, the community, if not the New Jerusalem? Let each of us strive to become a unit in the redeemed crowd that becomes the Bride, the wife of the Lamb. Then we can join in that triumphant song that will be like the sound of many waters and like the voice of mighty thunders saying, the Lord God, the Omnipotent reigns. We may rejoice and give glory to him for the marriage of the Lamb is come and his wife made herself ready. Let each individual get ready, then the Body is ready. Come, said the angel to John, I will show unto thee the Bride, the wife of the Lamb, and he bore me away in spirit to a great and high mountain and shewed me the Holy City, etc.

When we contemplate things that are revealed by the spirit let us get into harmony with the spirit; for the flesh wars against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh.

Excursion to Petoskey and Mackinac Island via Vandalia Line September 1st, 1897.

On September 1st the Vandalia Line will sell excursion tickets to Petoskey and Mackinac Island at a very low rate. Tickets good to return for ten days. This is the only line running through cars from this territory to the resorts of northern Michigan. For full particulars call on nearest Vandalia Line Ticket Agent, or address E. A. Ford, Gen'l Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo. —1t.

The X ray customs inspection is now in full working order in France. Formerly only about one-third of the trunks and parcels were examined, but now all are inspected. The shadow on the screen in railway stations enables the examination to be far more rapid than the old method. Cigars, cigarettes, and other contraband rolled in clothing are easily discovered.

Obituary.

Died at her home two miles east of Crawfordsville, Ind., Isophena A. Zachary, on the 12th day of July, aged 43 years, 3 months and 6 days. She was the daughter of J. S. Hutch by his second wife, who died when she was but 10 months old, and was under the care of her grandmother until 13 years of age. She believed in the coming of Christ as King to reign over the earth and raise the righteous dead, but never obeyed by baptism. She died after nine years of patient suffering from tumor. She leaves a husband and an adopted boy to mourn her departure. God hasten the day when all, from the least to the greatest, shall be under the righteous law of Jesus, the Christ, and the evil one bound for a thousand years.

EDNAH HATCH.

Beloved wife of Carey Noble, fell asleep in Jesus, August 2, 1897, at the age of nearly seventy-one. She was baptized into the all-saving name of Christ about forty years ago. Since that time she has lived a very consistent Christian life, loved and respected by all,—ever ready to give a reason for her hope, which reached to the coming of the Lord to raise the dead in Christ to immortality, eternal life and to ever be with him. She left an aged companion, three sons and one daughter. May they follow her example, so as to meet her where parting will never come.

Dear Sister, thou art sleeping,
Sweetly resting from all care;
Thou art in the Savior's keeping,
In his kingdom thou shalt share.

Sister, cruel death hath slain thee,
But his reign shall not be long.
For a mightier one doth claim thee,
Christ, to whom thou dost belong.

Oft we miss thy voice of greeting,
But Christ cheers the aching heart
With a promise of a meeting,
Where we never more shall part.

Armenians are Desperate.

Constantinople, Aug. 23.—The confessions of the two Armenians arrested on Saturday, at whose residence bombs were found by the police, are said to have been prompted by the Turkish authorities. The prisoners are alleged to have confessed that they intended to use the bombs at the Russian and German Embassies.

The circular letter received by the Ambassadors of the powers from the Armenian Dashnakzutrun committee, almost identical with the one sent to the Ambassadors in 1896, declaring the Armenians are tired of waiting and are resolved to take action for the redress of their grievances, also appeals to the pity of the nations of Europe not to allow the Armenian nation to be annihilated, asserts that the Turkish promises of reform are a dead letter, and that in this extremity the Armenians are resolved to carry out what was foreshadowed by the occurrences of Aug. 26, 1896.

These steps, they further state, are the preliminaries of April 1, the very idea of which fills them with terror. They declare they will not cease to act until their demands, which are "sanctified by the blood of martyrs," are satisfied.

Constantinople, Aug. 23.—The Ambassadors here recently received simultaneously a circular signed by the Armenian Revolutionary committee complaining that the powers had done nothing for their nation, which was approaching ruin. Continuing, the circular said:

"Europe has remained mute at the tears mothers have shed over their murdered children. We have therefore resolved to establish universal anarchy on the 31st of August, the day the destroyer of our nation ascended the throne. Take measures for the safety of your fellow subjects, whom we do not wish to harm. We are resolved to die rather than to continue our suffering."

Athens, Aug. 23.—A meeting of over 3,000 people on Sunday adopted an address to King George urging him and the government to reject the proposed peace treaty between Greece and Turkey and to resume the hostilities which were interrupted by the truce. The entire press, however, and a great majority of the public of Athens condemn the agitation for a resumption of the war.

Poetry.

One by One.

One by one the moments pass
As a stream in its onward flow,
And one by one the years roll by,
And the seasons come and go.

One by one the swath is cut,
By the sickel sharp and bright,
One by one the roses bloom
In the morning's ruddy light.

One by one God's precious lambs
Will be gathered in the fold,
One by one the gates ajar,
They will enter the City of Gold.

One by one the faithful ones
Silently are laid away,
To await the resurrection,
And the coming, reuniting day.

A Question Answered.

Sister Osborne asks through THE RESTITUTION: "Who were the sons of God, and was Christ with the Father from the beginning?"

To answer both questions in one paper would make the article too long, so at this time I will consider:

"WAS CHRIST WITH THE FATHER FROM THE BEGINNING?"

To this question I might answer, in some sense yes, but in a physical and personal sense, no. There are passages of Scripture when detached from the Bible teaching concerning Christ's origin, life and mission which seem to teach the personal presence of the Christ with the Father before his advent into this world; but when considered in the light of his mission, and other Scriptures of a like character that is spoken with regard to other people, the harmony appears. There are passages which speak of his coming down from heaven (John vi. 33) and that he proceeded and came from the Father (John viii. 42) and had glory with the Father before the world was.

With regard to the fact of his birth, and growth as a child, both in stature and wisdom, he did not differ from any other child, save in that of his paternity, and it is in the matter of his PATERNITY where the secret lies of his heavenly origin, and "proceeding from the Father." In that sense he was with the Father, before his physical existence. And God being the author of his existence, it could not possibly be otherwise than that he came forth and proceeded from his Father. We must certainly all see this, if we allow reason and plain common sense allied with Scripture to govern us.

It staggers reason to believe that a real, literal, tangible personality, could become non-existent, and enter life again through the process of natural birth, and at the same time be the identical personality which previously existed. No one can believe that, no matter how much they profess to. His birth was perfectly natural, save that the process of nature was set in action by the miraculous power of the Holy Spirit, instead of the fleshly will. If his existence had been the result of the will of the flesh on both the paternal and maternal sides, he would have had a much greater difficulty in overcoming fleshly desires.

If the language from which many do infer a personal existence of Jesus before his birth can be taken in that literal sense, then similar language applied to other people can be taken that way also, and that would be but a fair way of interpreting Scriptures.

See Jer. i. 5: "Before I formed thee in the belly, I knew thee; and before thou comest out of the womb I sanctified thee: and I ordained thee prophet unto the nations." What have we here? God says, that BEFORE Jeremiah was born, "I knew thee," "sanctified thee," "and I ordained thee a prophet." If language as strong as this, had been applied to Jesus, people would have affirmed that it proved a personal existence before his birth and would contend that he could not have been known, sanctified and appointed a prophet, and still be non-existent. But seeing that it was simply Jeremiah, they would interpret it as being only prophetic of what should happen after his birth, and did not prove the pre-existence of Jeremiah.

If it is fair to interpret language like this as applied to Jeremiah, as being simply prophetic, what rule would forbid similar language applied to Jesus, from being prophetic also?

John the Baptist is described as "a man sent from God." Could a man be sent from another person, and still never have been in the presence of the person sending him? With regard to Jesus, our friends would say, no, he could not, but seeing it is only John, they would insist that some other sense must be used.

Again, "Abraham rejoiced to see my day, and he saw it and was glad." What day did he see? We read, "These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off." They saw what was then "afar off." Abraham saw what was "afar off" relating to Christ and rejoiced in it.

Take another instance, with regard to Cyrus, King of Persia, more than one hundred years before he was born, God says: "For Jacob, my servant's sake, and Israel, mine elect, I have even called thee by thy name: I have surnamed thee, though thou hast not known me." Isa. xlv. 4.

How could a person who was then non-existent, thus be addressed by name? You say it was prophetic. True, and why not many such things spoken with regard to Christ, when he also was non-existent, be prophetic also? As in the case of the "Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." Language speaking of pre-existence is not clearer than this, and why are not both on a par?

Again: "He hath chosen us in him, before the foundation of the world." 1 Pet. i. 10. Taken literally, this would prove our pre-existence, as well as that of Christ. Jeremiah and John.

Why are people spoken of as being pre-existent, when at the same time they are in fact non-existent? See Rom. iv. 17: "God who quickeneth the dead and calleth things which be NOT (but will be) as THOUGH THEY WERE." Many things spoken with regard to Christ, are spoken of in that manner. In the present tense, when the future is meant.

But one may say, the passages speaking of his coming from heaven are not prophetic, but statements as to where he came from. He was from heaven in the sense spoken of in the following passage, and in that sense only: "The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee; and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore, also, that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." He is of heavenly origin, the power of the "Highest" is responsible for his existence, and that is from above. It was this heavenly origin which gave him the title of being the Son of God.

Christian people are spoken of as being "born from above," when born of the Spirit, when in fact they were never higher up than this earth.

In what sense was Christ with the Father in the beginning? In John i. 1, we read: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God."

If the Word is "Spirit and life," that Word, Spirit, or creative power did exist in the beginning with God, and in fact was God. God and the spirit are spoken of as being the same, but is also presented to our senses in different ways. Where God's Spirit is manifested, the Father is to be present. Note the following: "Whither shall I go from thy Spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell (grave) behold thou art there; if I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me." Psa. cxxxix. 7-12. God is omnipresent by his Spirit.

In many cases the words Father and Spirit are used interchangeably, as in the following: "The Father gave not his Spirit to him by measure," "God was in Christ, etc." "The Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works." The Father was present in him by his Spirit. Now the "Word," which is "spirit and life," did exist in the beginning, it performed creative work, and that "Word" was Spirit, and the Spirit was God, in the sense that "God was in Christ," and the "Father that dwelleth in me." Now that same Spirit which did creative work in the beginning was God, and was the paternal author of Jesus. "And the Word (which is Spirit) was made flesh and dwelt among us."

"That which is conceived in her (Mary) is of the Holy Ghost." "She was found with child of the Holy Ghost." "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." If the Father and the Spirit are different personalities, and Mary "was found with child of the Holy Ghost," would not Jesus be the Son of the Holy Ghost, in place of being the Son of God? But it says here: "Therefore" (for this reason) "shall be called the Son of God," because the Holy Spirit was the paternal author of his being. Hence, in this case, the Holy Spirit and God are used in the same sense, and not as different personalities. To show that God, and the Spirit are the same personality, see John iv. 24: "God is a spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." 2 Cor. iii. 17: "Now the Lord is that Spirit."

The "Word" that "was made flesh," and dwelt with men has himself become a life-giving Spirit. "The last Adam was made a quickening Spirit." 1 Cor. xv. 45.

There is no evidence that the Jesus, —the "Word made flesh," had any personal existence prior to being "made flesh." The creative power, the author of his being, did exist in the beginning with God, and in that sense, he was of heaven, and came from heaven.

IN THE BEGINNING.

We should also remember, that the Scriptures do speak of the "beginning" of another creation, at which beginning, Christ did personally exist.

"These things saith the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God." Rev iii 14. Read the context, and you will find the creation relates to the New Jerusalem, the crown and throne promised overcomers. In this connection read Col. i. 15, 18: "Who is the image of the invisible God, the first born of every creature." What are we to understand by his being "the first born of every creature?" See verse 18 for answer: "Who is the beginning, the FIRST BORN FROM THE DEAD; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence." He is the very beginning of the new creation, the first man, he is the Father or Creator of the Messianic age. The new and eternal creation is at the present time in the process of formation, under the control and direction of the first born of every creature." He is the Creator of the world—the world, age or ages to come, and not of the material world.

When we read in the Scriptures of the "beginning," and Christ existing at the beginning, we must first ascertain what creation, or beginning is referred to.

The Word of God deals with several worlds, and creations, and to always apply such references to the material world, is error, and leads to erroneous conclusions.

W. H. Wilson.

Will the Preliminary Restoration of the Jews take place before the fall of Constantinople?

I think so; and will give my reasons as briefly as possible.

I think Gog of Ezekiel xxxviii. and xxxix. is the "King of the North" of Dan. xi. 40–45. He is the "King of Sheshack" of Jer. xxv. 26. The antitypical "Babylon" of Jer. l. 44. The "Leviathan," "Serpent" and "Dragon" of Isa. xxvii. and Rev. xx. 1. The "Assyrian" of Isa. xxx. 31. "Idumea" of Isa. xxxiv. 56. The "Spoiler" of Isa. xxxiii. 1.

As "King of the North" he must have control of Armenia and Asia Minor or Syria; as "Sheshach" and "Babylon" he must control the Euphrates River Valley to the Persian Gulf; as "Leviathan and the Dragon" he must have control of or be at the head of the principal pagan powers of the world. Persia, Greece and Italy are also in confederacy with him so that the great image is fully reconstructed with Gog as the head of gold. Now in all these varied and complex characters combined in one, he performs the same deeds and meets with the same Fate.

As Gog he comes out of the North parts and falls upon the Mountains of Israel:—the last of the enemies of Christ, and overthrown by the hand of the Lord Jesus himself. As King of the North he "Plants the tabernacles of his place between the seas in the glorious Holy Mountain, and comes to his end with none to help him."

As "King of Sheshack," he is the last of all the kingdoms of the world to drink of the cup of the Lord's fury and falls to rise no more.

As "Babylon" he "comes up like a lion from the swelling of Jordon," but suddenly runs away from her when the chosen man, the Shepherd appears.

As the "Dragon that old Serpent," he is bound for 1000 years."

As the "Spoiler" he is spoiled; as the "Lamb of Idumea" he is slaughtered; and finally as the head of the reconstructed "Image" he is broken in pieces when all the other kingdoms are ground to powder by the Stone Kingdom.

Thus far, all seems reasonably certain as a careful comparison of the Scriptures quoted will prove; by what means however he will be able to unite the several empires of Eastern and Western Rome, Constantinople and Rome, into a consolidated power and appear simultaneously as the head of gold and the two-horned beast of Rev. the 13th 17th and 19th chapters it is not easy to determine. Nor are we certain that they are one and the same; yet, there is much to suggest this view of which I cannot now speak.

I would now, however, call particular attention to Dan. xi. as upon a correct interpretation of this passage the answer to my question more particularly depends. There is little doubt that Antiochus and the exploits of the Maccabees are described from the 21st to and including the 35th verses of this chapter; but with the 36th verse a new power is brought to light which can be none other than the Mohammedan Turk. Please note the following points of identity.

1. He has no counsellors, takes no advice, but follows the bent of his own will.

2. His mission is to exalt himself.

3. He is a blasphemer.

4. He abandons his previous idolatry and does not worship his father's gods.

5. He treats with contempt all other gods and rulers and puts himself above them all.

6. He pays no attention to the rights, or desire of the female; regarding and treating her as not alone his inferior, but as only created for his use and pleasure.

7. His career is a military one in which he is successful and in it he honors the god of war, who was to his father's a "strange god."

8. He divides the Holy Land into Pashaliks and sells it to the highest bidder for cash.

9. He continues to prosper until the "indignation against the Jews" is accomplished.

10. This brings him down to the "time of the end," when the "King of the South," Mehemit Ali, Pasha of Egypt by his adopted son and general Ibrahim Pasha in 1833 "pushes at him," but dont overthrow him. Now the next step as regards this power is that the "King of the North" comes against him "like a whirlwind," overthrows him completely with a vast army and navy and sweeps to the south and seizes upon Egypt and comes to his end by a supernatural power while attempting to seize upon Jerusalem at the time of the resurrection of the dead.

It will be observed that this "King of the North" has not only Egypt but Abbyssinia and the Soudan under his control, i. e. Ethiopia and Lybia, showing that it is Gog or Russia the antagonist of England.

Now if we are correct it follows that we are not to look for a sudden seizure of Constantinople by Russia as the outcome of this Turco-Grecian war but rather such an adjustment of the matter as shall unite Greece still closer to Russia and at the same time increase the power of Gog in Armenia.

The power that controls the territory of Antiochus Epiphanes when this 40th verse to the end of this 11th chapter of Daniel is fulfilled, is the "King of the North;" and as we have proved that it is Gog that comes against this wicked king—the Turk, and overthrows him, it follows that Russia is to be the "King of the North" before Constantinople falls. But Gog does not come into the land of Israel until after he has gotten possession of Constantinople and that only after Israel shall have been partly restored as a nation before the fall of Constantinople. The natural manner in which this will occur is already foreshadowed by the situation in the East and the trend of events there.

Russia has long been seeking an outlet to the South of the Caspian and but for the opposition of England would doubtless long since have had a port on the Persian Gulf. At the same time for the safety of her Indian Empire England must control both the Suez Canal and the alternative route by mail down the Valley of the Euphrates. She might as well surrender India to the Czar as the road to it; the antagonism between these powers is therefore vital and irreconcilable. England cannot consent to a Russian Port on the Persian Gulf, although Persia and Turkey should both agree to it, nor can Russia allow England to build the long contemplated Railway from Alexandria via Damascus on down the Euphrates to the Gulf. Neither can the Turk permit his possessions to be parcelled out between those scheming and ambitious Powers. But all three can agree to a compromise which will put the glorious land into the possession of a neutral and friendly power. But no such power is in existance and "A nation must be born in a day" to act as peacemaker between them.

Concealing therefore each from the others their secret and ulterior designs the Great Powers will in a peaceable manner and with much apparent rejoicing and good will, resurrect the nation from its sleep of ages, and settle for the time satisfactorily to all the ominous Eastern Question. Thus will find "Open their graves and cause them to come up out of their graves and bring them into the land of Israel." Ezek. xxxvii.

This solution will, in the nature of things only be temporary.

English influence will be predominant in the new nation and the railroad will be built, but by Jewish capital by virtue of a Jewish Firman. Nevertheless, when Gog is prepared and discovers that the new Jewish Kingdom is practically but another English colony and that willingly or unwittingly the Turk has but lent himself to the scheme, and the Lion is by this means many long strides ahead of the Polar Bear, he will swoop down upon Constantinople in great wrath like a whirlwind and secure his long-coveted outlet from the Black Sea. But now that his hand is in, he will not stop at that, but England will lose the Soudan and Egypt many countries will be overthrown, the time of trouble will settle down upon the nations like the horror of an endless night. "The great day of his wrath will have come, and who shall be able to stand?"

But with the final setting of the sun of our boasted civilization in blood, the "day of the Lord" breaks; "The Sun of Righteousness arises with healing in his wings."

"The long dark night of time is past,
And the morn of eternity dawns at last."

May God keep us faithful to the end.

Parables Of Salomoon. Chapter 8.

1. Herald the wisdom that thoughtfulness may hear thee.

2. For upon the high summits is she and between the paths doth she stand.

3. Yea beside the gate-ways of men of influence doth she take her seat, and in the entrance ways doth she sing her hymn.

4. You are I calling, O sons of men, and unto sons of men am I sending forth my voice.

5. Apprehend subtility ye guileless and take it to heart ye unchastened.

6. May ye have hearkened to me; For I shall say things worthy of respect and upright things from my lips shall I furnish.

7. Because my throat will have a care for truth and lying lips are an abomination in my sight.

8. Closely related to righteousness are all the oracular words of my mouth, in no respect crooked or perverse in themselves.

9. All things are open to the sight of those who understand and straight to those who find comprehension.

10. Take chastening and not silver, and comprehension rather than gold of approved value.

11. For better (more efficient) is wisdom than very precious stones and nothing of value is worthy of her.

12. I wisdom pitched the tent of counsel and comprehension, and reflective-thought did I invoke thereupon.

13. Fear of the Lord hateth injustice and pride and contempt and ways of wicked people, and I have hated perverse ways of evil-doers.

14. Mine is counsel and security, mine is thoughtfulness and mine is strength.

15. Through me kings rule as kings, and noble men write righteousness.

16. Through me the great become great and petty rulers through me control a land.

17. I love those who are friendly to me and those who seek me will find me.

18. Wealth and glory are mine and the acquisition of many things and righteousness.

19. My fruit-bearing is better than gold and a precious stone, and my products are better than choice silver.

20. In ways of righteousness I walk and between paths of justification I employ myself.

21. That I may distribute portions to those who love me and fill their treasure-houses with good things. If I should tell you the things that have occurred daily I should remember to number them from the beginning of an animate age.

22. The Lord generated me as a beginning of his ways for his works.

23. Before the animate age he founded me: in authority before he created the earth.

24. And before he created the abysses; before the foundations of the waters came forward;

25. Before the mountains were seated, and before all hills he begetteth me.

26. Before the Lord created countries and meadows and as well as the habited high places of that which is under the heavens.

27. When he was making ready the heavens I was present with him, and when he separated his own throne to be upon the winds:

28. And when he was making the things above the clouds strong, and was placing unfailing fountains for that which is under the heavens.

29. And when he was making strong the foundations of the earth,

30. I was with him fitting up things; I was the one in whom he took joy, and day by day I rejoiced in his face in every period.

31. When he rejoiced in having consummated the inhabited, and rejoiced in the sons of men.

32. Now then, O Son, hear me

33. Omitted in the text.

34. Blessed happy the man who shall hearken unto me, and the man who shall watch to guard my ways, who watcheth at my doors day after day who watcheth to keep within the door-posts of my ways in.

35. For my ways out are exits of life and volition is being made ready from the Lord.

36. But those who sin against me are irreverent to their own souls and those who hate me love death.

CHAPTER 9.

1. Wisdom hath built a house for herself and supported it with seven pillars;

2. She hath slain her own sacrifices; she hath mixed her own wine in a mixing-bowl, and she hath made ready her own table;

3. She hath sent forth her own bond-servants summoning with a high heralding to the mixing-bowl, saying,

4. Let him who is without good sense incline out into me: and to those in want of good sense hath she said,

5. Come, eat of my bread and drink wine which I have mixed for you.

6. Leave off folly that ye may reign as kings for the animate age (forever?) and seek thoughtfulness and restore understanding to uprightness with comprehension.

7. He who chasteneth evil-doers will take dishonor to himself; and he who reproveth the irreverent will blame himself.

8. Do not reprove evil-doers that they may not hate thee: Reprove a wise man and he will love thee.

9. Give a wise man opportunity and he will be wiser: Make known to a justified man and he will add to receive.

10. A beginning of wisdom is fear of the Lord, and an understanding of sacred things is counsel: For the comprehension of law belong to good thought.

11. Yea in this way wilt thou live a long time, and years of thy life will have been added unto thee.

12. O son, if thou becomest wise for thyself, thou wilt be wise for thy neighbors also. But if thou guest away bad thou alone wilt draw evil results. He who taketh his stand upon lies is shepherding the winds and he will chase birds that fly; For he hath left ways of his own vineyard and hath erred as to the axioms of his own husbandry: He is going his way through a waste-place without water and a land ordered with thirst, and is gathering together fruitfulness with his hands.

13. A woman without good sense and overbold hath come to be in want of a morsel of bread. one who doth not fully know shame.

14. She hath seated herself at the doors of her own house, on a stool openly in the public squares.

15. Inviting the passers-by and those who are becoming upright in their ways,

16. Who of you, saith she, is most wanting in good sense? Let him incline out unto me; and his want of good sense I address, saying,

17. Lay hold of hidden bread sweetly and sweet water of theft:

18. And he doth not know that earth-born ones are perishing at her side. And that he meeteth her at the stage of Hades. But do thou run away: Tarry not in the place nor make known thy name to her: For in this wise wilt thou cross over strange water; And do thou withhold thyself from alien water and drink not from an alien fountain. and years of life be added unto thee.

Selections.

In Christ.

The wilderness is nearly traversed, Canaan and Jerusalem are almost without my view; the summits of the everlasting hills are already appearing. What manner of person, then, ought I to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hastening unto the coming of the day of God? I must be consistent and heavenly-minded, so walking worthy of my calling, and setting my affections on things above. For what have I, who have a crown in prospect, a kingdom in reservation, to do with the vanities or pleasures of this present passing world? My eye is always my treasure is in heaven. Shall not my heart be there also? If I am in Christ, I must seek to be like him, and follow him more and more closely as the night is hastening to an end, and the day is soon to break. If I am in sorrow, I shall call to mind that weeping endureth but for a night, joy cometh in the morning. If I am in comfort, I must see that this prosperity which God has given me is making me a better man, and a more self-denying worker for him who loved me and washed me from my sins in his own blood. If I am poor, I shall rejoice that my day of wealth is just at hand. If I am rich, I shall take this gold which my Lord has given me and lay it all at his beloved feet. Mine must be no half discipleship, no service of two masters—no divided heart. The night is far spent, the day is at hand. What remains of this brief life of mine must be given wholly to the Lord.—H. Bonar, D. D.

The Stone Which the Builders Refused.

I have heard a story by some one of the Jewish Rabbis: it is a tale concerning the text: "The stone which the builders refused, the same is become the headstone of the corner."

It is said when Solomon's temple was building all the stones were brought from the quarry ready cut and fashioned, and each block marked for the place it was to occupy. Among the stones was a very curious one; it seemed of no describable shape, and appeared unfit for any portion of the building. They tried it in this wall, then in another, but it could not be accommodated; so, vexed and angry, they threw it away. The temple was so many years building, that the stone became covered with moss, and grass grew around it.

Everybody passing by laughed at the stone: they said Solomon was wise, and doubtless all the other stones were right, but as for that block they might as well send it back to the quarry, for they were quite sure it was meant for nothing. The years rolled on, and the poor stone was despised; the builders constantly refused it. The eventful day came when the temple was to be finished and opened, and the multitude was to see the grand sight. The builders said: "Where is the top stone? There is the pinnacle?" They little thought where the crowning marble was until one said: "Perhaps that stone which the builders refused is meant to be the top stone." They hoisted it to the top, and found it exactly adapted to the place. Loud hosannas made the welkin ring as the stone which the builders refused became the headstone of the corner.

A curious movement is on foot among the Jews in one or two of the provinces of South Russia, which may result in an important religious revival. A number of pious and influential Israelites are establishing associations for the reading and study of the Scriptures, both in the homes of the people and in their public assemblies. Much attention will be devoted to the prophetical books of the Old Testament and to investigate the claims of Christians that Jesus of Nazareth has in his life and work and death been the fulfiller of many utterances of the prophets which have for so long been stumbling-blocks to the Jews.

COMMENCING Sunday June 20, and continuing each Sunday thereafter until further notice the Pennsylvania R. R. will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return from Plymouth for $3.00 the round trip. Tickets are good on train No. 15 leaving Plymouth at 5.20 A. M. and returning on train No. 4 leaving Chicago at 11.30 P. M.

How far that little candle throws his beams! So shines a good deed in a naughty world.

Announcement.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith in Indiana will be held at Argos, Indiana, commencing Friday, 3 P. M., Sept. 10, 1897 and continue over the following Sunday.

This is another privilege we have of meeting again for the purpose of renewing and strengthening our vows to the Master in his glorious cause. We believe the time very near when he shall come to take to himself his bride, the chosen ones, and with them to rule the world in righteousness. Therefore it behooves us to be watchful and prayerful, keeping ourselves always in readiness by the oil upon us as did the wise virgins of the parable, that we be not found sleeping when the midnight cry is heard.

Let all put forth an effort to attend this meeting and work to the end, that in the promotion of the cause we have espoused,

The brethren here extend a hearty welcome to all who desire to attend.

J. F. WILCOX, Pres.
V. C. ROGERS, Sec.

The twelfth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held in the park at Cambridge, Nebraska, beginning on Friday, Sep. 10th, and holding over ten days. We earnestly hope that this will be the largest and the best meeting ever held. Let us come and all work for this end; and let us make up our minds that, if we possibly can, we will attend this meeting, and we will try to get others to attend. Come with a desire to work for the Master and to receive his blessing; and we feel sure that you will not have come in vain. Before the Conference, each church in the State is requested to meet and vote for the persons whom they wish to have fill the offices of President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, Evangelist, and Assistant Evangelist for the coming year; and to send the votes to the Secretary by the 10th of August. Please do not neglect this as we wish for the votes of all. Once more requesting you to come and spend ten days with those of like precious faith, in the service of the Master, I am your Sister in Christ.

RENA M. GORDON, Sec.

Editor Restitution:

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith in Iowa will convene at Marshalltown, Aug. 19, and continue over Sunday, Aug. 29. Brethren and sisters of the one faith, we once more appeal to you to come and enjoy a short season, talking over the things concerning the kingdom of God. Oh, we do need your help this year as never before. There are so many things on which we should counsel together. To advance the cause in the State begin at once to arrange for this meeting. Marshalltown is situated at the junction of the C. N. W. and the C. G. and W. and Iowa Central railways and is easily reached from all parts of the State. May God give you a desire to attend this meeting and we hope for the largest attendance we ever had.

O. J. ALLUM, Sec.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

Our gospel tent will be spread at Sycamore Springs, Kan., on Sunday, August 29th, and continue two weeks or more as the interest may require. It is a farming locality and this date is chosen to suit the farmers. Let all who have them bring living or camping tents. Tents can be rented for the occasion of C. J. Baker, Kansas City, Mo. All desiring to rent tents can do so through me. Bring your own bedding and sleep in the large tent if you prefer. Hoping for a joyful and profitable season I remain faithfully your Brother waiting for the King.

J. F. WILCOX.

Editor Restitution:

To all who will attend the tent meeting at Sycamore Springs, Kan., Aug. 29th to Sept. 13. I have received from C. J. Baker, at Kansas City, prices for the rent of tents and cots for the occasion by which I can furnish to all who desire them, delivered on the ground at the following rates.

Tents 9½x12, 3 feet walls,	$1.50
Tents 12x14, 3½ feet walls,	2.00
Cots for one person, each	.50

Bring your own bedding and dishes. Food can be procured on the grounds. By joining together and running a common table your living will cost you less than at home. All who decide to come will please write me not later than the middle of August so I can order tents in time. Be sure to state size of tent wanted and number of cots. Direct all letters to St. Joe, Mo., from which point they will be forwarded to me as I direct.

J. F. WILCOX.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be address'd to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk; money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to lose! Get your express or bank drafts or letter so that no one can tell by looking at the envelope that there is money in it. Do everything and send safely.

All communications should be made payable to "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve copies of their manuscripts.

Do not send books or papers for sale to us expecting the copy you have sent to be noticed when we have not advertised in that.

We do not bring changes of address of town papers or personal addresses.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters: Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it forever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled: "The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Stranger from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O.

Notice.

WILL our friends please remember that we do not have the books and tracts at this office that are advertised by Brother Joblin, or Brother Wiley Jones. Do not send to this office for them, but send to their address as given in the advertisement. This will save both trouble and delay. PLEASE REMEMBER.

Kansas and Missouri Tent Fund.

We the undersigned agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing a tent to be used in evangelizing in the States of Kansas and Missouri. Subscriptions and pledges may be sent to THE RESTITUTION or direct to the Chairman of the Committee, Joseph Shellenberger, Mound City, Mo.

Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. 10 cents each. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any or the unrighteous? A 160-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrief. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in the subject to get this work by a talented author. Send 10 cents to this office for a copy.

QUESTIONS FOR CHURCHES AND THEIR CARE FOR THE POOR.

Is the subject of a pamphlet of 48 pages by H. W. Bowman containing a sermon on the Eternity of Evil Post Scriptum, Revised Version, and notes. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered on these points. We can supply you for 25 cents a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 pages of 3½ pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive and can be had for 5 cts each or 50 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A tract recently issued by H. A. Read. This clearly sets forth the idea that the Coming Nation will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural promises given. 24 pages 5 cts each or the same 25 cts.

A PARAMOUNT BATTLE-CRY, OR, ARMAGEDDON WARFARE.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A pamphlet in form by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those enquiring or for the 16 pages 5 cents each.

Necessity of Baptism. A 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stetson, and it appeared in a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Bible Plan of Salvation. A 4-page tract telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. 2 cts each or 15 cts per dozen.

An open Letter to J. A. Conant. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Letter to Dr. Talmage. A 4 page tract being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Modern Events in the Light of Prophecy.—This is the sermon preached by H. V. Rose at Antioch, which has since been printed in tract form, and may be had at this office for five cents each, or 30 copies for $1.00.

Passages Supposed to Teach Consciousness after Death, by W. H. Wilson, which shows that eternal life is conditional and not inherited. 3 cents each, or 25 cents a dozen.

Where Do the Dead Sleep. These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Hades. A Bible account of this place with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

Death Compared to a Sleep. This represents death as a sleep and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

The Wicked Dead and Plain Truths. The two combined. 2 pages ten copies for 10 cents.

Poetry.

Retreat.

From every stormy wind that blows,
From every swelling tide of woes,
There is a calm, a sure retreat;
'Tis found beneath the mercy-seat.

There is a place where Jesus sheds
The oil of gladness on our heads,
A place than all beside more sweet;
It is the blood-bought mercy-seat.

There is a scene where spirits blend,
Where friend holds fellowship with friend
Though sundered far by faith they meet
Around one common mercy-seat.

Ah, whither could we flee for aid,
When tempted, desolate, dismayed;
Or how the hosts of sin defeat,
Had suffering saints no mercy-seat!

There, there on eagle wings we soar,
And sin and sense molest no more
And heaven comes down our souls to greet,
While glory crowns the mercy-seat.

NUMBER 5.

"Decline and Wasting Away of the Turkish Power," "Decline of Romanism," and "Jewish Restoration."

POLITICAL INDICATIONS OF APPROACHING CRISIS.

Students of prophecy for the last twenty years have been much interested in the final overthrow of the Turkish power. The reason that this power is especially named in prophecy is because of its connection with Palestine and the Jews. It is to be the last phase of the world's power that is to hold Jerusalem in subjection. The Turkish power has held dominion over Palestine for nearly twelve hundred and sixty years. It took possession of Jerusalem in 634.37 A. D. The Mosque of Omar was placed as the last phase of the abomination of desolation on Mount Moriah in 637 A. D. The latter half of the great week of the seven times of the Gentiles will have run its course in 1897.

The wasting of this power is to take place under the pouring out of the sixth vial as delineated in the apocalypse in the following words: "And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates: and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared.

And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty.

Behold I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked and they see his shame." Rev. xvi. 12-15.

A number of points are suggested by this prophecy:

1st. The vial is poured out upon the "great river Euphrates. This evidently represents the power located upon that river, which is the Turkish government. After the contents of the vial are thus poured out upon this power, the waters of the river are dried up. During the last few years there has been a great deal of wasting away of the Sultan's dominion. Montenegro, Servia, Herzegovina, Greece and Bulgaria—all of these provinces have ceased to become tributary to the Turkish power. The revenues of the Turkish government are growing less each year and the government only exists as an independent power by the permission of the war powers of Europe.

2nd. "That the way of the kings of the east might be prepared." Nothing is more remarkable than the fact that as the Turkish power has wasted the kings of the Orient have been preparing for war. The nations of the east have never made any extensive preparations for war until the western nations sought to control its commerce. Turkey, to a certain extent, stood in the way of the accomplishment of this purpose on the part of England, France, Germany and Russia. We now see that as Turkey is losing her dominion the way of the kings of the east is being prepared, or they are being placed upon a warfooting, more extensive than has ever before been known.

3rd. "Three unclean spirits." There are three distinct characteristics of modern politics: Nihilism, Communism and Socialism. These are represented as emerging from the mouth of the dragon, the beast and the false prophet which represent the Roman empire through the three phases of its history. The student of prophecy is well aware of the fact that the Roman system existed first under the symbol of a dragon. See Rev. xii. 3. Then church and state became united and existed as a persecuting power against Christian liberty throughout the world. See Rev. xiii. Then the final phase is that of a false prophet, which represents the hierarchy of Rome as a system of false teachings through all of its methods of diverting men from the simplicity of the gospel that is in Christ.

Nihilism, socialism and communism are the products in various ways of these phases of the Roman empire in its political and religious aspects. It will be seen that the three-fold purpose of the unclean spirits is to gather the nations to the battle of the great day of God Almighty.

One has but to reflect upon the condition of Europe today to see a remarkable fulfilment of this prophecy. Twelve millions of men are ready for conflict in the various nations of Europe. There never before has been a time when preparations for war were so extensive and when the implements of war were so destructive. Vast ships have been constructed for the sole purpose of destroying human life. The land forces have been increased; taxes have been levied until they have become a burden almost unbearable. As stated by one writer, "Europe today is but a military camp."

He who sees in all these things indications of peace must be blind as to the purpose of the kings of the old Roman earth. They are being prepared upon a scale so grand, so mighty as to leave no doubt that when the storm of war begins it will never end until there is a complete overthrow of all existing forms of government, and the Prince of Peace, the King of kings shall take to himself his power and reign from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth.

4th. The closing point of this sixth vial is "Behold I come as a thief: Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments lest he walk naked and they see his shame."

The advent of Christ becomes imminent in connection with the general preparation for a great conflict among the nations. Palestine and the Jews are closely connected with these scenes of war and desolation.

THE DECLINE OF ROMANISM.

Another sign of our times becomes distinctive in connection with the loss of civil power by the papacy. The Pantheon of Rome was dedicated to the worship of the Virgin Mary A. D. 610. According to Rev. xiii. this power was to continue to persecute the saints and interfere with Christian liberty for a period of 1260 years, and it was to use the civil power as a means to accomplish its end. See Rev. xiii. and Dan. vii. 27.

The union of church and state was a menace to Christian liberty throughout the world. When Phocas gave the Pantheon of Rome and all its images over to Pope Boniface in 610 it completed a system of national religion in connection with the state and this union was to continue for 1260 years, the period spoken of by Daniel as "a time, times and a half." From A. D. 610 to 1870 we have just 1260 years at which time according to the prophet there should occur some marked event in the history of the Roman [illegible] to a figurative interpretation and use or foolish. If we neglect only trifling [illegible] with time and opportunity after we have been favored with a knowledge and foretaste of divine glory, and such result witness in the present sad a multitude the disclosures of our shameful folly, while others are made honorable and glorious, we may too nearly [illegible] justice has been done.

I am not certain but the parable of the ten virgins five of whom were wise, and five foolish illustrates more fully the sequel of those who have come under law to God, and their individual experience of forming character in the light of the truth. While the scope of the parable seems to be confined to the generation living at the Lord's coming, yet it appears to be in line with all the other testimony submitted. The two classes are present, both related to the sayings of Christ. All of them are not prepared for the midnight cry. The door is shut in the face of the foolish, excluding them from an entrance into the kingdom.—"Not every one that says, Lord, Lord shall enter the kingdom of heaven."

GEO. MOYER.

(To be Continued.)

To J. W. Gamble. Expository. No. 5.

The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live." John v. 25

It is hardly necessary to resort to any spiritual or rather figurative interpretation of the foregoing text, for it was literally true that the dead did hear as in the case of Lazarus, and did live. The coming hour in which good ones hear will also be equally literal and real. But the question arises as to all dead ones, that is all at Adam's race now dead to hear his voice? We discover a points in the words "they that hear," which would seem to imply a possibility of some not hearing. Will dead ones indiscriminately are to hear his voice, the above modifying words would hardly have occurred in the text. Our position is strengthened by the argument that Jesus employed to refute the Sadducees. He said to them "God is not the God of the dead." Who will not like Abraham, Isaac and Jacob hear his voice. If there is any force in his argument there must be dead ones of whom it can be affirmed he is not their God. We therefore come to the conclusion that Jehovah is not the God of the irresponsible dead; and that such will not hear the voice of God's Son in the coming hour of resurrection. It will not do however to hasten to the conclusion that only the righteous and saved ones will hear and come forth from hades. Lest we ignore all that class of testimony that plainly indicates the coming forth of the disobedient and rebellious. It is not discord but harmony we seek in Scripture study. In being careful to avoid one extreme of error, let us in the mean time be cautious concerning another extreme in the opposite direction. If resurrection is confined to the limited "many," let the Bible, not us define the limit and not try to distort and disfigure the testimony to please our own notions as to what is fit and wise, or right and just.

In this same chapter, John v. 28-29, Jesus more fully defines on a previous statement contained in verse 25. "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice." The candid reader at once comes to the conclusion that all means all, and that a universal resurrection of Adams posterity [illegible] and a dispute with those who limit resurrection to the [illegible] only, or all [illegible] have never made any [illegible] nations sought to control its commerce. Turkey, to a certain extent, stood in the way of the accomplishment of this purpose on the part of England, France, Germany and Russia. We now see that as Turkey is losing her dominion the way of the kings of the east is being prepared, or they are being placed upon a warfooting, more extensive than has ever before been known.

PLYMOUTH, IND. SEPTEMBER 1, 1897.

SISTER EMMA JACKMAN, Secretary of the Michigan State Conference, wishes us to change the date of their Conference from Oct. 8th, to Oct. 1st, 1897. Will our friends in Michigan please note this change.

IN a letter to a young nephew in Canada, Thomas Carlyle wrote: "A very small lot of books will serve to nourish a man's mind if he humble then well; and I have known illuminated people whose minds have gone all to ruin by reading carelessly too many books. It is like omnivorous feasting. The books in Scotland in plentiful seasons, are said to eat themselves out of pluck—they become thoroughly uneatable by too much eating."

A good soldier of Jesus Christ, like all good soldiers, is obedient to his commander.

A good soldier is courageous,—a frown from fellow mortals does not deter him from doing his duty.

A good soldier has patience, and perseverance, and does not fight by fits and starts.

A good soldier is ever watchful, always at his post watching the enemy without and the foes within.

THE Editor and his wife left Plymouth Friday morning last for the Iowa State Conference at Marshalltown. Arriving at about 9:30 Saturday morning we found a goodly number of brethren and sisters holding meetings under the large State tent, while the smaller living tents were pitched conveniently near by. We remained with them the two last days of the meeting, enjoying every moment of the time listening to the various exercises on the programme, the excellent sermons, and forming acquaintances with many whose names have been familiar to us for many years. Some few we had known personally before this time, and it gave us much pleasure to meet them again, and talk over old times, and learn of old mutual friends. To begin to mention names would be out of place as all could not be written down on paper as each is graven on memory's tablets, and as the secretary will give report of the meetings we will not attempt to do so. Enough for us to express to each dear brother and sister at this time our gratitude to them for their kindly words and acts while we were with them, and thanksgiving to our heavenly Father that we were permitted to attend the meetings held at the campgrounds in Marshalltown, Ia., in 1897. May he keep us each to the glad gathering time when the angels sound forth the call for all the faithful ones to come home. Then may we, if never again in this life all meet again, where no parting hand will be given and no farewell be spoken. Our trip was made to Chicago over the Pennsylvania R. R. and from that point by way of the Chicago and Northwestern to Marshalltown. The trip was made pleasant by the very excellent train service of these two Railroad Companies, and we can recommend them as being surpassed by no lines that we know of for the convenience and comfort of their patrons. The courtesy of the trains by which we traveled were kind and courteous at all times, and we thank the managers and employees for favors shown us.

"Take Heed Brethren."

In Heb. iii. 6, we are told that Christ is a Son over his own house,—whose house are we if we hold fast to the confidence, and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end. Here are two terms,—we are Christ's household if we hold fast the confidence, and the rejoicing of the hope. This speaks of reliance upon, or trust in something and what would naturally grow out of it—hope. A hope based upon God's Word of promise could not fail to bring joy. Plainly, the rejoicing is an index to the faith. We would to God that all who have named the name of Christ may realize the grave importance of this matter, and carefully note this index. What does it say of faith which works by love? If that be all right, hope will be in the ascendant, and the rejoicing of hope will surely be manifested. Reader, let it come home to you that your salvation depends upon holding fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope, firm unto the end; only in that way can you maintain your membership in God's household. Again the note of warning sounds out from the 12th, 13th and 14th verses. The apostle has no use for his readers unless they are holy brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief in departing from the living God." Ah, that's the root of all the trouble! Unbelief, like a serpent creeps in and the things we heard, believed and loved leak out. The eye is taken off the prize and fixed upon something else that is lusted after and striven for with an earnest that leaves time and strength for nothing else, and so we depart from the Living God. Take heed, brethren. The task is hard to come.

The Growth of Roman Catholicism.

Cardinal Vaughan in his Advent Pastoral speaks of the revival of Catholicism in England. The growth is most striking. In 1837 Catholics were few in numbers, and the whole British Empire had only four Roman Catholic bishops. In 1897 England has a Roman hierarchy of seventeen bishops, and the Empire has 106. In 1837 the priests of England were 186. In 1897 they were 2085. The increase during these sixty years in the number of Roman Catholic churches and chapels, colleges and schools and religious communities has been in far greater proportion. "Catholics," says the Cardinal, "are now trusted like other subjects of the crown and many have rendered distinguished service to science, literature and the state. Over 40,000,000 of Her Majesty's loyal subjects pay spiritual obedience to the Pope." These facts, coupled with the knowledge that the Established church is all but Roman Catholic, assures us that the end of this Age is near.

Another Gospel.

G. B. Hepworth writes in a very knowing and confident style to this effect: "That a man who knows what honesty, and uprightness, and honor, and charity requires of him, and who does these things, even at a sacrifice of personal pleasure and profit, lives and moves and has his being in the love of God, and therefore in God himself. That man is fitted to cope with all the difficulties of this life, and as far the future he has absolutely nothing to fear. You may talk about the necessity of faith in this, that, and the other thing, but there is no necessity for faith in anything except the grand, awful glorious fact, that it's for you determine to be a whole man, a thoroughgoing, manly man. the whole current of universal law is your favor; and he also is in your favor who made the law in such a fashion that it is bound to give you assistance, and bound to bring you out right in the end;" and presently asks where such a soul can go at death, unless it be heaven?"

Tens, nh, hundreds of thousands, week by week, listen to such baseless assertions, and suppose them to be gospel. It is the last days, and desiring to be a faithful witness for God and his truth, we say the above is gospel nullifying doctrine! What else can it be while the Spirit in Rom. v. 1 says, "Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ; by whom [Jesus Christ] also we have access by faith into this grace [favor] wherein we stand, [that favor is justification from all sin and peace with God! oh, what favor!] and rejoice in hope of the glory of God." Mr. Hepworth repudiates "faith." He has found another way. He assumes to know exactly what honesty is and claims to be honest. He assumes to know what uprightness and honor and charity are, and claims to be upright and honorable and charitable, and as the result "for the future he has absolutely nothing to fear." And has faith in nothing, and means faith in nothing, except in his own grand, awful, glorious determination to be a whole man, —a thoroughly manly man.

The gentleman has no use for faith such as exercised by Paul and his brethren, and by which they had been justified and at peace with God through the Lord Jesus Christ. Consistently with his avowal, we challenge him to find any use for the gospel which Paul says, Rom. i. 16, is the power God employs to save believers. We further challenge him to find any use for the Lord Jesus Christ, since he has a way of being in God without getting into Christ; and of cleansing himself of all sin by his honesty, his uprightness, his honor, his charity, without reference to the blood of Jesus Christ, which the Apostle says, cleanses from all sin. And although the Apostle says Jesus, our Lord was [illegible] only [illegible] the [illegible] Mr. Hepworth has no use for his readers [illegible] through the [illegible]

The Question Drawer.

In reply to Enquirer, in regard to the "righteousness of God" spoken of in the third of Romans, we would say that three prime views are held. One of them is that good works do not figure in the case at all. Christ being so very righteous that it is sufficient for the whole human family, providing only they will come to have it imputed to them. We are convinced that both of these theories are wide of the truth. The third chapter of Romans clearly contrasts "the righteousness of God with that of the Law." The Apostle had just said when what things the Law saith, it saith it to them that are under the law, —no others; that every mouth is stopped, and all the world may become guilty. Instead of justifying those under it, it brings them in guilty. We think all who are disposed to can understand this. Man being a sinner he cannot improve his condition by Means of the law. The law of God was holy, just and good: and how could a law of that character save a sinner? It was impossible! It was always impossible to please God without faith; and faith in this connection takes hold of propositions or promises made by God to man. And those promises antedated the law by hundreds of years; and so men could please God by faith hundreds of years before an arbitrary law was enacted. And men could please him no better after the law was given was possible before. The man of faith works, but not on the same principle as one under the law. The latter works under a sword of justice, the former works of love; and his good works are the fruit of faith and love, instead of fear or apprehension. We would impress upon your [illegible] when God says "[illegible] eyes" he included all the [illegible] —hence every mouth was stopped and all the world was guilty before God; the only righteousness is that of God's—the righteousness OF God. Not that part of God's righteousness, is imparted to certain ones and so are made righteous, no. We understand that God has promulgated the principle upon which he pardons all past sin and grants a righteous standing before him,—and that that righteous standing is the righteousness OF God —derived from God by grace or favor through faith—faith being the means to be used by man, as well as the condition exacted of him. We see from this point of view how the righteousness of God is obtained, without the law. The law is in no way connected with it; we mean the law from Sinai, is in no way connected with a person's righteous standing before God. He is under the law of faith; and the law of faith is as surely the law of God as was the law from Sinai. Like the law from Sinai, what it says, is addressed to those under it. All men are not under it, and to such it says nothing. Men of their own notion come under the law of faith. They are at liberty to come under it or not, as they please; but being under it they are bound to obey the law of Christ or lose the privileges and blessings a life of obedience would ensure. It is passing strange—indeed painful to see one claiming that we are lawless because of holding that the law of Moses is not binding upon us. Are not the Spirit's words plain enough, which say that, "by the deeds of the law, there shall no flesh be justified in his sight: for by the law is the knowledge of sin?" "Why cannot you believe these words, and begin again at first principles,—and when you come to Romans v. 1, 2 where it says: "Having been justified therefore, by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ; through whom also we have been introduced into this favor in which we stand; and we boast in hope of the glory of God." Yes, believe this testimony, too, and take steps to get into, and stand in it. You must know if your step to Sinai, that when the Apostle says Gal. iii. 10, 11, "For as many as are of works of Law are under a curse.... Besides, that no one is justified by law before God is clear, because, "The righteous [illegible] will live [illegible] faith." [illegible] through the [illegible]

Love to God, and Love to Man.

Dear Restitution:

If this article is worthy of your notice please give it room. John x. 12-18, "This is my commandment that ye love one another as I have loved. Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends." Dear brethren and sisters, we find that love is a command, also we find that some one has loved us when we were enemies to him, and we love the brethren in Christ. If Christ so loved the world that he gave his life to redeem them from death, cannot we give a loving hand and a kind word to a falling brother or a sister in time of need? It is a commandment and a duty and should be a pleasure to lend a helping hand to one of the brothers in time of need. Brothers and sisters if the world comes to you in this way and says to you that your brother is a bad fellow don't sanction it for that is one of the devil's ways of making trouble with the church, and that is what he wants to get between the brothers and then he can do what he wants to do. Then let us stay close together and if any one tells us something that a brother has done or said, make no reply until we go and see the brother and ask him about it and if the brother is in fault let us talk to him in brotherly love and restore him again. Love can not be purchased with money. Love can only be obtained by love. Then brothers and sisters if we think that no one loves us let us see whether we love anybody or not. John xiii. 35. By this shall all know, that ye are my disciples if ye have love one for another. If this is the way to manifest our discipleship he as love more and more. Let us go on to perfect love. We are sometimes mistaken when we think that no one loves us, simply we love no one, love your enemies much more (the household of faith. Christ first loved us when we were sinners and gave his life for us, then brothers can't we afford to give our love to a brother in time of need? If a brother stumble help him to raise and if the brother offend thee go to him in love and ask him to righten his wrongs. Well to the isolated ones scattered all over the land a word to you. When I read the good pieces in THE RESTITUTION I am forced to shed tears of sorrow and joy to think of your lonely life, and to think how zealous you are. It looks like it was God's plan to take one here and one there. How much I like to meet the dear ones and to clasp glad hands here, but then when it comes to part again, oh, sorrow comes, but parting will soon be over when Christ comes and takes the kingdom in hand. My hand, my heart, my love to all of God's people, hoping to meet in the kingdom of God. Your Brother.

Report of Meetings.

Dear Restitution:

I write to say that the hearts of the brethren of the Church of God at Ripley, Ill., have again been made glad by the presence of our dear Bro. Foore, [illegible] the 11th of Aug., and stayed until the 19th. Notwithstanding the meetings at the other three churches and two shows we had fair audiences to hear the Word of truth. Brother Foore is a true preacher of the kingdom and should be kept in the field by the brethren. There are only a few [illegible] with my parents moved here the 16th of last December, and on the 26th of January my poor old father died, so I am left to mourn the loss of a father. He never professed Christ, but God knows why that is not [illegible] with all my heart the Judge of all the earth will do right. So I do not see how he [illegible] again if not I could be miserable. We are thankful to our heavenly Father that we were led [illegible] we could meet with those of like precious faith on the first day of the week to study his precious Word together. I hope Bro. Foore will be permitted to visit us again and all the ministers which have visited us in time past. My prayer is that all that have entered the race will win the crown.

Your Sister in Christ,

Foreign News.

Basle, Switzerland, Aug. 30.—At today's session of the Zionist congress the delegates present unanimously adopted with great enthusiasm the program for reestablishing the Hebrews in Palestine, with publicly recognized rights. A dispatch was sent to the Sultan of Turkey, thanking his Majesty for the privileges enjoyed by the Hebrews in his empire.

Munich, Aug. 30.—The Neuest Nachrichten says it has been definitely settled that Emperor William will visit Jerusalem at Easter next year. The officers of the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, on which the Emperor will make the voyage to Jaffa, have been informed of his intention to go to Palestine. The Hohenzollern will be accompanied by the cruiser Gefion. The Emperor will spend two months in the Holy Land.

London, Aug. 30.—[Copyright, 1897, by the Press Publishing Company, New York World.]—Woods Pasha, an Englishman, but at present an Admiral in the Turkish service and a representative in a confidential capacity of the Ottoman Empire in London, made a statement in regard to Greco-Turkish affairs today.

"You wish to know what I think of the evacuation of Thessaly and the war indemnity to be paid to Turkey? Four million pounds, the amount exacted, does not, in my opinion, represent the material damage sustained by Turkey. Its payment, if properly arranged, could be made without the question of foreign contract at all. Rich Greek bankers and merchants residing abroad should combine in support of a national patriotic loan. With the guarantee of the powers, of course, the money could be raised at once.

"The prospect of the early retirement of the Turkish army of occupation is greatly improved by the last proposition made by Lord Salisbury, which should show both Greeks and Turks who their real friends are. Since the impossibility of obtaining the sanction of Europe for the retention of any part of Thessaly, beyond that necessary for the rectification of the frontier, the next best thing for Turkey is to obtain as soon as possible the payment of this indemnity.

"I cannot understand the indignation expressed in England against the Turkish government on account of the delay in the settlement of this matter. This delay is not to be wondered at. The war only ended three months ago. The delay is as much due to the powers themselves as to the Turks, and certainly the little disposition the Greeks have shown to make arrangements for the payment of the indemnity counts as an important factor in the stand taken by Turkey."

"It will not do for Englishmen to fling to themselves the comfortable belief that the memories of 1870 will always suffice to restrain France on the opposite side to Germany in any European complication. Sedan has passed almost as completely into history as Trafalgar and Waterloo, and there are few Frenchmen who would be averse to paying themselves out of the British empire for their sacrifices under the treaty of Frankfort. The ceded provinces are, no doubt, a real obstacle, but if Germany should ever be so little we are much stronger she need not be able to count upon the friendship of her old enemy at least for a time. The cession of Heligoland would change the whole current of feeling in France, not for defensive purposes. Metz is of no value to its present possessor. It is a standing menace to France, but is not like Heligoland, which is an integral part of the German system of defense. Englishmen will by no means watch unmoved to-morrow's great spectacle in Paris."—Tribune.

Real Christianity is earnest life work. As electricity permeates steel, so it permeates every act and department of life. It gives a vigorous impulse to every noble quality. It makes every toil honest and cheerful. It makes every toil honest and cheerful. It gives courage and fortitude in the midst of sorrow and affliction. Christianity is a sublime force. It makes a new man of the old. It throws meaning and grandeur into every small act of Christian duty and benevolence. It makes them tenderhearted and kind. It makes the careworn and weary, and afflicted patient. It makes home a holy of holies to social life. It makes the judge just, the merchant honest, the servant faithful, the student diligent, the wealthy generous, the poor industrious and cheerful, the strong watchful and helpful; it lights the heart of the dying saint with hopeful flashes of the everlasting.

What kind of a man ought you to be? Such a man, that when you have passed away from earth, your son can say of you, in all sincerity, as Thomas Carlyle has said of his good father: "He was a man into the corners of whose house there has shined through the years of his pilgrimage, by day and by night, the light of the glory of God; and at last he was not, for God took him." Will your character and your home answer to that description?

Many persons regard the formation of their character as a process scarcely begun, and to be completed at a far-distant day, when lo! they have already crystalized into their permanent moral type. Every day brings its test and makes its impress. Each twenty four hours is a part of eternity —one link in an endless chain. Then take care of today.—Christian Advocate, South.

They who are the fullest of faith and richest in good works, make the least sound; when their hearts and lives, like the face of Moses, shine brightly with grace and holiness, they do not, they will not know it. They consider their great light and lustre as but a reflection from the Father of lights, and therefore they have no reason to boast at all of borrowed goods.

No man can reject the Divine testimony concerning Christ, when fairly and fully presented to him, without thereby inflicting immediate damage on his whole inward life—without, in fact, becoming, whatever appearances there may be to the contrary, a worse man as well as a guiltier man than he was before.

An old minister who, when advanced in life, showed great vigor, being asked the reason of this, replied: "I can easily account for it; I have had three great excellencies during my lifetime; I have always been on good terms with my wife; and I have always been on good terms with my congregation and my stomach."

People look at your six days in the week to see what you mean on the seventh.

Selections.

'Tis by the faith of joys to come,
We walk this desert dark as night.
'Tis we shall gain eye-sight as home;
Faith is our guide, and faith our light.

The want of sight she well supplies,
She makes the purest glories bear
Far into things unseen she pries,
And brings eternal glory near.

Cheerful we tread the desert through,
While faith inspires a heavenly ray,
Though lions roar, and tempests blow,
And rocks and dangers fill the way.

O render thanks to God above,
The fountain of eternal love;
Whose mercy firm, through changes past,
Has stood, and shall forever last.

Who can his mighty deeds express,
Not only vast—but numberless?
What mortal eloquence can raise
The tribute of immortal praise?

Extend to me that favor, Lord,
Thou to thy chosen dost afford:
When thou return'st to set them free,
Let thy salvation visit me.

Our True Model of Belief.

FOURTH SET OF QUESTIONS.

Question 1. What was the essential difference between the "preaching" and the "teaching"? Did it lie in the thing said, the manner of saying, or the size of the audience? When one who heard the proclamation, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand" enquired what it meant, and how it affected him, did the preacher's answer, with whatever of explanation and application it contained,—cease to be "preaching" and become teaching?" Does the New Testament show the importance of such a technical distinction being made? If so, how?

Answer. 1st clause. This seems to me by far too nice a question. So far as I am aware the New Testament writers do not speak of "essential differences." In one respect there is no difference between "preaching" and "teaching." Each is simply a verbal communication just as a command and a request are. All the same there is a difference; and whether such difference be called "essential," or simply important seems to me not very essential to be determined. The term "preaching" was applied to the gospel, which was really a brief intimation of seven words. The term "teaching" was applied to general instruction which in some instances extended to three chapters. Matt. v., vi., vii. A distinction between "preaching" and "teaching" may be seen in a number of passages, such as Matt. iv. 23; 2 Tim. i. 11; Acts xxviii. 31. The translators of the Common Version have used the term "preach" twice in Luke iv. 18, 19; while they have used the term "proclaim" in Isa. lxi. 1, 2, from which we read the words recorded in Luke. I have no doubt the term used in Isaiah is the more correct. So of the "preaching of Jonah" in Luke xi. 32. The Paragraph Bible gives "proclaiming" in Jonah iii. 2. Where the preaching of that prophet is described in chap. iii. 4 we read, "He cried, and said, 'yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown.'" This preaching, consisting of only eight words (in English) was plain enough to be easily understood by the Ninevites; for the king "proclaimed and published a fast," etc. The terms "cried" and "proclaimed" represent the same Hebrew word (KRA) which is also found in chapter i. 2, "Go to Nineveh.....and cry against." This Hebrew word occurs in numerous passages in the Old Testament, and is often rendered "proclaim." It is also the term used by the translators of the New Testament from Greek into Hebrew to represent the Greek term usually rendered "preach" in the Common Version.

Clause 2. To imagine a Jew asking the meaning of the proclamation—"The kingdom of God is at hand," does not seem to me to involve a really practical question, any more than to suppose a Ninevite asking the meaning of Jonah's proclamation, "Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be destroyed." No such question by any Jew is on record. I see no reason to doubt, however, that explanation or instruction given in reply to such a question would be properly described as "teaching."

Clause 3. This clause has, as I judge, been already answered. However, I shall add that the distinction between "preaching" and "teaching" is not merely "technical" but real and practical. The Moderns, in this as in many other things, have departed from New Testament usage in extending a proclamation of these words into a discussion of their connected words, and [illegible] the gospel, as such, is not professed to be included. Not only are the two things, in the New Testament sense, radically different, but they are described by two entirely distinct words.

Question 2. What was the essential difference between the gospel and the accompaniments of the gospel? And how did (or does) the difference have practical effect? Is the form necessary to a man's becoming a Christian and being saved, while the latter is so much additional information, interesting and instructive enough, but not essential?

Answer. Clause 1. The gospel was one thing; its accompaniments quite another. As to the "practical effect" of such a difference, it does not appear to me that the evangelists throw much light on a point like this. The "preaching" of John the Baptist however, had "practical effect" in regard to two classes of the people. We read, (Luke vii. 29) "All the people that heard him, and the publicans, justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John. But the Pharisees and lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves, being not baptized of him." There is here no dubiety as to the meaning and "practical effect" of John's proclamation. On a previous occasion we read (Luke iii. 12, 13) "Then came also publicans to be baptized, and said to him, Master, What shall we do? And he said to them, Exact no more than that which is appointed you." This is a specimen of "teaching." It was certainly plain enough, although quite different from the proclamation. Its practical effect would also be different inasmuch as it was more specific in its nature than the duty of repentance by which the gospel was accompanied.

Clause 2. The gospel is necessary to a man's salvation; so is obedience to the accompaniment, "Repent." Remission of sins is also necessary to a man's being saved, and is connected with repentance and faith as a result, in accordance with the Divine appointment. This does not seem to me to show, as the question seems to suggest, that the accompaniments are merely interesting and instructive, but that, on the contrary, they are indispensable adjuncts of that simple but momentous intimation "The kingdom of God is nigh at hand."

Question 3. If it "became absolutely necessary that the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ, should be made known for the reason given in Answer to question 5 of 3rd set,—was it less necessary that the resurrection of the sleeping saints should be made known, seeing that dead men could not inherit the kingdom: or less necessary that the remission of sins should be made known, because no unforgiven sinner can enter the kingdom?

Answer. All knowledge is important and useful although not equally so. One may believe the gospel, and be ignorant of many things; and at the same time be a gainer by his faith, and a loser by his ignorance. Some disciples at Corinth said, "There is no resurrection of the dead." 1 Cor. xv. 12. The Apostle did not enjoin that such are to be excommunicated as he did in the case of an immoral man at Corinth mentioned in chapter v. I fail to see anything to show that the ignorance of those disciples would interfere with their own resurrection to everlasting life, or render it less necessary and desirable that the resurrection of the sleeping saints should be made known. Nor does this admission of the importance of all true Bible knowledge alter, so far as I can see, the relative value of "the gospel" and other Scripture truths. The distinction here seems to me to rest on Scripture statements, and not on human reasonings. I presume that the answer I have offered here as to resurrection will apply to the remission of sins.

Question 4. Is the gospel a "fixed quantity"—a certain well defined number of statements of Divine truth, which, say even since the day of Pentecost, have been necessary for all men everywhere to believe in order to true discipleship and to salvation? If so, —What data have we for determining exactly which truths are, and which are not, so included; and which truths are they?

Answer. Clause 1. The gospel consists of certain truths. These have certainly been "fixed" by God himself. Whether it be right to designate these as a "fixed quantity" may be open to question; but I fail to see that they are anything but simple and definite.

Clause 2. The data for determining such truths are to be found in the New Testament, with the light thrown on the [illegible] from the Old. This [illegible] [illegible] from the [illegible] and [illegible] as in answers to first set of questions. I consider that such data have been sufficiently set forth and explained in answers to previous questions.

Question 5. Considering the necessities of the case, and in view of the precepts and examples afforded by the New Testament,—which truths (whether "gospel" properly so-called, or only necessary "accompaniments") are essential to be made known and believed in the present day?

Answer. The primary and most indispensable truths appear to me to be the originally proclaimed gospel—"The Kingdom of God is at hand." And there are certainly included the death, burial, and resurrection of the Anointed, with the necessity of and Appearing of the Lord to set up his kingdom on the earth. I see no evidence that "the present day" requiring any change to be made from the practice of the Apostolic times. An exception may occur arising from gross ignorance of the Scriptures on the part of the general community. This necessitates the supply of information such as I have tried to illustrate by the various items in answers to first set of questions. In short the origin and history of the only Divine kingdom known to history. The use of argument and appeal is certainly desirable for the purpose of enforcing the necessity of personal attention to the gospel and its requirements. All this, as it seems to me, is in accordance with what I have endeavored to set forth in these answers as a whole.

2. Treasures will not profit transgressors, but righteousness will deliver from death.

3. The Lord will not starve a justified soul, but he will turn upward figure drawn from surveying—turning the measuring-rod upward at the end of the life-line) the life of the irreverent.

4. Penury humbleth a man, but the hand's of the manly produce wealth.

5. A son who hath been chastened will be wise, and he will use a servant without good sense; a son with perception hath been saved from the scorching heat, but a son who evadeth law hath been blighted in early harvest.

6. The Lord's blessing is upon the head of the justified, but the mouth of the irreverent will reveal untimely sorrow.

7. The remembrance of the justified will be in the midst of encomiums, but the name of the irreverent is extinguished.

8. A wise heart will accept commandments, but the prating of the perverse with their lips will have tripped them up.

9. He who goeth his way with sincerity goeth his way confidently; but he who perverteth his ways will have become known.

10. He who winketh his eyes with deception is gathering together sorrow for men, but he who convicteth with boldness forseeth a peacemaker.

11. A fountain of life is there in the hands of the justified, but the mouth of an irreverent man revealeth loss.

12. Hatred stirreth up strife, but friendship revealeth those who do not like strife.

13. He who furnisheth with his lips smiteth a heartless man a sceptre of rule.

14. Wise men will conceal perception, but the mouth of the headlong draweth nigh to ruin.

15. The acquisition of the rich is a strong city, but the penury of the irreverent is ruin.

16. The works of the justified produce life, but the fruits of the irreverent sins.

17. Chastening watcheth to guard justified ways of life, but the chastening of one not amenable to reproof is to err.

18. Justified lips cover enmity, but those who bring forth abusive talk are most wanting in good sense.

19. With much talk one will not escape sin, but he sparing of thy lips and thou wilt be one who apprehendeth.

20. Silver that hath been tried by fire is the tongue of a justified person, but the heart of an irreverent one will fail.

21. Lips of justified persons have an exact knowledge of high things, but those who are wanting in good sense come to their end in want.

22. The Lord's blessing is on the head of the justified, this maketh rich, and sorrow of heart shall not be added to it.

23. With laughter is a person of good sense doeth evil things, but wisdom bringeth forth thoughtfulness for a man.

24. An irreverent man is environed with loss, but the longing desire of the justified is acceptable.

25. The irreverent man vanisheth away on the passing cyclone, but the justified inclineth out and is saved forever.

26. Even as an unripe grape is disagreeable to one's teeth and smoke to one's eyes, so is evasion of law to those who use it.

27. Fear of the Lord addeth days, but the years of irreverent ones will have been made few.

28. Rejoicing speaketh time with the justified but the hope of the irreverent will perish

29. Fear of the Lord is a fortress for a holy one, but ruin is for those who engage in evil things.

30. The justified will not surrender forever, but the irreverent will not dwell on (the) earth.

31. The mouth of the justified distilleth wisdom, but the tongue of the unjust will utterly perish.

32. Lips of justified men distil favors, but the mouth of the irreverent turneth one away.

COMMENT.

Chapter 8th opens with the exhortation to sons of men to become heralds of wisdom. "Your am I calling, ye sons of men," she saith. "Things worthy of respect and upright things shall I speak," is a part of the exhortation; "oracular words" observe also—"in no respect crooked or perverse in themselves." Observe again that "All things are open to the sight of those who understand and straight to those who find comprehension." The question naturally arises here again whether the personification of wisdom is anything more than a rhetorical trope for vividness of style and impressiveness of teaching or whether there is any warrant for laying hold of such passages as these in support of the theological dogma of the Trinity. I think not. The divine spirit of wisdom is as much God's own spirit and a part of his intrinsic personality as my soul or spirit is a part of me. When I apostrophize my soul, as "O my soul and all that is within me" am I addressing myself or another person? We call such talk as this soliloquy, do we not? The divine wisdom [illegible] himself as a person is [illegible] instrumentality through which he accomplishes his infinite purposes, or an attribute of himself. God no doubt rejoices in his wisdom as we do in ours, and this is the abstract fact here stated, when divested of rhetorical figure and trope. I refer to the portion of the chapter from the 17th to 31st verse both inclusive. One might as well try to make out the sun and moon to be persons, because they are frequently personified in Scriptures.

The gist of the 36th verse stated as an abstract fact is that the person who ignores his enlighted reason in matters of life and death is to all intents and purposes a moral suicide.

The 9th chapter opens with the beautiful and very significant parable of wisdom's house supported on seven pillars and the preparation for a symposium, the divine symposium of spiritual enjoyment and profit described. The balance of the chapter is made up of wise aphorisms appropriate for such an occasion with chastening for the royal sonship. The introduction of the harlot toward the close profoundly significant in view of all the later Scriptural teaching about spiritual harlotry and apostasy in the household of faith: of which this house of wisdom is an earlier type.

The 10th chapter is a good sample of antithetical teaching with which this book abounds and is one form of parable teaching, but only one form and not to be confounded with other forms as it has been frequently by the translators, as in John's gospel 1st chap. "For the law was given through Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesous Christ" should read—"Because the law was given through Mouses, grace and truth came to pass through Jesous Christ," a very different thought the reader will observe, and one that harmonizes with the general teaching in regard to law and grace while the other does not. Read this 10th chap. carefully and compare with the versions as the variations are important, but too numerous to call specific attention to.

Words tell us what we should be; deeds tell us what we are

Some hearts, like evening primroses, open most beautifully in the shadows of life

The Man Paul Knew.

That it was not Christ: but a man in Christ. To be in Christ is to be of that company who are in the name of Jesus and thereby sons and daughters of God Almighty. That being so, that man must be Paul himself; yet not Paul after the flesh, but as the new man in Christ Jesus, see Gal. iii. 27. This new man is an embodiment of the visions and revelations of the Lord, as revealed to Paul.

The third heaven in relation to Christ is mortality swallowed up of life,—in a word, an immortal being. This is the grand test. It is not so much a locality as it is a future state or condition in which the Body of Christ is manifested, and the promise realized. Thus Paul had a vision of a new man Christ—"caught up to the full enjoyment of the gift of God—the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ: the third heaven of the abundant revelation of Paul.

But there is a state still beyond, in which are higher conditions of eternal being, as we find in the announcement, "God all in All."

The second advent of Christ is the one door that opens to admit the entire multitude of God's sons and daughters to the realization of all things promised them in the Holy Scriptures. "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me to give to every man according as his work shall be."

J. O. WOODRUFF.

Criticism.

I do not wish to be fault-finding, but often wish some of our best instructors would refrain from mentioning any particular sect when speaking of their doctrines but teach the truth.

There are some most excellent articles in THE RESTITUTION, but I am sorry to see any personalities in them in trying to teach the truth to the sects—especially the most intelligent. —we do not wish to repel them by abusing their church. It turns more from the Truth than it leads to it. We can teach the truth without reference to any church. I hold a paper I wish to mail to a very dear friend. He desires to be informed and to keep abreast with the times—a very upright, good man. I have put much reading matter in his hands and I do not wish to turn him aside by harshness. The aforesaid paper I fear will seem pretty harsh to him—for he is a man of fine sensibilities, a deep and earnest man. I shall send the paper, though there are a few lines I would like to strike out—that perhaps would be better unsaid—no use to wound peoples feelings to teach them the truth. They call it anchristian. Gentleness with earnestness or vice versa is best.

Very truly,

"A SISTER."

The Illinois Conference.

Dear Restitution:

I am requested by private letters from the brothers and sisters of like precious faith to still contend for a conference. Now I shall ask the preaching brothers of the State of Illinois who and how many of them will meet with us, and preach for us? They can answer through THE RESTITUTION or by private letter. I also ask who will volunteer to help sing, and who will take the lead in singing. Also what church would like to have the conference. Then some one must announce the time and place to meet and elect officers, and appoint committees and arrange the program. Brothers and sisters, this is more than one person's work, now come right up and take hold and move the work along. If you can't preach you can sing and if you can't sing you can be on a committee, and you can't be on a committee you can give a dollar, or two to defray some poor brother's way that can do some of these things which are needful to carry on a conference. Recollect brothers that the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof. Don't hide your talent. If it be to preach, preach; and if it be to sing, sing; and if it is to give, give cheerfully. Do all in the name of Christ. Come now, brothers and sisters, and let us put our shoulders to the wheel and all push at once and the car will move and God will bless us.

Yours looking for the King in his glory.

Cheap Excursion to St. Joseph.

Sunday Sept. 5th, the Vandalia will run another cheap excursion to St. Joseph, Mich. Train leaves Decatur at 8:21 A. M. and returning arrives here at 8:35 P. M. Only $5 ets for the round trip. Ample accommodation [illegible] call T. A. Downs, Agt.

[illegible] the shadows of ignorance are being driven away by the teaching of God's word as it was first taught and understood by Christ and his apostles, let each and every one of us redouble our energies and use every dollar and moment of time that we can for the farther advancement of this grand and glorious work. Dear brothers and sisters let us work while it is yet day; for the night cometh when no man can work. If we use the talents and means we have, with God's help we will be able to lesson that vast throng who will say in that day, the harvest is past, the summer is ended and my soul is not saved. Submitted in love.

Announcement.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, in Michigan, will convene (D. V.) at Millbrook, Mecosta Co., Michigan, on Friday evening, Oct. 8th, 1897, and continue over the following Sunday. The brethren at Millbrook have earnestly requested that the meeting might be held there, feeling that by our united effort much good might be done. All of like precious faith are invited. Train leaves Grand Rapids at 7:10 A. M. via Grand Rapids and Western R. R. formerly Detroit, Lansing and Northern R. R. via Sparta, Greenville, changing cars at Edmore, waiting there about 20 minutes taking the Big Rapids Division to Blanchard, reaching there at 10:30 A. M. where the brethren will meet any who come on morning trains. Another train leaves Grand Rapids at 4:20 P. M. Blanchard at 8:00 P. M. Blanchard is two miles from Becker School-house where the meeting will be held. This church has only recently joined the conference and the brethren are very anxious to have a successful gathering. Will all that can, come up to the help of the Master. The signs of the times show to us who are waiting and watching the near coming of our Savior that we should improve the time. Besides all this such a reunion always helps us. We feel that we have a foretaste of what is to come.

Yours for the Truth,
EMMA JACKMAN, Sec'y.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith in Indiana will be held at Argos, Indiana, commencing Friday, 3 P. M., Sept. 10, 1897 and continue over the following Sunday.

This is another privilege we have of meeting again for the purpose of renewing and strengthening our vows to the Master in his glorious cause. We believe the time very near when he shall come to take to himself his bride the chosen ones, and with them to rule the world in righteousness. Therefore it behooves us to be watchful and prayerful, keeping ourselves always in readiness lest he come upon us as a thief in the night. Let all put forth an effort to attend this meeting and work to the one end, that of the promotion of the cause we have espoused.

The brethren here extend a hearty welcome to all who come to attend.

J. F. WAGONER, Pres.
A. C. ROBERTS, Sec.

The twelfth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held in the park at Cambridge, Nebraska, beginning on Friday Sep. 10th, and holding over ten days. We earnestly hope that this will be the largest and the best meeting ever held. Let us one and all work for this end; and let us make up our minds that, if we possibly can, we will attend this meeting, and we will try to get others to attend. Come with a desire to work for the Master and to receive his blessing and we feel sure that you will not have come in vain. Before the Conference, each church in the State is requested to meet and vote for the persons whom they wish to have fill the offices of President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, Evangelist, and Assistant Evangelist for the coming year; and to send the votes to the Secretary by the 16th of August. Please do not neglect this as we wish for the votes of all. Once more requesting you to come and spend ten days with those of like precious faith in the service of the Master, I am your Sister in Christ.

Cheap Rates to the West and Northwest.

On September 7, 21, October 5 and 19, the North-Western Line (Chicago & Northwestern R'y) will sell Home Seekers' excursion tickets at exceptionally low rates to a large number of points in Northern Wisconsin, Michigan, Northwestern Iowa, Western Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota, including the famous Black Hills district. Better own a farm! Start now! Send for free copy of The North-Western Home-Seeker, to C. Traver, Rooms 3 and 4, Marine National Bank Building, Pittsburgh, Pa., or W. B. Kniskern, 22 Fifth avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in letters of the above ways is at our risk, money sent home or future is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that we can rob bill, or abstract so that no one will know it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should keep a copy of the same.

In ordering books or tracts, if the letter or the paper you have it under only mentions one, understand it so.

When ordering a change of address, give both your old and new address.

In computing strength with the above you will see how much campaigning and tract work we could do if we had more people enlisted to help.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin

Brethren and Sisters: Have you loved ones who think as well as we will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably who are ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's Justice at the purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled: "The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Notice.

When our friends please remember that we do not have the books and tracts at this office that are advertized by Brother Joblin, or Brother Wiley Jones. Do not [illegible] office for them, but send direct to address as given in the advertisement. This will save both trouble and delay. PLEASE REMEMBER.

Kansas and Missouri Tent Fund.

We the undersigned agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing a tent to be used in evangelizing in the States of Kansas and Missouri. Subscriptions and pledges may be sent to THE RESTITUTION or direct to the Chairman of the Committee, Joseph Shellenberger, Mound City, Mo.

The Lord's Prayer.

Our Father in heaven, we hallow thy name!
May thy Kingdom come on earth be the same.
O give us daily our portion of bread—
It is from thy bounty that all must be fed.

Forgive our transgressions, and teach us to know
That humble compassion pardons each foe.
Keep us from temptation, from weakness and sin,
And thine be the glory forever. Amen.

POLITICAL INDICATIONS OF APPROACHING CHANGE.

The states are now known as united Italy. It is declared that they shall hate the whore and make her naked and desolate and eat her flesh and burn her with fire. This has been the policy of the Italian states ever since they became united. The Roman government, after a period of 1260 years emerged again as a distinct civil government among the governments of the earth, a most remarkable incident in modern history, and the prophet clearly designated that there should be ten kings united in this final phase of power. They are symbolized by the prophet Daniel as the ten toes of the metallic man, which is the last form of the kingdoms of men previous to the introduction of the kingdom of God.

"A stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon the feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces. Then was the iron and clay, the brass, the silver and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them: and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth." Dan. ii. 34, 35.

The explanation given by the prophet makes this very clear:—"In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." Dan. ii. 44.

This prophecy is in exact harmony with the events symbolized in Revelation xvii.

"These (the ten kings) shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords and King of kings: and they that are with him are called and chosen and faithful." Rev. xvii. 14.

The reader will find a full description of this conflict with Christ and his people on the one side and the kings of the Roman earth on the other in Rev. xix. 11-21. That we are approaching the crisis herein delineated by the prophet of Patmos there can be no question. The Roman church has lost its civil power; Italy has revived the old Roman system: the ten kings have accomplished the work of taking away from the church her revenue, and the church today is without any king to support her. She will, however, continue to claim that "she sits a queen and is no widow and will see no sorrow," but it is clearly stated that in one day shall her judgment come. The ten kings are the executors of the divine will and the power is doomed to fall amid the tumultuous scenes of the great conflict that will sweep over the old Roman earth.

These events are certainly within our cycle of time and will occur under the seventh vial which is to be poured out in the air, which is the last phase of the seventh trumpet, for the seven plagues are included in the seventh vial as the reader will learn by comparing Rev. xi. 15 and Rev. xvi. Under these seventh vial the cries of the nations are to fall and earthquakes and many physical disturbances are to become general—all of which will indicate that Messiah's kingdom is nigh at hand. Under the seventh vial distress and anxiety will indicate the general condition of the world of nations and the breaking up of all social systems. Messiah in his great prophecy delineates the same events in these words:

"And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled. And there shall be signs in the sun and in the moon and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And they shall see the Son of Man coming with power and great glory." Luke xxi. 24-27.

Then in this connection follow the words of our text: "When ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand."

From the above quotation, as given by our Lord, we are assured that Jerusalem is to be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled. This phrase, "times of the Gentiles," refers to the continued supremacy of the Gentile nations over Israel and Judah until the time of consummation: in other words, the times of the Gentiles cover the whole period of the reign of the kingdom of men. The reader will find the history and duration of this power outlined by the prophet Daniel under the symbol of the metallic man whose "Head was of fine gold, his breast and his arms of silver, his belly and his thighs of brass, his legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay." Dan. ii. 32, 33.

The prophet tells us that the head of this image represented the Babylonian kingdom and that Nebuchadnezzar was the first king: that the breast and arms of silver symbolized the kingdoms of Media and Persia united into one empire, as will be learned from Dan. v. 25-31 the sides and thighs of brass represented the Grecian empire which supplanted Media-Persia as may be learned from Dan. viii. The fourth and last division of the image represents the Roman government through all the phases of its history: the legs of iron aptly describing its division into Eastern and Western Rome, and the final division being symbolized by the ten toes—the last phase of Roman or Italian government, as has already been referred to.

The ten kings are to make war with the Lamb. This brings on the final conflict between the kingdom of men and Messiah and his chosen. And we are assured that, "The Lamb shall overcome them, for he is King of kings and Lord of lords, and they that are with him are called and chosen and faithful." Rev. xvii. 14.

Or in the words of the prophet Daniel, "A stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces. Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them; and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth." Dan. ii. 34, 35.

The explanation given is. "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." Dan. ii. 44.

Events are rapidly shaping themselves toward the consummation of this great crisis.

The Higher Criticism.

The annexed clippings from the Edinburgh News are forwarded to the Editor of THE RESTITUTION, presuming that they may be considered for insertion.

J. CAMERON.

"There are not wanting signs that the Higher Criticism is threatened with collapse. Thanks to the efforts of advanced clergy in the Free Church, the public mind has been thoroughly beleaguered on this question. Robertson Smith was the first to endeavor to show that it made no difference to Protestantism if the views of Wellhausen prevailed. His view, it may be remembered, amounted to a revolutionary reconstruction of Old Testament literature. According to Higher Criticism, which the "British Weekly" clique of credulous clerics have popularized, Genesis is simply a legendary introduction to the Exodus. The duty of the clergy of the future is to treat the patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, not as historical, but simply as legendary heroes, to be moralized over as we moralize over Jack-in-the-Beanstalk and Blue Beard. According to Higher Critics, Deuteronomy was concocted by fraudulent priests during the reign of Josiah, and the Levitical code was the work of a gang of Exilic dodgers. Naturally it was necessary to invent a historic framework for the two codes, and so we have a semi-legendary narrative of the wanderings of the children of Israel. And this theological thimblerigging is offered to serious, hard-headed Scotsmen as a substitute for the old belief in the Bible. Like many other things made in Germany, the Higher Criticism is proving to be more pretentious than durable. A year or two ago Professor Sayce showed that the verdict of the ancient monuments was against the assumption of the Wellhausen school that Genesis is unhistorical. Genesis is no nursery tale, but a historical book of the greatest value to the student of archæology. Of course, the monuments have nothing to say about the supernatural elements in Genesis, but the controversy gets narrowed to a definite point, and confidence in the Higher Critics considerably shaken, when theory hopelessly breaks down in dealing with the origins of the Israelitish nation and religion. If their speculations have collapsed over Genesis, may they not also break down over the Mosaic dispensation? The conclusions drawn by Professor Sayce are confirmed and strengthened by Professor Hommel, who gives philological as well as archæological reasons for his belief in the historic reliability of Genesis. On philological grounds Professor Hommel dissents entirely from the Wellhausen theory of the late date of the Deuteronomic and priestly codes. Regard for space prevents a detailed exposition of the Professor's reasons for drawing a distinct line of demarcation between the earlier and later language of the Israelites, but the practical outcome is this: The language in which the Priestly code is written contains phrases which belong not to the Babylonian period of the exile, but to the early Babylonian period of considerable antiquity. Moreover, many of the ritualistic terms can only be explained through the Arabic which ceased to influence the Israelites after they came into contact with the other Semite peoples of Palestine. Clearly, then, a code which bears the impress of the old Arabic must have been written in its main features before the language had been extinct, that is about the time of the Conquest of Canaan when the Canaanitish dialect became the adopted tongue of the Israelites. Those who desire to moralize on the credulity of scepticism and on the tomfoolery of advanced Free Church clergymen and religious editors will find ample scope for their reflections in tracing the rise and fall of the Higher Criticism. Wellhausen and the German Rationalists were consistent. They desired to attack the supernatural, and they began by discrediting the Bible. Their clerical followers helped them to discredit the Bible, but the clerics labored to delude the people into the belief that they were purging religion. Let all honest men, whether believers or unbelievers, rejoice in the approaching end of the alliance of hypocrisy and humbug."

"The sphere of ideas as in dress, fashion works potent sway. Credulity is not conformed to orthodoxy. At one time credulity and superstition were naturally bleeded, but recent fashionable opinions have made it plain that scepticism can be as credulous as orthodoxy. Fashion, more than honest conviction, was at the bottom of the craze which is now ebbing on the Higher Criticism. Robertson Smith set the fashion, and the result was that the younger clergy in the Church followed him like a flock of sheep. We hold no brief for orthodoxy, but we do lay stress upon honest investigation. The orthodox party in their day of triumph did great harm by demanding that beliefs should be accepted, not at the dictate of reason but of authority. The Liberal Churchmen rose to alter all that. They were to show how reason and faith could be united. Reason, in their opinion, demanded the acceptance of the results of the Higher Criticism, while faith could still preserve the spiritual lessons of orthodoxy. It now appears that it requires a greater stretch of faith and imagination to accept the Higher Bible as transformed by the Higher Criticism than it does to hold by the traditional view. It is strange that the Higher Critics have not learned humility from past experience. Their humiliating failure when dealing with the New Testament should inspire caution in their handling of the Old. A generation ago those who held by the view that the Old Testament literature belonged to the time of primitive Christianity were voted down as theological fogies. Did not Baur on Hegelian principles demonstrate that from the nature of the case the fundamental ideas upon which orthodox Christianity rests could not have received literary form during the apostolic period? The Pauline theology, according to the Tubingen school, was the outcome of a serious conflict within the Church—a conflict which completely transformed the simple Galilean gospel into a stiff scholastic creed. In order to fit in with the Hegelian theory it was necessary also to give as late a date as possible to the Gospels, a date late enough to allow for the growth of the legendary and miraculous elements which, in the opinion of the Tubingen school, must be eliminated from Christianity at all costs. In regard to the New Testament, opinion, not of interested theologians, but of advanced critics, has come to the point to which opinion is tending on the Old Testament, namely to the discrediting of revolutionary theories. How great is the reaction may be judged from the conclusions arrived at by Professor Harnack, who declares that investigation confirms rather than demolishes the traditional dates of the New Testament books. Scientific criticism of the Bible is urgently needed. Criticism in abundance has come from Germany during the last fifty years. The only result so far is that the critics devour one another."

Canal Built by Joseph 3,500 Years Ago.

There is in Egypt to-day a canal known as the Bahr-Jousuff, or Canal of Joseph, which was built by Joseph the son of Jacob, during the years that he was Prime Minister of the Egyptian King.

The remarkable thing about this canal is that it is still serving the chief purpose for which it was built—that of irrigation. The fertile province of Fayoum is absolutely dependent upon it. This canal is now over 3,500 years old. It is hardly probable that any other engineering work in the world has such a record of combined utility and antiquity. How many of the engineering works of today are likely to last more than three thousand years?

The canal takes its rise from the Nile near Assiout and runs almost parallel with it for nearly two hundred and fifty miles, creeping along under the western cliffs of the Nile Valley, with many a bend and winding, until at length it gains an entrance as compared with the river bed, which enables it to turn westward through a narrow pass and enter a district which is otherwise shut off from the fertilizing floods on which all vegetation in Egypt depends.

The northern end stands seventeen feet above low Nile, whilst the southern it is at an equal elevation with the river. Through this cut runs a perennial stream, which waters a province named the Fayoum, endowing it with fertility and supporting a large population.

Many accounts have been written by Greek and Roman historians, such as Herodotus, Strabo, Batanus and Pliny, and repeated in the monkish legends or portrayed in the maps of the middle ages, which agreed with the folk lore of the district. These tales explained that the canal dug by the ancient Israelite served to carry the surplus waters of the Nile into an extensive lake lying south of the Fayoum, and so large that it not only modified the climate, tempering the arid winds of the desert and converting them into the balmy airs which nourish the vines and olives into a fulness and fragrance unknown in any part of the country, but also added to the food supply of the land such immense quantities of fish that the royal prerogative of the right of piscary at the great weir was valued at $1,250,000 annually. This lake was said to be 150 miles round, and to be navigated by a fleet of vessels, and the whole circumference was the scene of industry and prosperity.—N. Y. World.

Hidden Ones.

Yes, there are such; many of them. "The Lord knoweth them that are his." There are quiet, retiring, lowly followers of Jesus of whom the organized church knows nothing—the Lord's violets, concealed from public view, and revealed only to the careful student of the Christian life by the fragrance of their modest piety. They are found in obscure nooks and corners, in thatched cottages or mud huts in country lanes; or in attics or cellars in great towns, whence the incense of their heart worship ascends to heaven with acceptance because they themselves have already been accepted in the Beloved One. It may be that this simple piety flourishes in a room next door to a demoniac who makes the air tremble by his blindly and blasphemy. It is of no use to deny the Divine Sovereignty. Facts are excellent exponents of doctrine. How comes it that a thin partition is all that separates a lowly loving child of God from a hideous and odious child of the devil? I almost envy these hidden ones. It seems so poetically attractive to go away from the perpetual tumult, and to live alone with Christ. But this looks selfish. I wait until an honorable discharge comes from my Commander. But I wish these hidden ones would not remain in concealment. They have the blessed feeling of communion with brethren in Christ, whose hands and hearts their presence would strengthen in the duty of testimony. I am certain that the organization of great hierarchies has damaged the Christian enormously. The sublime simplicity of apostolic institutions has been destroyed by this crafty device of the enemy. But this is no reason why any disciple of the Lord should become a practical hermit. Every saint should seek the fellowship of "the sons of God."

The question is not one of personal safety; that is a settled matter in the Lord's hands; but it is one of fellowship and witness-bearing. The hidden ones should not continue hidden in these days. They think their light feeble. Probably it is, but it is thoroughly genuine, even from the divine standpoint: therefore it should be set upon a table" that others may see it and glorify God. The disappearance of the smaller stars from the splendid road which the divine Father has placed over our heads would sadly dim its midnight glory. So we want the little lights to come into the church for the benefit of the dark world and the honor of that Wonderful One who leadeth the stars in his right hand and walketh among the golden candlesticks.—Dr. Lansky.

The Power of a Holy Life.

The beauty of a holy life constitutes the most eloquent and effective persuasive to religion which one human being can address to another. We have many ways of doing good to our fellow-creatures; but none so good, so efficacious, as leading a virtuous, upright, and well-ordered life. There is an energy of moral suasion in a good man's life, passing the highest efforts of the orator's genius. The seen but silent beauty of holiness speaks more eloquently of God and duty, than the tongues of men and angels. Let parents remember this. The best inheritance a parent can bequeath to a child is a virtuous example, a legacy of hallowed remembrances and associations. The beauty of holiness through the life of a loved relative or friend, is more effectual to strengthen such as do stand in virtue's way, and lift up those that are bowed down, than precept, command, entreaty, or warning. The beauty of that holiness which is enshrined in the four brief biographies of Jesus of Nazareth, has done more and will do more to spread his religion in the world than all that has ever been preached or written on evidences of Christianity.—Dr. Chalmers.

A Thought for the Middle Aged.

It is the solemn thought connected with middle life that life's last business is begun in earnest; and it is then, midway between the cradle and the grave that a man begins to marvel that he let the day of youth go by so half-enjoyed. It is the pensive autumn feeling; it is the sensation of half sadness that we experience when the longest day of the year is past, and every day that follows is shorter, and the light fainter, and the feeble shadows tell that nature is hastening with gigantic footsteps to her winter grave. So does man look back upon his youth. When the first gray hairs become visible, when the unwelcome truth fastens itself upon the mind that a man is no longer going up hill, but down, and that the sun is always westering, he looks back on things behind. When we were children we thought as children. But now there lies before us manhood, with its earnest work, and then old age, and then the grave, then home. There is a second youth for man, better and holier than the first, if he will look on and not look back.—F. W. Robertson.

On one of the Samoan Islands John Williams found a small chapel and about fifty persons who call themselves Christians, each one of whom wore a white cloth tied on his arm to distinguish him from his neighbors. The leader among them said that he had heard a little about the Christian religion from some people not far away, and that he used to go to them once in a while to bring home some religion. "And when that is gone, I take my canoe and fetch some more. Now, won't you give us a man all full of religion, so that I won't have to risk my life going after it?" This is what is needed in all heathen lands—a "man full of religion."

For one soul saved by scolding and fault-finding, ten are saved by sweetness. For one soul saved by fear of hell, ten are saved by the thought of the love of God. A gentle voice and a smiling face make religion beautiful to the miserable and the sinful, whereas gloomy looks and a harsh or condescending manner make religion seem a thing to be avoided. Do you wish to draw souls to God? Then let your souls reflect his love. Be gentle, sweet, be patient. Practical people may condemn you, but only thus can you imitate Jesus.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the 2nd destruction of the wicked, eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. SEPTEMBER 8, 1897.

SIGNOR Marconi has been making some successful and interesting experiments at Rome, with his wireless telegraphy.

THE Conference at Argos begins on next Friday. We hope to have a good meeting, and that all will come resolved to aid in work for the Master. The time is short, let us improve it.

"THE Spanish government is formulating a plan to bring about the banishment of all Anarchists from Spain. It is announced here that Anarchists will no longer be allowed to land in England and that, therefore, the government of Spain must "deport them to some American republic or to a distant Spanish possession."

"It is easy to shout with the multitude, but it is hard to raise one feeble voice against their loud derisive roar. Yet if that single voice be that of truth, it shall at last be heard in tones of thunder, when the wild strife of tongues which sought to drown it, is hushed in the eternal silence which awaits all lies."

TROUBLE seems to be increasing in unhappy India. To famine, plague, and earthquake, must now be added sedition. We see by an exchange that two British officers have been shot down in the discharge of their civil duties, and seditious pamphlets are freely circulated, which denounce the British Government and seek to inflame the people against it. We see that over four million people are now dependent on, and engaged in Indian Relief works. Six hundred persons were killed in the recent Mohammedan riots in Calcutta.

ON Sunday, Aug. 15th a number of our brethren, and at least one sister in Cleveland, volunteered to go to Beulah Park and distribute among the thousands gathered in attendance upon the so-called Christian Alliance Camp Meeting, Bible Leaflets, but before they had distributed more than a few hundred, they were ordered off the grounds, and forbidden to again distribute such stuff, calculated to upset their work; and the sister, we are informed, was very roughly talked to, and followed out into the public road. Four days later the papers report 700 miraculous cures at one meeting. Singular that God's Truth should be called stuff by men of Faith.

THERE is likely to be great suffering in Russia owing to a failure of the wheat crop. The United States Consul at Odessa, Russia, has reported to the State department that the yield in many places is not more than four bushels to the acre. The newspapers also state that in the Provinces of Tula, Moscow, Orel, and Kursk widespread distress is caused by the drought. The ground is so dry that it is impossible to sow winter wheat. The grass and trees are withering, and the stock is feeding entirely upon dry fodder, which is scarce. There have been numerous forest and peat-bog fires in the Province of Kursk, and the peasants are begging the government to distribute seed and so enable them to resow their fields. Stock is offered for sale at almost any price, as the peasants are unable to feed their cattle. Other provinces are threatened with similar distress.

"THE Transvaal is one of the few countries with pretensions to considerable as civilized powers that debar Jews from all participation in the legislative and municipal government. Moreover, they are disqualified from filling any public office to which a salary is attached, while their schools are the only ones which receive no subsidy from the State. It is largely due to this that efforts of the Boer Secretary of State, Dr. Leyds, to secure support at Paris and Berlin against the British government have met with such signal failure, the immensely powerful influence of the Rothschilds and of the other great Jewish financiers who control the money markets of Europe being exercised against the transvaal. It is asserted alike in London as in Paris that one of the chief objects of the hurried return of Dr Leyds to the Transvaal is to secure legislation removing all the disabilities under which the Jews now labor in the Boer republic."

A DISPATCH forwarded by Sister Tilhanor says that a Jewish Congress is to be held at Basle, Aug. 29, when all the main points of Dr. Herzl's scheme to establish a Jewish Kingdom in Palestine will be discussed. It seems that he has interested the London representatives of the Baron Hirsh charities in the movement, and has instigated the formation of Jewish organizations throughout the world whose sole object is to awaken and keep alive the sentiment favoring such an independent Jewish State. The Doctor declares it to be his purpose to send an expedition to examine thoroughly the land where settlements will be desirable, and to establish systems of telegraph and other modern conveniences before the removal of the Jews there has begun; being firmly of the opinion that the movement has reached the point where practical work can be inaugurated. He thinks this congress will crystalize the sentiment of the Jews by organizing with a capital of two hundred and fifty millions. It seems that not many influential Jews in this country are in favor of the scheme. They are too well situated here, and do not want to be disturbed. But sooner or later they will be disturbed; and judging by Old-World experiences they will be disturbed by apparently natural means. The Word of Jehovah has gone forth, and they will certainly be gathered back to the land of their fathers. Jesus was born to be King of the Jews, and King of the Jews he will be. He will make one nation of them in their own land, Herzl or no Herzl.

"A LONDON despatch says: "The echoes of the Jewish Zionist congress at Basle have created extraordinary stir among the Jews here. Allowing for the enthusiasm and the pathos of these yearnings after a Jewish state in Palestine there are questionings whether the Jews are wise in re-asserting their nationality and so provoking doubts as to their loyalty to their adopted countries. When the time for the fulfilment of prophecy comes, say others, God will not need to rely on the Stock Exchange or on joint stock enterprize. Indeed, it is clear that even were the necessary $250,000,000 forthcoming and did the Sultan's need of money pave the way, the Jews themselves still would have to be won over. Many Polish and Russian Jews are looking rather to the English derelict lands of Essex than to Palestine for homes. They have been the most active buyers at land sales for the last few weeks." Another despatch says: "When Dr. Theodore Herzl, the so-called "new Moses," made his farewell speech at the meeting of scientists at Basle, Switzerland, during the week, he declared the congress had been worthy of itself and of Israel. Then ensued a dramatic scene—tears, kissing, and rejoicing beggaring description. Though Rabbi Adler of London declares that the scientists' congress was mischievous, it is the opinion of the thoughtful in the political world that this movement will have to be reckoned with in the near future. The two main objects upon which an expression of opinion was asked for upon the part of the scientists in all lands were the establishment of a Jewish common center and the formation of the machinery to carry it out, and they were favorably acclaimed by all present." Another one says:—"The Jewish congress at Basle, convened by Dr Herzl of Vienna, has aroused in this country a deeper feeling than one of mere curiosity. It is not altogether a dream that as a part of the final solution of the Eastern question Palestine might find itself a neutral State, guaranteed by the European powers. While in the hearts and heads of cultivated Englishmen the question of the return of the Jews to their promised land has always exercised a strong fascination, although as a matter of practical politics any realization of the dream has seemed to the outsider to be in the far distance, Dr. Herzl's plan of direct purchase from the Sultan has the flavor of the stock exchange, and presents many grave difficulties, of which perhaps the least is the raising of some hundred million dollars for this purpose. It is curious to remember how the greater side of this movement was foreshadowed by the genius of George Eliot, who in "Daniel Deronda" prophesies through the mouth of Mordecai the coming of a new Jewish polity—grand, simple, just, like the old, and the dawn of a day when the outraged Jew shall have an equal defense in the world of nations with the outraged Englishman or American. This great writer's forecasts have ere now been verified in after history, though in this case the fulfillment may not be the scheme adopted by the Basel congress."

An Exhortation.

We are in perilous times and the evidence is not wanting that a subtle influence is at work lulling many to sleep who once seemed all alive and wide-awake as defenders and denunciators of the saving truth of God. There is a cause for this drowsiness of spirit,—this listless way that has come over them. And if they do not want to be left out when the Lord makes up his Jewels, they must awake and do the Master's work; yes,—the work they engaged to do when they gave themselves to him. The night when no man can work may close in on them when they least expect it, and then what about the reward? As the wheels of time rush us on toward the end of life's opportunities let us all look about us and see if any one near and dear to us can be led to the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world; see if any close to us is perishing for lack of knowledge; see if we can help in any way to speak the glorious gospel of the grace of God,—

> "Live for something; be not idle
> Look about us for employ;
> Sit not down to useless dreaming.
> Labor is the sweetest joy."

If we are in Christ we are the light of the world, and are expected to exhibit it in one way and another, if in no other way we can show that we have been with Jesus, and are growing more like him and less like the world. If we fail to do this we will never hear him say, Well done. May God help us to be faithful to one another, to our neighbors, faithful to God and to Christ and all will end well.

"The Isolated Ones."

"Give a piece for the isolated ones," writes a dear Sister away off in the Northwest, where she has for many years been deprived of communion with the saints. We will try to give her a word of good cheer. It may at first seem a strange way, but we are heartily glad she feels her isolation and bewails it. We rejoice that she is lonely and sighs to be with those of like precious faith,—we take this as evidence that she has through God's favor been taken out of the world, and fully realizes that she is not of it, and neither loves it nor is loved by it; that its ways and its pleasures have no charm for her; that like Moses she has counted the cost and made her choice to suffer affliction with the people of God rather than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season, and presently be snuffed out of existence. We are glad she sighs and cries because of her undesirable environment, because this throws her into the company of Jeremiah and Lot and a host of others whose righteous souls were grieved by the iniquity abounding all around them. We rejoice that she is found with that noble class of mourners which Jesus says shall be comforted. And while it is true that hope deferred is apt to make the heart sick, sometimes, the absolute certainty of ultimate realization ought to sustain one,—and it will, if the mind habitually reverts to this unique feature of the Christian's hope; and the eye of faith be steadily fixed upon the mark of the prize. Our dear lonely sister must remember that she enlisted, not only to reign with Christ, but also to

SUFFER WITH HIM.

The sufferings come first; the crowns come later. This is the suffering time. Some suffer in one way and some in another; and we have the Spirit's word for it that the suffering rule is of universal application. In so many words we are told that he who would live Godly in Christ, shall suffer persecution; so that it is useless to think of evading it. But there is one phase of this subject which must surely have its full weight. Every thing suffered for the gospel's sake is regarded as suffering with Christ, along with him,—there are sufferings of Christ remaining behind,—a share for each, Col. i. 24, and it must not be forgotten that suffering with Christ is one of the conditions of

REIGNING WITH HIM;

2 Tim. ii. 12. Romans viii. 17, says, "If we are children, then heirs,—heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him that we may be glorified together;" and Phil. i. 29 says, "For unto you it is given in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but to suffer for his sake.' From all this it is clear that suffering is a part of our patrimony; and is so understood by every intelligent believer. So we say to our Sister she must not think concerning her trials as if some strange thing had happened to her, but rejoice, inasmuch as she is a partaker of Christ's sufferings, that when his glory shall be revealed she may be glad with exceeding great Joy. "If ye be reproached for the name of Christ happy are ye, for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you....."Yet if any man suffer as a Christian let him not be ashamed,—but on this behalf." Evidently our Sister suffers isolation and ostracism as a Christian,—and we congratulate her on this account; that is, because considered worthy of this distinction. Not that affliction for the present seemeth joyous, but grievous, but afterward it yields the peaceable fruit of righteousness to those thus exercised. Heb. xii. 11. This is a never-failing spring of Joy; especially at this time when everything goes to show that it wont be long before the fruits of righteousness will be reaped. We verily believe that the Lord is at hand. We believe that very soon the command to gather his saints to him will be given. And oh, to stand approved before him should engage our earnest effort. To see him who was slain in our behalf, and hear his welcome plaudit will more than make amends for all we are capable of suffering for the truth's sake. Then let our lonely Sister and all the lonely ones cheer up. The general assembly will soon take place; and then the faithful are ever with the Lord. He leads them to living fountains of water and wipes away all tears; there will be nothing to cry about. Glorious prospect this, for the faithful.

LET HIM GLORIFY GOD

The dear Sister need not trouble herself about John vi. 53. Verse 63 will tell her what the life-giving bread is.

For Our Children.

Two Ideals.

William is five and Margaret seven—
Dear little comforters, gifts of heaven!
They stand one day by their mother's chair,
Fondling her face and stroking her hair.

"When I'm a man," said William the bold,
"When I'm a man I'll be good as gold,
I will be good as papa is now."
And his sister answered, with earnest bow,

"Yes, Willie dear, if you're good as he,
You'll be just as good as a man can be—
Will he not mamma?" With faith and pride,
"He cannot be better," the dear one replied.

O Christ, the forgiving! O Father in heaven!
Would I were as pure as the girl of seven!
Blot out the sins of the past yet alive,
Make me as true as the boy of five.

THE SOJOURN AT SINAI.

We forgot to say anything about the use of leaven or honey with the Bread-offering, didn't we?

Leviticus ii. 11, says, "No meat-offering which ye shall bring unto the Lord, shall be made with leaven; for ye shall burn no leaven or honey, in any offering made by fire unto the Lord."

Then why was leaven used in making the wave-loaf? Was it not what we would call a Bread-offering? Lev. xxiii. 17. Certainly it was. It is so called in the sixteenth verse. Two loaves were to be made, of two tenth deals of fine flour, fallen with leaven. But these loaves were first-fruit offerings, offered fifty days after the first sheaf of the harvest was presented to the Lord. They were offered at the "Feast of Weeks," "Feast of Fruits," or "Feast of Pentecost," as it is variously called. They were not burned; they were only waved or heaved before the Lord. The law was that "no leaven or honey should be burned, in any offering made by fire unto the Lord. This explains the matter.

A part of the other Bread-offerings were burned, and "the blood of God's sacrifice, could not be offered with leavened bread." Ex. xxiii. 18, xxxix. 25.

William Jenks, the editor of a large commentary on the Bible, thinks that both leaven and honey were offered with the oblation of first-fruits at harvest. He draws this conclusion from Lev. ii. 12. And this would be all right, for the first-fruit offerings consisted of some part of the best of every thing and were not offerings for sin, but a free-will offering—to the Lord, of which all might eat and rejoice together. Deut. xii. 11, 12; xvi. 10, 11. Both leavened and unleaved bread could be offered with the Peace-offerings. Lev. vii. 12, 13. We shall get to these by and by. Have you forgotten why no leaven could be used at The Feast of Unleavened Bread? Answer quick. "It is the symbol of sin," —that little boy says over there. That is right, sin works like leaven. One wicked child will often spoil a whole school, and one wicked man a whole nation. If you let sin take possession of you it will spoil you. It will keep working and working until there will be no good left in you. You will be just as worthless as a batch of rotten dough. You cannot help or strengthen any one else. Your life will tell no one of the power of Jesus' love. It will point no one to the shining spires of the city of gold. It will only make other people bad,—it will only drag them down to ruin and death.

It would not have been fitting to use leaven in offerings that were made to picture the sinless Savior. His life was not to be corrupting. It was not going to make people sinful. It was not to be a bit like leaven. It was to be full of all sweet and holy and heavenly influences, that would purify and strengthen and help onward to the everlasting, incorruptible life. Try hard to have your life like the life of Jesus.

But why could not honey be used with offerings that were made by fire unto the Lord? Mr. Munro Gibson says, "It was because the Hebrews associated honey with the thought of fermentation."

Perhaps they made a kind of metheglin, such as the people who settled this country used to make. If not this, some other kind of drink, must have been used that was made from honey. It would be good when fresh, but would soon work and become sour like vinegar.

So honey would also be a symbol of corruption.

Have you read the second chapter of Leviticus? You must. It tells about the Bread-offerings. We forgot to say that salt must never be lacking from any offering. The friendship and love of God is pictured in all this strange way of worship.

After the temple was built there was a chamber in the court that was called the chamber of salt. The salt and the wood for the offerings were provided at the public expense. Ezra vii. 22.

PEACE OFFERINGS, EX. III.

These might be from the cattle, the sheep or the goats, a male, or a female without blemish. The offerer laid his hand upon the head of the animal and killed it at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. Aaron's son sprinkled its blood upon the altar round about. For in the Peace-offerings, as well as in all the other sacrifices there seems to have been the thought of atonement.

It takes everything that God has commanded to make obedience perfect. There is no half-way house. The heart is not right with God, that would make part of his commandments of no importance. If our love for God is real we will want to do all that he has told us to do.

If the offering was from the cattle, the fat from the inwards, the kidneys with their fat, and the caul above the liver, were taken out and laid upon the perpetual burnt-offering of the morning and evening sacrifice, and were burned with it. If the offering was a lamb, the whole rump was burned with the inward parts. If it was a goat, the same parts were burned as if it were a bullock.

But why was the Peace-offering laid upon the continual burnt-offering? Because peace comes from acceptance. "In the sin-offering there was forgiveness, in the burnt-offering acceptance, in the bread-offering consecration, and now in the peace-offering, there is peace and joy." "Justified by faith, we have peace with God." The offerer believed God. He had faith that he would save him, if he obeyed by making the appointed offerings; he has done all, and has a right to be glad.

Turn now to Lev. vii. 11-37. We have said that part of the Peace-offering was to be burned—that was God's part, it was the food of the burnt-offering. The best of all goes to the great and good Giver. We show our gratitude and love by thinking of him first. The best of what was left went to Aaron and his sons. This was the breast. It was waved toward the tabernacle to show that the high-priest "had the privilege of going into the holy place." And the right shoulder that was heaved toward the altar by the assistant-priest. 32 and 33 verses. These parts were given to Aaron and to his sons by a statute forever. 34 ver. The remainder belonged to the worshipper.

It all went to show that the dear God rejoiced with his obedient children, and was ever ready to share with them in the gladness of this meeting at his table.

But a caution is necessary,—the food must be eaten on the day that it is slain, or on the next day,—the sins that the man has committed will not be taken away if he eats it on the third day,—if any is left it must be burned.

If any man had any uncleanness about him, or had touched any unclean thing and ate "of the sacrifice of peace offerings that pertained unto the Lord," the penalty was death! How careful God is to have his people do just as he tells them.

Jesus said, "So I come to do thy will, O God." That is the lesson that all these things are to teach us. We are to walk in the steps of Jesus.

We are through with the offerings now. But read the 45th and 46th chapters of Ezekiel. And you will find that restored Israel will offer the same offerings as of old. Shall we follow Israel to Canaan? We will see.

AUNTIE WINCE

Obituary.

William Thompson was born in Fayette County, Ind. Dec. 24, 1825, and died at his residence near Argos, Ind. Sept. 1, 1897, aged 71 years, 8 months and 7 days. He was a son of John Thompson, and came with his parents to Marshall County in 1837, settling near Maxinuckee Lake in Union Township. He was married to Christena S. Low, Jan. 22, 1857, who died Oct. 25, 1885. He leaves two children, Josie and John, four sisters,—Mrs. Emily Morris, Mrs. Jane Shirley, Mrs. Nancy Shaw and Mrs. Sarah A. Low, besides many other relatives and friends who mourn for him.

He united with the Church of God at Old Pisgah about fifty years ago, afterwards he lived at Plymouth and other parts of the County, finally having his name placed on the books of the Argos church Jan. 9, 1877. He was always quiet and unassuming, firm, yet kind to all, so making friends everywhere. Honorable in business relations, he leaves to his children the remembrance of an honest father.

He was one of the first white settlers of this County, knew the Indians who were here then by name, and saw them removed to the reservations west of the Mississippi. He lived to witness the wilderness develop into a garden spot, and the cities and towns of the County spring up, with all their varied activities. Through it all he lived his quiet life, faithfully serving his Master, and has at last after a long sojourn here gone the way of all mankind.

The funeral was held at the Argos Church Sept. 2, with services by Brother J. L. Wince, after which he was laid away in the grave where he sleeps awaiting the summoning angel, who will call him forth to life now very soon. It will only be for a "little while," and all the faithful will come forth. May we each one live so that the Master will call for us to meet him in his own good time. A. R. F.

Announcement.

The Northwest Conference of the Church of God will convene on Friday Oct. 8, at the Lake Shore School house, Wash., and continue over the following Sunday. Brothers and Sisters we once more appeal to you to come and enjoy a short season with us talking over the things concerning Jesus the resurrection and the kingdom of God. Come with your hearts full of love and self-sacrifice, and we are sure you will not have come in vain. Those coming from a distance will be met at the Esmond hotel, Vancouver, on Friday. Those who cannot come until Saturday will be met at the same place at 1 o'clock on Saturday, by addressing me at Felida, Wash. The brethren at this place extend a hearty welcome to all those who will attend.

JOHN E. MCLEAN, Sec'y.

Poetry.

Selections.

I've found the Pearl of greatest price,
My heart doth sing for joy:
And sing I must, for Christ is mine;
Christ shall my song employ.

My Christ, he is the Lord of lords,
He is the King of kings:
He is the Sun of Righteousness,
With healing in his wings.

Christ is my Savior, and my Friend,
My Brother and my love,
My head, my hope, my Counsellor,
My Advocate above.

He is the all-and all to me,
Now and forevermore:
I shall 'fix face and glory see,
And ever Him adore.

Lord, in thy great and glorious name,
I place my hope, my only trust:
Save me from sorrow, guilt and shame,
Thou ever gracious, ever just

Thou art my Rock—thy name alone
The fortress where my hopes repose;
O, make thy pow'r and mercy known;
To safety guide my wand'ring foes.

Though in the Lord, strong friends
Who never fail, never leave,
The sacred walls which guard my soul,
Are his Almighty power and love.

Ye humble souls, who seek his face,
Let sacred courage fill your heart!
Hope in the Lord, and trust his grace,
And he shall heavenly strength impart.

The Hope of the Gospel.

"He will present you holy and unblameable and unreprovable in his sight, if ye continue in the faith, grounded and settled, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel." Col. i. 22, 23.

To be a participant in the coming era of glory, so near at hand, should be the highest ambition of every right thinking person. Every ambition, pleasure or pursuit that is earth-born, will fade away, as everything earthly must, and the pleasure or profit which may proceed from them is temporary, and can possess no lasting vitality.

But beyond the storm and strife, contention, failure, and the adverse things of time and sense, looms up the glory and the crown, the victory and the palm, the joy, pleasure and pursuit that will never disappoint, but will be as abiding as the unceasing years of the Eternal.

These blessings are reserved for "the" holy, unblameable and unreprovable in his sight," and none can attain that character, unless they CONTINUE in the faith, (both doctrinally and practically) grounded and settled, and be not MOVED AWAY from the hope of the gospel," unless they had first entertained that hope, which is an outgrowth of "the faith."

HOW IS FAITH OBTAINED?

"So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God" Rom. x. 17.

See verse 8: "The Word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart; that is THE WORD OF FAITH which we preach." To further unfold what "the Word of faith" is, see 1 Pet. i. 25: "The Word of the Lord endureth forever, and this is the Word which by the gospel is preached unto you."

See also Phil. i. 27: "Stand fast in one spirit, with one mind, striving together for THE FAITH OF THE GOSPEL."

"The faith" is "the faith of the gospel." How is it possible that a united "striving together for the faith of the gospel," is to be had, unless there is first a united agreement as to what the faith of the gospel consists of? The faith of the gospel cannot be anything else than the great salvation first preached by the Lord. "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him." Heb. ii. 3. Peter was sent to preach this "great salvation" to Cornelius, and said: "That Word, (the Word of faith) I say, ye know, which was published throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached." Acts x. 37. It is an easy matter to determine what this is, when we have the statement, that the place it commenced, was "Galilee," and the time, after the baptism which John preached." This is found in Mark i. 14: "Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God." This passage is a nail in a sure place, the time, place and subject-matter of his preaching, is distinctly given, and every one who is simple-hearted enough to receive the kingdom of God as a little child, will surely accept it, and live in harmony with its provisions, and become "grounded and settled," and being thus "grounded," will "continue in THE faith," and "be not moved away from THE hope of THE gospel." The definite adjective "the," prefacing the words, "faith," "hope" and "gospel," effectually prohibits a duality of faiths, etc.

Jesus says: "THE truth shall make you free." The phrase "Make you free," suggests the existence of a bondage from which it is desirable to be released, and that bondage is sin, which will culminate in "the second death," from which there is no possible chance of escape, unless released from the galling yoke of sin. How important, then, to find the way of release. "The truth shall make you free." What truth? "THE truth," that is, some one specific truth. Jesus has told us just what truth that is, which can release from the direful consequences of sin. All truth may be important, but this one truth, called "The truth" alone has redeeming efficacy in it. If in searching the Scriptures we find some truth which will certainly release those who believe and obey it, and condemn those who refuse to do so, then we can be assured that is "THE truth (which) shall make you free," because there is but one truth, "THE truth," in which redeeming power is centered. Remember "There is ONE body and ONE spirit, even as ye are called in ONE hope of your calling; ONE Lord, ONE FAITH, one baptism, ONE God (not a trinity of gods) and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all." Eph. iv. 1-6.

"The truth" which will either save, or condemn, according as it is received, is recorded in Mark xvi. 15, 16. "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be SAVED, but he that believeth not shall be DAMNED."

The gospel is the message which will either save or condemn. The subject-matter of the gospel is the truth which "shall make you free." No other message, (be it truth or error) has the efficacy to "make free." The subject-matter of the truth which makes free, is found in Acts viii. 12: "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women." The message, or truth, becomes efficacious only to those who are baptized after a belief of the gospel truth. Baptism received before receiving a knowledge of the truth which makes free, is of no account.

The promise in the Scripture at the head of this paper, is all important, and very desirable, and can only be realized "if you continue in THE FAITH, grounded and settled, and be not moved away from THE HOPE OF THE GOSPEL."

Who are without hope? Eph. ii. 12: "At that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the COVENANTS OF PROMISE, having NO HOPE, and WITHOUT GOD in the world."

Now as the Scriptures affirm, that there is but "one hope," and that those who are "aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise," have "no hope," hence the gospel—the covenants of promise relating to Israel's commonwealth, is "the truth" which "shall make you free."

Popular sentiment holds "the truth" which makes free at a discount. If a person is only sincere in his belief, (though it may be error) and lives an exemplary life, false charity judges such an one sure of the blessings promised obedient believers. The boasted broad-minded liberality of the flesh, does not harmonize with the "narrow way" of Christ—"He that believeth and is baptized, shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned." An exemplary life cannot substitute for faith and obedience but should be an outgrowth resulting from it.

In harmony with the above I quote the following: "That there should be so much philosophical hostility to belief, is a matter for surprise. Belief is no invention of creed makers; it is the natural, constant, essential act of finite minds. We cannot mentally exist without it. If we don't believe in religious creeds, we believe in something. We cannot help believing. It is the mainspring of all intelligent action—the source of every sensation of happiness and woe. What makes a man toil all day? because he believes he will get his wages; would he do so, if he did not? Why is the condemned criminal so overwhelmed and dejected? Because he believes that his death will take place at an early day: but let him be told that a reprieve has arrived, and he flies into ecstacies of joy. Why? Because he believes that he shall escape the doom that was impending over him. Our whole commercial system is based on belief, and the moment that society begins to be distrustful, that is unbelieving, then we have a panic, and all the evils that come in its train. So in religious matters; belief is the first principle, the foundation of practical faith, the source of spiritual ecstacy, the cause of consistent action.

Now what is belief? It is the assent of the mind to definite points of information. Before belief can take place, the mind must be informed; that is, it must first know, or be aware of the subject of belief. The issue, therefore, lies between belief and unbelief—not between bigotry and charity. Religious liberality sounds well, but what is it? It means indifference, for yourself and neighbor, to what God has required at your hands. Liberality is pleasanter for this life than the narrow way. In the broader road, in respectable company, with the delights of intellect, and the sweets of refinement, myriads of people are delightfully escorted to destruction. God grant that some reader of this paper may be enticed from the worldly throng, and be induced to cast in his lot or her lot with a humble people, who in the spirit of profoundest regard for the Word of the living God, are seeking to do his will according to his revealed requirements.

Belief of the gospel (and not some delusion of the apostacy) is the first condition of salvation. This, however, is not all. A man may believe in the glorious promises of God, and yet not be a participator in them. He must be baptized, as we have seen: he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved.

New Testament examples show that baptism in water was a rite attended to by all who believed the truth in those early times. Surely what was necessary or appropriate in the first Christians, is just as necessary and appropriate in Christians of the nineteenth century. It is by no means fashionable, however, to take this view. The generality of professing Christians argue against the necessity of baptism in their case and prefer to risk neglect on their own responsibility.

Many think it too simple an act to hinge so great a result upon. We must remember that it is the matter of obedience that saves, and not the act of baptism. It was the act of obedience that saved the serpent-bitten Israelite, and not the simple looking at the brazen serpent. Likewise it was the principle of obedience that cleansed Naaman of leprosy. No matter how contrary to worldly wisdom the commands of God may appear, it is very foolish to hazard disobedience.

As we near the culmination of the age let us be wise, and yield a complete obedience to every requirement of of God, and no matter what it may be, and the God of peace will prosper and bless all who so live.

28. He who trusteth in riches will fall: but he who intervenes for the justified will arise.

29. He who doth not attend to the affairs of his own house will inherit the wind: and a person without good sense will serve as a bond-servant a person with good sense.

30. From the fruit of righteousness is planted a tree life; but the untimely souls of evaders of law are being taken away.

31. If the justified with difficulty are being saved, the irreverent and the obdurate sinner where will he appear?

CHAPTER 12.

1. The one who loveth chastening loveth perception; but the one who hateth reproofs (or to be convinced) is without good sense.

2. More efficient is the man who findeth favor in the estimation of the Lord: but a man who is an evader of law will have been disregarded in silence.

3. A mere man will not restore to uprightness from lawless conduct.

4. A manly wife is a garland-crown for her husband; but even as a worm in wood doth a wife as an evil-doer destroy a husband.

5. The reasonings of the justified are judicial-renderings; but the irreverent give direction to acts of deceit.

6. The words of the irreverent are deceitful: but the mouth of the upright will deliver them.

7. Wherever the irreverent may turn he vanisheth away; but the houses of the justified abide.

8. The mouth of him who hath understanding is praised by a man who is a man: but a dull-of-heart is despised.

9. More efficient is a man in dishonor who serveth himself as a bond-servant as one who arrayeth himself in honor and is a solicitor for bread.

10. A justified man pitieth his domestic animals' souls: but the emotions of the irreverent are without mercy.

11. The one who tilleth his own land will have been fully supplied with bread: but those who pursue after inutilities are in want of good sense: He who is pleased with (lit. "is sweet on" —a modern slang also—) wine-pastimes, will leave behind him dishonor in his own walls.

12. The longing desires of the irreverent are bad: but the roots of the truly-reverent are in walled-places.

18. Because of the sin of the lips an obdurate sinner falleth into snares; but a justified person escapeth out of them. The one who regardeth smoothly will have experienced mercy: but he who meeteth in gate-ways (goeth to law) will wear out souls.

14. From the fruits of one's mouth will a man's soul have been filled with good things, and a repayment for his lips will have been given him.

15. The ways of the thoughtless are upright in their own sight: but a wise man will hearken to fellow-counsel.

16. A thoughtless person declareth his wrath the same day, but a subtle man hideth his own dishonor.

17. A justified person publisheth faith that is being demonstrated: but the witness to unjust things is deceitful.

18. Swords are those who when they speak wound; but tongues of wise men heal.

19. Truthful lips restore testimony to uprightness: but a swift witness hath an unjust tongue.

20. A deceitful man deviseth evil things in heart; but those who counsel peace will have been made to rejoice.

21. Nothing wrong will be pleasing to the justified: but the irreverent will have been filled with evil things.

22. An abomination to the Lord are lying lips; but the one who doeth reliable things is acceptable with him.

23. A man of understanding is a throne of perception; but the heart of those without good sense will meet with curses.

24. The hand of the elect will hold control in a handy way; but deceitful men will be in a state of foray.

25. A word to be feared disturbeth the heart of a justified man; but good news causeth him to rejoice.

26. A justified umpire will be his own friend; but evil results will pursue after those who [illegible], and the way of the irreverent will [illegible].

27. A deceitful man will not shoot at game; but a clean man of an honorable acquisition.

28. In ways of righteousness is life; but the ways of those who cherish evil are unto death.

The Prophet Micah.

Commences his warning message to Israel chapter I. verse 3, thus:—"Behold Jehovah cometh out of his place, and will come down and tread upon the high places of the earth." He predicted that because of the iniquity of the heads of the house and their rulers "Zion should be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem should become heaps, and the mountain of the Lord's House as the high places of the forest." He goes on to say that Zion and Jerusalem, although thus trodden underfoot of destroyers, should not always be thus alas! He [illegible] sides with Isaiah, and testifies in the very same words, that in the latter days it shall come to pass that the mountain of the House of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills, and peoples shall flow unto it, and many nations shall come and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the House of the God of Jacob and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths, for the law shall go forth of Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he shall judge among many peoples and rebuke strong nations afar off, and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

The kingdom of Jehovah which the prophet terms "The mountain of the House of Jehovah "shall have the sovereignty over the empires and kingdoms of the earth, and that all nations shall concentrate around its throne; that they will in consequence walk in his ways—war shall be abolished, peace established as the order of the day, and good will everywhere prevail. He further testifies that Israel will then be a strong nation with Christ reigning over them in Mount Zion from henceforth and for the ages." The first dominion shall come to Zion and the kingdom to the daughter of Jerusalem. He testifies that when the time of this deliverance shall arrive, the daughter of Zion, composed of the twelve tribes of Israel (with Christ and the saints over them) shall arise and thresh with horn of iron and hoof of brass, and beat in pieces many people, whose spoil shall be consecrated to Jehovah the Judge of Israel and the sovereign ruler of the whole earth who in the days of his humanity and humility should be "smitten on the cheek" with a rod by the rebellious."

Isaiah foretold that the Judge of Israel should come of the house of David, and Micah predicted he should be born in Bethlehem Ephratah. He came to his own land and his own people did not receive him, and he abandoned them to their calamities until the time of his apocalypse in power,—when as the antitype of Joseph he will make himself known to his brethren at his second interview as God's Messiah. And then they will mourn on account of what their fathers have done. "For this is my covenant with them when I will take away their sins.

This new covenant is yet to be made with the house of Israel and the house of Judah; "for they are yet beloved for their Father's sake;" see Jer. xxxi.; Heb. viii. and Rom. xi. "Oh the depths of the riches, both of the wisdom and the knowledge of God; how unsearchable are his judgments and his ways past finding out"

J. O. WOODWORTH.

Selections.

Created men have long memories.

"God and man both enjoy a good listener."

Genius finds its own road, and carries its own lamp.

God has his eyes on your heart, and your tongue cannot deceive him.

You can't strengthen a fence by whitewashing it, or a man's character.

Many a believer lives in the cottage of doubt when he might live in the mansion of faith.

It is not till the thoughts can find rest in nothing but God, that a man is drawn close to God himself and becomes his.

"Earth's joys are but a dream: its destiny
Is but decay and death. Its fairest Sunshine and shadow mixed. Its brightest day
A rainbow braided on the wreaths of storm."

The experience and possession of divine pity is better than bodily ease, freedom from trouble, or the greatest worldly prosperity.

I shall lose this life: it will disappear,
With its wonderful mystery:
Some day it will move no longer here,
But will vanish silently.
But I know I shall find it again once more,
In a beauty no song hath told:
It will meet me at the golden door,
And around me forever fold.

The wish falls often warm upon my heart that I may learn nothing here that I cannot continue in the other world: that I may do nothing here but deeds that will bear fruit in heaven.—Richter.

Pining souls! come nearer Jesus
And O come not doubting thus;
But with faith that trusts more bravely
His large tenderness for us.

If our love were but more simple,
We should take him at his word,
And our lives would be all sunshine
In the sweetness of our Lord.

While dark storms of human wrath are gathering in our national skies, it is comforting to remember that high above the storm there is One enthroned who "maketh the wrath of man to praise him," and with almighty strength restrains "the remainder of wrath." In God we trust.

Worn and weary, oft the pilgrim
Hails the setting of the sun,
For his goal is one day nearer,
And his journey nearly done.
Thus we feel when o'er life's desert
Heart and sandal-sore we roam,
As the twilight gathers o'er us,
We are one day nearer home.

Some Christians admire giving up something, under the notion of its being for Christ, when they are not called upon to give it up; which is just as if a son were, without any reason in the world, to stab himself in order to show his affection for his father. This is a theatric kind of perfection, of which the apostles knew nothing.

Remember, if the night cause rest,
To make more bright the morn,
We would not bind with untold joy
The coming of the dawn.
And if our life were but one scene
Of pure, unending bliss,
We might grow weak upon our way,
And live our time amiss.

Earth's joys and sorrows are alike fleeting. Its beauties and blemishes will soon be among the things of the past; and, as Dr. Cummings says, "some few years hence it will matter very little what we have suffered if we find this, that we have washed our robes in the Lamb's precious blood, and that our righteousness is the righteousness of our Lord."

We know of no other way by which to keep the love of the world out of our heart, than to keep in our hearts the love of God; and no other way by which to keep our hearts in the love of God, than building ourselves upon our most holy faith. That denial of the world which is not possible to him that dissents from the gospel testimony, is possible, even as all things are possible, to him that believeth. To try this without faith, is to work without the right tool of the right instrument; but faith worketh by love; and the way of expelling from the heart the love which transgresseth the law, is to admit into its receptacles the love which fulfilleth the law.—Chalmers.

Report of Meetings.

Editor Restitution:

Wednesday July 21, my father, Eld. E. M. Anderson, and myself left our home near Pelzer, S. C., for a visit to our former home in Henderson Co., N. C. The first night we spent at Bro. S. Jones' in Greenville Co., S. C. Thursday morning Bro. Jones' took his carriage and went with us. That day we crossed the mountains which separate South Carolina from North Carolina, and by night had reached Bro. Patterson's where we spent the night. Friday we went on to Liberty where we found the brethren still carrying on the work under the pastorship of Eld. J. M. Lyda. The brethren had made arrangement for two days meeting, so on Saturday morning Eld. Lyda preached. He was followed by Bros. S. Jones, E. M. Gibbs and J. M. Lyda. In the afternoon the writer spoke, several of the brethren followed with short talks. Sunday morning father preached, after the sermon seven persons requested baptism. In the afternoon we had several talks from the brethren and another young man requested baptism. We closed the service by taking the Lord's Supper. That evening we started home which place we reached on Tuesday. The following Sunday we began a week's meeting at our home church, five miles from Pelzer, S. C. This meeting was conducted by my father, assisted by Bros. Jesse Garret, James Hammons, W. T. Dickerson, Joseph Brewer and Richard Chamber. The meeting lasted till the next Sunday, Aug. 8. The last day of the meeting Bros. Sportim, S. Jones, D. T. Pitts, John Brewer, James Harris and Wm. Hammons were baptized. I cannot give the names of those who requested baptism in North Carolina as I do not know all who were candidates for baptism there.

J. H. Anderson.

Editor Restitution:

On Saturday before the first Sunday in August, according to previous announcement Bro. Geo. Kidwell of Arkansas commenced a protracted meeting at the Hix school house east of Climax Springs, in Camden Co., Mo., and continued eight days. While there was no one came out on the Lord's side, yet from the close attention given by the people and the favorable expressions of the preaching we believe there was seed sown that will yet bring forth fruit unto life eternal. The Baptists are strong at this place. One West, a preacher, made a faint attack on our brother, but when he was shown the weapon of his warfare (the glittering Sword of the Spirit) he failed to renew the attack. The few members at this place are strong in the faith, and are actively working in the Master's cause, among whom is Sister Mary E. Howard, a noble and self-sacrificing example. From this place we went to Spout Spring, in Hickory Co., and commenced a meeting, continuing nearly two weeks. The brethren from Camden Co., came with a tent and camped on the ground during the meeting. The visible results of this meeting was that eight willing souls came out on the Lord's side and was buried with Christ in baptism and arose to walk a new life. In the beginning of the second week of this meeting the Latter Day Saints plotted to stone Bro. Kidwell, but the plot was discovered and Bro. Kidwell publicly made it known and supplemented it with this statement that he was no better than Stephen who was stoned to death. They again plotted to do him violence by a young Latter Day Saint approaching Bro. Kidwell at the stand (when all were dismissed) with an open concealed knife in hand, called him a liar, when this was done an outsider darted under the book board and with a blow sent the Saint running through the crowd, when everything became quiet again. And through the remainder of the meeting the best of order was maintained with an increasing interest to the end. The Latter Day Saint challenged Bro. Kidwell for a discussion which will come off next August when he will be here again to hold another meeting. The writer of this has promised to be with the brethren at Spout Spring once a month to strengthen and build them up as best he can.

Yours truly in the one hope,

Frank Fowler.

Brother Underwood:

Please say through The Restitution that my son, J. E. Hatch, has moved in with us and I can now do some preaching wherever called, unless too far from home.

J. S. Hatch.

Announcement.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, in Michigan, will convene (D. V.) at Millbrook, Mecosta Co., Michigan, on Friday evening, Oct. 1st, 1897, and continue over the following Sunday. The brethren at Millbrook have earnestly requested that the meeting might be held there, feeling that by our united effort much good might be done. All of like precious faith are invited. Train leaves Grand Rapids at 7:10 A. M. via Grand Rapids and Western R. R. formerly Detroit, Lansing and Northern R. R. via Sparta, Greenville, changing cars at Edmore, waiting there about 20 minutes taking the Big Rapids Division to Blanchard, reaching there at 10:00 A. M. where the brethren will meet any who come on morning trains. Another train leaves Grand Rapids at 1:20 P. M. Blanchard at 6:00 P. M., Blanchard is two miles from Becker Blanchard House where the meeting will be held. This church has only recently joined the conference and the brethren are very anxious to have a sweet soul gathering. Will all that can, come up to the help of the Master. The signs of the times show to us who are waiting and watching the near coming of our Savior that we should improve the time. Besides all this such a reunion always helps us. We feel that we have a foretaste of what is to come.

Yours for the Truth,

Emma Jackman, Sec'y.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith in Indiana will be held at Argos, Indiana, commencing Friday, 3 P. M., Sept. 10, 1897 and continue over the following Sunday.

This is another privilege we have of meeting again for the purpose of renewing and strengthening our vows to the Master in his glorious cause. We believe the time very near when he shall come to take to himself his bride, the chosen ones, and with them to rule the world in righteousness. Therefore it behooves us to be watchful and prayerful, keeping ourselves always in readiness lest he come upon us as a thief in the night. Let all put forth an effort to attend this meeting and work to the one end, that of the promotion of the cause we have espoused.

The brethren here extend a hearty welcome to all who desire to attend.

J. F. Wagoner, Pres.

A. C. Roberts, Sec.

The twelfth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held in the park at Cambridge, Nebraska, beginning on Friday, Sep. 10th, and holding over ten days. We earnestly hope that this will be the largest and the best meeting ever held. Let us one and all work for this end; and let us make up our minds that, if we possibly can, we will attend this meeting, and we will try to get others to attend. Come with a desire to work for the Master and to receive his blessing; and we feel sure that you will not have come in vain. Before the Conference, each church in the State is requested to meet and vote for the persons whom they wish to have fill the offices of President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, Evangelist, and Assistant Evangelist for the coming year; and to send the votes to the Secretary by the 16th of August. Please do not neglect this as we wish for the votes of all. Once more requesting you to come and spend ten days with those of like precious faith, in the service of the Master, I am your Sister in Christ,

Rena M. Gordon, Sec.

Tract Fund.

We the undersigned, realizing that the distributing of tracts is a good way to spread the truth and that the time is short in which we can work for the Master, do hereby agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of raising a fund to be used in supplying tracts to those who will distribute them free.

Previously subscribed,	$38.85

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy.

Doctrines are of use only as they are practiced. Men may go to perdition with their heads full of truth. To hold the truth and fight for it is one thing. To be sanctified through it is another.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can hold us in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Ask warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think [illegible] will save them? Have you [illegible] who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Notice.

Will our friends please remember that we do not have the books and tracts at this office that are advertized by Brother Joblin, or Brother Wiley Jones. Do not send to this office for them, but send to their address as given in the advertisement. This will save both trouble and delay. PLEASE REMEMBER.

Kansas and Missouri Tent Fund.

We the undersigned agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing a tent to be used in evangelizing in the States of Kansas and Missouri. Subscriptions and pledges may be sent to The Restitution or direct to the Chairman of the Committee, Joseph Shellenberger, Mound City, Mo.

Low Rates, via Pennsylvania Lines.

Special reductions in fare over the Pennsylvania Lines will be granted for numerous events to take place this summer in various parts of the United States, in addition to local excursions. Some of the points to which tickets will be sold and dates of sale are as follows:

To Nashville, Tenn., daily to October 15th, for Tennessee Centennial and International Exposition.

To Indianapolis, September 8th and 9th, for National Encampment Sons of Veterans.

The reduced rates over the Pennsylvania Lines will not be restricted to members of the organizations mentioned, but may be taken advantage of by the public generally. Excursion tickets may be obtained at ticket offices on the Pennsylvania System and will also be sold over this route by connecting railways. Any Pennsylvania Line Ticket or Passenger Agent will furnish desired information concerning rates, time of trains, return limit, and other details, to all applicants, or the same may be obtained by addressing C. L. Kimball, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.

Commencing Sunday June 20, and continuing each Sunday thereafter until further notice the Pennsylvania R. R. will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return from Plymouth for $1.00 the round trip. Tickets are good on train No. 15 leaving Plymouth at 5.20 A. M. and returning on train No. 4 leaving Chicago at 11.30 P. M.

It is wonderful what strength and boldness of purpose and energy of will come from the feeling that we are in the way of duty.

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism, by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. 10 cents each. Send to this office.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in the subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

QUESTIONS FOR THE SERIOUS AND THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 96 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Hell and kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a digest of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. This clearly sets forth the idea that the Coming Nation will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 24 pages price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

A PARABOLIC BATTLEFIELD, OR ERROR'S WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those seeking for truth. 16 pages 5 cents each.

Necessity of Baptism. A 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Bible Plan of Salvation. A 4-page tract telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. 2 cts each or 15 cts per dozen.

An open Letter to J. A. Conant. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard and printed in Restitution, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Letter to Dr. Talmage. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Sister Abbi A. Howard to Dr. Talmage and printed in the Restitution of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Modern Events in the Light of Prophecy.—This is the sermon preached by H. V. Reed at Antioch, which has since been printed in tract form, and may be had at this office for five cents each, or 30 copies for $1.00.

Passages Supposed to Teach Consciousness after Death, by W. H. Wilson, which shows that eternal life is conditional and not inherited. 2 cents each, or 25 cents a dozen.

Where Do the Dead Sleep. Three are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Hades. A Bible account of this place with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

Death Compared to a Sleep. This represents death as a sleep and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

The Wicked Dead and Plain Truths. The two combined. 2 pages ten copies for 10 cents

Poetry.

My Savior is Coming.

My Savior is coming!
Have you heard the glad news?
My Jesus is coming,
The King of the Jews.

My Savior is coming
Oh hear the glad cry!
My Lord is coming,
Who our sinners did die.

My Savior is coming,
Oh loud let it ring,
Let all hearts subdue
Sing praise to our King.

My Savior is coming,
Oh why slow is Dear,
When the light in the East
Tells us Jesus is near.

My Savior is coming,
And I am so glad,
Oh why should we ever
Walk watching grow sad?

My Savior is coming,
Oh tell it once more,
I soon shall behold him,
He is now at the door.

"Hold Fast."

A small four-page tract has just come into my hands, entitled "Hold Fast," which I have taken the liberty to forward to THE RESTITUTION, considering it a suitable contribution. It tells its own story, but a word or two may not be out of place with respect to the reason which seems to have affected the individual whose conduct forms the occasion of the tract. He mentions with approval William Miller [illegible] as one who proclaimed a great impression and who had "some glorious truth in him—that of the pre-mill'nial advent," but condemns his time theories. Afterwards when Mr. G. let slip this "glorious truth" he calls it "an evasion of our Christian and world difficulties," and a destructive element which is the pervading sin in that belief" (pre-millennialism) "so diametrically opposed to the spirit of on-going, all-forgiving, all-embracing, and finally victorious Christian love." This seems to point to Universalism as the final phase of Mr. G's mental outlook, as a recoil from "the destructive element" of Miller's "glorious truth," as well as from the "eternal torment" of the creed in which he has been educated.

J. C. CAMERON.

THE TRACT.

"Hold fast the form of sound words, which thou hast heard of me in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus." 2 Tim. i. 13.

"Whose house are we, if we hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end." Heb. iii. 6.

"Let us hold fast our profession." Heb. iv. 14.

"That which ye have already, hold fast till I come." Rev. ii. 25.

"Remember therefore, how thou hast received and heard, and hold fast, and repent." Rev. iii. 3.

"Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." Rev. iii. 11.

Let me call your attention for a short time to two very remarkable prayers—two prayers of singularly different character, and such as, from the marked contrast between them, cannot fail to arrest the attention of the most careless. The first, which is much the longer of the two, is as follows:—

O thou Prince of the kings of the earth! thou throned and sceptred Child!—mighty in thy child-like innocence and truth, as in thy God-like power and exaltation!

Thou that yearnest over this miserable earth, as a parent over the cradle of a sick babe!

Thou that puttest the tears of thy people into thy bottle, and chroniclest their sighs, and carriest their injuries like arrows in thine own large heart!

Thou to whom the very dust of the earth, where thou lived for thirty-three years and didst shed thy blood, is dear!

Come down to the deliverance of thy church and the redemption of this world!

from the throne to the Mount of Olives!

Come down! the tumult of thine adversaries roweth continually!

Come down! the impatience and desire of thy bride—the true church—are daily waxing stronger!

Come down! the lamps of thy golden candlestick are becoming dim, and the stars on thy hand, erst so bright, are trembling towards extinction!

Come down! the earth is groaning more terrible groans under its growing burdens and intolerable bondage, and every groan is crying, 'Come!'

The poor crushed slave is crying for thee: the unhappy earnest enquirer is beginning to say, 'Lord, why tarriest thou?' The grave is yawning out, 'He delayeth his coming!' The sins of earth are calling out for vengeance! the harvest of the earth is moaning in the wine through all its ripeners for the coming of the Husbandman: the mountains of the earth are lifting themselves up, and darting their snowy eyes to see the first smoke of thy chariot wheels—the first ray of thy descending glory.

Come down, for the time—the set time—is nearly come! Thou art looking at the 'dial of eternity,' and thou seest that the finger of the Marvellous Light is trembling toward the point, when 'He that shall come will come and can no longer tarry.' Therefore, even so come, Lord Jesus. O come quickly!'

And O! prepare—prepare—prepare us all for meeting thy holy eye, and for standing as saints at thy solemn Second Advent!

There is something in the agonized wail that runs all through this 'effectual fervent prayer' which goes deep to the very heart. It is the most strong application of a soul that 'thirsteth for the living God, even as the hart panteth after the water-brooks.' Psa. xlii. 1, 2. We seem to hear in it the bitter, despairing cry of one who sees no hope for the amelioration of our fallen and suffering humanity apart from the return to earth of the Lord Jesus, and who therefore cries from the very depths of his heart for this glorious consummation of the Redeemer's great work. The whole composition reads almost like the language of inspiration. The Jeremiah-like tone that pervades it, the sublimity of the ideas, the grandeur of the language, and the earnest longing for that which is still a matter of faith and hope, are suggestive of the rapt utterances of some of the old prophets, rather than of the commonplaces of these latter days.

The other prayer to which I have referred is very brief and very pointed, but runs daringly impious:

The heavens still retain—and may they long continue to retain—their glorious guest. (At the ordination soiree of the Rev. John Brand, of Bell Street U. P. Church, Dundee, on Thursday, Sept. 20, 1867, the Rev. George Gilfillan made a speech, in which, as reported in the Dundee Advertiser of the following day, occurs this remarkable passage—"The Second Advent—if I may be allowed to speak of a solemn subject in a single sentence—which a good many worthy persons were expecting, has not taken place—(Hear, hear). The heavens still retain—and may they long continue to retain—their glorious guest.")

There are two points in connection with these extraordinary prayers which deserve to be specially noted. The first—which no one can fail to observe—is the diametrically opposite nature of the desire expressed in them: and the second, and most astounding fact in connection with them is, that both were the utterances of one and the same individual, and that person was the late George Gilfillan, of Dundee.

We naturally ask, What meaneth these strangely discordant utterances? How comes it, that 'out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and curse?'—that a fountain sendeth forth sweet water and bitter. James iii. 10, 11. Alas! the answer is not far to seek. The utterer of these singularly diverse petitions failed to 'hold fast' that which he had. Mr. Gilfillan's creed was a [illegible] from the to the Jed, that the once crucified Jesus of Nazareth, now exalted to the right hand of the Majesty on high, would return to this sin-cursed earth, 'according to the promise,' to inaugurate a reign of righteousness and peace, and to bless all nations by his benificent rule. This he held very strongly, while condemning the rashness of those who presumed to name the day and hour of our Lord's appearing. Thus, in the course of a sermon in his own chapel on Sunday afternoon, June 10th, 1859, as reported in the Dundee Advertiser of 21st June, he said:

"In America, William Miller produced a great impression. He had one glorious truth in him—that of the pre-mill'nial advent, but it was like a jewel of gold in a swine's snout. He could not manage it well, he was always for fixing day and date: but the days passed away, and the dates expired, and no Christ came, and hence men laughed at his predictions, and Millerism is now only a memory and a name."

Few persons have written more ably and eloquently in exposition and defence of the doctrine of the coming reign upon earth of the Messiah than has George Gilfillan. His work, Christianity and our Era, is a masterly plea on behalf of this doctrine; and this most interesting volume fittingly closes with the first of the two very remarkable prayers just quoted.

Yet—strange and sad as it may seem—he subsequently quite changed his mind, came to the conclusion that this belief in the coming and kingdom of Christ was a delusion, and he uttered the scoffer's prayer, which has also been quoted. The thorough revolution in his sentiments is depicted, only expressed in the following extract from a letter by him which was published in a magazine entitled For-ward, in August 1865:—

"Were I to re-write my Banks of the Bible, Christianity and our Era, and Alpha and Omega, I would in many points recall what I then, and most earnestly and conscientiously said. I would not only declare my abandonment of pre-millenarianism, but my shame and sorrow that I ever could have believed such 'a beggarly Jewish element,' ever accepted such an evasion of our Christian and world difficulties, ever defended the destructive element which is the pervading one in that belief, and is so diametrically opposed to the spirit of on-going, all-forgiving, all-embracing, and finally, victorious Christian love. The fierce and contemptuous language I use in Christianity and our Era, about the leaders of modern thought, is now entirely abhorrent to my feelings."

As still further indicating the complete revulsion in his mind, it may be mentioned that Mr. Gilfillan was latterly most anxious to call in and destroy every copy of his writings just mentioned, whenever they could be purchased. At any public sale of books in which a copy of the condemned volumes was included in the catalogue, its purchase was deputed to an agent, whose instructions were imperative, 'Go and buy the book for me,' he said, 'whatever the cost;' and these instructions being well known in the trade, the reprobated book was usually run up to quite a fabulous price.

This shows that the man at least had the courage of his convictions: but how sad to think that these convictions led in so undesirable a direction!—that a man who was once so firmly persuaded of the 'glorious truth,' as he then considered it, and who stood so nobly and so eloquently in defence of it, should turn aside from 'the hope set before us—which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and stedfast.' Heb. vi. 18, 19.

Is there any need to point out the lesson which these two prayers conveys to us? Do they not proclaim to us in trumpet tones the imperative necessity that is laid upon us to 'hold fast' the faith if we would ultimately gain the reward? to 'take heed, lest there be in any of us an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God.' [illegible]

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 15, 1897. NUMBER 35.

the apostle Paul in his day, fully recognized, and as he himself tells us, he at times had a dread lest, after having preached to others, he himself should be a castaway. I Cor. ix. 27. Many began the race propitiously, and for a time run well; but soon weary, and ultimately altogether give it up. The influences which tend in this direction are very numerous, and sometimes most potent. We firmly believe, from the Scriptures, that the return of Christ to the earth is the true Christian hope—the hope of the gospel—the faith in which we should be 'grounded and settled, and not moved away from.' Col. i. 23. And yet we know that many have suffered themselves to be moved away from 'that blessed hope.' At first, it may be, they were simply inclined to believe it of less importance than formerly, then they began to entertain doubts as to its reality, and like George Gilfillan, they rejected it altogether as 'a beggarly Jewish element!' Alas! that it should be so—that those whose minds have once been enlightened by the glorious truth should again become darkened! And if the light within them be turned to darkness, how great is that darkness! Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip." Heb. ii. 1.

Grant, in these last and evil days,
That we, through faith's sustaining power,
Thy Word and self-witness may keep Unblemished to life's latest hour.

While time is given, may we have grace
Each talent wisely to employ;
And should life's work give place to rest,
May we rejoice in peaceful joy.

Parables Of Solomon.

Chapter 13.

1. An astute son is obedient to a father; but a disobedient son is in the way of loss.

2. From fruits of righteousness a good man will eat; but souls of evil-doers of law perish in an untimely hour.

3. He who watcheth to guard his own mouth, watcheth to keep his own soul; but the headlong with his lips will frighten himself.

4. Every indolent person is in a condition of inordinate desires, but the hands of the manly are in a state of attention to business.

5. A justified person hateth an unjust word; but an irreverent person is ashamed of himself and will not have boldness of speech.

7. There are those who having nothing make themselves rich, and there are those who humiliate themselves with much wealth.

8. One's own wealth is a redemptive price of a man's soul; but a beggar doth not exalt threatening.

9. There is always light for the justified; but light for the irreverent is being extinguished. Deceitful souls are being led astray in sins; but the justified pity and show mercy.

10. A mad man doeth bad things with haughty pride; but those who sit in judgment on themselves are wise.

11. A possession acquired in haste with transgression hath become less; but he who accumulateth for himself with true-reverence (piety) will have been made full. A justified person pitieth and leadeth.

12. More efficient is she who beginneth his sacrifice assisting in heart than he who proclaimeth and leadeth unto hope. For a tree of life is a good longing desire.

13. He who despiseth business will have been despised by it; but he who feareth a commandment is healthy: There will be no good thing for a deceitful son: but for a wise member of a household his doings will be prospered, and his way will have been made upright.

14. A wise man's law is a fountain of life: to eat a fool will die by a snare.

15. Good understanding giveth grace: and the comprehension of law belongeth to good thought: but the ways of despisers are in loss.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the re-establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as co-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

A Sermon for a Penny.

Think of it; Bro. Jo[illegible]'s excellent sermons for a penny, or HUNDRED for one dollar. Just the thing to send to [illegible] sinners and so plain a child can understand them. Can we not, [illegible] hand them to friends, to [illegible] to persons who will read them? Sister R. V. Townsend has for years kept up the practice of sending tracts to [illegible] acquaintances. Much have been encouraged, good seed is being sown. All these sermons are good; look them over: "God's love and solicitude for Mankind." "No Immortality out of Christ." "Old Mother Earth to be born again." "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ." "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise." "Vain Worship." "The Kingdom of God." and "What shall we do to be saved?" Are we not astonished at the cheapness of these good sermons, and more astonished that we do not circulate them? Realizing that the time is short, may we awake to duty?

"Awake my soul stretch every nerve,
And press with vigor on;
A heavenly race demands thy zeal,
And an immortal crown."

NANCY BARBER.

Dear Restitution:

Having read Bro. Wilson's articles on baptism in THE RESTITUTION with a good deal of interest, I would like to ask the dear brother if it is certain that the baptism our Savior referred to in Matt. xxviii. 19, was essentially a baptism in water? I read it as a command given to the eleven disciples that were with him, (Paul receiving his afterwards,) and to no others besides them, for the following reasons. He said to them, "Go ye, and teach all nations, and baptize them," and after Pentecost they had power to baptize with Holy Spirit which they did by laying on their hands, and now since their day have had that power; but their words and their teachings (as in the New Testament) have been published among all nations, and they have always carried with them the power to baptize every believer with Holy Spirit and with fire. And John the Baptist says that this is the baptism with which Christ should baptize. See Matt. iii. 11, "He shall baptize you with Holy Spirit and with fire." And in Matt. v. 10, 11, I think we learn what he means by baptizing in fire, saying, "Blessed are they that are persecuted for righteousness sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake." The baptism of fire being that of trial and suffering for his sake, and such have his unqualified promise that they shall reign with him, and that theirs is the kingdom of heaven. And this appears to me to be a baptism of first class importance, and baptism in water of less importance, it being or continuing rather a promise to endure the greater trials that may follow in the Christian life.

HIRAM SHOEMAKER.

The Jordan valley, in Palestine, was one blaze of beautiful flowers, growing in a profusion not often to be found, not even in more fertile lands. The ground was literally covered with blossoms, the great red anemone, like a poppy, grew in long tracts on the stony soil; on the soft marls patches of delicate lavender color were made by the wild stocks; the retem, or white broom (the juniper of Scripture), was in full blossom, and the rich purple nettles contrasted with fields of the kataify or yellow St. John's wort. There were also quantities of orange-colored marigolds, and long fields of white and purple clover, tall spires of asphodel, and clubs of snapdragon, purple salvias and white garlic, pink geraniums and cistus, tall white umbelliferous plants, and large camomile daisies, all set in a border of deep green borages, which reached the shoulders of the horses.

PLYMOUTH, IND. SEPTEMBER 15, 1897.

ON Monday evening last the people of Plymouth listened to Sister Elizabeth A. Reed of Chicago deliver a lecture on "The Songs of the Vedas." Mrs. Reed has given much time and hard work to the study of early Hindu and Persian literature, and her lecture and after talk was very interesting. The people of the early races of the world, especially those of the far East, are [illegible] little understood by us of this [illegible]er time, and no one can tell of the [illegible]y customs and beliefs of these peo[illegible]s can Mrs Reed. We enjoyed the [illegible]very much indeed.

THE Conference at Argos was well attended, and was one of the best of the many good meetings the Indiana brethren have enjoyed at that place. Bro. F. L. Austin was chosen President for the year, and a movement was put on foot to do more work in the State than has been possible of late. We shall not attempt to report the meeting, as the Secretary will give us a full account later, but we would urge each member who may be solicited by the Conference officers in any line, to respond promptly to the call. It is impossible for the men selected to fill the offices to do any good work unless the brethren "hold up their hands." Act promptly and heartily.

WE are happy to report that another laborer entered the Lord's vineyard on August 22nd, although, as he said, it was at the 11th hour. Bro. Wm. Creel, formerly an Episcopalian was well on toward the end of this life's journey before he heard the Word by which God begets sons and daughters; but after that, he made all diligence to intelligently and affectionately obey it in baptism. And the thought that he had been marvelously led into the truth after groping his way in the dark so long seemed to almost overwhelm him. That he may guard the sacred name he has taken, and at last be found with the overcomers we fervently pray.

Current Events.

IT is thought by many that a mighty move was made on the political chessboard by Russia when an offensive and defensive alliance was formed with France. It certainly seems to pave the way for other alliances which tend to isolate England more and more. Since the above was written it has been denied that any such alliance was formed; we must wait and see.

From the Bhuddist, of Colombo, we quote an article in reference to Russia's ambition to gain India. It says: "Three questions may be put with regard to this matter. 1. Do educated Russians, civil and military, regard the conquest of India feasible? 2. Do they regard it as expedient and desirable? 3. Are they anxious to bring it about at an early date? Practically all three questions must be answered in the affirmative. The Russians see that China, Persia and the Asiatic provinces of Turkey are at their mercy, that the way is open to them into Afghanistan, that the Afghans are greedy for the spoil of India, and will make common cause with them, and that the way is open to Russia when she has become perfectly mistress of Afghanistan. The conquest of India is regarded by the Russians as their mission or destiny, and as anything but a formidable task. They believe that the native populations of India are which for selfish ends is keeping them in dark ignorance, and has, by squeezing out of them all it can, reduced them to the lowest depths of poverty. The Russians further cherish the illusion that the loyalty of the native army to the British government is not to be relied upon; and that in any case it contains no good fighting material, and could never stand up to an European foe. Finally, the nervous apprehension with which they credit the English in India leads the Russians to believe that the Englishmen themselves feel that their position is so that any shock from the outside would shake it to the very center. The British soldier they regard as pampered, insubordinate, impatient of discipline, and altogether unable to [illegible] hardy Cossa[illegible] reign. T[illegible] ea[illegible] and ambitious, and the successes which have attended their aims and diplomacy during the past twenty years have inspired them with the belief that it is the destiny of the Slav to expand in every possible direction. They believe that they see decrepitude stealing over the British Empire, while their own is expanding with all the vigorous buoyancy of youth, and they proudly say, "the twentieth century is for us."

SICK OF BRITISH RULE,

EXTREMELY INSECURE

The Jewish Chronicle reports that Prussia is still expelling Russian Jews from Memel, and the orders are being executed with great severity. The number expelled is great, and among them are the old and feeble who can hardly bear the wear and tear of emigration, and many men with large families. It would have been much better if the people now ordered to quit the town had been allowed to settle in Memel. After being hospitably received and so many years allowed to remain, and have become good citizens, and in many cases married natives, they are now suddenly to be driven out to seek new homes, as they have lost the right to live in their native country. "We hardly know," says the Memeler Allgemein Zeitung, "what the reasons of this rash act are. As far as we know, those who have received notices to leave are who, and whose families, have gained their livelihood by honest means, and have never come upon the rates. [poor rates]. Moreover they have paid their rates and taxes and been a source of income to our citizens. The steps taken by the authorities will result in great damage to the town, as property will fall in price, business will be considerably disturbed, and a large number of rate payers will be lost." The Ostpreussische General Anzeiger states that up to date twenty-three families, comprising 106 souls, have received notice of expulsion." In this connection we may mention the fact that the much talked of Congress of Jews at Basle has taken place,—and we understand that the conclusion arrived at was, to raise sufficient funds to secure the land of their fathers, as the first step toward founding a Jewish state. This being done, the plan is to send an equipped with all the resources of science to thoroughly overhaul the land from one end to the other before it is colonized, and establish telegraphic and telephonic communication with the base as they proceed; and the determination is to have a million colonists in the country within a year of its acquisition. At the head of the movement will be two great and powerful agents—the Society of Jews, and the Jewish Company. The first named will be a political organization to spread the Jewish propaganda. The latter will be a limited liability company

INDUSTRIOUS AND PEACEFUL PEOPLE

EXPLORING EXPEDITION

UNDER ENGLISH LAWS,

having its headquarters in London, and a capital of a million of marks. Its task will be to discharge all the financial obligations of the retiring Jews, and regulate the economic conditions of the new country. At first only unskilled labor will be sent—that is, the very poorest, who will make the land arable; lay out streets, build bridges and railroads, regulate rivers and lay down telegraphs according to plans prepared at headquarters. And it is claimed that their work will bring trade, and trade, the market, and the markets will cause new settlers to flock to the country. Every one will go there voluntarily at his or her own risk, but ever under the watchful eye and PROTECTION OF THE ORGANIZATION.

They think they will find Palestine at their disposal sooner than we expected. Dr. Herzl went to Constantinople last year and had two long conferences with the Grand Visier, and he says the Sultan has taken no unfavorable view of the proposals, as is shown by his having decorated him. The Jews in exchange for Palestine propose to regulate the Sultan's finances and thus prevent disintegration, and at the same time form a new outpost for Europe against Asiatic barbarism, and a guard of honor to hold intact these relishrines of the Christians. If their proposals are not accepted they say they will wait and either take over Palestine from the European Congress called together to divide the spoils of disintegrated Turkey, or look out for another land and such as Argentine, and say to their brethren, "There is your Zion." If the accounts we read in the English press be half true, they look upon the

[illegible]ESS AS THEIR REDEEMER,—

[illegible] immediate result of this Zionistic movement has been to unite the most antagonistic Jewish elements, and to bring into life a new shoot of Jewish literature. There can be no mistake in saying that the dry bones are being mightily shaken: and every one who has learned what the plot of Jehovah's Book is, must be an interested watcher of the movement,—which is truly remarkable at this time, when we are nearing the crisis of the kingdoms of this world.

The New York Sun recently contained an article entitled, "Rabbi Mendes on Zionism; Objects, Boundaries and Politics of Palestine Restored." The writer, in comparing Zionism with some of the great historic movements of the world, asks, "What does this quickening of Hebrew sentiment mean? And after showing that all great national or religious movements took many years to crystalize into action, instancing the the secession movement; the Reformation under Luther, and various others, he goes on to say that it is difficult, if not impossible to say when Zionism began to be more than inspiration. He says it has always been an inspiration from the day when the brand of lit the temple flames whose tongues told the world that Zion's children were without a fatherland. Proceeding, he says Menazzah ben Israel championed Jewish rights at the bar of liberty in 1655: the French Revolution could not deny the Jewish claim to liberty, fraternity, equality, and the Revolution of 1848 brought the Jewish question forward, and right had to be heard; and the Crimean war of 1854 gave political thought a trend in the direction of Palestine. The Mortara and the Pope of Rome case, of 1860 welded the Jews into union which made all things possible. The consequent formation of the Alliance Israelite Universelle was followed by the organization of the Anglo Jewish Association of England, Board of Delegates of America, a Jewish Gemeinde in Germany, the Alliance of Austria, all in harmony and interlinking with each other. And within the last decade such societies as Hovevs Zion, Shoneve Zion, Jewish Colonization Society, etc., are especially in connection with the revival of Hebrew letters and the colonization of Palestine by Jews with success. And after Rabbi Mendes' eloquent utterances, and his quotation of the thrilling words of Isaiah chap. xlix. and 22nd verse, and chap. lxi. 9, and lxvi. 20; and xxvii. 6, and Micah v. 16, we cannot help thinking that something of the ancient hope of Israel burned within him. God speed the day when the Deliverer shall come and turn ungodliness from Jacob.

EXTREMELY SIGNIFICANT

The Literary Digest of August quoting from an English Journal, says that the Queen recently said to a minister of the Church of England: "I am looking for the coming of our Lord, and I do not think it impossible that I may not have to surrender my crown till I lay it down at his feet." Evidently she has been studying the "New Era."

Conference Report.

According to announcement the Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith in Iowa convened at Marshalltown, Iowa, Aug. 19, 1897, and continued until Aug. 29, 1897. Preaching brethren present, G. M. Myers, A. J. Eychaner, John Garton, J. B. Craton, D. M. Hudler, W. L. Crowe and many were the feasts of fat things that these brethren furnished to the brethren gathered from over the State. There were several visiting brethren and sisters from Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Dakota and Minnesota. Among them were Sister Nichols of Minneapolis, Bro. and Sister Williams of Ashton, Ills, Bro. Hasson and daughter of Elkton, Dakota, Bro. and Sister Underwood of Plymouth, Indiana, and others. Encouraging letters were received from Sister Alice Mahrous of Blair, Nebraska, and from Bro. J. Booth on behalf of the congregation at Antioch, Illinois. Sister Ella Greenlee, State Superintendant of Sunday schools, reported the following Sunday schools: Eagle Grove, 4 classes, average attendance 25, average collection 37½ cents, O. J. Allard Supt., Alta Kiunan Sec'y. Hickory Grove, 4 classes, average attendance 35, average collection 15 cents. W. T. Fish Supt. Lake Mills, attendance from 40 to 60, Geo. Merrill Supt., Gertie Porter, Sec. Sac City, attendance from 50 to 75, Jennetta Polly Supt., Alma Holloway Sec. Irving, average attendance 35, classes 3, average collection 30 cents. F. L. Marsh Supt., Hattie Royce Sec. Gladbrook, classes 4, average attendance 45, average collection 47 cents, Mrs. A. J. Eychaner Supt., Mrs. Sarah Clark Sec. Alden, classes 2, average attendance 20, average collection 35 cents, Supt. Mrs. A. L. Furry. Belle Plain, classes 3, average attendance 20, average collection 17 cents, Mrs. Ella Greenlee, Supt. Sister O. B. Cady of Hubbard reported teaching a class of children at her house until sickness prevented her from continuing the work. Wednesday Aug. 25 was devoted to Temperance work and an interesting programme was given us by the W. C. T. U.; among the subjects treated were the following: Duty of the Church, Scientific Temperance Instruction, Modesty False and True, and two very interesting addresses were given by Rev. Hadley of the Friends' Church of Le Grand on Church and State in relation to temperance, and do we need the Saloon by Rev. S. O. Heffelstein. We feel it our duty to extend our most hearty thanks to the W. C. T. U. for their instructions in the line of Purity work, and trust that the brethren and sisters feel that there will be a big improvement in lives on this line during the coming year, and we feel to exclaim, "God bless the W. C. T. U." Especially in their purity work. Evangelist A. J. Eychaner submitted report for work done during the year as follows:—Number of sermons in Tent Conference 91, outside 52, organization meetings 6, baptized 13, funerals 7, days worked 122; money received from Conference $139.50. Assistant Evangelist G. M. Myers reports work done during year as follows: number of discourses 70 organization meetings 4, baptized 6; money received from Conference $110.00. Bro. G. M. Myers also reported as follows for J. F. Wilcox: sermons preached 15; Jno. Garton 4; Elder Davis 2; additions 3, baptisms 1. Paid to J. F. Wilcox by Conference $15.00; paid Jno. Garton $24.00; total $39.00. Assistant Evangelist W. L. Crowe reports work done for Conference during the year as follows: sermons preached 62, days worked 60, money received $57.50, expenses $5.00. On motion report was accepted by allowing him $7.50 more for work done making his wages $1.00 per day. A. J. Eychaner Treasurer submitted report for year as follows: money received $767.33, paid out $700.44, balance on hand $66.89.

The old tent was pitched at but one point during the year which was at Belle Plaine with Bro. J. F. Wilcox and J. Garton in charge. The new tent was pitched at Sac City with Bro. Crowe and Eychaner in charge where a three weeks meeting was held. This closed the work for the year 1896. On the 29th of May of the present year, the new tent was pitched at Odebolt two weeks meeting held; next to Lake View where another two weeks meeting was held and although the seed was sown with lavish hand by Bro. Eychaner and Myers no one became obedient. Sac City was again visited and a congregation of 44 organized; Lake Mills next visited and a congregation of 35 organized; this closed the tent work up to the convening of Conference Aug. 16. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year, Pres. A. J. Eychaner, Treas. J. W. Appleyard, Sec. O. J. Allard, Cor. Sec. Hester V. Cummings, Sunday School Supt. Mrs. Ella Greenlee. Conference voted that the Sunday school Supt. be instructed to visit the Sunday Schools at least once during the year and to be paid from the Conference Treasury. A. J. Eychaner, newly elected President, appointed the following committees for the ensuing year: reception committee, Mrs. M. Nichols, Hester V. Cummings, Mrs. G. M. Myers and W. L. Crowe; auditing committee S. M. White, Jno. Garton, O. J. Allard; committee on grounds, G. M. Myers, Mrs L. Palmer and Samuel White; on programme, Mrs. M. Nichols, Mrs. A. J. Eychaner and W. L. Crowe; on collection W. L. Crowe, J. W. Appleyard. On motion Bro. W. L. Crowe was elected Evangelist for the coming year. On motion it was decided the first Saturday of Conference session be devoted to Temperance work. Saturday Aug. 29 was devoted to the young people and the day was fully occupied by them. The Conference feels thankful indeed to Bro. Hasson of Dakota and Bro. Underwood of Indiana for their words of admonition to the young people of Iowa, and it is needless to say were duly appreciated by them. Now brethren and sisters let us to the work with a will. Our advancement in the past is apparent to all, but let us do more the next year. Let us freely give of our means, and make this one of our most important duties. When we heard Bro. Crowe say he had helped support his family by working at haying and harvesting, and quoted that Paul worked at tent making as an excuse, we were wondering if our people were doing their duty in the way of supporting a worthy young man. Brethren think of this and if your conscience pricks you just set right down and send $5 00 or $10.00 more at once to J. W. Appleyard, Texas, Odebolt, Iowa, for the Evangelist work for the next year. Let us give him an assurance that he will be taken care of in the work of sowing the seed of his Kingdom and not making hay and harvesting for worldly men, but harvesting sheaves for the Lord. Brothers and sisters, let us do our duty. The meeting was a profitable one, a spiritual feast throughout, and to you dear ones who were not there, imagine the parting scene of the older brethren who bade each other good bye with arms around each others necks and with a holy kiss parting with a strong hope of meeting again, if not in this vale of tears, then when Jesus comes in the glory of the Father to reward every man according to his works. May God bless and keep us all, and give us an earnest desire to do our duty and be ready and watching for the Master.

God's Rights, or the Divine System of Finance.—No. 1.

"Every beast of the forest is mine and the cattle upon a thousand hills. I know all the fowls of the mountains and the wild beasts of the fields are mine." Ps. l. 10.

"The silver is mine and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of Hosts" Hagai ii. 8.

"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof, the world and they that dwell therein." Ps. xxiv. 1

"Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's thy God, the earth also and all that therein is." Deut. x. 14.

One of the most difficult lessons for man to learn is, that God owns everything. Even the Christian is slow to learn his financial responsibility as a servant of Christ. God being the owner of everything we should remember that he has a right to say what shall be done with that which belongs to him. Every believer should early learn that he himself is not his own—that he is a servant, a bond-servant and free only in Christ from the world, but a slave to the Master and to God. In reality, conversion is a voluntary submission to become a servant of the Most High. "Ye are not your own, ye are bought with a price." 1 Cor. vi. 20. When we, as believers of the gospel join ourselves to the Lord, and promise to serve him, and to love his name, and to be his people we ought to recognize God's ownership of all we have and are. God is dishonored by any course of conduct on our part that does not recognize this fact. "Honor the Lord with thy substance and with the first-fruits of thine increase" is the Divine Counsel. Prov. iii. 9.

The principle of sacrifice is simply the principle of giving. The first sacrifices of mankind were an expression of gratitude. There was not the idea of sin connected with sacrifice in the early ages of the world. The simple patriarch brought a gift as an expression of his gratitude to God, and that gift was his sacrifice. Allgiving, by whatever plan, must come from a grateful heart to find acceptance upon God's altar. To feel that it is a tax is a spirit wholly at variance with God's design.

The Israelites were taught of God and a study of the methods of that Divine Schoolmaster will be acceptable. If God was the Teacher we shall expect to find order, regularity, and justice in their system of finance.

The Law by which that people were governed is a wonderful law in many respects, and the most wonderful one the world has ever known. It maintained military order in their camps and marches. It furnished sanitary regulations for an army of between two and three millions of people in camp life. It regulated their devotions and guided them in all their worship. It moulded the national character, and gave inspiration to its bards and sages; and when settled in Canaan, furnished the best system of land tenure and ownership found among any people. And shall we not expect among the same nation a system of finance in harmony with the high moral tone of the nation and their teacher?

And here we really find a system of finance definite, just and complete in tithe. A close analysis of the law which governed Israel shows that God made the following claims upon his people, viz.,

1. The first-born of every family—Ex. xxii 29.

2. The first-fruits of the Land—Ex xxiii 19.

3. A tithe or tenth of all—Deut. xxvi. 12.

It is clear that if God owns everything and only asks of us what is enumerated above that he has given the remainder for our own use. We will examine this in the light of the following propositions.

1. Does the Bible teach systematic giving to support the Lord's cause?

2. Does it teach regular giving?

3. Does it establish a ratio between the amount of income and the amount his people are to give? or, in other words, does it teach proportionate giving?

4. What are the blessings, if any, that are to come to those who follow God's plan?

Fraternally Yours,

A. J. EYCHANER.

(To be Continued.)

To the Brothers and Sisters of the Church of God, in Indiana:

The Conference has convened at Argos, as called. At that meeting the writer was requested to act as President for the following year. I therefore ask for your earnest consideration of the following.

It seems to be a recognized fact that in order to greater accomplishments in the cause of truth throughout the State, plans more definite, and system more detailed, must be adopted. In order to effect such plans and system, the Executive Board chosen at this aforenamed meeting, must earnestly petition for prompt, hearty and energetic co-operation from each and every member throughout the State of Indiana.

The 1st request is that you will aid us in determining our numerical strength throughout the State. To this end we ask that the Secretary of each organized church will mail to the writer, at Rensselaer, Indiana, the name and address of each member of their respective churches. And each and every isolated member of this faith is also requested to send their name and address to writer likewise. In those localities where there are a group of believers who are not organized, or who have no secretary, please do not neglect answering this request by each one leaving the matter to another. Let us have a report promptly. And any one having knowledge of others who will not get this request, not being subscribers of The RESTITUTION, please send their name and address at once. We wish to have all the names of those throughout the State inside of ten days, or two weeks at the longest. Please do not delay. Act promptly. Winter is here at our door, and we wish everything to be in working order when the working season opens.

Yours laboring for the spread of the Gospel.

F. L. AUSTIN.

MARRIED.

On Thursday afternoon, Sept. 9 1897, at the residence of the bride in Plymouth, Ind., Mr. James Wickizer of Argos, Ind., and Mrs. Sarah C Chaplin, widow of our late Brother S. A. Chaplin, formerly Editor of THE RESTITUTION. The groom is 66 and the bride 64 years old, and have known each other for many years. The ceremony was performed by L. E. Conner, after which the wedding party went to Argos where they will make their home for the present.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I am sorry to say that we are once more compelled to change the time of our annual meeting here in Nebraska, on account of another meeting in progress at the Cambridge Park, we were unable to get the grounds, but can have them by the 24th of this month. Therefore the meeting will begin on Friday, Sept., 24th and hold ten days. We earnestly hope that all will make an effort to attend this meeting, and that much good may be done.

Who Authorised the Change?

Some time ago, W. A. Phillips, D. D., of the Western Avenue Methodist Church Chicago, preached a sermon on Baptism which has been printed, and is being circulated among the people. A copy was handed to Sister E., our Sister gave it to me for the purpose of review. I call attention to a few extracts from the above sermon.

"Our three former discourses have brought us in this discussion of the sacrament of baptism, to the consideration of its mode. And in this very outset let me say that this is a question over which there ought to be no controversy. And the fact that there is, is due, as we believe, to two unwarranted and unscriptural assumptions, viz: that the mode is an essential, in the place of an incidental part of this sacred rite, and that the New Testament teaches only one way for its proper administration—by immersion." * * * Now, they are right or wrong. If they are right, then I, who was sprinkled in my baptism, am deluded, and was not, as I thought, baptized; nay, more, I am not a member of the visible church nor is my ministry to which I have been set apart by ordination, authoritative, and therefore, everything done by my office is invalid. Grave indeed, is this question of how we are baptized, if to the mode God has attached such importance as this; if how I am baptized, determines whether I am a member of his church, and whether I may, or may not commemorate the death and sufferings of my precious Savior, then I cannot afford, nor can you, to be ignorant of what 'saith the Lord' about this matter.

We have before said that as Methodists we give candidates wishing baptism their choice of the three modes, believing that they are all valid

But as 'it is an outward sign of an inward grace,' we believe that, when done by sprinkling, or pouring, these symbols best represent that which is symbolized. What is water baptism? We have shown in a former discourse it is not a saving ordinance. What is it then? Simply and purely a symbol of the cleansing power of the Holy Ghost. It is true it implies other things, but this is the great thing signified. Keeping in mind that baptism was not instituted to represent the burial and resurrection of Christ, but the work of the Holy Spirit."

The pastor teaches his flock that it is an "unwarranted an Unscriptural assumption" to affirm "that the New Testament teaches only one way for its proper administration—by immersion." As a scholar it would have been best for him in the first place to have ascertained whether the word baptize admitted of one or several diversified methods. As to the meaning of the word, I will quote from eminent Greek scholars in the Methodist, and Presbyterian churches, etc., and will carefully exclude all testimony from Baptist sources, that the charge of bias may be avoided.

John Wesley, (Methodist) "Buried with him.—alluding to the ancient manner of baptizing by immersion."

Adam Clarke (Methodist) on Rom. vi. 4. "It is probable that the apostle here alludes to the mode of administering baptism by immersion, the whole body being put under the water, which seemed to say the man is drowned—is dead, and when he came up out of the water, he seemed to have a resurrection to life: the man is risen again, he is alive."

Calvin, (Presbyterian) Institutes. "The word baptize signifies to immerse, and the rite of immersion was observed by the ancient church."

Beza on Mark vii. 4. "Christ commanded us to be baptized, by which word it is certain immersion is signified."

Vitringa. "The act of baptizing is the immersion of believers in water. This expresses the meaning of the word."

Scholz on Matt. iii. 6. "Baptism consists in the immersion of the whole body in water."

Bossuet. "To baptize signifies to plunge, as it is granted by all the world."

Dr. Campbell. (Presbyterian) "The primitive signification of baptisma is immersion, of baptizing, to immerse, to plunge, to overwhelm."

Dr. Chalmers (Presbyterian) on Rom. vi. 4. "The original meaning of the word baptism is immersion."

Moses Stuart Bib. Rep. 1833. "Bapto—baptizo, means to dip, to plunge, or immerse into a liquid. All lexicographers and critics of any note are agreed in this."

Charles Anthon, L. L. D., (Episcopalian) professor of Latin and Greek in Columbia College N. Y. "The primitive meaning is dip or immerse. Secondary, if it has any, refers to the same leading idea. Sprinkling is entirely out of the question."

Dr. Augusti, (Lutheran) "Baptisma denotes plunging, dipping and the like."

Martin Luther. "Baptisma is Greek. In Latin it may be translated immersio, since we immerse anything into water, that the whole might be covered."

Dr. Trenon, (Catholic) "Plunge into the water. Baptize strictly conveys this signification as all the learned are agreed."

Macknight on Rom. vi. "Christ submitted to be baptized, that is, to be buried under the water by John."

Schoettg. "He who is baptized is entirely under the water, and no longer seems to live."—Bloomfield's Critical Digest, V. p. 637.

The following is the testimony of eminent lexicographers as to the meaning of the word baptize.

Stockius. "Baptizo: Proprie est immergere ac intingere in aquam. Properly to immerse or dip in water."

Robertson's Thesaurus. "Baptizo: Mergo, lavo; to dip, to wash."

Schleusner's Thesaurus. "Baptizo: Immergo, intingo; to immerse, to dip."

Morel. "Baptizo: Mergo, immergo, aqua obruo; to dip, to immerse to overwhelm in water."

Greenfield. "Baptizo: To immerse, immerge, submerge, sink: in New Testament, to wash, perform ablution, cleanse; to immerse, baptize, administer the rite of baptism. Baptisma: Properly what is immersed; hence immersion, baptism, ordinance of baptism."

Buss. "Baptizo: To dip, immerse, or plunge in water; to wash: bathe oneself: to be immersed in sufferings or afflictions."

Laing. "Bulitzo: To baptize, to plunge in water."

Wright. "Baptizo: I dip, immerse, plunge, saturate, baptize, overwhelm."

Grove. "Baptizo: To dip, immerse, immerge, plunge: to wash, cleanse: purely to baptize, to depress, humble, overwhelm."

Suicer, another Greek writer. "Baptizo I dip, I wash."

Scapula. "Baptizo: Mergo seu immergo, item submergo, item abluo, lavo. To dip or to immerse, also, to sink under, to wash clean, to wash."

H. Stephanus. "Baptizo: Mergo seu immergo. To dip or immerse."

Schrevelius. "Baptizo: Mergo lavo: I dip, I wash."

Dr. G. Campbell, (Presbyterian) Lectures on pulpit Eloquence, says, "I have heard a disputant, in defiance of etymology and use, maintain that the word rendered in the New Testament baptize, means more properly to sprinkle than to plunge: and in defiance of all antiquity, that the former was the earliest and the most general practice in baptizing. One who argues in this manner never fails with persons of knowledge to betray the cause he would defend; and though, with respect to the vulgar, bold assertions generally succeed as well as argument, and sometimes better, yet a candid mind will always disdain to take the help of falsehood, even in the support of truth."

Testimony like the above from eminent Greek scholars connected with denominations who practice sprinkling, and call it baptism, (which it is not), can be continued to almost any extent desired, but enough has been given to serve our purpose, but on the other hand not one eminent Greek scholar can be found who would risk his reputation by translating the words bapto or baptize by the word sprinkle. I challenge the Western Avenue pastor to produce one.

He says: "As Methodists we give candidates wishing baptism their choice of three modes," which are immersion, sprinkling and pouring. It is certainly a strange thing to call those three things baptism, when the Holy Spirit in the Divine Word uses a distinct word for each action, and never uses those words interchangeably. We know this is also the case in English. If our Methodist pastor should immerse a candidate, he would never suppose for one moment that he had sprinkled him; or if he had poured water on his head, would he say that he had sprinkled him? Yet he commits this folly with the Greek language, where the meanings of these three words are just as distinct as they are in English. See Lev. iv. 6, 7: "And the priest shall dip (bapsei) his finger, then he shall sprinkle before, (pros rano) and then perform the third action pour out (ek chesi) the blood. See Lev. xiv. 6-8: "He shall take the scarlet, wool, and hyssop and dip (bapsei) them then he shall sprinkle (rano) of the blood. In verse 15 and 16 we have the three actions. First, he shall pour out (ek chesi) the oil into his left hand: second, he shall dip (bapsei) his right finger in the oil. Third he shall sprinkle (rano) it with his finger

Bapto and baptizo are never in a single instance translated sprinkle or pour, neither is rano or rantizo, ever translated, dip, immerse, or plunge. A noted scholar speaking of these words, says: "We have rano and rantizo, to sprinkle or asperse, and bapto or baptizo, to dip, plunge, or immerse. Now, as in English, we never use to dip to signify the same as to sprinkle, so never does rano in the Greek signify bapto, nor bapto rano."

Says Joseph Mede: "There was no such thing as sprinkling or rantism used in baptism in the apostles' days, nor many ages after them."

A candidate comes to this Methodist pastor and says: I want to be baptized ("dipped"—Calvin) he performs three actions. First, pour (chesi) water into the font. Second, dip (bapsei) his fingers in the water. Third, sprinkle (rano) water upon him. He claims that these three actions, are three different modes of baptism, hence he baptized the font, his fingers, and the candidate, each by a different mode. In fact has baptized his fingers but practiced rantism upon the candidate.

He says: "If they are right, then I, who was sprinkled in my baptism, am deluded, and was not as I thought baptized." I now reprote the above sentence and supply the original meanings of the words used.

"I, who was sprinkled (rantized) in my baptism (a word from the Greek baptizo or bapto, I dip or plunge.—Chambers,) am deluded, and was not as I thought, baptized (immersed)." Of a truth you were "deluded," they practised rantism on you, and do you suppose you were baptized? In like manner you are deluding those who trust you. You practice rantism on them, and say you baptize them, which you do not. For in English we never use the word dip to mean the same as sprinkle, neither does the Greek work rano mean the same as bapto, or bapto rano. You cannot tell them that bapto and rano mean the same, without deluding them, for as a scholar you know better. You would not dare tell them that the English words dip and sprinkle mean the same, because they know better. Now, how comes it, seeing bapto and rano in Greek don't mean the same thing, any more than sprinkle and dip do in English, that the churches persist in calling sprinkling baptism?

WHO AUTHORIZED THE CHANGE?

I will call upon Calvin, the founder of Presbyterianism to answer. In his comments on Acts viii. 38 with regard to the baptism of the eunuch, he says: "We see, from this instance, what was the baptismal rite amongst the ancients; for they plunged the whole body in the water. Now 'tis the custom for the minister to sprinkle only the body or head." By way of explanation he further adds: "It is certain that we want nothing which maketh to the substance of baptism. Wherefore the church did grant liberty to herself since the beginning to change the rites somewhat, excepting the substance of baptism." Calvin testifies "that the church did grant liberty to herself since the beginning to change her rites somewhat." What church "did grant liberty to herself" "to change the rites?" In the first place the Catholic church did this. Says Dr. Trenon, an eminent scholar in it at church: "Plunge into the water. Baptize strictly conveys this signification as all the learned are agreed." As scholars they admit this, but claims the "liberty to herself," "to change the rites." The Protestant denies her right to this "liberty." Yet the Presbyterian Church did this at Westminster. They took a vote on the question, and by a majority of one "did grant liberty to herself" "to change the rites." What right have men to vote on changing God's ordinances. He will certainly hold them responsible for their presumption. Since then other Protestant denominations have taken "liberty to change the rites somewhat." The Catholic charge it home upon them that they have borrowed the "change" from them, and tell them that "all the learned me agreed," that baptize "strictly conveys" the signification of "plunge into the water" but the change was made by the authority of the Roman Catholic Church.

[illegible] grant to take the liberty "to change the rites," let me refer you to the "diverse washings" (diaphorois baptismois) and sprinkling (rantismou) practiced by the Jews as recorded in Heb. ix. 10, 13, 19, 21. In verse 10 he uses the words diaphorois baptismois (diverse baptisms) verse 13 manti zousa (sprinkling) verse 19, errantise, (he sprinkled) verse 21, errantize (he sprinkled). Grotius, Whitby, and Macknight are eminent Greek scholars, members of churches who practice sprinkling and call it baptism. They translate Heb. ix. 10, as follows: "And diverse immersions (diaphorois baptismois) and ordinances concerning the flesh imposed until the time of reformation."

Now, if sprinkling is simply a mode of baptism, why is it the words for sprinkle and baptize are not used interchangeably in the Divine Word? And why is it eminent Greek scholars, members of churches who sprinkle and call it baptism, recognize the difference, and do translate them by different words, every time. If the difference does not exist? Calvin was right when he said: "the church did grant liberty to herself since the beginning to change the rites somewhat."

I will now briefly call attention to an extract or two from the sermon of this Western Avenue pastor to show the species of reasoning that must be resorted to to sustain the "change" which they took the liberty to make.

"Philip had not only taught him (Eunuch) the nature and significance of the ordinance, but the mode of its administration, which the sacred text they had just read said was by 'sprinkling.' And when he was converted to Christ as the promised Redeemer, and saw the beauty and appropriateness of baptism as a gospel symbol, they said: lovely came in that desert place to water, and the Eunuch asked if he might not then and there be baptized. And Philip consented. When the chariot was stopped they got down and went to the water, and he was baptized. Oh, but says the immersionist, give the record as it reads in Acts viii. 38, and you will see they went down both into the water, both Philip and the Eunuch and he baptized him."

"Now, I shall not detain you as I might by a critical and I believe conclusive argument to show that the Greek preposition "into" might, with perfect justice, have been translated "to" or "at" the water, but will content myself and I hope satisfy you, by some obvious considerations, leaving all controversy over Greek particles to the classical scholars."

He thinks the Greek preposition (eis) into, might be changed to the word "in" or "at" the water. Those words would doubtless suit the "change" the church "did grant liberty to herself" to make. I will quote a few passages, inserting this pastor's "change" to show how it will work. The mariners cast Jonah near "to" but not into the sea. The swine run down "to" or "at" the sea, but not (eis) into the sea. The Egyptians were drowned not in the Red Sea, but near "to" or "at" the sea. Jonah was three days and three nights not in the whale but near "to" or "at" it. Noah and family was saved not in the ark but near "to" or "at" the ark. Lazarus was not in the grave but just near "to" or "at" the grave. Murderers, adulterers, fornicators, etc., have their part near "to" or "at" but not in the lake of fire. Daniel was cast close "to" or "at" the lion's den. The Hebrews were cast close "to" or "at" but not (eis) into the furnace of fire. The righteous shall have an abundant entrance not (eis) into the kingdom of God, but just close "to" or "at" it. I presume this pastor would power to retain the preposition (eis) into this case, but substitute "to" or "at" when it comes in connection with the word water. It would be difficult to learn how they could come up (ek) out of the water, if they only went down "to" or "at" the water, in place of (eis) into the water.

Let me call attention to another extract which refutes itself in the mind of every thinking person. 1. "Now notice, Saul was baptized in a house, where he could not be immersed. 2. He was baptized "forth with" which precludes his delaying to go out and find a river." 3. He was baptized standing—for he "arose," which posture is appropriate for sprinkling and impossible for immersion." Says Moses Stuart, Bib. Rep. 1833. "Bapto—baptizo, as an to dip, to plunge or immerse into liquid. All lexicographers and critics of any note are agreed in this." Then if we accept the testimony of "lexicographers and critics of any note," as authority, the pastor's "No. 1" would read as follows: "Now notice, Saul was baptized (immersed) in a house where he could not be immersed." 2. "He was baptized (immersed) forthwith, which precludes his delaying to go out and find a river." No. 3. is absolutely funny. He says, "He was baptized standing." I have baptized a great many people in my time, and in every case they "arose" and placed themselves in a "standing" "posture" in the water before I immersed them. I am sure I never immersed one sitting down.

What strange reasoning is resorted to because "the church did grant liberty to herself since the beginning to change the rites somewhat?"

The Word of Man Vs. The Word of God.

Word of Man. "Man has a body and a soul. The body dies, THE SOUL NEVER DIES. The souls of the good will be happy in heaven. The souls of the wicked will be miserable in hell." Scripture Lessons, Am. Tract Society.

The Word of God. "Behold all souls are mine as the soul of the father so also the soul of the son is mine THE SOUL that SINNETH IT SHALL DIE." Ez. xviii. 4.

The Word of Man. "God has revealed it to be his will to punish some of mankind FOREVER. You know not but you are one of them. Whether you will be saved or damned depends entirely (?) on his will. And supposing he sees it most for his glory and the general good that you should be damned. On this supposition, then, you you ought to be willing to be damned, for not to be willing to be damned in this case is opposing God's will."—Works of Hopkins, D. D., Vol 3, page 145.

The Word of God. "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to usward NOT WILLING that any should PERISH but that ALL SHOULD COME TO REPENTANCE."

"For I have NO PLEASURE in the DEATH OF HIM THAT DIETH saith the Lord God: Wherefore turn yourselves and LIVE YE." See II Peter iii 9; Ez. xviii. 23-32.

The Word of Man. "The bodies of the damned will be salted with fire so tempered and prepared as to burn the more fiercely, AND YET NEVER CONSUME."—John Whitaker.

The Word of God. "But the wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs: they shall consume: INTO SMOKE SHALL THEY CONSUME AWAY." Psa. xxxvii. 20.

The Word of Man. Sinners shall suffer the most grievous torments both in soul and body, and WITHOUT INTERMISSION FOREVERMORE. These torments are beyond expression, and our most bewild thoughts cannot equal the horrors of them. Book of Divinity, Boston.

The Word of God. "And [illegible] kill the body but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to DESTROY BOTH BODY AND SOUL IN HELL."

"For I will not contend forever, neither will I be always wroth: for the spirit should fail before me and the souls which I have made."

"For yet a little while and the WICKED SHALL NOT BE: yea thou shalt diligently consider his PLACE and IT SHALL NOT BE." Matt. x. 28; Isa. lvii. 16; Psa. xxxvii. 10.

The Word of Man. "It is the PRESENCE and agency of God which gives everything virtue and efficacy, without which there can be NO LIFE, NO SENSIBILITY, NO POWER. God is therefore himself PRESENT IN HELL to see the punishment of these rebels against his government * * * While his powerful presence and operation maintain their being and render their powers most acutely sensible. * * He will exert all his divine attributes to make them as wretched as the capacities of their mind will admit."—Benson on Endless Misery.

The Word of God. "Who shall be punished with EVERLASTING DESTRUCTION FROM THE PRESENCE of the Lord and the glory of his power." 2 Thess. i. 8-9.

The Lord PRESERVETH all them that LOVE HIM, but all the WICKED WILL HE DESTROY." Psa. cxlv. 20.

"He that believeth on the Son hath EVERLASTING LIFE and he that believeth not the Son SHALL NOT SEE LIFE but the wrath of God abideth on him." John iii. 36.

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him SHOULD NOT PERISH but have EVERLASTING LIFE." John iii. 16.

The Word of Man. "The world will probably be converted into a lake of fire, or liquid GLOBE of fire, a vast ocean of fire in which the wicked will be overwhelmed * * and also they shall be full of the most quick and lively sense to feel the torments; not for one minute, nor for one day, nor one age, nor for two ages, nor for a hundred years, nor for ten thousand millions of ages, one after another, but forever and ever, without any end at all and never, never to be delivered." Sermons, Vol. VII. p. 166. Jonathan Edwards.

The Word of God. "But as truly as I live all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord." Rom. xiv. 21. "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying NEITHER SHALL THERE BE ANY MORE PAIN; for the FORMER THINGS are passed away." Rev. xxi. 4.

We ask the reader to seriously consider the foregoing contrast between the Word of God and the word of man. God is revealed to us as a loving Father not willing to prolong the sufferings of men but to offer to them eternal life in his kingdom. He has no pleasure in the death of the wicked. How could he then take pleasure in the endless suffering of finite man?

The Gospel offers life and immortality to all who will come to our Blessed Lord. Those who reject the offered boon are exposed to death, for it is written, "The wages of sin is DEATH, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Rom. vi. 23. He who converts a sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from DEATH." "When sin is finished it bringeth forth death," beyond which there shall be no more pain. The second death closes the scene of earth's sufferings and beyond we behold the earth filled with the glory of God. No eternal hell. "For death and hell were cast into the lake of fire which is the SECOND DEATH.

Then, says the Word of God: "Every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth and under the earth, and such as are in the sea and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing and honor and glory and power be unto him that sitteth upon the throne and unto the Lamb forever and ever."

In conclusion we may say in the language of the apostle: "For this cause also think we God without ceasing, because when ye receive the Word of God * * * ye received not as the word of MEN, but as it is in truth, THE WORD of God which effectually worketh also in you that believe." I Thess. ii. 13.

H. V. REED.

Whose is the Kingdom Heaven?

"The saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever." Dan. vii. 18.

"The Ancient of Days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High: and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom." Dan. vii. 22.

"The kingdom, and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all rulers shall serve and obey him." Dan. vii. 27.

"Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of the Father." Matt. xiii. 43.

"Come, ye blessed of my Father inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Matt. xxv. 34.

"Fear not little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." Luke xii. 32.

"Ye who have continued with me in my temptations, I appoint unto you a kingdom." Luke xxii. 29.

"Hearken my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor in this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which God hath promised to them that love him." James ii. 5.

"Jesus lifted up his eyes on his disciples, and said, Blessed poor! For yours is the kingdom of God." Luke vi. 20.

"Brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure;.....for so an entrance shall be administered unto you abundantly into the kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." 2 Pet. i. 10, 11.

"Paul, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Thessalonians.....We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, ...for your patience and faith in all your persecutions and tribulations that ye endure,..... that ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God; for which also ye suffer." 2 Thess. i. 5.

Reader, are you "holy" and "righteous?" Are you of the Christ's "little flock," and do you know the "temptations" of the members of his body? Do you "love" God, and is your "treasure" in heaven? Are you "giving all diligence" to find the mansions eternal? Do you belong to the Church of God, at present suffering in obscurity? If such is your character and relationship, the kingdom is yours; and we exhort you to bide God's time for possession, continuing instant in prayer, increasing in prayer, increasing in faith, joying in hope, and living as on the borders of the inheritance.

The true believer is a man under sentence of death with a hope of resurrection and eternal life beyond. Although as a prisoner awaiting the execution of the first death, he is far superior to fear of this death as of a wave of oblivion, for he sees himself walking out of his grave and away from his tomb, and soaring upward to meet the Lord in the air, death flung off of him and left beneath him for ever. This is his prospect, his comfort, his expectation; to this consummation he labors; for this real freedom he seeks. His hope shall not be cut off. His vision of God's mercy will one day become a blissful reality. Blessed is the man who is a prisoner of hope!

So comprehensive are the doctrines of the gospel, that they involve all moral truth known by man; so extensive are the precepts, that they require every virtue and forbid every sin. Nothing has been added to either by the labors of philosophy or the progress of human knowledge.

Many afflictions will not cloud and obstruct peace of mind so much as one sin; therefore, if ye would walk cheerfully, be most careful to walk holily. All the winds about the earth make no earthquake, but only th[illegible]

The Old Testament is useless if the Chri[illegible] tasted to it.

Communicated.

"Cast Thy Bread upon the Waters."

To sow the seeds of truth, the Word of the kingdom of God soon to come, that kingdom about which Jesus, the great model teacher, and his apostles had so much to say, and of which the people know so little in this our day. The gospel of Christ being the good news relating to this glorious and divine kingdom, and the power and plan of God unto salvation unto every one who believes and obeys, then it becomes the imperative duty of every Christian, every follower of the meek and lowly Jesus, to be up and doing, and let their light shine out to others. To be in harmony with Jesus, the Lifegiver, we must not only believe and obey him, but we must also seek to work in harmony with him. His mission was a mission of mercy to the poor fallen, dying sons and daughters of Adam's race. Just so his children of faith must promise and cultivate his spirit, his disposition and seek earnestly to be found in harmony with him, their Lord and Master, by walking in his footsteps in all they say and do. As his mission was to save the perishing, to seek and save the lost ones, and his kind and generous heart beating in harmony with his Father's will, caused him to labor and die to accomplish the plan of salvation. So will all who are his brethren—his Father's children by faith, seek and labor earnestly and faithfully to help the needy ones by pointing them to the "Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world," and as time is short, and the way to life straight and narrow, and but few true and faithful servants out in the field seeking to honor their Master and his cause by proclaiming a straight gospel to poor erring mortals, it becomes every one naming the name of Christ, rich or poor, to fall in line, and prove their faith by their works, assist and encourage our true standard bearers on to victory. And I know of no way to do this better and more in harmony with our blessed Master's will than to give them good words of cheer, and aid them with your means that God has given you to use for your comfort and his glory. And as faithful stewards who must give account of our stewardship, let us not waste or squander our Master's goods upon our lust, or our pride and vanity, and to please the world, as our Master set us no such an example. But rather work along the line of life and be in company with Jesus the Master, and have him for our great leader and friend, and the Captain of our salvation, and then he will not be ashamed of us when he calls us to account. And there is room for us all to work, and work for us all to do, and let us all be sure that we do our work and do it well, and not stand idle all the day in the vineyard of the Lord, and thus deceive ourselves and miss the crown of life at last. And as all cannot go out and preach in public, yet all must be co-workers together and with him, then let us use some of the Lord's money in the good cause by aiding those who can and will write good and wholesome tracts to scatter broadcast. Many a man and woman will owe in part their salvation to some generous child of God and some little silent messenger of truth that fell into their hands. And as our dear Bro. Joblin, who is working so faithfully for our Master and his cause, has furnished us with such a grand supply of life messengers, and so very cheap, let us do our duty and help him scatter them out among the needy ones, and the Master will say, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy Lord." Amen.

Dear Restitution:

It is probably right I should acknowledge through THE RESTITUTION for the tracts and papers for the purpose of leading some out of darkness into light by having those good tracts placed in their hands to read. Received one dollar's worth of Bro. Joblin's tracts from Jennie Page; from H. V. Reed twenty-five copies of a "Letter to a Friend;" from John C. Woodruff twelve copies of the same; from Mrs. H. E. Paddock a roll of papers; one pound of tracts from M. Joblin; one roll of papers and tracts from some one in the State of Washington; one roll of papers sender unknown; for which you all have my thanks. I will give them where I think they will do the most good.

Announcement.

The Northwest Conference of the Church of God will convene on Friday Oct. 8, at the Lake Shore School house, Wash., and continue over the following Sunday. Brethren and Sisters we once more appeal to you to come and enjoy a short season with us talking over the things concerning Jesus the resurrection and the kingdom of God. Come with your hearts full of love and self-sacrifice, and we are sure you will not leave come in vain. Those coming from a distance will be met at the Esmond hotel, Vancouver, on Friday. Those who cannot come until Saturday, will be met at the same place at 1 o'clock, on Saturday, by addressing me at Felida, Wash. The brethren at this place extend a hearty welcome to all those who will attend.

JOHN E. MCRAE, Sec'y.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, in Michigan, will convene (D. V.) at Millbrook, Mecosta Co., Michigan, on Friday evening, Oct. 1st, 1897, and continue over the following Sunday. The brethren at Millbrook have earnestly requested that the meeting might be held there, feeling that by our united effort much good might be done. All of like precious faith are invited. Train leaves Grand Rapids at 7:10 A. M. via Grand Rapids and Western R. R. formerly Detroit, Lansing and Northern R. R. via Sparta, Greenville, changing cars at Elmore, waiting there about 20 minutes taking the Big Rapids Division to Blanchard, reaching there at 10:00 A. M. where the brethren will meet any who come on morning trains. Another train leaves Grand Rapids at 4:20 P. M. Blanchard at 8:00 P. M. Blanchard is two miles from Decker School-house where the meeting will be held. This church has only recently joined the conference and the brethren are very anxious to have a successful gathering. Will all that can, come up to the help of the Master. The signs of the times show to us who are waiting and watching the near coming of our Savior that we should improve the time. Besides all this such a reunion always helps us. We feel that we have a foretaste of what is to come.

Yours for the Truth.

EMMA JACKMAN, Sec'y.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is badly to think that you can slip bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for no one handles much mail matter can almost every body tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of THE RESTITUTION.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve copies of their writings.

In order to make sure of receiving the first copy of the paper you desire, send your order early, as we cannot duplicate it.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Notice.

WILL our friends please remember that we do not have the books and tracts at this office that are advertized by Brother Joblin, or Brother Wiley Jones. Do not send to this office for them, but send to their address as given in the advertisement. This will save both trouble and delay. PLEASE REMEMBER.

Low Rates, via Pennsylvania Lines.

Special reductions in fare over the Pennsylvania Lines will be granted for numerous events to take place this summer in various parts of the United States, in addition to local excursions. Some of the points to which tickets will be sold and dates of sale are as follows:

To Nashville, Tenn., daily to October 15th, for Tennessee Centennial and International Exposition.

The reduced rates over the Pennsylvania Lines will not be restricted to members of the organizations mentioned, but may be taken advantage of by the public generally. Excursion tickets may be obtained at ticket offices on the Pennsylvania System and will also be sold over this route by connecting railways. Any Pennsylvania Line Ticket or Passenger Agent will furnish desired information concerning rates, time of trains, return limit, and other details, to all applicants, or the same may be obtained by addressing C. L. Kimball, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.

COMMENCING Sunday June 20, and continuing each Sunday thereafter until further notice the Pennsylvania R. R. will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return from Plymouth for $4.00 the round trip. Tickets are good on train No. 15 leaving Plymouth at 5.20 A. M. and returning on train No. 4 leaving Chicago at 11.30 P. M.

Brother Underwood:

Please say through THE RESTITUTION that my son, J. E. Hatch, has moved in with us and I can now do some preaching wherever called, unless I can get from home.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 22, 1897. NUMBER 36.

Poetry.

An Acrostic.

The Father has given a wonderful plan,
His love he has shown to poor sinful man,
Even in this dark world of woe.

Redemption from sin to us he has given,
Eternal abode in the Kingdom of heaven,
Secure 'neath a clear cloud that bows,
Together the saints on the shore shall reign,
In doing God's will and us have to proclaim
The goodness of God they will prove,
Until all shall proclaim the love of the Lord
To the ends of the earth without a discord,
In praising and singing his love.

O may you and I of the dear precious faith,
Never stand still in this Christ on race.

And laying on the good armor again,
Let us all do our best to work for the Lord,
Make it our aim to watch the good word,
In earnest, then we shall obtain
Reward and a crown from the dear coming One,
And praise him forever for all he has done,
Most happy in the Kingdom of God.

Because we shall know the sins we've known,
Receive the reward for the seed we've sown,
Oh! joyful the day of the Lord,
O yes, I can say my heart is now fixed,
Knowing that Christ is exalted above,
So thankful am I for the gift of his love.

A Precious Promise.

"Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God." Matt. v. 8.

"Shall see God." The thought seems too vast for human comprehension. What! can it possibly be, that the pure may yet see the Great Uncreate, dwelling in light, unapproachable by mortals, and before whose glorious presence the angelic host prostrate themselves, crying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, as he dwells in an atmosphere of immaculate purity? Poor sinful creatures that we are, the simple contemplation of the scene, may well cause us to prostrate ourselves, and cry out, Undean! undean!

It is the order of nature that like will seek the companionship of like, the low and debased love to creep together along the slimy trail of the serpent, among the filth and mire of sensuality, while the pure in heart attract the pure, like as a magnet attracts that to which it has an affinity."

The promise is to "the pure in heart, and not to that which may appear so on the exterior. An apple may appear beautiful on the outside, giving a promise as far as appearances go, of being perfect, and still may be rotten at the heart. So a person may be polished and polite in his behavior, and may even talk piety, and yet at heart he may be desperately wicked. "The pure in heart," live purely, while the sham profess purity. The life of the pure in heart is conspicuous, it is exalted and luminous as a city set on a hill, it shows itself in good works, and others see it, and glorify God, it lights up the life with a splendor which is admired by all.

HOW TO BECOME PURE IN HEART.

It consists in a process of three steps.

1. The seeker after heart-purity, must in the first place, be completely purged from his old sins. This cleansing is accomplished by believing the gospel, which consists of the glad news concerning the coming Messianic reign on the restored throne of David, and the things which concern the name of Jesus (his sacrificial offering on the cross) the Christ, (the anointed King) repentance (to reform or change the life) and baptism for the remission of sins. Mark xv. 15, 16; Acts viii. 12; Acts ii. 37, 38. This secures the remission of past sins.

2. The second step consists of a provision by which those who have been purged from their old sins by complying with the first step, may be purged from errors afterwards unwittingly fallen into. Addressing his believing children, he says: "If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness. 1 John i. 9.

Now a person who is "cleansed from ALL unrighteousness," is pure before God, and by sincere confession, and repentance, a purified condition may be constantly maintained before God.

3. The third step consists in perfecting, obtaining the mastery over those things which overcome us. "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna." "He that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations." "He that overcometh the same shall be clothed in white raiment." "Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God." "Him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne."

This matter of overcoming means a constant and persistent work on the part of the obedient believer. The effort to overcome on the part of those who have not taken step No. 1, is of no avail.

THE EFFECT AND POWER OF A PURE LIFE.

"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty, and he that ruleth his own spirit than he that taketh a city." Prov. xvi 32. Such an one is great and noble, he wields a scepter more potent and far more reaching than he who rules an empire, but is unable to govern his own wayward life.

The sceptre of the pure in heart is not confined to his own immediate surroundings, even as the sweet notes of the feathered songster are not confined to the verdant forest, but as it wings its flight over field and hamlet, its melodies fall in harmonious cadences upon the ear of the passer by. Again, it might be compared, to the aroma of flowers, which is not confined to the refreshing retreat in which it grows, but the passing breeze catches up its perfume, and wafts fragrance upon the wings of the wind, to delight the senses of those who have never seen their beauty of form, or marvelled at their beauty of color.

The beauty and power of the pure in heart is seen and felt in the home life—it is a crown of glory—it is a precious gem that sparkles and exhibits its many hued colors as it is reflected in the sunlight of God's truth—it delights and captivates those who compose the home circle, and like seed reproduces itself in the inmates, and by them is carried to others like fragrance of the flower is borne upon the breeze.

The pure in heart robes itself with the beauteous garment of love, and sallies forth on errands of good will and mercy. Vulgarity and vice vanish before it like the fog before the rising sun.

Says Webster: "Political eminence and professional fame fade away with all things earthly. Nothing of character is really permanent, but virtue and personal worth. These remain."

Sir Walter Scott said to Lockhart, as he was dying: "I have but a minute to speak to you. My dear, be a good man; be virtuous, be religious, be a good man. Nothing else will give you any comfort when you come to lie here."

At such a moment how sad it would be to realize that we are passing away simply as "a worthless atom in the universe." Surely a pure heart is the only tie which can bind to the Infinite. With such an one while the declining sun of life shall still linger, and gild its horizon with golden memories, and tender thoughts, visions of joys untold will entwine itself about God's dearly beloved Son, and rise up above the mists and shades cast by sin, into the full light, and sunshine, of the eternal day.

Purity and love are twin sisters that would entwine their caresses about a heart rifted and broken in the storm of life, even "as the vine which has long twined its graceful foliage about the oak, and been lifted by it into the sunshine, will, when the hardy plant is rifted by the thunderbolt, cling around it with its caressing tendrils, and bind up its shattered boughs."

The sublime mission of him whom the pure in heart love to honor, was to release the captive, and bind up the wounds of the broken in heart, and pour into it the healing balm of consolation and love. To the erring one he would say, neither do I condemn, thou go and sin no more. So the mission of the pure ones should be not to condemn, but rather direct erring ones to wash and be clean, to sin no more. A mind thus exercised, will have greater aspirations, it will reach out after that which is high and ennobling. The nation, star or sign will then beam gloriously from the firmament of his life. Deprive it of this cheering hope, and his life would be like the earth without flowers, landscapes, seas, forests, and mountains—a material monotony; like the forests without verdant foliage, blossoms, and the minstrelsy of birds—dark, cheerless, and haunted with spectres; like night unrelieved by stars, and the dawn of morning."

This "blessed hope" points the index finger to the rise of the Day Star in the east which is surely illuminating the horizon, giving promise of the better day, so gloriously predicted by prophets of old—and portrayed in verse by poets—sung of by minstrels in notes almost divine—inspired the eloquence of silvery-tongued orators—comforted the afflicted—lighted up the prison cell of Christian captives—nerved the arm of martyrdom-shrouded lions as they fought wild beasts—cheered God's pure ones as they have struggled with the adverse circumstances of time and sense—reformed the profligate—and dispelled discord as the glorious orb of day chases away the shades of night—refines the vulgar—promotes piety—is as the guardian angel of God's pure ones—points the hungry to a time of plenty—the weary to rest, sweet rest. "He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters"—at which time the blind shall see—the dumb shall sing for joy—the lame shall leap like the hart—the sick shall wear the ceaseless bloom of immortal youth.

Purity, peace and joy are bosom companions. God has joined them together. Wherever purity lends, joy and peace are sure to follow. Pure ones cheered by the blessed hope, though cast in the deepest dungeons have more real joy in heart, than the emperor in his palace, or the king upon his throne. A pure life is a peaceful messenger, a promoter of a joyous and tranquil life. Her soothing peace is a placid flowing river, and her righteousness like the waves of the sea. On sinner, lay hold of the pure gospel of the kingdom, and seek for the glory, honor and immortality, wrapped within its folds, and let your faith clasp the grand column of eternity, and let the poor joy of a penitent heart rise up like sweet incense to the Father who loves you.

W. H. WILSON.

"What are These and Whence Came They?"

I have been waiting and hoping that some one of the readers of THE RESTITUTION would take up this subject and show that the "opinion" of the writer in a late paper in answering the above question, is not according to sound reasoning. He says—the class of Rev. vii. 9, 13, is the same class as the overcomers of ii. 26, and is "selected and chosen as the Bride, the Lamb's wife to rule and reign as kings and priests on the earth." I would kindly suggest to the writer that there is nothing said by the Revelator about their being selected or chosen. This is an error and misleading. So far as the description is concerned, they may be, (and I think are,) a remnant after a selection has been made. Now, if this company is the Bride, the Lamb's wife, and the same class as the overcomers of ii. 26, etc., why are they numbered and described so differently? One class is numbered 144,000; the other is innumerable. One is called kings and priests; the others are called servants. One company sits with Christ on his throne, the others stand before the throne. One company is brought to view as virgins; the others as having washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. The innumerable multitude are not once called virgins, but are brought to view as having been defiled: because they are said to be washed. This thought taken in connection with the fact, that a virgin once defiled can never be washed or cleansed so as to restore her virginity. But the company seen on Mount Zion with the Lamb are called virgins. "These were redeemed from among men, being the first fruits unto God and the Lamb."

"And they sung as it were a new song, and no man could learn that song but the 144,000, which were redeemed from the earth." That song may be found in Rev. v. 9, 10.

Now, did the Revelator make use of a dark lantern or use language so differently in describing the same class of persons?

There are evidently two classes of persons under consideration. One class to sit with Christ on his throne and to reign with him a thousand years; the other class are for servants, just as the Revelator says to serve God day and night in his temple, or to present unto the nations as Isa. lxvi. 19, says to declare the glory of the King among the Gentiles.

But there is another objection to the brother's "opinion" which I wish to notice. In describing the city, the holy Jerusalem, the Revelator says,—"I saw no temple therein." Then in chap. xxii. 3, he says—"The throne of God and the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him." v. 5. "And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun, for the Lord God giveth them light, and they shall reign for ever and ever." But the innumerable multitude serve God day and night in his temple. Now did the Revelator get his description mixed up and contradict himself? Evidently the brother did not notice this thought or he would not have opined that the overcomers should serve God day and night in his temple where there is no temple and no night. Alas! Alas! such a clashing in the brother's "opinion" and contradiction wont go down. But why so much distortion and conscription of language in order to merge these two classes into one class? Has a hatred of the practiced Christians anything to do with it? I cannot bear any hatred towards them because they cannot see all that I think I can see. I can love them, or what they do, nor hate them for what they do not do. They are sending Bibles and "truth literature" by the tons to the heathen and men and women to teach them to read it, in their own language. These workers are leaving their homes, their brethren and sisters, etc., for Christ's sake, and shall they be punished with everlasting destruction at the revelation of Jesus Christ because they have not been baptized? The Savior says NO. See Mark x. 29, 30. They will be rewarded in the world to come with eternal life. See Rom. x. 9; Matt. x. 32. But will they get into the kingdom of God? Jesus said NO. See John iii. 7. The Savior made no mistake here.

Now if the brother will excuse me I will try to "show mine opinion."

I understand there will be a great work to be done, after the kingdom is set up, before the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." Our King will not subdue the refractory and rebellious nations and enlighten the heathen, with a wave of his hand; but will make use of common sense means to rebuke the nations, and teach the heathen, and so bring them into harmony with himself, and it will take a vast multitude of servants and missionaries to do his work. Evidently, this great company will be made up, (in part at least,) of a class of persons who have made missionary work their life-time business, and who have some of the characteristics of Christ, but fall short of all the qualifications which are necessary for kings and priests. I believe rankized and immortal real believers will help make up the innumerable multitude of Rev. vii. 9. These ARmore believers have done and are doing a little of the very work that our King will want done when he sits on his throne in Zion, and the innumerable multitude of servants will stand ready to be sent unto nations to declare the glory of the King among the Gentiles. See Isa. lxvi. 19.

The trouble with what we call kingdom believers, is; they believe all who are saved will be rewarded with royalty, to reign over the nations when the kingdom is set up. This, I believe is a very great and sad mistake. Very few, comparatively, of those who have believed and have been baptized will attain to royalty. A case occurs to me of one who believed and had been baptized and yet had "no part nor lot in this matter." The trouble with him was; his "heart was not in the right sight of God."

Furthermore, I do not find any proof that simply belief and baptism will entitle any one to royalty. Mark xvi. 16, is seized upon for proof. But this clause from 9 v. to the end of the chapter is of doubtful authenticity and is rejected by some of the best scholars. But be that as it may; belief and baptism only entitle a man to salvation, and I think I have proved beyond controversy that the multitude of Rev. vii. 9, 13, will be saved but only as servants. To illustrate this view, let us suppose that a man believes the gospel and has suffered himself to be baptized, because some one has told him so, but his faith and hope are founded on what his friend has told him. He does not believe because God says so. Will our King entrust him with royalty and appoint him to reign over the nations? I cannot believe it. Only the best material will be entrusted with royalty.

I sometimes fear that I will not become one of an overcomer. I sometimes get out of patience with the horse, the hens or cat, and my wife at my elbow suggests—"If you can't govern yourself, how do you expect to govern others when you get into the kingdom?" This is a timely suggestion, and it would be well if every brother and sister would take it home. Can we? Do we govern ourselves? If we are not faithful in these least things, how can we expect to have the true riches committed to us? Ah! brethren and sisters, we must not only believe the gospel and be baptized, but we must "add to our faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness," and last though not least, charity. Paul in 1 Cor. xiii. agrees with Peter in regard to charity. "Charity, (or love,) suffereth long and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, thinketh no evil." We are not to make a man an offender for a word, nor the company to which he belongs, nor condemn them because they cannot pronounce our shibboleth.

On a certain occasion, John said—"Master we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and we forbade him because he followeth not us. And Jesus said forbid him not: for he that is not against us is for us."

Submitted in love for the truth's sake.

Indiana Workers.

In another column will be found an article entitled "Workers Together with Him." We now wish to apply the principal thought in that article to God's co-laborers in the State of Indiana. (By the way my others may read and practice if they so desire.)

We have lately held another conference meeting. And according to the report of treasurer not one particle of work had been done in the past year by the Conference. Consequently nothing about which to confer. Now, this is a perfectly terrible report for a State Conference to make whose members claim so much truth as do the members of the Church of God. We do not want such a thing to happen again, and it is not going to, for over two hundred dollars were subscribed Sunday afternoon toward an evangelist fund. This (excepting twenty-five dollars) by those present at the Conference. An agreement has already been made between a speaker and the executive board for said speaker to commence work in October. So we have already done much more work than was done all last year. But that two hundred dollars was only intended for a starter. There are several hundred members in the State who were not at the expense of attending Conference and can consequently do more than those who were present. I do not believe it is too much to ask. Those of our faith in this State for as many dollars as there are members, to be used in spreading the truth. There are certainly very few who are unable to give one dollar per year, less than one-third of a cent for each working day, to this cause. While there are several who are abundantly able to forward one hundred dollars each year for this work. Indeed, did the writer have as much strength in nerve, and "Private funds to loan" as some of our people have, he would consider that he would not be a "worker with God" but a playfellow with Satan if he furnished less than five hundred dollars worth of strength for the cause of truth.) I herewith copy conditions of all subscriptions taken at the Argos Conference to wit:

"We the undersigned agree to pay the amount set opposite our names to the secretary of the Indiana State Conference of the Church of God, to be used for the sole and exclusive purpose of evangelization, as directed by the executive board of said Conference. A full and accurate account of all money received and expended in this fund shall be kept and reported by the treasurer at each yearly Conference in September, at which time the Conference year is reckoned to begin. And no money shall be paid out except upon the written order of said Board.

The subscriptions herein are for one year, and shall be due quarterly in even payments, on or before the first days of Oct., Jan., Apr. and July."

This money you all know is to be sent to Bro. A. C. Roberts, Secy., Plymouth, who will receipt you for the same. Now to lessen the work for Bro. Roberts, and to lessen expense of remitting it is desired that all churches or bands of believers will select some one person to take subscriptions and notify Bro. Roberts at once the amount subscribed, then quarterly to collect these payments and forward to secretary. To all isolated ones, will you please notify Bro. Roberts at once the amount you can pay for the year and then forward in payments quarterly, unless you prefer to remit sooner.

I am sure that if all in the State were in one body and all were as earnest as were those at Argos Sunday afternoon Sept. 12, we could raise ten thousand dollars in an hours' time. Let us all act promptly and freely. The season is almost here in which to do the best work. We wish to learn at once how much money we have so as to arrange to use it promptly. Please do not delay. Write now. Submitted with a desire to further the gospel.

F. L. AUSTIN, Pres. Ind. Con.

As the result of the development of our public school system and the deepening of books, there has grown up a large class of men and women who seek broader education, or desire to extend their knowledge along special lines. Their duty in life, or lack of means, exclude them from the universities. The Cosmopolitan Magazine has undertaken the task of bringing liberal education, in its broadest sense, within the reach of those who have the aspiration, but are deprived of the opportunity. Dr. Andrews, late of Brown University, has undertaken the Presidency of The Cosmopolitan's educational movement. The work, thus begun, is not intended to take the place of regular university work, but to supply a gap in existing educational facilities. Those who are really in search of knowledge will find direction and aid. It can do nothing for those who have not the desire to study. An intending student sends to The Cosmopolitan, New York, his name, occupation, previous courses of study, studies desired to be pursued, objects and purpose for which course is designed, and the number of hours', daily or weekly, study which can be given. No charges of any kind will be made to students.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the restitution of all things which God has spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, IND. SEPTEMBER 22, 1897.

THERE will be no paper next week, as there are five Wednesdays in this month.

"EVERY attribute of God's nature is arranged against sin; his wisdom disapproves; his holiness abhors; his justice condemns; his power punishes; his grace destroys it."

"NEVER sacrifice a right principle to obtain a favor—the cost is too great. If you cannot secure what is right and needful for you by square and manly conduct, better do without it."

W. SECKER tells of a painter who, being warmly reprehended by a cardinal for putting too much red in the faces of Paul and Peter, answered,—"It is to show how much they blush at the conduct of many who style themselves their successors."

THE English and Egyptian forces in the work of re-conquering the Soudan seem to be having things pretty nearly all their own way; and the fact that the population of Egypt is now 9,700,000, an increase of 900,000 in seven years, speak well for the fostering care of Britain.

"A LITTLE deeper," said one of Napoleon's old guard, when they were probing for a bullet that had mortally wounded him. He thought they were getting near the heart.—"a little deeper, and you will find the Emperor." Hilke the guard, all who have enlisted under the banner of the cross and the crown, the Great Captain is embedded in their hearts, happy are they, and happier will they be."

WHEN the Italian Anarchist who killed the Spanish Premier was before the Examining Magistrate, in reply to a remark that in killing Senor Canovas he had only removed a man, and not an institution, he said: "Ah! you think so, but this is only an isolated execution, and you will see many others." The Figaro's correspondent says that the magistracy is convinced that it has to deal with a formidable organization having ramifications in every country.

IF the fire of love to God be not kept burning brightly we will become lovers of ourselves, and fail to detect any defection from God. In many places the Word of the Spirit has taught us to expect that the ranks of those who have enlisted under the banner of the cross and crown will be terribly thinned out before the King appears. Brothers and sisters, we exhort all that we can possibly reach, to tighten their grip on the grand old covenants of promise, and the things concerning the name of Christ, and then all the powers of darkness cannot move them. A strong tower is that name. Those who enter and abide in it are absolutely safe. No others are.

SHORTLY before the rising of the British Parliament an amendment was made by Mr. Goschen of a new Admiralty programme, consisting chiefly of the building of four new first-class cruisers of an improved type. This is the purpose to which the extra half million assigned to the navy in the Budget is to be applied. Mr. Goschen stated that this increase is the answer of the Admiralty to the "abnormal condition which one of the Continental powers is about to make to its naval forces. The Power is understood to be Russia. It is also reported that the British Government propose to build a Naval Station at Simon's Bay, Cape of Good Hope, at an expense of £2,500,000.

THE Worcester Daily Times—English says, "A private letter from Jerusalem gives some interesting statistics of the influx of Jews into Palestine. During the last few years nearly 150,000 Jews have entered the Holy Land, and the arrival of another host is said to be imminent." If this report be correct, a revolution in the politics of Mediterranean Asia may be anticipated. Already the railroads are opening up the country between the coast and Jerusalem and Damascus, and a Jewish migration on a large scale may cause Syria to become once more of vast importance in the East. There is, however, considerable rest... among the Druses, which may ...e effect in deterring this ...migration."

its revenue from the traffic in strong drink; while the Niger Coast Protectorate proportion is eighty per cent. What those figures mean in the degradation and demoralization of the native races can be readily imagined—the more in that the tax on ardent spirits is exceptionally low, showing the consumption to be enormous. This is a blot upon the governments of Great Britain and other Powers that no number of Bibles sent there can obliterate. Bibles, indeed; what could more effectually prevent the illumination of their minds by the Word of Truth?

The Drink Bill of Switzerland—that State in many respects considered a model—is estimated at $7,200,000, or a sum seven times as large as the cost of the Swiss army, and double the whole Federal Budget of the nation. What a millstone round the neck of a poor people! What a scandalous and wicked waste." What a gigantic evil! No power on earth can grapple with it. Divine power alone is equal to the task. Do we not need a change of Administration? Shall we not mightily cry, "Come Lord Jesus, quickly come?"

DURING the unveiling of an image (an idol) to the virgin in Pisa Cathedral, recently, the decorations caught fire from the lighted tapers, and nine lives were lost, and twenty-five persons were injured; and we see from "The Annals of our Blessed Lady of Victory" sent to us by some friend, to what astounding lengths the idolatry of Mary is carried. We subjoin a few sentences. The leading article says:

"In every Age Doctors of learning have dignified the prerogatives of Mary. Theologians have seated her upon a throne second only in the royal Magnificence to the eternal throne of God, and placed upon her brow a diadem sparkling with gems, the choicest of heaven's growth, while about her throne sings the angelic choirs countless in numbers, created to serve their Heavenly Queen." And then we find articles under such headings as these: "Devotion to Mary, the inheritance of our Holy Faith;" and "All Blessings flow from our Blessed Lady;" and "Mary's Help necessary for Salvation;" and "Mary the Medium of our Salvation;" and "Mary the Ship of Life;" and "God wishes all to be saved through Mary;" the closing paragraph of which is as follows: "What hope of Salvation would remain to us, if thou, Oh, Mary, didst abandon us,—thou who art the life of Christians." What blasphemies! Mary is long since dead herself.

Consecration. Rom. xiv. 7, 8.

CHURCH OF THE BLESSED HOPE, CLEVELAND, OHIO. BIBLE CLASS PAPERS. NO. 1.

Consecration as defined for us is the "act of solemnly and sacredly dedicating a person or thing to the service of God. It was one of the most widely spread religious ceremonies of the ancient world, being practiced in India, Chaldea, Judea, Greece, Rome, Britain and other countries. This custom, at least, so far as regards places and things, did not pass immediately from Judaism to Christianity, for the latter, being more or less a persecuted religion, until the time of Constantine, could not venture to indulge with safety in any public ceremonialism." This is consecration as the world sees it. It is an act of solemnly and sacredly devoting a person or thing to the service of a God.

In the Old Testament, God ordained that all the first born, (a type of those who have part in the first resurrection probably) should be consecrated to his service. Exodus xiii. 2, 12, 15. The whole family of Israel was particularly consecrated to his service. Exodus xix. 6. These were consecrations which God ordained by his own absolute and sovereign will. Besides these there were recognized consecrations which were dependent upon men, who consecrated themselves, or the things belonging to them, to the service of God forever, or for a limited time. Some of the Nazarites consecrated themselves to the Lord only for a certain time. Num. vi. 1-8. In the New Testament all who believe and obey the gospel are represented as consecrated unto the Lord. They are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people. 1 Peter ii. 9. They are God's husbandry. They are God's building. 1 Cor. iii. 9.

Man cannot give or consecrate himself to God in the sense of doing God a favor or giving anything to him that is not his by right, for we read in the 24th Psalm that the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof, and they that dwell therein." They are his by right of creation, and preservation; and not to yield obedience to his just and merciful requirements is

AN ACT OF ROBBERY.

The commandments of God are not grievous. He has asked nothing which ought not to be man's greatest joy to give. Matt. xxiv. 40. Love to God who created him and placed him in a world filled with all things for his happiness and pleasure; "Things good for food and pleasant to the senses, which were to be freely his, the only condition being love, and through love, obedience. He should not touch that which would bring suffering upon himself, or, a knowledge of evil. And was not that first commandment given to man an entreaty? rather "Of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil thou shalt not eat, for in the day that thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die." There is no sacrifice required in this command,—only, thou shalt not do that which shall bring thee harm. Placed where no evil could touch him except of his own will, and warned against that evil; and given all things required to make him happy, surely man ought to have loved his God with all his heart, with all his soul, and all his mind. God has not changed:

BE STILL IS LOVE.

He still entreats us and commands us for our good; and if we be guided by him, we shall be beside the still waters; yea, though we walk through the valley of the shadow of death, we need fear no evil, for he will be with us, his rod and his staff shall protect us, and goodness and mercy shall follow us all the days of our present life, and having been led through the valley of the shadow of death, we shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

To those who have tasted that the Lord is good, his yoke is easy and his burden light. Their delight is in the law of the Lord, and in his law do they meditate day and night. Such have no time to play with the toys with which the children of the world try to amuse themselves,—they have but life is a glorious gift from God—a chance for preparation for the glories yet to be revealed. And consecration of our all to God, is not a sacrifice, it is our pleasure, our joy, and our constant prayer is.

NO TIME TO KILL,

"O take my life and let it be,
Consecrated, Lord to thee."

And "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" We will not be seeking crosses in God's service. When I hear people talking of sacrifices, and crosses, I am always reminded of Jeremiah xiii. 33, where God says through that prophet "And when this people, or a prophet, or a priest shall ask thee saying: What is the burden of the Lord? Thou shalt then say unto them: What burden? I will even forsake you saith the Lord. And as for that prophet, and the priest that shall say, the burden of the Lord, I will even punish that man, and his house. Thus shalt ye say every one to his neighbor, and every one to his brother, What hath the Lord answered? And what hath the Lord spoken: and shall ye mention no more: for every man's word shall be his burden, for ye have perverted the words of the living God, of the Lord of hosts, our God." And is it a burden, a cross, a sacrifice to follow in the footsteps of our Elder Brother, whose meat and drink was to do the Father's will? I know we have our trials, or temptations, but James says: "My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into various trials, knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience." And while we are to take up our cross and follow him who is our great example, he took not up the cross until it was placed upon him by men. He did not seek it, except by fearlessly doing the will of his Father. So we have crosses to bear upon us, but not by our Father in heaven, but by those who do not his will, and cannot endure that any should. If such bind burdens upon us, then let us take up our cross, the "reproach of Christ," rejoice and remembering that so persecuted they all servants of God, who have been before us. And in so doing none of us liveth to himself but the glory of God, is our desire, and as the soldiers of our King, we serve him even to the laying down of our lives. This is no more than men do for the earthly kings, who after their subjects have obeyed unto death can no more reward them, but our King is king over death, and the reward for serving him is not a so-called glorious death, but a glorious crown of life,—the life everlasting.

THE BURDEN OF THE LORD

BE EXCEEDINGLY GLAD,

Report of Meetings.

Held by Bro. D. M. Hudler over first Sunday in September, at Antioch, Ill.; it was one of the most interesting meetings held for some time. The brethren are fully in earnest at this place and we hope for much good. May the good seed sown bring forth much fruit.

At Adeline, Ill. held meetings over the second Sunday of September. After a series of meetings and the hearing of the glad tidings from the Word Mrs. John Pyper, Mrs. Wm. Miller of Antioch, Miss Emma Renner of Lamark, were fully persuaded and went down into the water and were buried by baptism into the ever-saving name of Christ, to arise to walk in a newness of life. Just a few weeks prior Edward Renner of Lamark was baptized by Bro. D. M. Hudler. Thus we see a few are being called out by the preaching of the gospel.

The meeting at Lamark Sept. 16th to 18th inclusive was very well attended and some from a distance as well as from the city were to hear the gospel of the kingdom for the first time. There was more than the usual interest and we have reason to believe that the good seed sown may bring forth fruit meet for repentance.

Bro. D. M. Hudler was re-engaged by the churches of Antioch, Adeline and Lamark, Illinois for the coming year. On Monday morning he left for Iowa to preach a couple weeks. Thus the good work goes on. May the Lord bless his endeavors and the Word spoken fall in good and honest hearts.

Dear Restitution:

We have a little band of earnest believers here in Lamark, and we meet together to read and investigate our Bibles every first day at three o'clock P. M., and it strengthens and encourages and holds us together to contend for the truth once delivered to the saints. Oh, those cheering letters from the household of faith; how they seem to us it were live over the pleasant times that we have had with the dear family of our heavenly Father.

Your Brother,
S. P. RENNER.

Dear Restitution:

At our last meeting at Brady, in Southern Mich. Aug. 29th, the church rejoiced to witness the burial by baptism, of Sister Bastian. How strange our lives run on. About the same time that Sister Bastian was dying to sin, by taking the name of Christ upon herself, our Sister McCrodan was passing under the death penalty which none of us can escape unless our Savior shall come to deliver us. And still with all these warnings before the world, how careless the masses are, how thoughtless of the future. God is giving all plenty of time to repent, but they slight the offered mercy, the hand of love stretched out to help them. God pity and forgive and help us so to live to meet all the faithful at last.

B. W. WOODWARD.

Dear Restitution:

On Monday I baptized Nelly Penwell, an intelligent young lady of Bonham, Texas. I am doing all I can to spread the good news, the gospel of the kingdom. THE RESTITUTION is doing a grand missionary work, give God the glory.

Your Brother in Christ,
S. R. CLINKENBEARD.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

On the first of the month I preached at Pleasant Hill to an attentive audience; since then have been to Bear, Ark., near Hot Springs, where Bro. James L. Muncrief is trying to hold aloft the banner of the King Immanuel, to a lost and "gain saying people." Rom. x. 21. And now I am trying to save my crop. The Lord has blessed us abundantly.

Yours truly,
R. A. HUMPHREYS.

Dear Editor:

Will you allow me a little space in our Church paper to say to the brethren scattered abroad that I am in the faith as strong as ever. I am preaching every Sunday; will establish a Church of God at Summit, Alabama, on the second Sunday in October, if prejudice don't keep the people away. I see that Bro. Kidwell of Arkansas is traveling and preaching, will he come south to Alabama and preach some for us? Bro. Kidwell is acquainted with me, will he please say whether he can come or not. Editor, do you or any of our brethren know where we can get a young man to come to Alabama and preach? We will keep a young man in the field all the time. Will some one write me at once as our Conference meets in November. We want him to preach a year for us. Address Summit, Blount Co., Ala.

Obituary.

Sarah Jane (Hoy) McCrodan was born in the town of Glasslough, Monaghan Co., Ireland, June 17th, 1825. Very early in life she united with the Presbyterian Church. She was married to James McCrodan May 14th, 1845. In the year 1852 they emigrated to the United States and settled at Pittsford, Monroe Co., N. Y., remaining there until the spring of 1867, they moved to Jamestown, Ottawa Co., Mich. where her husband died in Aug. 1870. For the last twenty years she has resided with her oldest son, Wm. McCrodan, of Dutton, Mich. She first heard the gospel of the kingdom preached by Elder O. R. L. Crozier, which faith she embraced and in the month of April 1871, together with her son William and youngest daughter, Susan, was baptized by Brother Crozier into the saving name of Jesus Christ. Six children were born to her, four sons and two daughters, five of which survive her, viz: William of Dutton, Mich. George J. of Bronson, Mich. John R. of San Francisco, Cal. Mrs. John W. Jones, of Johnsonburg, N. Y. and Mrs. Susan White, of Decatur, Ala. While visiting her son George, she was taken sick on Sunday night after attending church morning and evening of that day, and although everything was done to restore her to health she gradually grew worse, and two weeks from the day she was stricken down she fell asleep, her death occurring at noon, Aug. 29, 1897. Her remains were brought to Dutton, for interment. Funeral sermon by the writer, from 1 Thess. iv. 13.

Editor Restitution:

There are two mysterious texts which I would like to have Bro. Gardner, or some Hebrew scholar, explain. One is in Psa. cxxxix. 15, "My substance was not hid from thee, when I was made in secret; and curiously wrought in the lowest parts of the earth." The other is 1 Cor. xi. 10, "For this cause ought the woman to have power on her head, because of the angels."

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

I can stand as a witness for my blessed Master. I am trying with all my heart and might to do something to bring poor lost souls to Christ before the great and notable day of the Lord's appearing. I have been sending out gospel papers in every direction to bring the lost to Christ, and I am determined to work for him till he comes. My desire is to meet you in the kingdom o God. Let us be up and doing the work that Christ has left us to do. If we ever needed the Spirit of the Lord burning in our hearts as the lamps of the five wise virgins were, it is now. Let us be watching and waiting, and ready for the Master when he comes to make up his jewels, for we know he will soon be at hand. We can see the signs on every hand. Oh, let us distribute tracts and do all we can to show that there is life in Christ, so they will seek salvation. Will some restitution minister come out here and hold a protracted meeting. I am poor but would find a lodging for him. Address me at Smith Center, Kan.

Pray for me, brethren and sisters, that I may ever hold out faithful and meet you in the kingdom of heaven.

Your brother in Christ,
JOHN E. ROHRAUGH.

Dear Restitution:

It has been over a year since some dear friend sent me the paper and I want to thank them through its columns, and to say that I am still unable to take any paper. Since I last wrote you we lost our entire home on account of continual failure of crops, small grain is very poor and the corn is all gone again. I shall miss the paper very much if I do not get it as it is all the preaching I have. There are only twelve of us left here, and we are so scattered we hardly ever get together even for Bible study. I have had poor health for over a year, and I ask the prayers of the brothers and sisters of the one faith that if it is God's will, that I may regain my health, and when Christ comes may we all be ready to enter that glorious rest where sickness is no more.

Your sister, watching for the Savior.
MRS. VINTA SKADDEN.

Editor Restitution:

How prophecy is fulfilling in our day. Last fall I read in Job. "If I have made gold my hope, or have said unto the fine gold, Thou art my confidence. If I have rejoiced because my wealth was great, and because mine hand had found much.....This also were an iniquity to be punished by the judges, for I should have denied the God that is above." Job xxxi. 24, 25, 28. I have seen no account of this golden light in our papers, or elsewhere. In the days of cyclones and cloudbursts and dreadful accidents, such a vision would be considered too tame for notice. But notice particularly the next verse. "Gold cometh from the north and with God is terrible majesty." The New Revision reads "Out of the north cometh golden splendor." Instead of giving an account of this golden light, the papers gave glowing accounts of Klondike gold from the far north. I remember when the civil war was in our midst of reading in the Bible, "Say ye not a confederacy to them that say a confederacy." I delight in thy law, O Lord."

E. K. HOLE.

Dear Restitution:

Dear brothers and sisters, I believe the coming of the Lord is near at hand, even at the door. The question is, Are we ready? I can say that I am trying to be ready. O, may we be found watching for his coming. O, what a glorious thought it is to think of meeting the loved ones again, never to part if we are found worthy of a home in the kingdom. Pray for me that I may be one of the chosen.

Your Sister in Christ,
NETTA ARNSPIGER.

Dear Restitution:

Enclosed find money for my subscription, the rest to send the paper to some one not able to pay for it. I am so glad I was led to see the truth, and that I am not a believer in the popular preaching of the day. But people will listen and believe, and will not study the Word of God to find out his plan of redemption to the children of men. May the dear Lord soon come is my prayer.

Your Sister waiting for his coming.
MRS. SARAH HADDEN.

Dear Restitution:

Please find enclosed $1.50 to pay for our paper as our time has expired some time ago. I thank our kind heavenly Father who has provided money for us. The Bible and T... RESTITUTION are all the preaching we have in McBride. We have what some call gospel preaching, a heart-kingdom. I praise God that I have been permitted to see the light and truth as it is in Christ Jesus. Pray for us, dear brothers and sisters in Christ, that we may hold out faithful and meet you all in the kingdom when Jesus comes.

Your Sister in Christ,
MRS. W. H. HARTT.

Praise as well as pray. If you would arm yourselves for trouble and duty, recount the marvelous acts of the Lord, as well as supplicate the communications of his grace. Before they departed—the Redeemer to the terrible agony, the disciples to the dreaded separation—the last thing was to sing a hymn—a chant of thankful psalms.

Special Train Excursion to Michigan City.

Tuesday Sept. 28th, another special train excursion via Nickel Plate Road to Michigan City, Ind. Tickets will be sold from all stations between Payne, New Haven, Fort Wayne and stations west to Wanatah, at remarkably low rates. This is the opportunity to visit the State Penitentiary and Michigan's famous Summer resort. Special train starts from Payne. For rates, time of train leaving stations, etc. See Agents.—1 t.

God's Rights, or the Divine System of Finance.—No. 2.

Does the Bible teach systematic giving of our means to the Lord's work? That it teaches it to be the duty of his people to give to the Lord's work a share of their means no one will question, but that there should be system in giving not all are prepared to admit. Systematic giving is simply exercising this privilege according to God's System of Finance. The Bible represents the Christian as the Lord's Steward. The first requisite of a steward is that he be found faithful. Honesty is essential, and not only honesty, but systematically performing his work in the right time and in the right manner.

I once knew a School teacher who called the school roll only once a week and then not in the school-room but in his own room after the week was over: and you may know how imperfectly it must have been done. The School Board could not be certain of the daily attendance or the average attendance under his uncertain way of marking. He might in a way, guess about the number present but there could be nothing certain or accurate about it. He always reminded me of the grocer whose account books were burned in a fire. Obtaining a new set of books he entered the names and amounts upon his new books "by guess." His wife said to him one day "Tom, are you sure you have all the names down that were on the old books?" To which he replied, "I don't know Susan whether I have all or not, but I am sure of one thing, and that is, these new accounts are against better men!"

So it is in giving without system. You can never be sure that God has been honestly dealt with. You can never tell whether we have robbed God or whether we have robbed ourselves.

The teacher referred to above afterward became a partner in business—became a steward. His negligence was apparent in his accounts. His books and the cash seldom agreed, and the reason was, a lack of system in business methods. While he may not have been dishonest, yet his books could never be trusted, because when he received or paid out money he seldom entered it at the time, and many entries that should have been made never appeared because neglected and often forgotten. The lack of system ruined him financially.

Cheating a fellowman is a crime—it is in fact a species of stealing; but what can we say for the man who will cheat his Creator. Robbing God is an awful crime, and he knows all about it too. Whether we defraud through carelessness or avarice makes but little difference and whoever does it is not innocent.

Following God's system of giving, as laid down in the Bible, carefully, honestly, conscientiously and faithfully, we shall find not only pleasure and the rich reward of an approving conscience, but also the promise of God's blessing realized.

Careful examination shows that more is given and God's work and cause advanced more in proportion as we follow God's plan of giving. Systematic effort accomplishes more in every department of work, and all kinds of labor require system. The farmer plants his corn in rows. He plants it in the soil, in the proper season. He has a system of cultivation and follows it closely, for he has learned by experience that nature resents none of his mistakes nor overlooks his carelessness. Ceres, the goddess of Corn is imperius in her demands and he must be systematic if she smiles upon his labors. System and success are synonymous. If in all branches of human industry systematic effort is crowned with the richest results, shall we expect less in the work of God? System implies regularity and this brings us to consider next the question,—Are we taught to be regular in giving?

Regularity marks all God's works everywhere. The sun is regular in its motion. The moon obeys its appointed time. The planets, the stars, and even the comets are regular in their periods. The seasons come and go. The earth is clothed with snow or with verdure with a regularity that admits of no question. The rythm of time enters into all the poetry of nature. Health depends upon regularity; this curious machinery of my body is ever surging to and fro, and the life currents ebb and flow like the tides of the grand old ocean. [illegible] law of nature therefore the law of God.

In the law of God as given through Moses to Israel, everything was systematic and regular. Every morning the smoke of sacrifice ascended. Every evening found the priest before God's altar ministering for the people. The sabbath came regularly like a smaller wheel fitted into the Jubilee, the larger wheel in the proportion of 7 to 1, seven revolutions of the sabbattic year brought the 49 years of the greater Jubilee.

The passover was to be in its season as all the feasts. The offering of the first fruits was to be regular. Ex. xxii. 29. "Thou shalt not delay to offer the first of thy ripe fruits"—you must not put it off. "The first[illegible] of the flock shall remain with its mother seven days and on the eighth day it shall be offered to the Lord." Ex. xxii. 30. On the eighth day the first-born was to appear before the Lord and receive the sign of his citizenship and a token of God's covenant. Also in regard to the first-fruit and the tithe we read—"When thou hast made an end of tithing all the tithes of thine increase the third year, which is the year of tithing and hast given it to the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless and the widow.....thou shalt say before the Lord thy God.....I have not transgressed thy commandments neither have I forgotten them, but have done according to all that thou hast commanded me." The Law required system and regularity. So too when we come to the New Testament we read in 1 Cor. xvi. 1, 2, "Now concerning the collection for (not of) the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him 'in store,'" etc. A careful reading of the above order from Paul will establish the conviction that he is laying down a rule for giving, to the poor saints at Jerusalem; and the first thing that strikes the mind is regularity, it was to be done upon the first day of the week. And he further states that the same regularity he had already established in the churches throughout the province of Galatia. He fixes the time regularly every week for giving. This is not a weekly meeting of the disciples. There is nothing said about a meeting—it is all about giving or laying aside for the poor. He does not say this is a congregational work but an individual work for every one was to lay by himself a proportionate amount as he had been prospered the previous week. This "laying by" was at home and not in a meeting. The following translations will show that the thought of the Common Version is the correct one, viz that it sets forth regularity in giving as well as that Paul intended it for the individual at his home to lay by a part of his income.

Greenleaf translates thus.—"With ones self, i. e. at home."

The Vulgate—"With ones self at home."

Osterwald,—"At his own house, at home."

German,—"bei sich sellst—by himself.

Italian,—"In his own presence at home."

Spanish,—"In his own house."

Swedish,—"mer sig self—near himself."

The Douay,—"Put apart with himself."

Beza-Latin,—"A pudse—at home."

The Syriac,—"Let every one of you lay aside and preserve at home."

Dr. Edwards confesses that the idea of a public congregational collection is not found in the Scriptures and translates the above passage thus:—"Lay by him in store.—at home.

It is thus settled beyond all dispute that this passage relates to regular giving—regular giving, and not to meeting.

If then, everything in nature is regular and everything in the Law of Moses was regular, is it not reasonable that the system Christ established is regular and systematic. We are rather wont to pride ourselves that the law was imperfect and that Christ established a superior system of order, regularity and perfection. That he was methodical and systematic is seen in the fact of his having a treasurer among his twelve disciples and a standing committee whose business it was to draw upon the treasurer and go away into the "city to buy bread."

"Workers Together With Him."

With who? God! Who are workers together with God? We Are!! Now I ask—Is it an easy matter for us to be [illegible] Cor. vi. 1 and let us learn of what Paul is talking, and of whom. "We" the first word. Who? Why Paul and the Christians at Corinth. Is it possible, then that Christians are co-laborers (Diog.) with the Father? Yes, that is what is taught by Paul. Did you ever stop to consider that you are laboring with one so revered? But, say, just one moment before going further. Are you one who is working with God? Paul was not writing to all classes. Just to the workers. Just the workers! Not the playfellows but the workers. We want to be sure and get this started right for I wish to communicate with the same class which Paul was writing to, namely the workers—workers. Now if we are co-laborers with our heavenly Father, and I hope we are, then it must be we are doing the same kind of work that he is, though not necessarily in the same way. In other words, our aims must be the same. But, says one, does God work? Certainly. Of course he does. It took labor to create this beautiful world: and it will take still more work to overthrow the evil and restore the once "very good." What is the work to be done? I Cor. v. 18-21, it is found to be the work of reconciling the creation to the Creator. And to assist to that end God gave the life of his Son. And he "hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation: to wit.....hath committed unto us the Word of reconciliation." Now we have the aim of all true workers. To reconcile others to God through the Word.

Here then is our work, now a glance at the material we are to work on. It is spotted with infidelity, agnosticism, indifference, and a benumbed yawning, semi-living, coldness. Infidelity is bad; agnosticism is worse; indifference is doubly worse than the two former combined: while that last named ingredient is simply horrible. However bad, such are the facts, and it is not ours to find fault but to go to work to remedy as far as possible. Reconcile these things to God,—and not God to them. It is to be done by applying properly the Word; with love, with earnestness, with patience, with perseverance. And this is "committed unto us." What a great honor, and yet what a great responsibility. Now, brethren, are we discharging our duty faithfully? Are we working together with him? It is the Word that is going to be effective. How to be made effective? Through the energy of those to whom committed. Its truth must be sown broadcast: must be thoroughly harrowed; and the tender plants carefully guarded. To do this requires brains. Brains require food. Food requires money. And money requires a warm, loving, willing, working heart. Are you a worker? Notice article in another column to "Indiana Workers."

Yours for the cause of Truth,

F. L. Austin.

Conference Report.

At a business meeting of brethren, held at Springs, Brown Co., Kansas, Sept. 4, 1897, a conference for the States of Kansas and Missouri was organized as follows:—

On motion of J. Shellenberger, Chairman of the tent committee, W. J. Orem was elected Chairman. Pro tem, and A. W. Darby Secretary Pro tem. W. J. Orem, J. F. Wilcox and E. M. Saylor were elected a committee to draft articles of organization. The committee reported the following which was adopted:—

ARTICLES OF ORGANIZATION OF THE KANSAS AND MISSOURI CONFERENCE OF THE CHURCH OF GOD OF THE ABRAHAMIC FAITH.

1. This conference is organized for the purpose of promoting a closer union and co-operation among those of like precious faith in the work of the gospel in the states of Kansas and Missouri.

2. The Bible of the Old and New Testament shall constitute our only rule of faith and practice, and Christian life and character our only bond of fellowship.

3. By Christian character we understand the character of an immersed believer in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, the Life Giver, as explained and defined in the Holy Scripture.

4. The membership of this conference shall consist of churches and isolated individuals in sympathy with the foregoing declaration of faith and practice who desire to co-operate with us.

5. The officers of this organization shall consist of a President, Vice-president, Secretary, Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer, whose duties shall be those usually discharged by such officers respectively.

6. It shall be the duty of the Treasurer to report to the conference annually all monies received and expended.

7. This conference shall employ one or more evangelists every year within its bounds at such salary as may be agreed upon from year to year, who shall hold tent-meetings during the tent season, and during the remainder of the year in such places as may be secured.

8. All evangelists shall make an annual report to the conference of all monies received by them and how expended, which report shall be published in The Restitution. They will also make report to the treasurer of all receipts since their last report, when drawing on him for money, or as often as the treasurer may require.

9. All members of churches or isolated persons affiliating with this conference are expected to contribute such a sum as their means allow for the support of one or more evangelists in the field, and all monies shall be paid to the treasurer or to any collector appointed by him, or may be paid directly to the evangelist from time to time who shall account therefor to the treasurer.

10. All churches belonging to this conference shall be present at its annual meeting by at least one delegate besides its pastor, but every member in good standing in his church shall have the right to vote when present at any meeting of this conference.

11. All ministers who are members of this conference are expected to be present at every annual meeting and report their work in the gospel for the previous year, or give sufficient reason for their absence.

12. All churches who belong to this conference shall hold a meeting quarterly, fixing the time as they see fit, but the last meeting of the conference year shall be held at least one week before the date set for the meeting of the annual conference, and at such meeting a full report of the previous year shall be made and forwarded to the annual conference.

13. The time and place for the meeting of the annual conference shall be determined by the Evangelical Committee from year to year when the same is not fixed by the conference itself at a regular meeting.

14. All ministers in good standing who are members of this conference when they so desire shall have the right to a certificate of such membership signed by its President and Secretary and good for one year from date.

15. The President, Secretary, Treasurer and Corresponding Secretary shall constitute ex-officio a standing Evangelical Committee to direct the Evangelical work of the year, and to devise ways and means as a financial committee for carrying on the work and to contract with the Evangelist.

After adopting the articles of organization the conference proceeded to the election of officers for the year, as follows:—E. M. Saylor, President, J. Shellenberger, Vice President, P. H. Oatman, Secretary and Treasurer, and J. F. Wilcox, Corresponding Secretary.

The tent committee then made report of all money received up to date and how expended, and turned the tent over to the conference all of which was accepted.

REPORT OF TENT COMMITTEE.

Money received, $190.15. Paid out, May 5th to J. F. Wilcox, $2.00. May 29th, fiesage to K. C., .25, lamps, sledge, hatchet, $6.65. J. F. Wilcox for Hymn Books, $6.00. June 22nd, to J. F. Wilcox, $20.00, for tent $135. 00, J. F. Wilcox, $10.00. July 1st, J. F. Wilcox, $10.00, Message from Severance, .25. Total amount expended, $190.15.

The committee also reported a number of persons who have subscribed to the work but have not paid.

The Evangelist made report to the Conference which was accepted and will be sent to The Restitution as soon as prepared.

There being no further business the conference adjourned.

W. J. Orem, Chairman.
A. W. Darby, Secretary.

Report of the Annual Conference of the Church of God, of the Abrahamic faith in Indiana, held at Argos, Sept. 10th to 12th, 1897.

The Conference was called on Saturday at 2 p. m., Bro. Wagoner not being present, Bro. Wince presided. Before any business was transacted it was moved and carried that the Conference work be done in conformity with the constitution, that is through the several delegates of the different churches, represented as designated in Art. 8 of the constitution, and as not all of the churches sent the required number of delegates, it was further ordered that the delegates present be empowered to cast all the votes which their respective churches would be entitled to. It was also ordered that Isolated members present not belonging to any organization have the right of franchise.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: F. L. Austin, Pres., D. E. Vanvactor, 1st Vice Pres., J. L. Wince, 2nd Vice Pres., A. C. Roberts, Sec., L. B. Boggs, Treas.

The treasurer reported one dollar in the treasury. Bro. Austin made a rousing speech urging that the work of evangelizing be pushed forward, and a movement is now under headway through which by the hearty co-operation of all the members we earnestly hope to accomplish more in that direction than has been done for some time in the past. The spirit of all the churches represented were favorable to reimbursing the evangelical fund and we believe there will be no difficulty in doing so as soon as we can devise some systematic means.

It was moved and carried that the work of evangelizing be left to the executive board which consists of the above named officers.

On Sunday p. m. after communion service the members were called to order to further complete arrangements to replenish the evangelical fund. A subscription paper was circulated and liberally responded to by those present, there being $186.50 subscribed, the church at Rensselaer pledging to pay $25.00, making $211.50 in all. These subscriptions are good for one year and shall be due quarterly in even payments on or before the first days of October, January, April and July. The churches represented each chose one of their number whose duty is to look after the collection of the funds, send it to the Secretary who will credit each church or individual with the amount, then turn it over to the treasurer who will keep an itemized account of all receipts and expenditures.

Those elected for the different churches were as follows: Church at Bracken, J. L. Wince; Argos, Chas. Fish; Antioch, T. O. Taber; Plymouth, A. C. Roberts; Eagle Creek, Sadie Bowers; Rensselaer, F. L. Austin; North Union, Georgia Osborn; Selrcleville, W. F. Finney.

The meetings were well attended, the speaking good and well received. Bro. Reed did most of the preaching; Bro. Austin preached on Saturday morning, and although there were no additions all felt it was good to be there.

The ministers present were H. V. Reed from Chicago, F. L. Austin, Rensselaer, J. L. Wince, G. W. Smith, R. C. Ruibslack and Alphonso Drew.

Letters of commendation were granted to or renewed, Bro's Wince, Austin and Drew.

Those addressing the Secretary will please address A. C. Roberts, Plymouth, Ind., (Box 340).

The next Conference will be at Plymouth (D. V.) further notice of which will appear later on.

F. L. Austin, Pres.
A. C. Roberts, Sec.

Iowa, Attention!

Members of the churches of God in Iowa, Greeting:

Will the Secretaries of all church organizations and superintendants of Sunday Schools, send me on a postal card, or by letter the names and Post Office address, of all the believers in your locality also any isolated believers of which you have any knowledge.

Will all isolated believers in the state send me their names and addresses who read these lines, also give the name or names of any other believers of which you may know.

We ask this favor that we may effect a more perfect organization of our State Conference.

We must know where you are. You may live alone. You need our help and we need your help, and by knowing where you are we may mutually assist each other.

The cause of Christ is gaining, and there is an earnest need that we get together in these perilous times for mutual help and encouragement.

You will do this now won't you? Don t forget it. A postal card will do. Do it today. It is a little thing for you, but it means everything for the cause of truth in Iowa. Send to me at Gladbrook, Iowa.

No man yet ever looked on the dark side of life without finding it.

Announc[illegible]

Dear Restitution:

Will you please give p[illegible] columns for one more call[illegible] be the last one. At our Annu[illegible] ference, Sept., 96, a vote was take[illegible] convene in Conference again in Sept., 97. A committee was appointed to take charge of the arranging of this meeting. In the absence of the Sec. Wm. Vickery, I have been requested to send this notice. This meeting will be held near the Crescent school house, Sumner Co., Kan., as near the place voted on as the committee can conveniently arrange. This meeting will commence Friday, October 29th, a month later than was voted on. This was done to give ample time for seeding and past the extreme hot weather. Now brethren, we had a splendid meeting last fall under the teaching of Bro. L. E. Conner; its effects have shown its worth. Now we propose to try and have another good meeting with Bro. J. F. Wilcox and others to assist us. A large attendance is expected and the invitation is to all who can and will come. Come prepared to care for yourselves and others. Just a word, don't go to town just before you come to this meeting and deposit all the money you have, but bring your money along and divide up a little. Deposit a part of your means with the Lord, he has made the demand, don't fail to respond, your help is needed in defraying expenses. I am not authorized to say how long this meeting will continue, but it will be for several days if the interest demands and the brethren will satisfy the laborers. Those coming by railroad from north, south or east will stop at Arkansas City. Notify the committee in good time and you will be met at the train. The committee are Wm. Hadika, Genda Springs, and Wm. Vickery, Newkirk, O. T. We would love to see a goodly number from every point of the compass. Come with song, come with prayers, come with exhortation, these are all good, if you should fail in any of these things you can help by your money. Bro. Wilcox and family have to live and we must not forget this. Those coming by private conveyance will find meeting near southeast corner of Sumner Co., Kansas. Committee,

T. H. Jackson,
Wm. Hadika,
Wm. Vickery,
I. S. Miller, Pres.

Officers of the Iowa Conference.

The officers of the Conference of the Church of God for the State of Iowa are as follows:—

A. J. Eychauer, Gladbrook, Iowa, President.

O. J. Allard, Eagle Grove, Iowa, Secretary.

Hester V. Cummins, DesMoines, Iowa, Corresponding Secretary.

John W. Appleyard, Odebolt, Iowa, Treasurer.

Those who make donations for the the Lord's work, to sustain the Evangelist or for tracts, and those who pay Conference dues will send all money and donations to Brother Appleyard, who will in all cases receipt for same by Postal Card and make a record of amounts received, which record will form a part of the treasurer's report at the next conference.

The tent is now pitched at Iowa Falls, in charge of W. L. Crowe, Evangelist, assisted by John Garton. Alden will be the next point, If weather continues favorable, where we will probably close the tent work for the season.

Advice and counsel in regard to our work for the coming year is solicited and will be gratefully received and duly considered by the Conference Board.

A. J. Eychaner, Chairman.

Nickel Plate Old Time Low Rate Excursion to Chicago.

...and Route.

...ervice of the Chicago ...nd North-Western Line ... the standard of per... is regarded by discrimin... travelers as the safest, most re...liable and best route to all Pacific coast points, or to the Orient.

The Route.—Nature has designed the Chicago Union Pacific and North-Western Line as the most practicable and feasible highway between the East and West—over the Great Divide. This line crosses the fairest portions of Illinois and Iowa, and touches such interesting points as Wheaton, Geneva, Dekalb, Sterling and Morrison, Illinois, Clinton—where it crosses the noble Mississippi over a long trestle—Cedar Rapids, ...rshalltown, Ames, Des Moines and Carroll, Iowa. At Council Bluffs the great transfer is passed, the train rolls over the vast bridge across the Missouri, and fair Omaha is reached. Continuing, the route skirts the southern portion of Nebraska, through the great corn belt, crosses one corner of Colorado and enters Wyoming. Cheyenne is passed and the awful ascent of the Rockies begins. The summit is reached at Sherman, the site of the mighty Ames monument. Then comes Laramie, the "Gem City of the Rockies." The mountains passed, and the route lies through the great American desert, replete with strange scenes. At Granger, Wyo., the Portland cars are detached and sent northward, while the main body of the train proceeds by way of Ogden, where change is made for Salt Lake City points. Across Nevada, up the awful snow-capped Sierra Nevadas, through yawning canons, and then down into the warm, rich plains of California, touching at Sacramento and other noted points. The train is conveyed across the straits of Carquinez on an immense steel transport, and soon draws up at Oakland pier, and the glories of San Francisco are seen across the bay. This is the greatest scenic route of America, and the fascinations of the journey increases with every mile. This is the only safe and reliable route to the Pacific coast.

The Trains.—For the overland service the Chicago Union Pacific and North-Western Line has two great trains of the most perfect equipment and luxurious appointments. These trains have all modern safety appliances and every facility for comfort and convenience. These trains are:

The Overland Limited No. 1.—This train is the banner train of the overland service, its equipment is so perfect and luxurious that further improvement would seem impossible. It is drawn by a swift engine of massive strenght and capacity, and comprises palace sleeping cars from Chicago to Omaha, Sioux City, Salt Lake and San Francisco, with annex sleeping cars to Los Angeles. It also has elegant buffet-library, and handsomely upholstered free reclining chair cars from Chicago to Salt Lake, and tourist sleeping cars to Portland without change. Club dining cars are operated on this train, and most delectable meals are served on the entire journey on the "a la carte" plan. This is a fast-flying palace train, completely vestibuled, that places Chicago and San Francisco just three days apart. Yet these three days are crowded with pleasurable incidents along the world's famous pictorial line.

Pacific Limited No. 3.—This is the counterpart of No. 2 in respect to the character of its equipment. It has elegant palace sleeping cars from Chicago to Omaha, Denver to Portland, and through tourist sleeping cars from Chicago to San Francisco, with annex tourist cars to Los Angeles. The dining car service, on the "a la carte" plan, is from Chicago to Grand Island, Nebraska. A special feature of the Pacific Limited is the tourist car service, which is most excellent, and extends from New York and Boston through to the Pacific coast.

Roadway and Equipment.—The North-Western Line has the standard roadway between Chicago and Omaha. Its entire line is solidly built: its bridges and trestles are strong and safe; the ties are sound and well ballasted; the rails are 80-pound steel, well tested, and are laid with precision and perfect alligument. From Chicago to Cedar Rapids the line is double tracked; the remainder of the route has a large number of sidings. The entire line is protected by block signal stations, and is under the ...care of skillful operatives. ... mile of this route is ...ly prairie, where rich ...ee fields of corn and ...ing tasteful dwell... highways on ...w exceptions the stations at important points are new and elegant structures of brick and stone. The station at Cedar Rapids is one of the finest in the West.

The North-Western Line is constantly improving its overland as well as general service, and is determined to keep ahead of the times.

A valuable feature of this line is the free attendant service at the Central station, Chicago. Agents in red caps assist passengers to and from trains or conveyances free of charge. An excellent cab and omnibus service is operated with this line at Chicago.

Announcement.

The Northwest Conference of the Church of God will convene on Friday Oct. 8, at the Lake Shore School house, Wash., and continue over the following Sunday. Brothers and Sisters we once more appeal to you to come and enjoy a short season with us talking over the things concerning Jesus the resurrection and the kingdom of God. Come with your hearts full of love and self-sacrifice, and we are sure you will not have come in vain. Those coming from a distance will be met at the Esmond hotel, Vancouver, on Friday. Those who cannot come until Saturday will be met at the same place at 1 o'clock on Saturday, by addressing me at Felida, Wash. The brethren at this place extend a hearty welcome to all those who will attend.

JOHN E. MCILVIN, Sec'y.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, in Michigan, will convene (D. V.) at Millbrook, Mecosta Co., Michigan, on Friday evening, Oct. 1st, 1897, and continue over the following Sunday. The brethren at Millbrook have earnestly requested that the meeting might be held there, feeling that by our united effort much good might be done. All of like precious faith are invited. Train leaves Grand Rapids at 7:10 A. M. via Grand Rapids and Western R. R. formerly Detroit, Lansing and Northern R. R. via Sparta, Greenville, changing cars at Edmore, waiting there about 20 minutes taking the Big Rapids Division to Blanchard, reaching there at 10:00 A. M. where the brethren will meet any who come on morning trains. Another train leaves Grand Rapids at 4:20 P. M. Blanchard at 8:00 P. M., Blanchard is two miles from Decker School-house where the meeting will be held. This church has only recently joined the conference and the brethren are very anxious to have a successful gathering. Will all that can, come up to the help of the Master. The signs of the times show to us who are waiting and watching the near coming of our Savior that we should improve the time. Besides all this such a reunion always helps us. We feel that we have a foretaste of what is to come.

Yours for the Truth.
EMMA JACKMAN, Sec'y.

Appointments.

Editor Restitution:

Enclosed I send you a list of my appointments until Nov. 1897.

Irving Ia. Sept. 23 to 28.

Hicko y Grove, near Colo, Ia. Sept. 29 to Oct. 5.

Sac City, Iowa, Oct. 8 to continue as brethren may desire. Can preach for brethren at Lake Mills, Iowa, if they wish. Brethren please take notice of above appointments and arrange accordingly, that no time be lost.

Your Brother, in hope of the coming kingdom.

COMMENCING Sunday June 20, and continuing each Sunday thereafter until further notice the Pennsylvania R. R. will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return from Plymouth for $1.00 the round trip. Tickets are good on train No. 15 leaving Plymouth at 5.20 A. M. and returning on train No. 4 leaving Chicago at 11.30 P. M.

The population of the United States is now estimated to be 77,000,000.

The United States is establishing a mail route to the Alaska gold-fields.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Notice.

WILL our friends please remember that we do not have the books and tracts at this office that are advertized by Brother Joblin, or Brother Wiley Jones. Do not send to this office for them, but send to their address as given in the advertisement. This will save both trouble and delay. PLEASE REMEMBER.

Kansas and Missouri Tent Fund.

We the undersigned agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing a tent to be used in evangelizing in the States of Kansas and Missouri. Subscriptions and pledges may be sent to THE RESTITUTION or direct to the Chairman of the Committee, Joseph Shellenberger, Mound City, Mo.

Low Rates, via Pennsylvania Lines.

Special reductions in fare over the Pennsylvania Lines will be granted for numerous events to take place this summer in various parts of the United States, in addition to local excursions. Some of the points to which tickets will be sold and dates of sale are as follows:

To Nashville, Tenn., daily to October 15th, for Tennessee Centennial and International Exposition.

Thereduced rates over the Pennsylvania Lines will not be restricted to members of the organizations mentioned, but may be taken advantage of by the public generally. Excursion tickets may be obtained at ticket offices on the Pennsylvania System and will also be sold over this route by connecting railways. Any Pennsylvania Line Ticket or Passenger Agent will furnish desired information concerning rates, time of trains, return limit, and other details, to all applicants, or the same may be obtained by addressing C. L. Kimball, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.

Weyler has scored another victory,—he has sent two American correspondents home.

Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism, by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. 10 cents each. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS AND THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 96 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Probe mation, Hell and kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 6cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. Thisclearly sets forth the idea that the Coming Nation will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 24 pages price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

A PARALLEL BATTLEFIELD, OR ESSON'S WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those searching for truth. 16 pages 6cents each.

Necessity of Baptism. A 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. If it is as good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Bible Plan of Salvation. A 4-page tract telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. 2 cts each or 15 cts per dozen.

An open Letter to J. A. Count A 4-page tract being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Letter to Dr. Talmage. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Modern Events in the Light of Prophecy.—This is the sermon preached by H. V. Reed at Antioch, which has since been printed in tract form, and may be had at this office for five cents each, or 30 copies for $1.00.

Passages Supposed to Teach Consciousness after Death, by W. H. Wilson, which shows that eternal life is conditioned and not inherited. 3 cents each, or 25 cents a dozen.

Where Do the Dead Sleep. These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 3-page tract 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Hades. A Bible account of this place with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

Death Compared to a Sleep. This represents death as a sleep and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

Comfort One Another.

"Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort; who comforteth us in all our tribulations, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God." 2 Cor. i. 3, 4.

"Comfort one another;
For the way is growing dreary,
The feet are often weary,
And the heart is very sad
There is heavy burden-bearing,
When it seems that none are caring,
And we half forget that ever we were glad.

"Comfort one another;
With a hand-clasp close and tender,
With the sweetness love can render,
And looks of friendly eyes.
Do not wait with grace unspoken
While life's daily bread is broken—
Gentle speech is oft like manna from the skies."

[Selected by Elizabeth A. Reed.]

The Early Date of the Gospels Proven by the Discovery of the "Diatessaron."

Of all the discoveries of the last twenty years the first, and, in some respects, the most important, is the "Diatessaron" of Tatian. As its Greek name indicates ("by" or "by means of four") it is a harmonized gospel, composed out of the four gospels by dovetailing verses out of the different evangelists into a single narrative. This is a device which has often been practiced in the church down to the present day, but the importance to us of Tatian's harmony lies in the evidence which it affords not only of the existence but of the pre-eminent position of our four canonical gospels at a very early date.

Tatian was born about A. D. 110, a native of Assyria. He was converted to Christianity by Justin Martyr, whose chief work, the "Apology for Christianity," was written about A. D. 150-155. After Justin's death, about A. D. 165, he fell into the error of the Encratites, an extremely ascetic sect, who regarded marriage, eating flesh, and drinking wine as unlawful, and he died about A. D. 180. Different views have been held as to whether his harmony was written in the days of his orthodoxy or afterwards. On the one hand, it evidently passed current in the Syrian Church for many generations as an orthodox representation of the gospel narrative: on the other, Mr. Rendel Harris has shown reason to believe that it exhibited traces of the special opinions of the Encratites. In the one case we should suppose it to have been written about 160: in the other, about 170. If, then, the "Diatessaron" was put together out of the four canonical gospels, it is clear that they held, at this date, a position of marked and recognized superiority over all other narratives of our Lord's life, and since such a position could not be acquired except after the lapse of some considerable time, this would show that all four were composed at a date at least as early as that which Baur assigns to the earliest of them and much earlier than those which he allows to three out of the four.

The story of the recovery of the "Diatessaron" is curious, mainly for the reason that it was delayed so much longer than it need have been, indeed, all the while that Baur was expounding his theories and his disciples were developing them evidence was staring them in the face which made their views untenable, at least so far as related to the dates of the gospels. In 1836 the Armenian Mechitarist Fathers at Venice published an edition, in Armenian, of the works of St. Ephrem of Syria, and among them was the very commentary on the "Diatessaron" to which, as mentioned above, Dionysius Bar-Salibi had made reference, but which had been supposed to be lost. Published in Armenian, however, and with no distinctive title to call attention to its character, it remained absolutely unknown for forty years, till, in 1876, the Mechitarists employed Dr. George Moesinger to revise and publish a Latin version of it which had been made by the original editor of the Armenian, Dr. Aucher. Yet, even then, when edited in Latin by a German scholar, it attracted no notice for four years; and Lightfoot, when writing an answer to "Supernatural Religion," a year after the appearance of Moesinger's volume, was unaware of the discovery, which would at once have determined an important branch of the controversy in his favor. It is to America that the honor belongs of first bringing the discovery forward in its true light, since it was Dr. Ezra Abbot, in his "Authorship of the Fourth Gospel" (1880), who first directed general attention to it. Dr. Wace took it up in England, Dr. Harnack in Germany, and Dr. Zahn was led to devote a large monograph to the subject, in which he endeavored to reconstruct the "Diatessaron" from the quotations given by St. Ephrem.

The commentary of St. Ephrem established beyond all doubt the all-important fact that Tatian's "Diatessaron" was actually constructed out of the four canonical gospels; and his very copious quotations enabled Zahn to make out the general structure and much of the actual text of the work. Meanwhile, what purported to be an Arabic translation of the work itself was lying in the Vatican library, and had been briefly mentioned by J. Assemani, who brought it to the Vatican, so long ago as 1701, and by a few subsequent writers. No one, however, had made any detailed study of it, until Zahn, though unable to examine it himself, called attention to its existence, and so aroused the interest of Father Ciasca, one of the librarians of the Vatican. Ciasca, consequently, had the privilege of being the first modern scholar to make acquaintance with the complete "Diatessaron"—a fit reward for much good service to biblical criticism.

One more happy incident, however, had yet to intervene before the world at large was placed in possession of the recovered treasure. Circumstances delayed its publication until, in 1886, Ciasca chanced to show the manuscript to the Vicar-Apostolic of the Catholic Copts, then on a visit to Rome; and this gentleman at once remarked that he had seen another copy of the same work in private hands in Egypt and could undertake to procure it. He was as good as his word; and from this newly-acquired manuscript, which is superior to the copy in the Vatican, Ciasca edited the work in 1888, as a gift from the College of Writers of the Vatican Library to Pope Leo XIII., on the occasion of his jubilee. So, after many vicissitudes, was the world at last placed in possession of the long-lost "Diatessaron" of Tatian.

The importance of this discovery for biblical criticism has been indicated above. It shows that, at a date at which Baur believed two at least of the gospels to have been yet unwritten, all four not only were written, but occupied a pre-eminence and authority which could not be the growth of a few years. When closely examined it proves even more than this; for the gospel text used by Tatian, so far as it can be ascertained with certainty, differs already in many respects from that which are due to mistakes, the insertions, or the omissions of copyists, imply the multiplication of copies and some considerable lapse of time in which the variations may spread. It is true that the evidence on this point is still incomplete, because we have not recovered the "Diatesseron" in its original language. What we have is a copy (or rather two copies) of an Arabic translation, made early in the eleventh century, of a Syrian copy written about the year 900, together with two copies of an Armenian version of a Syriac commentary composed by a writer who died in 373.

Until recently it was supposed that the "Diatessaron" was written in Greek, as its Greek title would seem to indicate: and in that case we are doubly removed from the original language. There is, however, good reason for doubting this opinion and for holding the original language to have been Syriac. It was certainly in Syria that its use flourished, its text has strong affinities with that which is found in the oldest Syriac version of the gospels: St. Ephrem, who commented upon it, was a Syrian father and wrote in Syriac; and there is evidence that the Old Testament quotations in it were in accordance with the Syriac version of the Scriptures. If this opinion be true, then we have the "Diatessaron" at second hand only; and competent scholars declare that our Arabic text has the appearance of being a faithful rendering of the Syriac from which it is translated. If, then, the variations which we find in it from the gospel text, as this appears in other early authorities, date from Tatian himself, it follows that the original composition of even the latest of the gospels must be put at a point very considerably anterior to the middle of the second century in order to allow time for these divergencies to be propagated.

Thus, along two lines of argument we find that the reappearance of the "Diatessaron," though it does not enable us to fix absolutely the date of the composition of the gospels, yet demolishes the extreme views of Baur and his followers, and pushes back the origin of the gospels to a period when the friends and companions of the apostles were still alive and could have testified whether the narratives which passed under their names were indeed their work or not.

If the gospels were not written later than A. D. 120, and this the evidence of the "Diatessaron" seems to establish, then it is very difficult to argue with any plausibility that they fall outside the apostolic age at all. More than this we must not expect to be able to prove by evidence of this class. We can hardly hope to discover an ancient work which will authoritatively fix for us the exact years in which each of the four gospels were written. It is enough for us to know that they belong, even the latest of them, to the age of the apostles, and that there is no reason, so far as external evidence is concerned, to doubt the traditional belief that they were written either by the apostles themselves or by their companions.

One discovery has thus served to ruin the structure which Baur and his followers reared upon their own imaginings and to render any similar theory much more difficult and less plausible.—F. G. Kenyon, assistant in the Departments of Manuscripts in the British Museum, in McClure's Magazine.

An Exposition.

Sister Zug desires me to give an exposition of John xiii. 1-19, through THE RESTITUTION.

The lesson in the above Scripture is based upon an hospitable custom which prevailed in Palestine, during our Savior's earthly career with regard to the washing of the feet of guests wearied by their travels upon the public highways. At that time most of their journeys were made upon foot, and we must remember also that they did not wear shoes and stockings as we do, but sandals strapped upon their feet. Their feet on this account were not protected from dust, sand and heat, which became very disagreeable, especially during that dry season, at which period no rain falls.

At that time, it was the duty of menial servants to wash the feet of guests, that they may be refreshed by a cooling and cleansing foot bath.

The Savior perceived that there was a spirit of pride among his followers which needed correction. The most effective object lesson that could possibly be given them was, that he, their Lord and Master, should become to them a menial servant, and wash their feet. Peter's pride revolted against the thought, that his Lord should perform such an humiliating service for him. The lesson he taught them was, that if he, their Master, could be their servant, then they, also, should crush fleshly pride to the earth, and serve each other, and in honor prefer one above the other, and not consider themselves superior to their fellow disciples.

Another object lesson was given them, by placing a simple, trusting little child, in their midst, and saying to them, that unless they could curb their pride, and become humble and trusting as an innocent babe, they could find no place in God's kingdom.

In our country the same necessity for the custom of feet washing does not exist, and its observance as a church ceremony, becomes merely formal, and lacks an element of the complete crucifixion of pride. The outward form becomes more important to them than the lesson for which it was introduced by the Savior.

Pride may be even taken in its observance as being a distinctive ritual service of their church. The Savior never intended that they should go to church to wash feet at some special time appointed by their ecclesiastics, but at any time or place, when the act could be of some real service, and at the same time crush pride.

The cleansing the Savior had in mind is something deeper than the washing of soiled feet. Jesus says: "Ye are clean, but not all. For he knew who should betray him: therefore, said he, ye are not all clean." Judas was unclean, avarice and the love of money stained his heart. The filth of sin can only be washed away in the bath of the new birth, after faith and repentance. Says Jesus, "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God." "A man" is to be the party who must become the subject of the birth of water, etc., and not something then non-existent.

The great theme of the Scripture under consideration, is not the founding of a feet washing service, but a

SUBLIME LESSON OF OBEDIENCE AND HUMILITY.

The hard, arrogant and proud will of the flesh must be broken, and become pliable and plastic, ere it can conform to the pattern of which he must be an image, before an honorable position in the temple of the redeemed can be assigned to him.

The self-exalted cannot last longer than the duration of the material from which he is made—"Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."

"Why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" He may today receive the honors and plaudits of his fellows, but tomorrow the chilly blast of the winter of death, may congeal his heart, extinguish the fire of his eye, blanch his cheek, and what then? Listen: "Man that is in honor and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish." "While he lived he blessed his soul: (and men shall praise thee when thou doest well to thyself:) he shall go to the generation of his fathers: they shall NEVER see light."

In life they may have been statesmen, military heroes, merchant princes, and millionaires, but in death (to use a strong descriptive comparison) they are no more worth than a dead dog.

The fleshly proud cannot rise higher than this, unless their arrogant will shall be humbled, and their haughtiness leveled with the dust.

Then the Divine and imperishable nature may be attained, and a crown of glory which shall never fade away, grace their brow.

THE ALLUREMENTS OF THE FLESH ARE FICTITIOUS.

Its insidious fascinations may for a time captivate the mind, bewildering excitements intoxicate, its visions of political preferment, and the golden dreams of wealth, gild the horizon of life, and thus he may be led to rush madly into the vortex of sin, and plunge recklessly into the leaping, roaring cataract of iniquity, and over the precipice, into the chasm of eternal ruin.

I recently learned of a man who became possessed of an inordinate desire for wealth. In quest of the coveted prize he plunged into the ocean of iniquity. In time he acquired that for which he sought, and ere he acquired it disease fastened itself upon him, and he soon realized that the grim monster's icy hand would be laid upon him, saying, no further shalt thou go. And there he lay stretched upon the bed of death, destitute of hope, and agonized in mind, with his coveted treasure placed upon a stand, that he might handle it, and draw from it some crumb of comfort, but alas! it came not.

He appealed to his doctor, saying: "Doctor, cannot you save me?" He replied: "No, I cannot, you are dying now." He next addressed his wife, saying: "Wife, cannot you save me?" She replied, "No, dear, I cannot." He then appealed to his children by name, but the replies came, "I cannot." Summoning his strength, he raised himself up in bed, his long gray locks falling gracefully over his pale face, and poured forth a volley of awful blasphemies, and then laid himself down in his bed and died cursing God.

Life without God, is a most miserable failure. Of what profit is it, though he gain the whole world, and by that acquisition forfeit the life to come? God's smile is only upon the humble and contrite heart, which bows in sweet submission to his will. Such may find a safe retreat, and rest beneath Eden's shady bowers, in the paradise of God, and find a calm repose upon the verdant banks of the beautiful river, flowing onward in its majesty by the throne of the Lord, into the valleys, and over arid deserts; and the desolate wilderness, by reason thereof, shall be clothed in living verdure, which shall even rejoice and blossom as the garden of the Lord. Joy and gladness and the voice of melody shall break forth from the lips of the redeemed. They will no more hang their harps upon the weeping willow's bough as captives in a strange land. But the sons of Zion, and the redeemed of the Lord will in unison make the hill-tops, mountains and valleys of old Judea ring again with melody, and with lofty aspirations of praise to him who has loved us, and washed us in the cleansing font.

Listen, methinks I hear in the far distance a mighty chorus, it is the "voice of a great multitude," so great that no man can number them. As the sound approaches nearer, it becomes "as the voice of many waters," even as the voice of a mighty cataract, as it plunges into the unfathomed abyss, or as the mad roar of old ocean lashed into fury by a mighty wind. Hark! as onward it rolls, it becomes "as the voice of the mighty thunderings," as peal upon peal rings amid the great dome of heaven.

Oh, how glorious! let the redeemed shout for joy now. It is sweet to confess Jesus as the Christ, at all times.

"Sweetest name in seraph song,
Sweetest name on mortal tongue,
Sweetest carol ever sung,
Jesus, blessed Jesus."

The path of the just one, even the lowly, humble follower of Jesus, is now as a shining light, but in the sweet by and by, God's loved ones shall shine resplendent as the sun, the majestic orb of day, in the kingdom of their Father.

God is the burden of their thoughts at the early dawn of morning, or as the sun sinks behind the darkened west. Their life is a sweet calm, as they gaze upon the glorious expanse of the star-lit heavens, or as they behold God's power and majesty in the storm, or his love is shown in the gentle showers which water the earth and clothe all nature with verdure and beauty.

The world may be darkened by tempest and storm, the lightnings may light the heavens with a lurid glare, the mighty thunders rock earth's foundation, but ere long the clouds will part, and heaven's etherial blue appear, and the sun peep forth from behind the clouds with smiles, and laugh away the storm. Even so, shall the Sun of Righteousness robed in glory part heaven's blue, and riding forth in his majesty dispel the dark night of sorrow and death.

"Take my life and let it be
Consecrated Lord, to thee;
Take my feet and let them be,
Swift and beautiful for thee."

W. H. WILSON.

Jesus said—Ye judge after the flesh; I judge no man.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Which Road did You Take?

"Enter in at the straight gate, for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat. Because straight is the gate, and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."

There is a sweet land of rest awaiting us at the end of our journey if we take the right road; but if we take the wrong road (be we ever so honest) we will only reach the "Land of Darkness." Job x. 22. But there are so many roads and nearly all are broad and smooth—so which must we take? Ah! we see some who draw back when the narrow way is pointed out to them. It is staight but sometimes darkness and dangers of every kind seem to cover our little pathway and there are such a few of us we wonder, what! are we lost? Are we on the wrong road? Right here is where there is danger of some dear one going wrong. Yes, back yonder at the cross roads the "few" who were starting to take the "narrow road" were discouraged in every possible way by the "many" who were traveling the "broad road" with such remarks as "If you are right, why don't some of our smart men find it out;" and there are such a few of you, you ought to keep still," and some of them say, "We are happy all the time, so we know we are right," and so. All this is meant to discourage the "few" and once in awhile some poor foot-sore traveler leaves the narrow way, goes back to the "broad," smooth road where they are happy all the time. And does he find the happiness? Why, certainly not does. He leaves the narrow way because it is so narrow and such a few in it. While the broad road is always full of happy travelers. Ah, yes, they have had such a good time: they have not noticed whether or not there are any signs (signs of the times) as an indication that they are on the right road. Dear reader, did you ever when going to a certain place take the wrong road just because it would make the journey pleasant, knowing at the same time you would never reach the place you started for. If you want to make a trip to Canada, don't buy a ticket for Florida though you may think it pleasant traveling southward. We have come to the conclusion that it is better to stand still than to travel in the opposite direction from which you wish to go. We have noticed of late, several have said, "I am alone here in the faith." Ah, yes, this is one of the many proofs that we are right. The Lord's people are "the fewest of all people." The road is sometimes almost impassable,

"But the road of this perilous journey,
The hand of the Master has made;
With all its discomforts and dangers,
We need not be sad or afraid.
Paths leading from light into darkness,
Wave plunging from gloom to despair,
Wind out through the tunnels of midnight,
To fields that are blooming and fair.

Though the rocks and the shadows surround us,
Though we catch not one gleam of the day,
Beyond us fair cities are laughing,
And dipping white feet in some bay,
And always, eternal, forever,
On over the hills in the east,
The last final end of our journey,
There lies the dear land of peace."

Let us all keep the narrow road a little longer, and our reward is sure.

Your Sister,
LAURA M. SKEELS.

Some of the Reasons Why I Love the Bible.

It has been my faithful counselor and unerring guide for sixty years. It has taught me all I know about God, and heaven, and eternity. It has taught me all I know about right and wrong; all I know of my own origin and destiny; and of the origin and destiny of our world. And also of the boundless love of God; and of the precious Savior's dying love for all mankind, and especially for those that love and obey him. And also how we may eternally walk in the sunshine of that love. It has saved me also from many sins, and hateful ways. Its promises have cheered and encouraged me, and given me a very pleasing, yea! a glorious hope both for myself and others of a most blessed Immortality. It has taught me the way of peace and of salvation, and among its richest blessings already given, is that of Christian fellowship, all the way, and it offers the same blessings to all who will earnestly seek for them, "First."

By a mistake in W. L. Crowe's report for last year's work in Iowa, the number baptized was omitted, which was 13.

For some reason the usual supply of copy furnished by Brother Joblin has failed to reach us, and we are compelled to issue without it this week. Hope to receive it for next issue.

The article by H. V. Reed entitled "Word of Man, vs. the Word of God" will be published in tract form and can be had at this office for 2-cts each or one dozen for 15 cts.

A LETTER from Brother H. V. Reed tells of his having a good meeting last Sunday at Ashton, Ill. and announces that he will speak at Argos, Ind. next Sunday Oct. 10. All interested will take note of this meeting.

From reports of Bro. J. F. Wilcox he is doing a good work with the Kansas & Missouri tent, and we trust the brethren where he is laboring will rally round him and give the needed support. Indiana is to have some share of the work, as Brother and Sister Woodward of Michigan are announced to begin meetings in Warren Co. soon to continue indefinitely, and Brother Wagoner goes near Frankfort to labor. With so much activity we look for good results. May the Lord bless the efforts of these workers.

The Gospel Recovered. No. 1.

For many centuries the gospel had been lost in the Apostacy from primitive Christianity. This grievous departure from "the faith once delivered to the saints" had been the subject of express prediction by the Apostles of our Lord, and even by our Lord himself. The Apostle Paul in his second letter to Timothy, says, "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom. Preach the Word: be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." Chap. iv. 1-4.

And in his address to the elders of the Church of Ephesus—"For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them. Therefore watch, and remember, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears." Acts xx. 29-31.

And the Apostle Peter—"But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of." 2 Pet. ii. 1, 2.

Our Lord said on one occasion, "Nevertheless, when the Son of Man cometh shall he find (the) faith on the earth."

This corruption of the gospel had even begun in the days of the Apostles themselves—Thus Paul—"Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition; .....And now ye know what withholdeth that he might be revealed in his time. For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: only he who now letteth will let, until he be taken out of the way. And then shall that wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." 2 Thess. ii. 3, 6-8. And finally culminated in what is known as the Papacy.

The main purpose of this and succeeding articles is to trace the steps by which in modern times, the gospel has been recovered from the mass of corruption—theological, ecclesiastical, and ritualistic, under which it was buried, and placed before the people so as to be believed and obeyed on the sole authority of the Word of God.

Before proceeding to deal more particularly with the manner in which the corruption of the gospel was developed and the agencies by means of which it was afterwards recovered, it is necessary at the outset to point out the true nature of the gospel itself as originally preached by our Lord and his Apostles. Let it not be overlooked that it was at first made known to the nation of Israel in Palestine. It was couched in extremely simple terms. It did not extend to more than seven words (in English): "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." Matt. iii. 1. This was recorded concerning the preaching of John Baptist. That of our Lord is expressed in exactly the same terms in chap. iv. 17. This preaching was so widespread as, in the case of our Lord, that "this fame went throughout all Syria;" and "there followed him great multitudes of people from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from Judea, and from beyond Jordan." Verses 24, 25.

"The kingdom of heaven" in the passages quoted is otherwise termed "the kingdom of God," as in Mark i. 14, 15, where we read—"Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel."

The gospel, then, was concerning the approach of a kingdom, termed the kingdom of God or of heaven. Now the only Divine kingdom known to history was the government which had been established by Jehovah over the twelve tribes of Israel. This was inaugurated at Mount Sinai by solemn covenant as recorded in Exodus—"Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and an holy nation." David and his House was afterwards chosen by Jehovah to administer the affairs of this kingdom, and after it had existed for nine hundred years, it was suspended in the reign of Zedekiah, with a promise of restoration when "he whose right it is" shall come. Ezek. xxi. 26, 27.

It has to be noted here that although "he whose right it is" had come, the promised restoration was not effected up to the time of his ascension to heaven. This is proved by his own words to his Apostles on the Mount of Olives. After predicting the destruction of Jerusalem, and certain signs of his own coming in a cloud with power and great glory, he spake the parable of the fig tree—and said—"So likewise when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." Luke xxi. 31. The coming of this kingdom became the subject of earnest expectation on the part of his disciples. This is shown by their question—"Lord wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" This question as to the "time" was answered in strict accordance therewith—"It is not for you to know the times or the seasons.....but ye shall receive power," etc. Immediately after his ascension his personal return was intimated to his disciples by Divine messengers and his return became the object of their hopes, to which they looked for the promised restoration of the kingdom.

At this point it may prove both useful and interesting to observe how the corruption of "the simplicity that is in Christ" was developed. This was due to various causes, chiefly connected with the two great classes of whom the disciples of our Lord were composed—Jews and Gentiles, especially the latter. The earliest form of error shown by the record is found at Antioch, in connection with the Jewish element. We meet with this in Acts xv. 1—"Certain men which came down from Judea taught the brethren, and said, Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved." It is to be noted here that "the brethren" here were not asked to renounce their faith in the gospel, but were simply urged to submit to an institution of the law of Moses. The cause was intensified by the reason given for this innovation—"Except, etc. "Ye cannot be saved." But this element of corruption was not confined to Antioch. It soon spread to other places, especially Rome and Galatia. This is seen from the letters of the Apostle Paul to the churches at those places. In his letter to the churches of Galatia, he writes—"I marvel that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ unto another gospel: which is not an other; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ. But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed." Gal. i. 6-9.

The Revised Version reads "unto a different gospel which is not another gospel," supplying the word gospel in the latter clause. That is, I presume, "different" inasmuch as it was mixed up with a Mosaic element, correct enough in itself, but really "not another gospel," because the mixture was destitute of Divine authority; and as the Apostle shows in chapter v. "I testify again to every man that is circumcised that he is a debtor to do the whole law." It is to be noted here that circumcision was a Divine institution enacted for a good purpose in reference to the nation of Israel; but this afforded no warrant for any one to impose it on Gentile disciples. Paul calls this "subversion of the gospel." And he counsels the disciples to "stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free." Chap. v. 1.

The Gentile element of gospel-corruption was a so-called philosophy, which the Greeks had borrowed from the East. This philosophy had its root in the notion of the inherent evil of matter, which led them "to reject our Lord's humanity, on the principle that everything corporeal is essentially and intrinsically evil; and therefore the greatest part of them denied the reality of his sufferings."

This principle took the form of "denying that Jesus Anointed had come in the flesh"—that is that he was not truly human, but only so in appearance. He could not therefore be the Son of David, and hence a denial of his Messiahship. In reference to this class of errorists John says, "Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ." He shows that this was the Antichrist. "Many deceivers are entered into the world who confess not that Jesus Anointed is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an antichrist "(literally the Antichrist)". It was but a short step from this to the denial of the Messiah's kingdom. No Messiah, no "kingdom of his father David," and no reigning over the house of Jacob forever," as promised by Jehovah to Mary by the mouth of the angel Gabriel.

The further prosecution of the subject is reserved for a future occasion.

Parables Of Salomoon. Chapter 14.

1. Wise women (or wives) have built houses: but the one without good sense hath dug them down with her hands.

2. The man who goeth his way uprightly feareth the Lord: but the one who is crooked in his ways will have been dishonored.

3. From out the mouth of people wanting in good sense is there a baton of haughty pride: (the word translated "baton" here is the word in the 23rd C. V. Psalm translated "staff" "Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." How would "staff" or "a shepherd's crook" do in this passage?) but lips of wise men watch to guard them.

4. Where there are no cattle mangers are clean: but where there are many products the strength of the ox is manifest.

5. A faithful witness doth not lie: but an unjust witness flameth out with lies.

6. Thou wilt seek for wisdom with the bad and thou wilt not find it; but perception with the thoughtful is easy to find.

7. All things are adverse to a man wanting in good sense; but wise lips are perception's weapons.

8. The wisdom of the subtile will acquaint itself with their ways; but the folly of the heedless is in misleading.

9. The households of evaders of law will need cleansing; but the households of the justified are acceptable.

10. A hero's heart is perceptive in feeling, his soul sorrowful; and when he rejoiceth it is not mixed with haughty pride.

11. The houses of the irreverent will have vanished away; but the tents of those who restore to uprightness will stand.

12. There is a way that seemeth in the estimation of men to be upright; but the endings thereof come to the lowest depths of Sheol.

13. Trouble is to the mirthful mingled with rejoicings; but close thereof to many cometh unto sorrow.

14. A rash-hearted man will have his ways filled with his own ways, but a good man with his mature thoughts.

15. A guileless man puts faith in every word; but a subtile man cometh to a change of mind.

16. A wise man when caused to fear inclineth away from evil; but a man without good sense trusting to himself, he cometh mixed up with a transgressor.

17. A man swift to anger acteth without counsel; but a prudent man submitteth to many things.

18. People without good sense get calamity as their apportionment; but the subtile will get control in a perceptive way.

19. Evil men will slip in the presence of good men, and the irreverent will serve as courtiers at the doors of the justified.

20. Friends will hate beggar friends; but the friends of the rich are many.

21. He who dishonoreth the needy is sinning; but he who is merciful to beggars is blessed-happy.

22. Those who are being led astray devise evil things; but good men devise mercy and truth. Offspring of the bad do not thoroughly know mercy and faith; but acts of mercy and faith are the part of good offspring.

23. With every one who exerciseth anxious-care there is a surplus; but the easy-going and untroubled will be in want.

24. A crown of wise men is a subtile man; but the discourse of those without good sense is bad.

25. A faithful witness will deliver a soul from evil things; but a deceitful one flameth out with lies.

26. In fear of the Lord there is strong hope, and there is a stay left for his children.

27. The Lord's commandment is a fountain of life, and it causeth one to incline away from a snare of death.

28. In a vast nation is a king's glory: but in the failure of a laity ("a king's people" the true meaning is well brought out here) is the ruin of an able one.

29. A forbearing man is much in thoughtfulness: but a thoughtless man is very easily discouraged.

30. A meek man is the heart's physician; but a moth of one's bones is a keenly-perceptive heart.

31. He who cheateth a needy one provoketh his Creator: but he who honoreth him (his Creator) is merciful to a beggar.

32. In his calamity an irreverent man will have been thrust away; but the one who trusteth in his own holiness is a justified one.

33. In the good heart of a man is there wisdom: but in the heart of man without sense it will not have been discovered.

34. Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin's diminish tribes.

35. Acceptable to a king is a subordinate who knows: and by his own good conduct he taketh away dishonor.

CHAPTER 15.

1. Wrath destroyeth even thoughtful men; but a submissive answer turneth away anger while a troublesome word stirreth up feelings of wrath.

2. The tongue of wise men thoroughly knoweth good things: but the mouth of men without good sense teileth bad things.

3. The Lord's eyes view bad and good men in every place.

4. A tongue's healing is a tree of life: and the one who watcheth to keep it (esoteric watch) will have been filled with spirit.

5. One without good sense mocketh at a father's chastening; but the one who watcheth to guard (exoteric watch) commandments is more subtle.

6. In righteousness that aboundeth there is much strength: but the irreverent will perish from out the earth root and branch: In the houses of the justified there is much strength: but the fruits of the irreverent will perish.

7. Lips of wise men have been bound up with perceptive thought; but the hearts of those without good sense are insecure.

8. Sacrifices of the irreverent are an abomination to the Lord; but the vows of those who restore to uprightness are acceptable to him.

9. An abomination to the Lord are the ways of an irreverent man; but he loveth those who pursue after righteousness.

10. The chastening of a guileless man is recognized by the passers-by; but those who hate reproofs come to a disgraceful end.

11. Hades (the grave) and loss are manifest to the Lord; How are not the hearts of men?

12. An unchastened man will not love those who reprove him; and he will not associate with wise men.

13. When ones heart rejoiceth ones faces cheerful; but when it is in sorrow it becometh downcast.

14. An upright heart seeketh after perception; but a mouth of the unchastened will know evil things.

15. The eyes of the evil are expecting evil things all the time; but the good are constantly keeping quiet.

16. Better is a small portion with fear of the Lord than great treasures without fear.

17. Better is hospitality with herbs according to friendship and grace (or favor) than a spread of yearling-bullocks with hatred.

18. A passionate man getteth ready contentions: but a forbearing man appeaseth even that which is about to be: A forbearing man will quench judicial strife: but the irreverent stirreth it up all the more.

19. The ways of the unemployed are strewn with thistles; but they have been worn smooth for the manly.

20. A wise son rejoiceth a father; but a son wanting in good sense mocketh at his mother.

21. The ways of one wanting in apprehension are without good sense: but a thoughtful man goeth his way making things straight.

22. Those who do not honor joint-counsels disregard logical reasonings: but counsel abideth in the hearts of those who take counsel.

23. The bad man will not hearken to it though nor can he have said any thing seasonable and good for the commonwealth.

24. Ways of life are the perceptive thoughts of a man of understanding so that he may have inclined away from hades (the grave) and have been saved.

25. The Lord druggeth down the houses of the haughty: but he hath established the boundary of the widow.

26. An abomination to the Lord is unjust reasoning: but the oracular sayings of the pure are respected.

27. The bribe-taker destroyeth himself; but the one who hateth the taking of bribes is saving himself. With acts of mercy and acts of faith sins are being cleansed away, and in the fear of the Lord every one declineth away from evil (this last statement is the 6th verse of the 16th C. V.)

28. Hearts of justified ones meditate acts of faith: but the mouth of the irreverent answereth evil things. (The rest of this verse is the 7th verse of the 16th C. V.) Acceptable to the Lord are the ways of justified men and through them even enemies become friends.

29. God withholdeth himself far from the irreverent: but he hearkeneth to the vows of the justified. (The rest of this verse is given as the 8th of the 16th C. V.) Better is a little taken with righteousness than many products with iniquity.

Consecration. Rom. xiv. 7, 8.

CHURCH OF THE BLESSED HOPE, CLEVELAND, OHIO. BIBLE CLASS PAPERS. NO. 2.

I understand that to consecrate, to dedicate, to set apart, all mean the same, and when we dedicate a building to God's service, it is easy for all to understand that that building or house, must be used for nothing save worshiping him. We gave it to God and have no longer a right to use it for anything we please.

If then, we so easily understand the evil of using a building for our own pleasure, after once setting it apart for God, we surely must see how very wrong it is for us to continually forget where we are, to such an extent, that we go about seeking our own pleasure instead of doing the work our Master has laid out for us to do, for it is he who bought us with his blood and whose servants we are.

Oh, I hope we can all say with Paul, "I have been crucified together with Christ: still I live, yet no longer I, but Christ lives in me: for that life which I now live in the flesh, I am living by that faith in the Son of God, who loved me even to delivering himself up on my behalf." If this is the sentiment of each heart, our delight will be in the law of our God, our wills will be in complete surrender to the Divine will: our work will be his work and ours will be no half-discipleship, no division of heart, but what is left of our brief lives, will be given wholly for the Lord. We are all of us familiar with the words of Paul in the 6th chapter of 1 Cor. where he is explaining to the Corinthian brethren, that the unrighteous cannot enter the kingdom of God, and in the 11th verse he says, "And such characters were some of you, but you were washed, you were separated, you were justified by the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." Oh, have we been washed and separated and justified? If so, our live must show it, we must be consistent, in all that we do or say, "What manner of persons ought we to be, in holy conduct and piety, expecting and hastening the presence of the day of God."

This little clipping from the Glad Tidings strikes me as being very true: "In nothing and never has man the right to think, or believe, or feel, or say or do, what he pleases. Always must he do what right demands. He is bound. There is no such liberty as men often boast of, anywhere in God's world. No such free speech or thought as men sometimes demand exists, any more than free doing of like sort or feeling exists. As men must feel right and do right, so they must think right and speak right. They must be ruled and regulated, or soon go to wreck. True men are always bound. Their true liberty is in that they are bound by best forces. Bondage to right is the highest and only real freedom. Slavery is not in being bound, but in being bound to wrong."

How often we hear unbelievers boast of their liberty, their freedom to do as they please through this life. But does this freedom exist? Are they not bound by laws both secular and natural? And when the natural law of death holds them in his cold embrace, and they are laid in the ground, never more to live; what have their boastings amounted to?

Ah, what a contrast to those, who in life have put their trust in him who is able and willing to save even beyond the power of death. "That whether we live, we live unto the Lord or whether we die, we die unto the Lord; whether we live therefore or die, we are the Lord's."

Herein is freedom and liberty and joy and peace, of which the unbeliever knows nothing.

Are we all confident that our life is hid with Christ in God, that when Christ, who is our life shall appear, then shall we also appear with him in glory? Are we? If not, let us consecrate ourselves to him now, and while there is yet time, do a little work for our Master.

Cotton Mather used to say there was a gentleman mentioned in the nineteenth chapter of Acts to whom he was greatly indebted; namely, the town clerk of Ephesus, whose counsel was, "Do nothing rashly!"

Poetry.

Be Kind to the Loved at Home.

Reserve your best smiles deep down in your heart,
When you with acquaintances roam.
And when you have done with the world's busy mart,
Go lavish them freely at home.

Retain your best looks, whatever you need,
And however life's billows may foam.
Oh, cherish sweet love, for life's joys are so fleet,
For the dear ones toiling at home.

An actions speak louder than words, may say,
Then scatter sunshine and not gloom
Among the loved ones who study your comfort by day
And at eve make cheery your room.

Press gently the hand or give a soft look
For your tenderness freely expend—
A richer reward than trinket or book
To keep the heart warm to the last.

Your home may be lowly and you may be poor,
And far from the land of your birth,
But if love's golden star shines in at your door
'Tis the brightest abode upon earth.

God's Rights, or the Divine System of Finance.—No. 3.

Does the Bible teach proportionate giving?

Let us look at 1 Cor. xvi. 1, 2 once more. It reads as follows: "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him." The phrase "as God has prospered him" expresses a ratio, between the amount to be laid by and the amount the man had been prospered during the previous week. If God had placed in his hands $10.00 during the week he is to give more than if he had received only $5.00, and then too, it is certainly fair to say if one brother has an income of $20.00 per week he should lay by for the poor saints at Jerusalem more than the brother whose income had been only $1.00.

"As he has been prospered" is the rule that is to measure the contribution of both these men as well as all others. Notice the ratio is not "as we feel" or considering our worldly obligations, but, as we have been prospered. There is proportionate giving here, as all will admit and the only way to get away from the force of duty is to say "it does not apply to us." Whether it applies to us or not depends upon whether God has a plan of giving or not by which his people are to be governed. If this plan does not apply to us then God has no plan or system of giving for there is none other in either the Old or New Testament. It is the proportionate plan or there is none at all.

The basis of all proportion is relative value as measured by a standard. If the standard is 100 the ratio is called per cent. As the Bible method of reckoning was by tens and our method is by hundreds and as our's is but a multiple of that of the Bible the system is the same. God required one part in ten which repeated is ten in one hundred or ten per cent.

The system at Corinth was proportionate and therefore a percentage of the income. We are not told what proportion of their income they were asked to give but as there is no intimation of a change anywhere in the Bible, it is reasonable to infer that it was the same that God had established at the first among his people, viz, the tithe or one-tenth of the income. The tithing system is as old as the Hebrew people. Abraham gave one-tenth of the booty to Melchizedek. Paul says of him "This Melchizedek, king of salem, priest of the Most High God who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, blessed him, to whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all." And again he says, "Now consider how great this man was unto whom even the patriarch gave the tenth of the spoil."

Jacob promised God if he would be with him and keep him, he would set apart one tenth for God. The record reads as follows: "And Jacob vowed a vow saying if God will be with me and will keep me in this way that I go and will give me bread to eat and raiment to put on, then.....all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee." Gen. xxviii. 20–22.

God's law to Israel concerning the tithe was as follows:—"All the tithe of the land whether of the seed of the land or the fruit of the tree is the Lord's, it is holy unto the Lord. And if a man will at all redeem ought of his tithes he shall add thereto the fifth part thereof. And concerning the tithe of the flock even of whatsoever passeth under the rod the tenth shall be holy unto the Lord. Lev. xxvii. 30.

After Israel had been carried into captivity for seventy years they were willing to obey the Lord and give him the tenth to carry on the work of the Lord. Neh. x. 37. 9. Then they built a treasure-house for the purposes of storage, into which the tithe might be placed for distribution to the priests, the poor, the widows, the fatherless and the strangers. Amid the prosperity which followed they soon forgot God and in a few years we find the prophet Malachi expostulating with the Jews for withholding the tithe. "Will a man rob God" he exclaims; "Yet ye have robbed me." They ask "wherein have we robbed thee?" and the reply from God comes quick, "In tithes and offerings" and then follows this solemn language "Ye are cursed with a curse because ye have robbed me even this whole nation."

Keeping back God's share of the increase or income God himself calls robbery, and the worst kind of robbery that of defrauding God, and the curse is declared by the prophet to have followed as a punishment.

We may try to excuse our theft by saying that we are not under the Divine System—not under the law but under the gospel. Well, admit that we are under the gospel, but does that lessen obligation? Does it not rather increase than lessen our obligation? If the gospel system is superior to the Mosaic is it not worth more to us? Because we have heard and obeyed the gospel, does it make robbers of us, that we may now "Rob God" and in turn devise schemes by which we may rob our fellow man, to fill God's treasury, by lottery schemes and grab-bag devices? It is a strange logic indeed that makes the Christian System superior to the Mosaic and yet has nothing definite by which God's work may be supported, and leaves all to the caprice or avarice of man. The higher the moral the greater the responsibility and the more need of regular, systematic and proportional giving. It is written in the New Testament, "I have showed you all things how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive." Acts xx. 35.

The obligations of Christians to give to the Lord is never questionable. The only point to settle is, is what is the per cent. Let Jesus answer the question. In his teaching he says to the Jews who were the rulers in the kingdom at that time, "Ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matter of the law,—Judgment, Mercy and Faith; these ye ought to have done, and not to leave the other undone." Not only are Judgment, mercy and faith obligatory but also paying the tithe even down to the smallest matters. Those who object to God's system of giving tell us "this teaching was before Jesus died on the cross and therefore is under the Jewish Dispensation." True, and was not all the teaching of Jesus, before he died on the cross? Shall we place ourselves in a position where all the teaching of Jesus by our argument is wiped out? "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and thy neighbor as thyself." Shall we throw this away because it was spoken before Jesus died on the cross? "A new Commandment I give unto you that ye love one another" shall we say this too belongs to the Jewish age and all the great moral lessons uttered by Jesus before crucifixion shall we lay them aside and cling to an unsound principle because we do not like God's System of Finance?

To those who can satisfy conscience by this sophistry, we have nothing further to say, but to those who see differently and are trying to follow what they think is God's plan, we say precious promises are made to the willing and obedient. Remember, God has said "Honor the Lord with thy substance and with the first-fruits of all thine increase, so shall thy barns be presses shall burst with new wine." Remember also that God has challenged you to prove him—to test his word, by this same plan—the tithe—"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse that there be meat in mine house and prove me herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sake and he shall not destroy the fruit of your ground. Neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time, in the field, saith the Lord of hosts."

We recommend to you beloved that you try God's system of finance. That you begin to-day. Lay aside one-tenth of all incomes, for the Lord's work. Put it into a purse or box. Then be the Lord's steward over that purse or box. Use it faithfully, judiciously, carefully for all purposes where your best judgment aided by prayer may direct. Remember God sees you. Be faithful, and your blessing is sure.

Members of the Church of God, after years of experience we can say to you that we are happy in following the plan. We would not go back to any other system—we have found nothing better. It supplies all needs. If the Church of God will follow God's System of Finance instead of the devil's systems, there will be money enough for all purposes of carrying forward his work. Try it.

1. Because it is God's System.
2. Because it is right.
3. Because it is proportional—it falls alike upon all. One is not taxed and another burdened.
4. Because God's blessing rests upon it.
5. There is no system of finance equal to it.
6. Because, God is honored and not robbed.

Yours in the Christ.

Report of Meetings.

Dear Restitution:

A few of the isolated ones here have enjoyed a gospel feast recently. Bro. Foore of Temple Arizona, made us a visit of some days, and spread a feast of good things for the benefit of our City. But alas! Those rich life giving dainties failed to attract many of our citizens to the feast. However there was a pretty fare turnout any how, and one holy put on the sin covering name. I am persuaded that all the good seed sown will not be lost. "What will the harvest be?" The coming day of the Lord will declare. Of one fact we are convinced, our city (Neodesha, Kans.) has been visited, and for aught we know, is now without excuse. One here and there is willing to heed the call, only a few. Soon the last one will be registered in the Book of the high calling, then the door will be shut. O will I be there in that glorified throng, arrayed in fine linen clean and white? The low muttering thunders heard in the East, and the storm cloud now gathering over the nations, speak to us in trumpet tones of the approaching change of empire, and the crush of earthly kingdoms. Notwithstanding all these things they do not awake a slumbering world. While the nominal church not altogether ignorant are heedless of the coming conflict. The idea is not popular, they all like ease and pleasure. This gospel of the kingdom (i. e. Jesus the King of all the earth,) may be considered rebellious and weakening to the present rulership of the world. It requires some courage and zeal for God's children to stand aloof from the world. But their Master worketh not with it. Neither should his followers. "If the world hate you, ye know it hated me before it hated you. If ye were of the world the world would love his own; but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you." Dear friends we can afford to share his cross, knowing there is a crown awaiting all those who love his appearing. Therefore the vanities and short lived pleasures of the present order of things have no attractions for the faithful disciple of the Master. To the careless and all who are neglecting to insure their salvation, remember Noah and his family were called to come into the Ark, and God shut the door, after which no one else was allowed to enter. So will it be when the door of mercy is closed again. It will surely come to pass, whether you have heeded the warning or not. Dear ones be of good cheer we are nearing home. Your Sister waiting for the Master.

Sallie Black.

Dear ones of the blessed hope, Greeting:

For several years I was laying in the shade as far as gospel work is concerned. I was an ordained minister of the Crises school, but because I could not find any place for the first resurrection anywhere in the past, I was forced to look for it in the future, and that lead to the institution of Israel with the Christ as their King on the throne of David, and because of this I was thrust out. And so being cumbered with the cares of this life, I got pretty well covered with rust. But after three urgent requests from Brother and Sister Covell of this place Ohio, Mich., I left my home in Millbrook on the 17th of this present month, to come here to preach the gospel of the kingdom. After a drive of 45 miles I found Brother and Sister Covell rejoicing in the hope of the kingdom. Being too tired for any work I rested awhile. At night we had a meeting at Brother Covell's house, and it was full to overflowing with those that wanted to hear about the "new fangled religion" as they called it. The Baptist minister was there to take care of his flock. I saw there was discension in the air. I fired the sword of truth and the Lord helped to wield it right and left. Curiosity overcome envy, for the most part wanted to hear a little, and when I was through there was full hearts to pour out their testimony before the world. Six presented themselves to be baptized into the All-saving name, however two of them were kept back by the parents and the Baptist minister. It was arranged to have meeting on Sunday afternoon and baptize after. And as I wanted all to understand what they were doing, I preached on baptism for the remission of sins, Acts ii. 38. The Baptist minister and also all of his members sanctioned every word, but when he saw two of his congregation were going forward he stormed the castle. So they were kept back, but four precious ones went forward and they were the heads of families. The two that was kept back will not be baptized by the Baptist. I pray the Lord that they may not be driven back to the world. We shall try to establish a church here to-night. To-morrow I must go home, but shall return soon if the Lord wills. Yours in the love of the Truth.

W. J. Cummings.

Dear brothers and sisters of the one faith:

I thought that I would write a few lines to let you know what we are doing down here in Camden Co. Missouri. We have had eight days meeting here at the Hix school house. Brother George Kidwell from Arkansas and Brother Frank Fowler from Pittsburg Mo., done the preaching. They are workmen that we need not be ashamed of, rightly dividing the Word of God. They both hold fast the form of sound words. I feel sure that the good seed of the kingdom has fallen into good ground. The Baptists commenced a meeting the next week and held it for ten days. They tried hard to get up a revival but they could not. Dear brothers and Sisters God's Word will not return to him void. After we got through our meeting here at this place we went to Hickory Co. to Spout Spring. There we held meeting two weeks. There are several of the faith at that place. Eight more came out from the world and put on Christ by baptism, and one brother went with us that was of the faith so there are nine more at that place which makes eleven. Now brothers and sisters pray for those dear ones that have just put on Christ that they may ever walk worthy of him. I know how hard it is to battle with the world. Oh may God give them grace sufficient each day and may they grow in the knowledge of the Lord is the prayer of a sister. While we were at that place the "Latter Day Saints" made war on Brother Kidwell, and tried to hinder our meeting, but they only helped the cause of truth and Brother Kidwell and Brother Fowler both kept pouring it into their ears until they wanted to fight. Brother Kidwell arranged to have a debate with them in August 1898 at the Spout Spring in Hickory Co. Mo. I have not been able to learn the exact date but it will be in August to discuss two or three different questions. Dear brothers and sisters I ask an interest in your prayers and may God bless you all in your efforts to do good for his cause is the prayer of a sister. "Come Lord Jesus, come quickly."

Mary E. Howard.

Set thine house in order; for Thou shalt die, and not live.

We read in Isa. xxxviii. 1, that God sent the prophet to Hezekiah who was sick unto death and told him to "set thine house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live." Do we realize the importance of this great question? Do we want to live or die? If we were on our bed about ready to die, and some one with two glasses, one with poison, the other to restore us to health, which of the two would be taken? Certainly the one that would give us life. Every one desires life, so in this important question God offers life or death to all. Jer. xxi. 8. "I set before you the way of life, and the way of death." The apostle tells us we are taught to believe on Christ and we will be saved as he is our substitute. Let us examine this question from the Word itself.

In Phil. xxi. 12, we are told to work out our salvation with fear and trembling. This does not look much like our Savior doing it all, that we might be saved.

In Ezek. xviii. 21–32, we are told the soul that sinneth it shall die, or in other words the whole body is the soul, and that is what dies. God has no pleasure in the death of the wicked. Is not my way equal? Are not your ways unequal?

God has appointed his way and it is well if we take heed to his plan of salvation. I set before you the way of life and the way of death we have presented to us from the Word these ideas, as follows:

FACTS.

1. Jesus died.
2. Was buried.
3. Rose the third day. 1 Cor. xv. 3–4.

COMMANDS.

1. Believe.
2. Repent.
3. Be baptized. Acts ii. 38.

PROMISES.

1. Remission.
2. Gift of the Holy Spirit.
3. Eternal Life. Acts ii. 38.

This suggests four things concerning the gospel of the kingdom (Mark i. 4,) that Jesus preached and why we should accept it.

1. That the Author is God.
2. That the Mediator is Christ.
3. That the Revealer is the Holy Spirit.
4. That the Object is Salvation.

God does everything after the counsel of his own will. Can we realize that this is all done by him that we may work out our salvation and obtain eternal life.

John vi. 29. "This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent." To believe on him is to believe his teachings, believe what he and the apostles preached. They preached only the gospel of the kingdom, and Jesus says plainly, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God," Matt. vi, 33. "The law and prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached." Luke xvi. 16. They say the world is better now, improved, so they now preach on other themes. Acts viii. 12, says "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women." When we believe what Jesus taught is the time to be baptized, not before. Nothing said about penitent-benches and excitement to become converted.

Let us now examine the perfect chain or the plan of God's Word.

DIVINE PART.

God's work, John iii. 16.
Christ's work, Heb. vii. 25; i. 3; John vi. 37.
Holy Spirit's work, John xiv. 26.
Apostle's work, John xv. 27.

HUMAN PART.

Hearing, Rom. x. 17; Mark iv. 24.
Believing, John xx. 27; Mark xvi. 16.
Repenting, Mark i. 15.
Confessing, Matt. x. 32. Why? Rom. x. 10.
Obeying, Acts v. 29; Acts v. 32.
Enduring, Matt. x. 22.

We must believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, our Lord, Savior, Judge, Prophet, Priest and King, and we must depend upon him for salvation, which means to submit, to confess, consecrate, obey and be faithful to him in all things. Heb. i. 1, 2. We ought therefore to give the more earnest heed and how shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation. Heb. ii. 1–3. "I set before you the way of life, and the way of death." Job xiv. 14, 5 asks the question if a man die shall he live again he felt assurred he would.

Job xix. 25–6, "For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth, and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God.' Isa. xxvi. 19, "Thy dead men shall live and the earth will cast out the dead." Ezek. xxxvii. 12–14, God promises to open the graves and our Savior has the Key to unlock the graves at the proper time. John v. 28. We are not to marvel for all that are in their graves shall hear his voice. 1 Thess. iv. 13–18, gives the opening of the graves at Jesus coming.

Will you have life or death? If you desire life, press toward the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. All who enter the straight gate will obtain eternal life. It will only be a few. Many are called but few are chosen. Fear not little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. If you fail to obtain an entrance by following God's commands you can come up in the resurrection and are subject to the second death which will end all. Hence, heed the exhortation to "Set thine house in order" and live. God sets before you the way of life and the way of death. Choose ye and prepare to live and not die.

Work in Kansas and Missouri.

To the brethren:

Now that we have organized our Conference for Kansas and Missouri and begin with Sept. 5th our Conference year, it is well to make a full report of work done, results accomplished and amounts received to date. I would therefore respectfully submit the following. Leaving Bello Plaine, Ia., March 11th, I began a series of meetings at Mound City, Monday evening the 15th, and continued without a break until the 24rd, delivering ten discourses upon prophetic themes. I next spoke in the Christian Church at Severance, Kan., by invitation of its Pastor on Sunday April 4th, morning and evening. I repeated this at Severance by invitation of the Pastor and Church, April 11th. My next point was at Baileyville, Kan., where I remained a guest of Brother and Sister Green from the 17th to the 25th but on account of bad weather and a bad cold spoke but four times. I next visited Liberty Landing, Mo., and stopped over Sunday and held two meetings. May 20th I visited Brookfield, Mo., but on account of rain and other unfavorable circumstances only held four public meetings. Saturday May 29th found me at Bosworth, Mo., where I stopped over Sunday preaching 3 times. June 1st found me at Mound City, Mo., waiting for the tent which arrived Saturday the 5th, and was set up the same day. My first meeting was held the following day at 3 P. M., and we continued without interruption except one rainy Saturday until Sunday night June 27th. I preached 28 discourses, held frequent afternoon Bible readings and private conversations and baptized three. Received from the church $25.00 and from the tent fund $25.00, total $50.00. I began my next meeting at Severance Doniphan, Co., Kan., July 5th and closed Wednesday night, Aug. 4th, held 36 meetings; no baptisms; received from tent fund $10.00, outside sources $7.00, collections $6.65, total $23.65. My next meeting began at Eagle Springs, Doniphan, Co., Kan., Aug. 8th, and closed Wednesday Aug. 25th, preached 25 times; no baptisms; received $6.38. Began my present meeting at Sycamore Springs, Brown Co., Kan., Sunday Aug. 29th, which is now in progress. Time in the field from May 11th to Sept. 5th both inclusive 178 days. Time with the tent from June 1st to Sept. 5th, both inclusive 97 days. Meetings held with the tent: at Mound City, 28; Severance, 35; Eagle Springs, 25; Sycamore, 10; total meetings 99. Received through tent committee $37.00, other sources while with tent $54.18, total $91.18, before tent season $64.25, whole amount $155.43.

Respectfully submitted,

J. F. Wilcox.

Concerning Things Present and Things to Come.

Dear Brother Underwood:

Allow me, if you can, space in THE RESTITUTION for a few thoughts and queries. In Luke ii. 33 we read, "And he (Jesus) shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." Does not this language imply the whole of the twelve tribes, the two kingdoms, Judah and Israel, including also Ephraim and Manasseh and their descendants? Will not these also be in existence at the second coming of the Savior? If so, where are they? In Dan. ii. we have recorded the mission and interpretation of Nebuchadnezzar's dream of a great image, the division of which represents five universal kingdoms, four of which are in the past and expositors all agree as to who they were, and the extent of their dominion and the time of their occupation. They are represented by gold, silver, brass and iron, the latter in part mixed with clay. The next kingdom is to be of stone, and that is to break in pieces and consume all of the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, and the stone (or kingdom represented by the stone) became a great mountain and filled the whole earth. Will the kingdom of stone or the representatives thereof be in existence at the second coming of the Savior? If they are, who are they? It cannot be the Jews alone, for they consist of but two tribes, Judah and Levi. The ten tribes were scattered and lost many years before the captivity of the Jews by Nebuchadnezzar. The Jews are known by all, they have been a byword and a hiss among all nations, scattered and jeered for their rejection and condemnation of the Savior, crucifying him and said his blood be on us and on our children, tribulation and persecution have followed them ever since. The ten tribes were not at Jerusalem, but being scattered and lost had no part in the condemnation of the Savior, therefore the tribulations which are not yet over, does not apply to them: they were scattered for their idolatry, but God through the prophet has promised to save them and bring them back, and make Judah and Israel one stick in the Holy Land. Ezek. xxxvii. 16-20. Believing the times of the Gentiles are nearly over, and that the tribulation on the Jews also ends at the same time, and also that the coming of the Messiah to take to himself his great power and reign is in the near future, and as God through the prophet has promised to save the tents of Judah first (Zech. xii. 7) the balance of the tribes cannot be far off. If the blessing of Israel (Jacob) upon the sons of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh whom the patriarch adopted into his own family, even making Ephraim the first born reach only a partial fulfillment since the time the blessing was pronounced, the question is, who and where are their descendants?

I am aware many brethren will say that God in his good time will find and fulfill all he has promised concerning them, true, such has always been the case. God has raised up men to fulfill his purposes in all ages. And will he not use the same means now to find his lost people (not lost to him, but themselves)? Is it consistent with us who are believers in the times of restitution to ignore the labors of those who are laboring Scripturally on the lines of Anglo Israel identity? God has promised through the prophet he would send many fishers and hunters to hunt up his children Israel, Jer. xvi. 14, 15, 16, and have they not been hunted for in every known land? And if the hunters have found them near home, should we reject their testimony? The least we can do would be to investigate, and if consistent with the sure Word of prophecy advertise the labors of those working along those lines. We live in eventful times, we need all the oil (knowledge) we can procure; many noble workers are searching and publishing the result of their labors on the other side of the Atlantic, some noble workers also in America, among the chief ones is Professor Totten, who has sacrificed his means of living, laid down the sword and taken up the pen in defense of the Scriptures, is a believer in the age of restitution. His labors are along the Scriptural lines and we also believing in the times of restitution should help to hold forth his labors for others to investigate. Can we who have accepted the gospel of Christ looking for salvation in the higher or spiritual place reject the promises of God through the prophet concerning the return of his people, fleshly Israel, to his special favors? Jer. xxiii. 5-8, also all of the chap. 31.

J. OGLESBY.

Announcement.

Dear Restitution:

Will you please give place in your columns for one more call—this may be the last one. At our Annual Conference, Sept., 96, a vote was taken to convene in Conference again in Sept., 97. A committee was appointed to take charge of the arranging of this meeting. In the absence of the Rec. Wm. Vickery, I have been requested to send this notice. This meeting will be held near the Crescent school house, Sumner Co., Kan., as near the place voted on as the committee can conveniently arrange. This meeting will commence Friday, October 29th, a month later than was voted on. This was done to give ample time for seeding and past the extreme hot weather. Now brethren, we had a splendid meeting last fall under the touching of Bro. L. E. Conner; its effects have shown its worth. Now we propose to try and have another good meeting with Bro. J. F. Wilcox and others to assist us. A large attendance is expected and the invitation is to all who can and will come. Come prepared to care for yourselves and others. Just a word, don't go to town just before you come to this meeting and deposit all the money you have, but bring your money along and divide up a little. Deposit a part of your means with the Lord, he has made the demand, don't fail to respond, your help is needed in defraying expenses. I am not authorized to say how long this meeting will continue, but it will be for several days if the interest demands and the brethren will satisfy the laborers. Those coming by railroad from north, south or east will stop at Arkansas City. Notify the committee in good time and you will be met at the train. The committee are Wm. Hadika, Geuda Springs, and Wm. Vickery, Newkirk, O. T. We would love to see a goodly number from every point of the compass. Come with song, come with prayers, come with exhortation, these are all good, if you should fail in any of these things you can help by your money. Bro. Wilcox and family have to live and we must not forget this. Those coming by private conveyance will find meeting near southeast corner of Sumner Co., Kansas. Committee,

T. H. JACKSON,
WM. HADIKA,
WM. VICKERY,
I. S. MILLER, Pres.

The Northwest Conference of the Church of God will convene on Friday Oct. 8, at the Lake Shore School house, Wash., and continue over the following Sunday. Brothers and Sisters we once more appeal to you to come and enjoy a short season with us talking over the things concerning Jesus the resurrection and the kingdom of God. Come with your hearts full of love and self-sacrifice, and we are sure you will not have come in vain. Those coming from a distance will be met at the Esmond hotel, Vancouver, on Friday. Those who cannot come until Saturday will be met at the same place at 1 o'clock on Saturday, by addressing me at Felida, Wash. The brethren at this place extend a hearty welcome to all those who will attend.

JOHN E. MCINTYRE, Sec'y.

Appointments.

Editor Restitution:

Enclosed I send you a list of my appointments until Nov. 1897.

Sac City, Iowa, Oct. 8 to continue as brethren may desire. Can preach for brethren at Lake Mills, Iowa, if they wish. Brethren please take notice of above appointments and arrange accordingly, that no time be lost.

Your Brother, in hope of the coming kingdom.

D. M. HEDLEN.

Tract Fund.

We the undersigned, realizing that the distributing of tracts is a good way to spread the truth, and that the time is short in which we can work for the Master, do hereby agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of raising a fund to be used in supplying tracts to those who will distribute them free.

Previously subscribed,	$35.25

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and one amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy.

Previously subscribed	$135.80

Keep your heart right, and your life will keep itself.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who "consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Notice.

WILL our friends please remember that we do not have the books and tracts at this office that are advertized by Brother Joblin, or Brothers Wiley Jones. Do not send to this office for them, but send to their address as given in the advertisement. This will save both trouble and delay. PLEASE REMEMBER.

Kansas and Missouri Tent Fund.

We the undersigned agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing a tent to be used in evangelizing in the States of Kansas and Missouri. Subscriptions and pledges may be sent to THE RESTITUTION or direct to the Chairman of the Committee, Joseph Stellenberger, Mound City, Mo.

Previously subscribed,	$215.65

Low Rates, via Pennsylvania Lines.

Special reductions in fare over the Pennsylvania Lines will be granted for numerous events to take place this summer in various parts of the United States, in addition to local excursions. Some of the points to which tickets will be sold and dates of sale are as follows:

To Nashville, Tenn., daily to October 15th, for Tennessee Centennial and International Exposition.

The reduced rates over the Pennsylvania Lines will not be restricted to members of the organizations mentioned, but may be taken advantage of by the public generally. Excursion tickets may be obtained at ticket offices on the Pennsylvania System and will also be sold over this route by connecting railways. Any Pennsylvania Line Ticket or Passenger Agent will furnish desired information concerning rates, time of trains, return limit, and other details, to all applicants, or the same may be obtained by addressing C. Books and Tract List.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism, by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. 10 cents each. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS AND THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

Is the title of a pamphlet of 96 pages by H. W. Bowman, containing questions on the Eternity of Evil, Predestination, Hell and kindred points. It is well worth reading and will help many who are bothered to give answers many times. We can supply you for 15 cents a copy.

GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

THE COMING NATION.

A lecture delivered by H. V. Reed. This clearly sets forth the idea that the Coming Nation will be the nation of Israel restored to Palestine, and the Scriptural reasons are given. 26 pages price 10 cts or three for 25 cts.

A PARABLE: BATTLEFIELD OF ARMAGEDDON WATERLOO.

Is the title of a tract of 32 pages by H. W. Bowman, and is devoted to an exposition of the Rich Man and Lazarus Question. 10 cents a copy.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A popular lecture by M. Joblin. Very good to put in the hands of those searching for truth. 16 pages 5 cents each.

Necessity of Baptism. A 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Bible Plan of Salvation. A 4-page tract telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. 2 cts each or 15 cts per dozen.

An open Letter to J. A. Conner. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Letter to Dr. Talmage. A 4-page tract being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Modern Events in the Light of Prophesy.—This is the sermon preached by H. V. Reed at Antioch, which has since been printed in tract form, and may be had at this office for five cents each, or 30 copies for $1.00.

Passages Supposed to Teach Consciousness after Death, by W. H. Wilson, which shows that eternal life is conditional and not inherited. 3 cents each, or 25 cents a dozen.

Where Do the Dead Sleep. These are Bible texts given in answer to this question. A 8-page tract 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

Hades. A Bible account of this place with proof texts. Ten copies for 5 cents.

Death Compared to a Sleep. This represents death as a sleep and proof texts are given. Ten copies for 5 cts.

The Wicked Dead and Plain Truths. The two combined. 2 pages ten copies for 10 cents

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all things Which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCTOBER 13, 1897. NUMBER 38.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Long Life.

Count not thy life by calendars; for Years shall pass thee unheeded, whilst an hour
Some little fleeting hour, too quickly past—
May stamp itself so deeply on thy brain,
Thy latest years shall live upon its joys.
His life is longest, not whose loneliness grows,
Sunk eyes, worn cheeks, and snow-white hairs bespeak
Life's lights; no! But he whose soul has
In thickest set with these delicious scenes
'Tis sweet to ponder o'er when even falls.

The Gospel Recovered. No. 2.

In the previous article it was attempted to be shown that "the gospel of the kingdom" had been lost in the Apostacy, and that the Apostacy had its beginning in two forms of error even in the days of the Apostles. Judaism was sought to be imposed on Gentile disciples that they might be saved; and certain false teachers denied the humanity of our Lord. The latter idea involved his non-descent from David, and his non-heirship of the promised kingdom; in short a denial of his Messiahship.

It was doubtless this state of matters which called forth, on the part of the Apostles such injunctions as these —"EARNESTLY CONTEND for the faith once delivered to the saints"—"GATHERING together for the faith of the gospel." Pity it is that they are quite as appropriate and necessary in the present day.

The doctrine concerning "the Christ," was regarded by the Apostle John as of paramount importance. This may be the seen from the quotations already made from his first epistle; but in the second he returns to the subject, and forbids even common intercourse with such as deny the Messiahship of Jesus. His words are "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed: For he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds." Verses 9-11. In the Greek the term Christ has the article prefixed, and "the doctrine of the Christ" must be construed in harmony with John's teaching in his first epistle, namely, the doctrine concerning the Christ. This was the truth that "Jesus is the Christ;" and it was to confirm this primary truth he declares he wrote his gospel. See John xx. 31.

Since the Reformation of the 16th century, till within the last fifty years "the gospel of the kingdom of God," as the primary element of the "one faith," was known. After the Reformation when an open Bible became public property, certain important elements of the kingdom were perceived and advocated by those known as Millenarians. The reign of the thousand years, and the personal advent of the Messiah before its commencement, to gather the scattered tribes of Israel into their own land, and to reign with his saints over them and the nations of the world, found many defenders. A writer in the Quarterly Journal of Prophecy, Vol. II. p. 279 says, "During the first century after the Reformation it (Millenarianism) rose again into notice, and was held by several learned and godly men. During the second century it rose into still greater eminence, especially in England. Very many of the Non-conformists.....held it.....A large number of the Westminster Assembly (1638) held it. Twisse, the President of that Assembly, was a Millenarian; and many others of that age, of all denominations.....and so strong was their position felt to be that it. Baxter honestly confesses that though he did not agree with them, he could not refute them."

It was doubtless through the influence of Millenarians in the Westminster Assembly that the last paragraph of the Confession was inserted. It is as follows:—

"As Christ would have us to be certainly persuaded that there shall be a day of judgment, both to deter all men from sin, and for the greater consolation of the godly in their adversity; so will he have the day unknown to men, that they may shake off all carnal security, and be always watchful, because they know not at what hour the Lord will come: and may be ever prepared to say, "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly."

It may be well to note here a few of the authors who at that time wrote in favor of the pre-millennial advent. In 1627, Joseph Mede published his "Clavis Apocalyptica, said by Bishop Hurd, also a Millenarian, to be the first rational attempt to interpret the Apocalypse. Nathaniel Homes (1654); Peter Jurieu (in French-English Translation 1687); Robert Fleming (1701); Sir Isaac Newton (1733); Whiston (1744); Thomas Newton, bishop of Bristol (1754); I. Bicheno (1794). The hymns of the period bear witness to the extent to which Millenarian truth had spread. Charles Wesley wrote a number. One by Olivers is well-known beginning "Lo! he comes with clouds descending."

The Baptists also in the reign of Charles II. 1660 drew up a Confession of Faith which contained a remarkable section stating their views on the Millenium. It is recorded in a "History of the English Baptists," by Thomas Crosby in 4 volumes 1738-40. The preamble contains these words:—

"A brief confession or declaration of Faith lately presented to King Charles II. set forth by many of us who are falsely called Anabaptists..... for which we are not only resolved to suffer persecution to the loss of our goods but also life itself, rather than to decline the same." This confession extends to twenty-five sections occupying 15 pages, and is signed by 41 men; closing with these words—"owned and approved by more than twenty thousand." "London, printed for Francis Smith, at the Elephant and Castle near Temple Bar. MDCLX."

Section XXII. of the Confession referred to is as follows:—"That the same Lord Jesus who showed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, Acts i. 3, which was taken up from the disciples, and carried up into heaven, Luke xxiv. 51, shall so come in like manner as he was seen to go into heaven. Acts i. 9, 10, 11. And when he who is our life shall appear, we shall also appear with him in glory." Col. iii. 4. "For then shall he be King of kings, and Lord of lords." Rev. xix. 16. "For the kingdom is his and he is the Governor among the nations." Psa. xxii. 28. "And King over all the earth." Zech. xiv. 9. "And we shall reign with him on the earth." Rev. v. 10. "The kingdoms of this world (which men so mightily strive after here to enjoy) shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ." Rev. xi. 15. "For all is yours (O ye that overcome this world) for ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's." 1 Cor. iii. 22, 23. "For unto the saints shall be given the kingdom, and the greatness of the kingdom under (mark that) the whole heaven." Dan. vii. 27. "Though (this) now many men be scarce content that the saints should have so much as a being among them; but when Christ shall appear, then shall be their day, then shall be given unto them power over the nations, to rule them with a rod of iron." Rev. ii. 26, 27. "Then shall they receive a crown of life, which no man shall take from them, nor they by any means turned, or overturned from it; for the oppressor shall be broken in pieces." Psa. lxxii. 4, and their now vain rejoicings turned into mourning and bitter lamentations; as it is written. Job xx. 5, 6, 7. "The triumphing of the wicked is short, and the joy of a hypocrite but for a moment; though his excellency mount up to the heavens, and his head reach unto the clouds, yet shall he perish forever, like his own dung; they which have seen him shall say, Where is he?" Vol. II. Appendix pp. 85, 86.

In Volume IV. Appendix pp. 1 to 42. Crosby gives another "Confession," but I do not find either the occasion or the date of it given. It consists of 27 sections, the last of which contains a paragraph on "the Reign of Christ, as follows:

"Concerning the Kingdom and Reign of our Lord Jesus Christ, as we do believe that he is now in heaven at his Father's right hand, so we do believe, that, at the time appointed of the Father, he shall come again in great power and great glory; and that at, or after his coming the second time, he will not only restore the world, but will also take unto himself his Kingdom, and will, according to the Scriptures, reign over the throne of his father David, on Mount Zion, in Jerusalem for ever."

"We believe that the kingdom of our Lord will be an universal kingdom, and that in this kingdom the Lord Jesus Christ himself will alone be visible supreme Lord and King of the whole earth."

I propose to continue the subject on another occasion.

J. CAMERON.

Parables of Saloomoon. Chapter 16.

1. (9th verse of the 16th C. V.) Let a man's heart reason justified (or right) things, that his steps may be made upright. 15th-30 C. V. An eye that beholdeth good things rejoiceth one's heart; and a good report maketh the bones fat. 15th 32 C. V. He who rejecteth chastening hateth himself; but he who watcheth to keep (esoteric watch) reproofs loveth his own soul. 15th 33 C. V. Fear of the Lord is chastening and wisdom, and a beginning of glory will have made answer unto it.

2. All the doings of the lowly are manifest to God; but the irreverent will perish in an evil day.

4th verse not in its order and 3rd committed.

5. Unclean in the estimation of the Lord is every high-hearted man; and them who joineth hands to hand unjustly will not have been held guiltless. A beginning of a good way is the doing of the things that justify; and acceptable to the Lord are they rather than offering sacrifices. The one who seeketh the Lord will find comprehension with righteousness; and those who seek him in the right way will find peace.

4. All the works of the Lord are with righteousness; but the irreverent is being kept guarded unto an evil day.

The 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th verses are omitted.

10. Divination is for a king's lips, and in judging his mouth shall not err.

11. The inclination of a balance is righteousness in the estimation of the Lord: and his doings are right (or justified) weights and measures.

12. An abomination to a king is one who doeth evil things; For with righteousness is a throne of government being made ready.

13. Acceptable to a king are right (justified) lips; and he loveth upright words.

14. A king's anger is a messenger of death; but a wise man will expiate it.

15. In light of life is a king's son; and those acceptable to him are even as a late mist.

16. Nests (schools derived meaning) of wisdom are to be preferred to gold, and nests of thoughtfulness are more to be preferred than silver.

17. Paths of life incline away from evil things, and length of lifetime are ways of righteousness. The one who accepteth chastening will be in good things; and the one who watcheth to regard reproofs will have been made wise. He who watcheth to guard his own ways is watching to keep his own soul; and the one who loveth his life (not "soul" here) will besparing of his mouth.

18. On before ruin pride leadeth; and before a slighting blow malice.

19. Better is a meek man with humility than he who divideth spoils with the haughty.

20. One who hath understanding in affairs is a finder of good things; but one who trusts in God is blessed-happy.

21. The wise and understanding they find fault with; but the sweet in word they hearken to more readily.

22. A fountain of life is a reflection for those who acquire it; but the chastening of people without good sense is a bad thing.

23. A wise man's heart will apprehend the things from his own mouth; and he will carry upon his lips full knowledge of his subject.

24. Honey-comb is good words; and [illegible] is healing for a [illegible] is supposed [illegible]

25. There are ways that seem right to a man: their endings though look into the recesses of hades (the grave).

26. A man in pain pains himself and completeth away his own loss: The crooked man though carrieth his loss in his own mouth.

27. A man without good sense digeth evil things for himself; and treasureth up fire upon his own lips.

28. A crooked man sendeth through evil things (through his lips probably meant) and lighteth a lamp of deceit for evil men, and separateth friends.

29. A man who is an evader of law is tempted away from friends, and he leadeth them away by ways that are not good.

30. And fixing his eyes he will argue perverse things and define all the evil things with his lips: He is a furnace of evil.

31. A crown (garland crown) of boasting is old-age; but it is found in ways of righteousness.

32. Better (more efficient) is a forbearing man than a strong man; and the one who controlleth wrath is more efficient than one who taketh a city.

33. For the unjust all things come into their bosoms; but from the Lord are all the justified things (things made right.)

COMMENT.

The reader will please observe and think out the suggestion given in ver. 31 of the 14th chapter. There are two words in the Old and New Testament which the translators thus far seem to have shown very little understanding of. The "rod of Moses and Aaron" so called is always designated by this first word which is properly the "sceptre" of rule and frequently so rendered by the translators C. V. and R. V. as in the first chapter of Hebrews. "Thy sceptre is a sceptre of righteousness, etc."

The latter word means literally a rod or stick, generally an ox-goad or a shepherd's crook; but very early in Scriptural use comes to mean the baton or authoritative sceptre of the prophet, like the musician's baton. In the 23rd Psalm C. V. which is highly poetical the two words are used in their derived parable sense, "the sceptre" representing God's sovereignty and the "baton" or "shepherd's crook" or "rod of instruction" representing "God's sure Word of prophecy." The first suggests "the King of kings," the last "The Good Shepherd."

"Subtle" in this chapter and generally in the Scriptures is used in a good sense. The word translated "subtle" literally and primitively means an "all-worker" and is a term hard to render into any one English word; in short is one of many Greek words that may be used in a good or bad sense, and which is meant must be determined by the context. The 32nd verse is Messianic.

Any nation will do well to take the 34th verse as the motto for its great seal. And the 35th would be a good thing to embrazon and hang in the home of every one occupying a subordinate position.

The teaching all along here is antithetical the reader will observe as in the three preceding chapters.

Observe the emphasis placed upon the proper use of the tongue as well as the cultivation of the mind that prompts it in the first five verses of the 15th chap. How exactly this teaching correlates with the teaching of "James" (Jakob) the Apostle. The next seven verses emphasize character as seen in the ways and works of those who profit by the chastening of the Lord in contrast with those who do not.

The rest of the chapter is made up of aphorisms pertaining to the character and conduct of life of "those who are wise unto salvation" in all the relations of life private and public in contrast with the spiritually ignorant and depraved.

The 16th chapter which as a whole is especially oracular and even in its mutilated condition in the C. V. and R. V. bearing ample evidence of this character and import shows plainly the rabinical tinkering it suffered in the second century of the Christian era under the specious plea of perfecting the then incomplete vowel-pointing of the Hebrew text. The same attempt was made with the Greek text but failed owing to the watchfulness of the early church, the Greek Scriptures being the authoritative text until the predominance of the Latin Apostacy and the rise of the papal hierarchy. The 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th verses of this chapter are especially oracular and Messianic in their import and the whole chapter wonderfully bespeaks the divine wisdom.

CHAS. GARDNER.

The Symbolism.

Of Ezekiel's vision (chap. 1.) represents the Messiah on his throne surrounded by his saints,—all energized and made glorious by the Spirit of God. The prophet seems to fall into a kind of trance, and while in that state beheld a whirlwind coming out of the North,—a great cloud and a fire enfolding itself. The phenomenon of air in motion is used in the Scripture to represent the Spirit of God. Jehovah is said in one of the Psalms to make the clouds his chariots, and to ride upon the wings of the wind. A whirlwind may betoken a Divine movement in a tempestuous and destructive manner. We are safe in saying that whatever might be the primary import of some of the prophecies, the general drift of their communications had relation to a future,—to the time where the long promised blessing of Abraham would be realized by the world, and the nation of Israel be exalted to supremacy of power and honor in the sight of all the nations. This will indeed be the salvation of God, of which salvation the prophets have enquired and searched diligently. And from taking heed to the sure Word of prophecy as a light shining in a dark place, do we not see the near approach of the crowning consummation of all prophetic declarations. And can we not lift up our heads and rejoice, knowing that our redemption draweth nigh?" May the Lord keep us by by his power through faith unto salvation."

J. O. WOODRUFF.

"Throw Out the Life Line."

Dear ones in Christ who are hungering and thirsting after righteousness, let me say to you, that I have just read Bro. Joblin's lectures on "Old Mother Earth to be born Again," and "Vain Worship" and that my poor soul and heart was filled to overflow with gratitude to God for his goodness and his mercies to us. And I could truly say in my heart, "God bless thy long tried and faithful servant abundantly out of thine unwasted fulness. God bless thy precious words of truth, and may the people hear, believe and obey, and be finally saved. Amen and amen." And now our duty is plain, we must help to scatter these words of truth. Scatter the seeds of kindness, and they are so very cheap that every one can help scatter. Help to bear the message of mercy to dying men and women that they too may have hope. Now let us each and every one do what we can to rescue the perishing and care for the dying by taking hold at once "and throw out the Life Line" to one or more that is drifting away. Yes, some ones brother is sinking today. Then why tarry, why linger so long? See him sinking, hasten today. Father of all mercies help us save.

T. E. ADAMS.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Please say to Bro. Crowe that it does not require a Hebrew scholar to answer his two mysterious questions, one in Psa. cxxxix. 5, and the other in 1 Cor. xi. 10. In Psa. cxxxix. 15, David or whoever wrote it is looking forward to the time we all long for, that he might have part in the promised possession or substance. This thought is plain in the 2nd and 6th verses. In the 12th verse the thought of death is on his mind. In the 14th verse the thought of the resurrection is on his mind. In the 17th verse he praises God for giving him a knowledge of the future world. The 34th verse I think shows that this was the thought in mind. In the 13th, the natural birth is brought in to illustrate the spiritual birth. 1 Cor. xi. 10, Paul introduces himself and Christ in the first verse. Then he takes man and wife for illustration and gives them wholesome advice, but the thought in Paul's mind was Christ and his Bride. I think the thought is clear in the 9th verse and he says in the 10th verse that the woman ought to have power over her head. If it had been translated right it would have been as follows, The woman ought to have power by her head which is Christ, even as the angels have power by their head which is God. I would like to see an article from Bro. Gardner or Bro. W. H. Wilson to see if I understand the mind of the Spirit. I hope Bro. Crowe may be benefitted by my exposition. I am no scholar but I thank God for the knowledge bestowed on me.

Your Brother in hope of eternal life in 1898. Amen.

J. V. GAMBLE.

MARRIED.

At the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McIrvin, Felida, Washington, Sunday, August 1st, 1897, at 10 A. M. Mr. Valentine J. Fike, Washougal, Wash., and Miss Mary Edith McIrvin, of Felida, Wash., Elder Wm. Prosser of Scholls, Oregon, officiating. The young people are both strong believers in the soon coming of the Lord, and are earnest workers in the Master's cause. They are members of the church at Lake Shore, Washington. The happy couple are residing at Washougal, Wash., where Mr. Fike is engaged in the mercantile business.

Very respectfully,

MABEL E. FIKE.

It is not hasty but seriously reading, meditating upon holy and heavenly truths, that makes them prove sweet and profitable to the soul. It is not the bee's touching on the flowers that gathers honey, but her abiding for a time upon them, and drawing out the sweet. It is not he that reads most, but he that meditates most on Divine truth, that will prove the choicest, wisest, strongest Christian.

Good men have all a double history; one is that of their public conflicts with sin and error—the other that of their own heart-searching communings with God. The private history is the key to their character, and discovers the source of their life-long zeal. The world never understands a man who acts from motives of pure love to God—"the world knoweth us not."

Common sense has been defined to be "Reason applied to small things." In like manner politeness is but a proper regard for the feelings of others in every-day relations. To interpret and apply such a regard in the many details of social life is to ascertain every rule of etiquette that was ever worthy of attention.

Sympathy is one of our finest developments of human character. Who has not known and felt sweet influences? In dark hours of grief, when the poor heart bleeds (and whose has not, some time?), how tenderly soothing are kind tones or tears or acts which indicate sympathy with our sorrow!

In private relations to demand respect or affection is to lose it. Such regards are most genuine and most valuable when freely given. The very moment at which they begin to be enforced that very moment they begin to disappear.

"If a man cannot be a Christian in the place where he is, he cannot be a Christian anywhere."

WE must seek heavenly things by doing earthly things in a heavenly spirit.

"THE pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible."

Zeal for God energized Saul while persecuting the saints, but with all his zeal for God he was a sinner, and had to enter the narrow way of life in the prescribed way. He had to wash away his sins in the waters of baptism.

"IF we could have our way, most of us would choose a new set of circumstances and would afterward repent bitterly. God does better for his children, disarming and illuminating the things which are against us, so that they become our protection,—the storm on the surface hiding the eternal calm below."

IT would be well to remember that Paul said none other things than what Moses and the prophets did say should come; consequently, if any man have the Spirit working in him he will speak in accord with Moses, Christ and the Apostles, and it is only by bringing the claimant to this test that we can determine whether his claim is good or not."

RESOLVES to face duty more manfully in the future than in the past are often hastily made and readily forgotten or set aside. It is easy to resolve to do right tomorrow, next week, or after the New Year, in fact, anywhere but now. The practical meaning of this, is, "I want to please myself awhile longer. This habit lowers us, instead of raising us to a higher plane of religious life.

WE are each one capable of performing a minute's work in a minute,—but if we neglect the present work and then have to tug and toil to make up for lost days or weeks or months; or when we bring the anxieties of the future upon the present moment, then it is that we are borne down with weariness. Oh how slow we are to learn the lesson set us by the Lord, That the evil, the toil, and anxiety of any one day are sufficient for it to bear.

"PUT not your trust in princes nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help. (Psa. cxlvi. 4) are words which rush into the mind after reading the words of Lord Wolsey: "If I had served my God as faithfully as I have served the King, he would not have given me over in my grey hairs." But even if the Prince's favor is retained till death,—then what? The prince is powerless then. The need of a more powerful, lasting help is felt then. "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him and he shall direct thy paths."

One by One.

They come. On September 26th the Church of God in Cleveland was cheered by the addition of one more candidate for God's kingdom and glory, in the person of Miss Edith Bundschuh, who lived near two of our Sisters, who interested her in the truth as it is in Jesus,—took her to the Sunday School, and to hear the Word preached, with the happy result mentioned above. Having a skeptical Protestant for a father and a Catholic for a mother, our Sister will doubtless have a thorny road to travel; but as an adopted child of God it is blessed to think she will be the special object of her heavenly Father's care, and that as an heir of salvation the angels will minister to her, as long as she adorns the doctrine of the Anointed Jesus.

On the 3rd of October it was our exceeding joy to baptize and welcome to the Lord's Table one who has been the subject of many an anxious thought and earnest prayer. Our new-born [of water] Brother Groves, the husband of our dear Sister Groves, had been influenced somewhat by the wave of skepticism that threatens to inundate this land of Bibles and Sunday Schools and "Endeavors." When we first talked Bible truth to him personally, he was not certain who the author of the Bible was. But when once satisfied on that point, he soon fell in love with the beneficent Purposes of God in regard to man and earth, and joyfully complied with the conditions imposed. Notwithstanding the troubles of the last days which confront us, these happy incidents cheer us on to scatter the seed of the kingdom—the incorruptible Word. We trust that these babes in Christ will feed liberally on the sincere milk of the Word and grow thereby till they can assimilate strong meat and mature all the fruits of the Spirit, and be able to hail the coming Lord with joy.

"Hold Fast the form of Sound Words which thou hast heard of Me in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus." 2 Tim. i. 13.

No. 1.

It is a long time since these words were penned by Paul and sent to Timothy: but we hold them to be as applicable to those who have taken upon them the sin-covering name of Jesus in these last days, as they were to those of Apostolic Times. Indeed this noble apostle predicts that in the times in which we live, the tendency to let go the form of Sound Words would be greater than it was in his day; and we see with our own eyes, and hear with our own ears plain evidence that Paul was a prophet of God.

The words "hold fast" can only apply to those who have taken hold of the form of Sound Words. So that it is certainly possible for people of ordinary intelligence to get hold of the form of Sound Words spoken of. And the evidence is clear from the language of the apostle in 2 Tim iv. 3, 4 that the predicted declension from the Truth, or Sound Words does not take place because of mental obtuseness or want of acumen. No! they wont endure sound doctrine or wholesome teaching, but will accumulate "teachers for themselves, according to their own inordinate desires tickling their ears: and they will indeed turn away from the hearing of the Truth, and be turned aside to fables," dinglott. In view of this condition of things we are prepared to read understandingly the solemn charge with which the chapter commences: "I adjure thee before that God and Christ Jesus who is about to judge the living and the dead, and by his appearing and by his Kingdom, PROCLAIM THE WORD; be urgent reasonably, unreasonably, confute, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and teaching." The WORD lies at the base of this solemn charge; but what Word? Our text supplies the answer; "Retain an outline of wholesome Words which thou didst hear from me, in that faith and love which are in Christ Jesus;

We would to God that every one who opens his mouth to speak for God, or takes his pen in hand to write for him, could realize something of the responsibility he assumes. We are persuaded it would have a salutory effect to study well the charge just quoted, obedience to which is enjoined by the weightiest considerations in the universe—God,—and Christ, and judgment, and his appearing.

We impugn no one's motives, but is it not criminal thoughtlessness or carelessness, or recklessness of consequences to themselves and others to write and publish opinions that no outline of can be found in all the writings of the apostle, who shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God. Just think of opinions from uninspired men near the end of the 19th century concerning the very first principles of the gospel which saves! What a sad picture to contemplate! It either means that the divinely commissioned apostles omitted to define the conditions of salvation altogether, or else did it in such a slovenly, slipshod, hit or miss style, that nothing certain can be known about them: or, that such writers belong to the class spoken of in 2 Tim. iii. 7 as "Ever learning and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth,"—never get beyond opinions. And opinions being necessary, it implies that God in the vastness of his love and the richness of his favor provided a great salvation, but failed to inform the objects of his solicitude how they might attain to it. Most unthinkable this!

We have been in loving belief of oath-confirmed covenants of God more than 43 years, and while we are aware that a great many have a much deeper and soared far higher than we do claim to know, ABSOLUTELY on what conditions God offers men pardon, and peace, and reconciliation and adoption as sons. We know them because they have been published, and we have believed them,—and blessed be God, we know something of the blessedness of those whose transgressions are forgiven, and whose sin is covered.

The fact that we as a people have severed our connection with all other religious bodies,—thrown their human creeds to the winds, taken the Bible alone as the rule of our faith and practice, and send out evangelists to preach, and publish a paper to disseminate, truths plainly revealed by God and believed by us, that others ignore or are blind to; all this is to say, goes to show that we KNOW, at least, what the gospel and its conditions are, although there be a vast number of other subjects couched in less explicit language, and of not so vital importance to salvation, and about which we may have opinions which differ.

THE RESTITUTION in its prospectus on the hand corner of the first page has for years fairly well catalogued truths that ARE TRUTHS, being so abundantly proven by the Spirit's Word that they cannot be the subject matter of opinion by any, unless they lack faith in the Word. Let all such remember that it is impossible to please God without faith; and faith cometh by hearing the Word of God, —not by the opinions of men.

Consecration. Rom. xiv. 7, 8.

THE RAY OF THE BLESSED HOPE, CLEVELAND, OHIO, BIBLE CLASS PAPERS.

No. 8.

"For none of us liveth to himself, and none dieth to himself; For whether we live we live unto the Lord; or whether we die we die unto the Lord; whether we live therefore, or die we are the Lord's." R. V. Rom. xiv. 7, 8.

This is the language of Paul to the brethren at Rome. This statement could not embrace unbelievers and aliens. They do not care how they live and but little do they ever think about dying. They all think they have immortal souls, and as Jesus, the Christ, never enters their minds they have no need of being in any way concerned—whether they live or die. The present is all they are interested in. What a contrast as Paul outlines it,—between the one who has a hope and the one who has not. It is to those who have a hope, those who have been obedient and have been begotten to a living hope. 1 Pet. 1:3. It is to such Paul is addressing himself. How can the first clause of this subject selected for examination to-night—"For none of us liveth to himself;" apply to us, who are herefor the purpose of analyzing and applying this great fund of mental truth enunciated by the Apostle unless we all have adopted as our rule of life, the Royal law announced by the Saviour in his Sermon on the Mount. Saying "All things therefore whatsoever ye would that men do to you, even so do ye also unto them: for this is the law and the prophets." Matt. vii. 12. R. V. This language you know was addressed to the chosen disciples of Jesus. Hence we find the Apostle Paul who was a pupil of the blessed Lord after his resurrection, outlining the same doctrine to the brethren at Rome. If therefore we come within the purview of the Apostle's teaching we must be fruit-bearing branches in the vine. John xv. 2. Then will the second clause in our lesson apply—"Whether we live or die it is unto the Lord." His chosen vessels under any and all circumstances. This will bring in something more than a mental acquiescence, it will involve a heart consecration. Dedicated wholly unto the Lord, "living or dying." All the time the Lord's, not a little spasmodic suffering to-day and a complete forgetting to-morrow for the things temporal or running after the worldly matters. No, whether in the temple of worship or on the active mart of worldly strife, amid the din of life's great battle all things should be and must be done to please the Father and keep the love of the Son. Heb. xi. 6 and Jno. xv. 10, or we are not within the line drawn by the Apostle. "Whether living or dying we are the Lord's. Help us, oh Father, to apply our hearts unto wisdom that we may ever be found within the radius of this apostolic precept, and at last be accepted children. Amen.

J. N. SHROUDS.

Editor Restitution:

Will you please give space to this communication in THE RESTITUTION it may not be of much consequence yet it expresses our hope, and as we do not have the same privilege of listening to any of our preaching brethren as others do in the East, we feel that we want to give expression to our hope and in a way exhort others that are striving to win the prize of life eternal.

"Fear not little flock for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

It's a matter of great importance to us when we stop and reflect over this Scripture. The little flock spoken of is the people that are to be taken out from among the Gentiles for his name and to reign with Christ in his kingdom. This people are to be a separated people, are to form character in accordance with God's will and are to be made ready through obedience to meet the Lord when he makes his appearance in the clouds of heaven. There will be many things to try the faith and patience of all who may enter in the race. So many little things for us to overcome in our every day life that it is necessary for us to keep the bright reward in view and stay close to the Word of God that we be not drawn away from the hope of the gospel. Do we belong to that little flock and are we ready to meet Jesus when he comes in his glory? let us examine ourselves to see that we do all that is required of us. The gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation to all who believe. Jesus our Master announced the glad tidings during his ministry and many believed on him, it is still good news to us and it gives us joy to know that we have been brought into the light and that we have accepted the plan of salvation and are now looking for the return of our Lord. What a blessing to know that Christ will soon come and bring order out of the confusion that we are witness to now. we pray that it will be our lot to be among the number that will be chosen. Members of the little flock that will take the kingdom and reign with Christ on this earth, and we exhort all to hold fast to the faith once delivered to the saints, let all endeavor to do some thing for the Lord. If we don't have the gift of speaking, perhaps will have some other gift that will be equally as well. Bro. Eychaner's essay that was read at the Iowa State Conference ought to be studied and practiced by all. I believe if we were freer with our finance the work in the Master's cause would progress much better. I reported a year ago through THE RESTITUTION that a few of the brethren in Southern California was endeavoring to raise a fund for the purpose of calling some of our preaching brethren this way to help sow the seed of the gospel, and as yet little has been done, but we live in hopes that those who have not responded will make it their duty to do so and do it now. I believe Southern California a good field of labor, we have an intelligent class of people living here and many are of an inquiring mind. What we need is some one to present the gospel pure and simple to the people, and stay with us in the work. To accomplish this we must have the money and in behalf of the brethren I call upon all who are interested in the work to act now, and act in earnest and to any of the preachers who would like to make their home in Southern California write to me and I will be glad to give all the information I can. Address Pomona, Cal.

W. O. STEFFA.

To the Church of God, greeting:

"As iron sharpeneth iron, so doth the countenance of a man that of his friend." How true this is. We are thankful when foes cannot be seen; our thoughts and feelings are deeply stirred from time to time by the silent little pen, as it has been in a late article in THE RESTITUTION, "Awake Thou that sleepest." Can we not sound it all over the land till the hills will echo and re-echo. "Awake Thou that Sleepest." Not, dear brethren, to a sensational meeting, or some special conference, but a real waking, that will take hold of our lives, one that will create just as great an interest when two or three are gathered for worship, as when the whole State is assembled. "They that feared the Lord spake often one to another, and a book of remembrance was written." Bro. and Sister Woodward say, "Let us awake out of this awful stupor." How, or what shall be the first step? Truly there is something wrong when there is nothing done and nothing to record. And a still more serious state of affairs exists when there is nothing done and little interest till the big meeting, or conference. What is wrong? Is it not lamentably true, that too often the churches depend too much on the pastor? Many of the ministers educate themselves and the church to this and instead of admonishing them to admonish one another, burden themselves with talk which was never calculated to be thus when among brethren: Paul's advice was, "Admonish one another." This has been perverted, and to agree with present conditions, should read, "The pastor admonish the church, and do all that there is to be done." Is this not too often the case? It will not be hard to find this state of affairs. You will see a growth, the preacher grows, but the church is so lean, it is indeed hard to find. Brethren, these things ought not so to be. "The leaders of my people cause my people to err," is as applicable today as the day it was uttered. Many times the minister is not to blame but the pleasure-loving flock is so contaminated with the existing state of affairs among the mother church and her daughters, that they prefer to have some one do the work, and it seems impossible to awaken them to duty. Let us be careful and see if we can right the way. We must "exercise ourselves unto godliness," if we would "hold the beginning of our confidence unto the end." "Take heed brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief in departing from the living God. But exhort one another daily, while it is called today; lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin. For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end." So much depends upon our effort. Let us watch that our hearts are not hardened, for our partaking depends upon our steadfastness. Let us not depart from the living God.

"Awake my soul, wake up from sleep,
And work out thy salvation;
For prayer and watching, thee must keep,
Free from the world's temptation.
Then, watch and pray,
Through all the day;
For sleep may overtake thee,
And death his captive make thee.

O watch and pray, thou needest both,
And let thy watch be prayerful,
So God will make thee free from sloth,
And earnest, sober, careful;
For hell attend,
And help to fiend,
E'en when to sin thou criest,
And then on him relied."

NANCY BARBER.

Dear Restitution:

Our hearts were made glad yesterday by six more joining our home band of the one faith. Four by immersion into the All-Saving Name of Jesus Christ; two that had been immersed before. At four o'clock P. M. we gathered back at our arbor for services again, and commemorated our Lord's death by eating of the loaf and drinking of the cup: first giving our new brethren and sisters the right hand of fellowship. To the Lord be all the praise. All ye saints rejoice with us. We have been two trips South in the Chickasaw nation this summer preaching the good news of the kingdom; generally had good audiences, the people seem eager to hear the truth. I firmly believe the seed was sown in good hearts, and will bring forth fruits unto our heavenly Father. We want to visit those people again before Spring.

Your Brother with the armor on,

M. L. ADAMS.

Conference Report.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Michigan, was held at the Decker Schoolhouse in Mecosta County, beginning on Friday evening Oct. 1st, 1897, and holding over Sunday as previously arranged.

Ministers present were Elder L. C. Chase, of Raisin Mich., and Elder B. W. Woodward and wife of Dutton, Mich. Sister Woodward had been holding meetings a week before the Conference.

On Friday two were baptized into Christ. May they trust their Lord and Master for grace in every time of need and be faithful to the end.

Bro. and Sister Woodward have been doing a good work at Millbrook, having baptized over 40 within the last two years. There are over 60 members in the church, all seem to be such good earnest Christians. An interesting letter of greeting was read from Bro. Edwin E. Grant of Schools, Oregon. After the reading of the letter Bro. Tucker of Millbrook gave the brethren an account of his meeting with Bro. Grant on his trip over the Rocky Mountains to Oregon, a few years ago, and of being invited to his home, and of his meeting with the church at Lake Shore School house, Wash.

A letter was also read from Bro. Boddington of Grand Haven, Mich. The singing of the young people was much enjoyed by all. Also a hymn from the little ones. (Jesus' "Little Lambs.") There was an aged feeble Brother, named L. H. Dolph, from Meltride who had never attended a conference before who enjoyed it much. He had been led to believe and obey the gospel of Christ by the quiet effort of Bro. and Sister Levi Bayce while they resided at Meltride. Friday evening Bro. Woodward preached an able sermon from Thess. v. 23. Saturday at 9:30, social meeting, preaching at 10:30, by Bro. Chase from 2 Cor. xii. 9.

Bro. Chase did the most of the speaking, all who listened to his beautiful, earnest, words of Gospel Truth could not help being convinced. The meetings were all good, but the sermons of Sunday morning from Romans i. 16, and Sunday evening from Matt. xviii. 3, were especially so and will long be remembered by all present. Sunday at 2:30 Sister Woodward gave a very good discourse from 1st Cor. xiii. 12. After the Sunday evening service the Lord's Supper was administered.

The attendance was good, and all enjoyed the Conference at Millbrook, and the pleasant and profitable gathering will long be remembered by all. What a blessed time it will be, when none shall say "Know ye the Lord" for all shall know him from the least to the greatest.

Poetry.

An old Story in a new Dress.

Have you heard how on Calvary's mountain,
A Lamb for your sinful woes died?
How, that in Judea a fountain,
Was opened to cleanse from all sin?
Have you heard of the great predecessor,
Have you seen the bright banners he bore?
Have you seen the first ray of salvation
In majesty move through the world?

Did you know that the Savior had risen,
The first-fruits of him from the dead,
Did you know that the grave was a prison
Was entered its portals with dread?
Did you know that the voice of God's thunder
Would shake the broad plains of the earth,
The prison-house door, burst asunder,
That the Just might receive the new birth?

Did you know that the Savior's appearing
At predicted world surely draws near,
Did you know that the good we are hearing
Would soon fill the down of the new?
Have you heard the deep groans of creation,
Have you heard any rumors of war,
Is nation now striving with nation,
Oh! what are the tidings afar?

Has your heart ever ached with pity,
Or sighed at humanity's woes,
Have you told a dying earth or man city,
That heaven some day will close,
Have you told them of life's flowing river
That every disease can destroy,
Have you told them they might live forever,
In a land of no fields for joy?

If you have had thought of these mortals
Why do you not wake and prepare,
When the portals of heaven shall open,
A crown of bright glory to share,
When the Conqueror's palms shall be given
The story of triumph be told,
May we enter the kingdom of heaven,
To walk her broad streets of pure gold.

To bask in the presence of Jesus
Through ages that never will end,
To be forever with Jesus,
On whom all the angels attend,
With our harps ever tuned in glory
To join those in heavenly birth,
And reign forever with Jesus,
On Zion, the plains of earth.

The Doctrine of the Trinity vs. Sunday as the Mark of the Beast.

By reading the following Scriptures the importance of the subject will be seen, Rev. xiii. 16-17; xiv. 9-10; xv. 2, and xvi. 2. The beast referred to in those Scriptures is the one that John saw rise up out of the sea. Chap. xiii 1. The same beast that the two horned beast of the same chapter makes an image to, and causes all to receive his mark in the hand or forehead. Now let it be kept in mind that the mark is the mark of the first beast not of the two-horned symbol. In examining the history of the power symbolized by the beast, we ought to be able to find what was his peculiar mark, what did his followers have, or what did they have to believe in order to be his faithful followers, and the same to constitute a mark by which they were known and distinguished from them whom he styled or branded as heretics. Having taken the position that the doctrine of the Trinity is the mark, I shall now cite the evidence. In first John iv. 2-3, we read (every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God: and every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist.) Here we have the testimony of an inspired Apostle as to what Antichrist should teach, and that that Spirit was already in the world. This doctrine that Christ come in the flesh in the truth, and stands opposed to the Trinity which teaches that Christ was a divine Spirit, the second person of the Trinity, and as such he came to this world, not in the flesh, but a divine Spirit, thus making him a divine Savior. One testimony from himself should settle this question. "The bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world." St. John vi. 51. That the false doctrine contained in the Trinity is what we are warned against by him is confirmed by what is said on this same subject in John ii. 9, "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ hath both the Father and the Son." Now it is evident that as long as a man holds to the truth that Christ came in the flesh, that he loses the Seed of the Woman, that he was the prophet like Moses, and of their brethren, and as Paul says in Gal. iv. 4, That he was made of a woman, made under the law. So long as he holds the truth on this point, he can not believe in the Trinity, but the moment he lets go of this fundamental truth, he loses the truth concerning the one true God, hence the force of what John says, "He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ hath both the Father and the Son." The same warning is given by Paul in his second epistle to the Thessalonians, where he speaks of the apostacy from the faith, and of the one that opposeth and exalts himself. Now any one that opposeth the truth is an Antichrist, opposed to Christ. The importance of a right faith on this subject will be evident if we consider the words of Christ in his prayer to the Father recorded in John xvii. 3, "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent."

The important scriptures cited are in the direction indicated in this article. Now if it can be plainly proved by history that the doctrine of the Trinity was, as it is, the most prominent mark of the apostacy symbolized by the beast, then I have proved the claim made at the head of this article. Now what saith history? The faction of the Donatists was not the only one that troubled the Church during this century. In the year 317, a contest arose in Egypt upon a subject of much higher importance, and its consequences were of a yet more pernicious nature. The subject of this warm controversy which kindled such deplorable divisions throughout the Christian world, was the doctrine of three persons in the Godhead: a doctrine which in the three preceding centuries, had happily escaped the vain curiosity of human researches." Mosheim chap. v. p. 101. Here we have the doctrine of the Trinity opposed by the Arians and in A. D. 325, the council of Nice in which council the doctrine of the Trinity was affirmed, and Arius condemned. But it remained for the Emperor Theodosius to give to the doctrine of the Trinity, its exalted position in the empire, by which the true Catholics may be known from the heretics. "Theodosius was the first of the emperors baptized in the true faith of the Trinity.....and as the Emperor ascended from the holy font, still glowing with the warm feelings of regeneration, he dictated a solemn edict, which proclaimed his own faith, and prescribed the religion of his subjects. "It is our pleasure (such is the imperial style) that all the nations, which are governed by our clemency and moderation, shall steadfastly adhere to the religion which was taught by St. Peter to the Romans; which faithful tradition has preserved; and which is now professed by the Pontiff Damasus, and by Peter, bishop of Alexandria, a man of apostolic holiness. According to the discipline of the apostles, and doctrine of the gospel, let us believe the sole Deity of the Father, the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: under an equal majesty, and a pious Trinity.

We authorize the followers of this doctrine to assume the title of Catholic Christians: and we judge that all others are extravagant madmen, we brand them with the infamous name of heretics, and declare, that their conventicles shall no longer usurp the respectable appellation of churches.

Besides the condemnation of divine justice, they must expect to suffer the severe penalties, of our authority, guided by heavenly wisdom, shall think proper to inflict upon them." Gibbon Vol. 3, p. 80-81, ch. 27. This edict of Theodosius was made A. D., 380, and speaks so plain, comment is unnecessary, but to show the source of its inspiration I will quote again from the same author and on the same page. "Theodosius was confirmed by a theologient argument, adapted to the rudest capacity. He had lately bestowed on his eldest son, Arcadius, the name and honors of Augustus and the two princes were seated on a stately throne to receive the homage of their subjects. A bishop, Amphilochius of Iconium, approached the throne, and after saluting with due reverence, the person of his sovereign, he accosted the royal youth with the same familiar tenderness which he might have used towards a plebian child. Provoked by this insolvent behavior, the monarch gave orders, that the rustic priest should be instantly driven from his presence. But while the guards were forcing him to the door, the dexterous polemic had time to execute his design, by exclaiming in a loud voice, "Such is the treatment, O emperor, which the King of heaven has prepared for those impious men, who affect to worship the Father, but refuse to acknowledge the equal majesty of his divine Son." Theodosius immediately embraced the bishop of Iconium, and never forgot the important lesson, which he had received from this dramatic parable." ....."The heretical teachers, who usurped the sacred titles of bishops, or presbyters, were not only excluded from the privileges and emoluments so liberally granted to the orthodox clergy, but were exposed to the heavy penalties of exile and confiscation, if they presumed to preach the doctrine, or to practice the rites of the accursed sects. A fine of ten pounds of gold, (above four hundred pounds sterling) was imposed on every person who should dare to confer, or receive, or promote, an heretical ordination:..... The rigorous prohibition of conventicles was carefully extended to every possible circumstance, in which the heretics could assemble with the intention of worshiping God and Christ according to the dictates of their conscience. Their religious meetings, whether public or private, by day or by night, in cities or in the country, were equally proscribed by the edicts of Theodosius, and the building, or ground, which had been used for that illegal purpose were forfeited to the imperial domain.....The unathe nas of the church were fortified by a sort of civil excommunication: which separated them from their fellow citizens by a peculiar brand of infamy; and this declaration of the supreme magistrate tended to justify, or at least to excuse, the insults of a fanatic populace. Theodosius was satisfied with his own justice, when he decreed, that, as the Eunomians distinguished the nature of the Son from that of the Father, they should be incapable of making their wills, or of receiving any advantage from testamentary donations." And on page 92 of Vol. 3, chap. 27. Gibbon says of the emperor Theodosius, "In the space of seven years, he promulgated at least fifteen several edicts against the heretics; more especially against those who rejected the doctrine of the Trinity. By this testimony, our minds are directed to Rev. xiii. 16-17. And the connection between the prediction and its fulfillment is easy and natural, that is as far as what constitutes the mark of the power, symbolized by the beast. But let it be kept in mind, that the development of the mark by the edicts of Theodosius in A. D. 380, is not the same as the enforcement of the mark by the power, symbolized by the two-horned beast.

This development of the mark by the edicts of Theodosius, by the council of Nice, and by the council of Constantinople, are all prior to the wounding of one of his heads (see Rev. xiii. 3) which took place in the fifth century, by the Northern tribes of Germany and Scythia: Generally referred to in his history as the fall of the Roman Empire.

James iv. 17.

"To him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not to him it is sin."

What is the responsibility of knowledge?

The subject matter of this verse is a most appropriate one at the present time; for while knowledge is increasing on every hand there is a strong tendency to shirk the responsibility accruing from such increase. The time seems to have fully come when men would be lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, haughty, high-minded, proud and boastful, following to the extreme the desires and the lusts of the flesh. It behooves us, as brothers and sisters in the Lord, to beware lest these things get a foothold on us as individuals, or among us as a body. By reading several verses of the chapter from which our text is taken we see that James has been giving warnings and exhortations against all such things, and the 16th verse reads, "But now ye rejoice in your boastings, all such rejoicing is evil." And Paul writing in the same strain to the Corinthians (1 Cor. v. 6) says, "your glorying is not good; know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump?" And James in our text says, (chap. iv. 17) "Therefore to him who knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." Now, what would be doing good in such cases as cited by James and Paul? We find the answer in 1 Cor. v. 7, "Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may become a new lump." Again in chapter iii. 16, 17 verses of this same book, Paul says, "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man destroy the temple of God him shall God destroy, for the temple of God is holy which temple ye are." Now I take it that our responsibility lies in the knowledge we have concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, as well as the many necessarily attached passages of Scripture which show us what an exemplary life is, and what the fruits of the Spirit of God are. And when we are baptized into the name of Jesus we acknowledge that they are right and will be guided thereby. Besides, we virtually sign a quit claim deed of ourselves to the Lord, acknowledging that we have thrown off the old man with its lusts, desires and pleasures, and have consecrated to deliver our bodies "a living sacrifice holy and acceptable unto the Lord" which Paul says, "is but our reasonable service." Rom xii. 1. And the result of knowing these things is what in our responsibility lies, at least so it seems to me. Ignorance of human law is held as no excuse for a man who has committed a crime. How much less is such an excuse for one who has taken upon himself or herself the name of Jesus by baptism. Under the Mosaic dispensation we read, Num. xv. 30-31, "The soul that doeth aught with a high hand (or presumptuously) whether he be homeborn or a stranger, the same blasphemeth the Lord and that soul shall be cut off from among the people: because he hath despised the Word of the Lord and hath broken his commandments: that soul shall be utterly cut off; his iniquity shall be upon him." No excuse for ignorance here you see. any one who was within the boundaries of the commonwealth of Israel was supposed to know the laws. Paul in Heb. x. 28, 29, says, "A man that hath set at nought Moses' law, dieth without compassion on the words of two or three witnesses. Of how much sorer punishment think ye shall he be judged worthy who hath trodden under foot the Son of God and hath counted the blood of the covenant wherewith he was sanctified an unholy (or common) thing and hath done despite unto the spirit of grace. Therefore to him who knoweth to do good and doeth it not to him it is sin." James iv. 17. While, as David says, "God knoweth our frame and remembereth that we are but dust." we cannot deliberately and persistently break his laws and statutes and expect to go unpunished; that would not make him a God of justice. Why? Because if one sacrifices the desires and pleasures of life,—sacrifices his hope of position and wealth which he or she could see they would attain by following a certain road and the ways of the world, but by following such a road it is quite possible they would loose eternal life. hence throw all that aside for the Master and the hope of a future life and in other words become an overcomer, and another does not, where would the justice come in if one rule of action is laid down for you, and another for me, and expect the same reward? But the good Lord does not work that way, no, indeed, "For straight is the gate and narrow the way that leadeth unto life and few there be that find it: but broad is the way and wide is the gate that leadeth to destruction and many there be who go in therein." We are none of us perfect, we are none of us free from sin: "He that saith I have no sin deceiveth himself and the truth is not in him." All have to grow in knowledge and the favor of God; but how any one can go through the ordeal of becoming an adopted child of God and attend these meetings any length of time, then plead ignorance of what is good and acceptable unto the Lord is beyond my comprehension. There may be some pleasures, frivolities, or petty vices which we cannot see any harm in and don't see there is any positive proof to debar us from participating in them, but in all such cases of doubt the best plan and safest is to go by the best thought and purest, not only of the members of the church (although that should be enough) but also of the outside. When you see the best thought of so-called Christian world setting themselves in array against this or that action, habit, or pleasure, it is a pretty safe thing for those who have enrolled for the coming King to pass by all such, at least so it seems to me, for. "Be not deceived. God is not mocked, whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap; For he that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption, but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. Therefore he that knoweth to do good and doeth it not to him it is sin."

Sin in the Scriptures is likened unto leprosy, the most loathsome of all diseases: it starts with a small spot and gradually changes color and extent until for the safety of others they are banished, sent where they can never return. So it is with sin; it starts small, only a little foolishness, only a little lack of judgment, only a little rebellion against restraint, these gradually submerge us, we forget our obligations to God, and unless we are brought up sharp with a right about face we will not only be in great danger of getting lost ourselves, but by our contaminating influence a source of great danger to those around us to be told at last, "Depart from me, I never knew you, all ye workers of iniquity." On the other hand what a contrast at those who know to do good and do it.—Those who recognize the responsibility that knowledge brings them, to whom Jesus will say, "Come ye blessed of my Father, thou hast been faithful over a few things I will make thee ruler over many." Wouldn't that be glorious? Wouldn't that be worth throwing aside all the vain pleasures, foolishness, undefilation and God-dishonoring conduct of the world? And to think of life glorious and everlasting, as unending as the eternal years of God: life full of cheer and happiness: Oh on this glorious old earth restored to its Edenic state, where nothing shall hurt or destroy. What more can I say? "For it is written, (it is written) mark these words, eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." 1 Cor. ii. 9. "My dear brothers and sisters, it seems to me that if we but half realized, if we but half appreciated our grand possibilities we would never need to revert to the dark side of the picture. Never by our conduct, our action, or ourselves either at home or abroad, cause the finger of scorn to be pointed at us either as individuals or as a body, thereby bringing our beloved Master to an open shame. May God help us to realize the responsibility of our knowledge concerning these things, help us to hold up clean hands and have a pure heart that we may be found worthy of a crown of life at his coming and kingdom, is my prayer,

David Russell.

Obituary.

The death of Eliza James—Grant occurred at her home, two miles West of Rensselaer, Ind., Sunday Sept. 26, 1897. Many were the attentions and acts of kindness toward her during her sickness of about three weeks, but the oft demonstrated fact was again made evident, that death is man's conquering enemy.

The early life of Eliza James was spent in Huntington Co., Ind., whither her parents moved in 1838 from Randolph Co., the place of her birth July 9, 1834. She was married to James W Grant, Nov. 27, 1871, and a home was soon found in Jasper Co.

Formerly a member of the Christian Church, she united with the Church of God in 1875.

Relatives and friends believe Sister Grant to have lived a consistent Christian life. It is sincerely hoped that he who judgeth righteously look upon her life accordingly, knowing that she shall then receive a "crown of life" with all the joy and peace associated therewith.

May the time soon come when the Father's will shall be "done on earth as it is in heaven."

Wm. P. Evans the Victim.

One of the saddest accidents it has ever been the Gazette's task to chronicle happened about 1 o'clock last Monday afternoon, resulting in the instant death of Wm. P. Evans, one of the best known and most highly esteemed residents of Warren county. Mr. Evans was driving from his home in Jordan township to this place, working a pair of young horses. All went well until Mud Run was reached, two and one-half miles west of town, where workmen were putting in abutments for a new bridge. Here the road turns out through the field to escape the obstructions. Just as Mr. Evans attempted to turn off a cloud of dust scared his team and they tried to run. The clip in the neck yoke pulled out, allowing the tongue to drop down, frightening the team still more, and they started down the by-road at a mad pace. They had run but a short distance when the tongue struck an obstruction, stopping the wagon so suddenly that Mr. Evans was thrown high in the air, striking the hard ground with his head. The skull was crushed and death resulted almost instantly. Frank Reed was the first to reach the unfortunate man and he found the spark of life already extinct. The remains were brought to this place and prepared for burial, after which they were taken to the home of his son, H. H. Evans, until Tuesday noon, when they were conveyed to the family residence in Jordan township.

Wm. P. Evans was born in Washington township on May 14th, 1835, and had resided in Warren county all his life. He was one of the best known and most progressive farmers in the county, being ever ready to aid in advancing his chosen calling. He had served as President of the County Farmers' Institute a number of years and filled the position most admirably. A wife and two sons are left to mourn his sad death, besides numerous other relatives and a host of friends.—West Lebanon Gazette.

William Franklin Evans, son of David and Ann Evans was born near Williamsport, Warren County, Ind. May 14, 1835, died Oct. 4, 1897, aged 62 years, 4 months, 20 days. Was married to Eliza J. Scudder, Jan. 22, 1863. To them were born two children, Henry H. and Cyrus C., who with his wife survive to mourn the loss of a husband and father. He also leaves four brothers and eight sisters. At sixteen years of age he united with the Christian Church at West Lebanon, and at the organization of the Church of God in Jordan township, joined that church which has been his home for more than forty years, and has been a faithful member ever since. He was a loving husband, and indulgent father, a kind brother, an accommodating neighbor and an earnest worker in the Church, but his work is done,—he rests in peace in the faith of the Father. His example will be our guide.

The funeral sermon was preached by Elder B. W. Woodward using as a text one of Bro. Evans' favorite quotations, Job xiv. 14, How we miss him from his accustomed corner. We listen in vain for his voice to speak of his love for God'n Truth, or to sing his loved hymn, "O happy day." By request of his wife this hymn was sung at his funeral. The large concourse of people which assembled to pay their last respects to the loved sleeper attested the high esteem in which he was held. May we live so as to meet him in the resurrection morn.

Announcement.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith, will convene at Plymouth, Ind., Thursday evening Nov. 18, 1897 and continue over the following Sunday.

Now brethren and sisters of the faith in Indiana, the time is almost at hand for another meeting wherein we can come together and strengthen and encourage each other by prayer and exhortation, and we earnestly urge that each and every one who possibly can arrange to be at our meeting, come with hearts full of love and for the advancement of the cause.

You who have read The Restitution have no doubt seen there is being a renewed effort put forth for more effective evangelizing and we are glad to say in meeting with quite a degree of success and the outlook is very promising if it continues, therefore we urge that every church organization as far as possible be represented by delegates that you may take part in whatever business may come up before the Conference. We invite all who are interested to be with and share with us.

F. L. Austin, Pres.
A. C. Roberts, Sec.

Brothers and Sisters of Indiana:

I wish to call the attention of all in Indiana to the article on Editorial page of The Restitution of Sept. 15, entitled "To the Brothers and Sisters of Indiana." Also to the article entitled "Indiana Workers" in issue of Sept. 22. Some I learn have overlooked both of these articles. Please do not delay in answering these requests. Many reports have come in and thus far they are without exception, truly encouraging. With the earnest and prompt co-operation of all concerned a general report can soon be given that will be welcomed by every member of our State. Please do not delay.

Attention is also called to the fact that Bro. D. P. Vanvactor, 1st Vice Pres. of Argos, has, by request, accepted the responsibility of acting as State S. S. Supt. Will you kindly give him all the assistance in your power. Yours seeking the co-workers.

High up 'Mid Leaves of Sycamore.

High up 'mid leaves of sycamore,
Now stirring—now at rest,
Behold the gold-flaked oriole,
Perched on its hanging nest!

List to its mellow, cheery notes
That through the woodlands ring;
And see it leap from bough to bough,
With brilliant flashing wing.

Sweet darling songster of the woods,
Bartered at Fashion's mart!
Cruel the hand which brings thee down,
More cruel still the heart

Of Freedom's votary who finds
No shrinking, quivering dread,
To see thy plumage ruthless wrenched,
That vanity be fed!

Striking the Key-Note.

Tinkle, tinkle, jingle, jingle, clattered the keys of the piano, and then slam, slam! bang, bang! they went, as if a dozen little music-scholars were taking their first lesson together.

Mrs. Ogden left her work in the sewing-room and hurried into the parlor. Nell's fingers were still pounding like little hammers on the ivory keys of the piano.

"Nell, what are you doing? Do you call such discords music?" her mother asked sternly.

"Why, no; of course not mother. But when I began to practice, my little cameo pin rang out just as if I had struck it, and I've been trying to make it ring again."

"You struck its key-note, I suppose, my dear."

"Its key-note?" Nell repeated.

"Yes. They say that everything has a key-note, Nell, and years ago I saw Professor Tyndal give a beautiful experiment to prove that theory. He had several little bells placed before him on the table, and when, with a little wand, he struck one, all others rang too."

"What made them, mother?"

"They were all keyed to the same note," Mrs. Ogden explained.

Nell looked thoughtful.

"Have we a key-note, mother?"

"Yes, Nell. Watch yourself and your schoolmates to-day, and I think you will learn that there is a note in all our hearts that rings out sweetly whenever it is struck."

It was almost nine o'clock, and, with a puzzled little face, Nell closed the piano, found her books and started for school.

"O Nell!" cried one of her young friends, as they met at the door of the schoolhouse, "Lois Bigelow's coming to school to-day. I am real sorry, aren't you?"

"Yes," Nell said with emphasis, "I am sorry. Lois Bigelow is as proud as if she were the empress of India. She never acts as if she cared for any one, or wanted any one to care for her. I can't help it, if it is wrong. I do just hate such selfish people."

"So do I, Nell. Lois snubbed me the other day, and now I guess it will be my turn to snub her."

"I heard father say once that snubs are like uncalled for letters,—they are generally returned to us," Nell said, with a proud little toss of her head.

Just then the bell rang, and the girls hastened into the schoolroom. Lois Bigelow was already there. She was a sad and reserved looking girl. She sat at a desk by herself, and did not notice any of her schoolmates.

"She has no eyes for any one but herself," one of the girls said scornfully at recess. "I think she's detestable. Don't you, Nell Ogden?"

"Yes," Nell answered, "I feel as if there was an iceberg in the schoolroom. I believe I'm beginning already to freeze." And the young girl laughed, and pretended to shiver.

"She's nothing to be proud of," chimed in another girl. "Her father was a bank president, and he embezzled, I believe they call it, and had to run away to escape going to prison, and now no one knows where he is. I don't think that a very good reason for carrying your head high, and not noticing other people,—do you, Nell?"

Nell Ogden was silent. In her beautiful young life there had never been a sorrow, or even a shadow of one, but she had a deep and sympathetic nature, and now she seemed suddenly to understand Lois Bigelow. "She feels disgraced because of her father's sin," she thought, "and she shuns us because she thinks we would not care to know her. Why, I should feel just as she does, if I were in her place."

Nell's face grew bright with a beautiful resolve. She went to her desk, and took out a box of candy.

"Oh, give me some!" cried three of the girls.

But Nell only smiled, and, passing them, went up to Lois Bigelow.

"Won't you have some?" she asked, offering her the box. And then, as Lois looked at her with sad and surprised eyes, she said tremulously,—for it was always hard for Nell to make the first advances to any one,—"I want you to welcome you to our school. I want you to let me be your friend,—will you?"

Lois Bigelow's eyes filled with tears, and her voice was choked with sobs, as she whispered:

"Oh, if you will be my friend, I shall be so glad! I am so lonely! You don't know how hard it is to feel that no one loves you."

"I will love you, and so will all the girls if you will let them," Nell promised.

And Lois looked up and smiled,—the first glad smile Nell had ever seen on her face.

"Mother," Nell said that evening, after she had related her little experience, "I believe I struck the key-note of Lois Bigelow's heart to-day,—didn't I?"

Mrs. Ogden smiled tenderly.

"I think you did, Nell" she answered. "And I want you to remember always, dear, that our hearts are all alike, and they will answer to the touch of love when nothing else can move them."—Mary Hubbard Howell.

Announcement.

Dear Restitution:

Will you please give place in your columns for one more call—this may be the last one. At our Annual Conference, Sept., 96, a vote was taken to convene in Conference again in Sept., 97. A committee was appointed to take charge of the arranging of this meeting. In the absence of the Sec. Wm. Vickery, I have been requested to send this notice. This meeting will be held near the Crescent school house, Sumner Co., Kan., as near the place voted on as the committee can conveniently arrange. This meeting will commence Friday, October 29th, a month later than was voted on. This was done to give ample time for seeding and past the extreme hot weather. Now brethren, we had a splendid meeting last fall under the teaching of Bro. L. E. Conner; its effects have shown its worth. Now we propose to try and have another good meeting with Bro. J. F. Wilcox and others to assist us. A large attendance is expected and the invitation is to all who can and will come. Come prepared to care for yourselves and others. Just a word, don't go to town just before you come to this meeting and deposit all the money you have, but bring your money along and divide up a little. Deposit a part of your means with the Lord, he has made the demand, don't fail to respond, your help is needed in defraying expenses. I am not authorized to say how long this meeting will continue, but it will be for several days if the interest demands and the brethren will satisfy the laborers. Those coming by railroad from north, south or east will stop at Arkansas City. Notify the committee in good time and you will be met at the train. The committee are Wm. Hudika, Geuda Springs, and Wm. Vickery, Newkirk, O. T. We would love to see a goodly number from every point of the compass. Come with song, come with prayers, come with exhortation, these are all good, if you should fail in any of these things you can help by your money. Bro. Wilcox and family have to live and we must not forget this. Those coming by private conveyance will find meeting near southeast corner of Sumner Co., Kansas. Committee,

T. H. Jackson,
Wm. Hadika,
Wm. Vickery,
I. S. Miller, Pres.

Appointments.

The Lord willing, Elder B. W. and M. A. Woodward will begin a series of meetings at Pleasant View Church, Warren Co. Ind., Oct. 10th lasting as long as the interest demands it.

M. A. Woodward.

If the Lord will I shall commence a weeks meeting Oct. 9, at Antioch Church four miles South of Frankfort, Indiana. Brethren within reach are cordially invited to attend and assist in the services.

J. F. Wagoner.

This is a list of my appointments:
Chicago, Oct. 14 to 17.
Dixon Ill. Oct. 21 to 24.
Antioch, Oct. 28 to 31.
Silver Creek, Nov. 4 to 7.
Adeline, Nov. 11 to 14.
Lanark, Nov. 18 to 21.
Riply, Ill. Nov. 26 to Dec. 5. If desired, from Ripley to Memphis Tenn.

D. M. Hendleo.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the No on copy of the paper you have and don't say what you see advertised in that.

When ordering a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, have you loved ones who think sincerely will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 10 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Notice.

Will our friends please remember that we do not have the books and tracts at this office that are advertized by Brother Joblin, or Brother Wiley Jones. Do not send to this office for them, but send to their address as given in the advertisement. This will save both trouble and delay. PLEASE REMEMBER.

Ask them, if you want information about Home-Seekers' Excursions.

Ticket Agents of the Pennsylvania Lines will furnish information regarding Home-Seekers' Excursions to various points in the Northwest, West, Southwest and South. It will pay to investigate if you contemplate a trip. Apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or address C. L. Kimball, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, Ohio.—Oct. 31.

Tract Fund.

We the undersigned, realizing that the distributing of tracts is a good way to spread the truth, and that the time is short in which we can work for the Master, do hereby agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of raising a fund to be used in supplying tracts to those who will distribute them free.

Poetry.

Recompense.

But that the world is full of wounds, as when
Were all but that;
But that the sea is such a bitter store, as when
Were all its salt;
The rose would never seem so sweet without
The blighting thorn,
Nor joy make glad the heart to-day had sorrow
Not been born.

Parables of Salomonson. Chapter 17.

1. Better (more efficient) is a morsel with enjoyment in peace than a house of many good things and joined excitement with fighting.

2. A servant in a household with an apprehension of things will control heedless masters and divide appointments with headpiece.

3. Even as silver and gold are tested in a furnace so are chosen hearts in the estimation of the Lord (this the same idiom that occurs in our Lord's prayer, where he says "And now Father glorify thou me with the glory that I had with thee, etc." that is "in thy estimation" not with it: the sense of a personal relation in theology has interposed it.)

4. A bad man heedeth to the tongue of evaders of law; but a justified one doth not heed lying lips.

5. He who laugheth at a beggar provoketh the one who created him: and he who rejoiceth when one is perishing will not have been held guiltless; but he who showeth compassion will have experienced mercy.

6. A crown (garland-crown) for old men is children's children; but a boast for children is their fathers. All the cosmos of the useful things is for the faithful one; but for the unfaithful not even an obol.

7. Reliable lips do not fit a senseless person nor lying lips a justified one.

8. Cherishing for those who use it to profit is a wage of graces, and wherever he may turn he will have been prospered.

9. He who hides wrongs seeketh friendship, but he who buileth to hide them separateth friends and members of households.

10. Threatening crusheth a thoughtful man's heart; but a thoughtless one when scourged doth not perceive.

11. Every evil-doer stirreth up antagonisms; but the Lord will send an angel without mercy to him.

12. Anxious-care will fall on a man of apprehension; but the heedless reason to bad conclusions.

13. He who repayeth evil for good, evil will not have been removed from his house.

14. An authority of righteousness giveth official-power to words; but sounding and fighting lead on before want.

15. He who judgeth the unjust man to be justified, and the justified man to be unjust is unclean and abominable in the estimation of God (with God in this sense).

16. Why hath a person without good sense owned possessions (lit. useful things)? For a heartless man will not be able to have acquired wisdom. He who exalteth his own house seeketh ruin: and he who is crooked in learning will fall into evil.

17. Let a friend be thine for any period; but let brethren stand for use in necessity; For they are begotten for this end.

18. A man without good sense clappeth and congratulateth himself when the one who taketh pledges for surety giveth a pledge for his own friends.

19. A lover of sin rejoiceth in fightings;

20. And a hard-hearted person doth not meet with good things: A man who easily changeth his tongue will fall into evil things;

21. And the heart of a man wanting in good sense is a woe to the one who possesses it. A father doth not rejoice over an unchastened son: but a son with good sense rejoiceth his mother.

22. A rejoicing heart causeth one to be in good bodily health; but the bones of a sorrowful man become dried up.

23. The way of a man who unjustly taketh bribes in his bosom are not prospered: and an irreverent one inclineth away from a way of righteousness.

24. A wise man's face is an understanding one; but the eyes of one without good sense are unto ends of the earth.

25. A father's wrath is not even without good sense and a woe to the one who begets him.

26. To punish a justified man is not a good thing, nor is it a holy thing to take counsel against truthful men of ability.

27. He who is sparing of giving out a harsh word is an arbiter, and a thoughtful man is a forbearing man.

28. Wisdom will have been accounted to man without apprehension who consulteth wisdom: and any one who holds his mouth dumb will seem to be thoughtful.

CHAPTER 18.

1. A man who desireth to separate himself from friends seeketh pretexts, and on every occasion will be finding fault.

2. One lacking good sense hath no use for wisdom: For he is being led by folly like rather.

3. Whenever an irreverent man hath come into a depth of evil things he thinketh contemptuously, and dishonor and reproach come upon him.

4. A word in a heroic man's heart is deep water, and a leaps up a river and a fountain of life.

5. To gaze with admiration at an irreverent man's face is not good nor is it a holy thing to incline away the right in judging.

6. A thoughtless person's lips lead him into evils and his rash mouth invoketh death.

7. A thoughtless person's mouth is his ruin and his lips a snare for his soul.

8. Fear runneth down slug-gards and souls of effeminate men will hunger.

9. He who doth not heal himself in his deeds is a brother of him who perfecteth himself.

10. The Lord's name is from greatness of strength, and those who have run unto him are lifted up justified.

11. A rich man's possession is an endowing city and the great glory thereof overshadoweth it.

12. Before ruin a man's heart becometh lifted up; and before glory it becometh humble.

13. He who answereth a word before he hath heard it, his is folly and reproach.

14. A thoughtful courage sustaineth a man's anger: but who will endure a smell-spirit man of influence?

15. The thoughtful man's heart acquireth perception: and the ears of wise men seek reflection.

16. A man's gift enlargeth him, and seateth him beside men of ability.

17. A law-case is his own accuser in a first argument, but his opponent is convicted whenever he attacks.

18. A silent man causeth murmurings to cease, and setteth limitations to ruling-powers.

19. A brother with a responsive brother-helper is a fortified and a high city, and he is as strong even as a founded royalty.

20. A man filleth his belly with fruits of his mouth; but with fruits of his lips will he have been filled.

21. Death and life are in the tongue's hand; and those who control it (the tongue) will eat the fruits thereof.

22. He who hath found a good wife hath found favors and hath received good cheer from God: He who putteth away a good wife putteth away good things; and he who holdeth to an adulteress is without good sense and irreverent.

(Chap. xix. 3 C. V.) a man's folly polluteth his ways, and he blameth God in his heart.

CHAPTER 19.

1, 2 and 3 verses C. V. already given in other chapters.

4. Wealth addeth many friends; but the beggar is left by even the friend that he hath.

5. A false witness will not be unpunished, and the one who censureth unjustly will not finally escape.

6. Many stroke as courtiers the face of kings; but any bad person becometh a reproach to a man of promises.

7. All one who hateth a poor brother will also be far from friendship. Good reflection will draw nigh to those who know it, [illegible] but a babbling man will find it. The one who doeth evil many times will consummate it, and he who stirreth up words of strife will not have been saved.

8. He who acquireth thoughtfulness loveth himself; and he who watcheth to guard (exoteric watch) thoughtfulness will find good things.

9. A false witness will not be unpunished ok: and he who flameth out evil will be destroyed by it.

10. Luxury doth not befit a person without good sense, and if he be a house-servant, he will begin to assert sway with unseemly pride.

11. A mercial man is forbearing and the honor of him cometh unto evaders of law.

12. A king's threatening is like a lion's roar: but like dew upon the grass his favor.

13. A father's shame is a son without good sense: Vows paid from the wages of a concubine are not pure.

14. Fathers apportion a house and property to children, but a wife is fitted to a husband from the Lord.

15. Cowardice lays hold of an effeminate man, and the soul of an indolent one will hunger.

16. He who watcheth to guard a commandment is watching to keep his own soul: but the one who disregardeth his own ways will perish.

17. He who showeth mercy to a beggar is lending to God, and he will repay him according to his gift [illegible]

18. Chasten thy son; For in this wise will there be good hope, and do not exalt thy soul in haughty-pride.

19. An evil-minded man will have been punished many times: and if he become a scourge he will add his soul also as a penalty.

20. Hearken, O son, to the chastening of thy father, that thou mayest have become wise for thy last days.

21. Many thoughts are in a man's heart; but the counsel of the Lord abideth forever.

22. A man's fruit is an act of mercy; and a justified beggar is of no more account than a rich liar.

23. Fear of the Lord is for a man unto life: but the man without fear will have camped out where comprehension does not visit.

24. The man who hideth his hands in his bosom unjustly shall not even bring them to his mouth.

25. A person without good sense hath become more subtle than a pestilent fellow though scourged: But if thou reprovest a thoughtful man he will apprehend perception.

26. He who dishonoreth a father and he who thrusteth away a mother will have been put to shame and will be an object of reproach.

27. A son who ceaseth to watch to heed a father's chastening will meditate bad sayings.

28. The one who becometh surety for a servant without good [illegible] to [illegible] it, teach and baptize those who believed the message. Men were never commissioned to baptize with Holy Spirit, that always came from heaven. The gift conferred by the laying on of the Apostle's hands was not a baptism. The practice of laying on of hands at this day is simply a piece of mockery. they have no gift to confer, and it is certain the candidate receives no extra power from their hands. There is no similarity between the Apostolic baptisms of Holy Spirit, and the supposed

MODERN BAPTISMS OF HOLY SPIRIT.

These supposed modern baptisms can all be explained by natural causes. The phenomena and effects are totally different. In order to have a first class modern "out-pouring," (as they call it) it is necessary to have an excitable, inflamatory preacher, and all the better if he has mesmeric power. The room must also be heated to a proper temperature: if it happens to be cold, and chilly, the "outpouring" will not come. Neither will it come in exceedingly hot weather, they have to wait until winter, when the room by artificial heat may be brought to the necessary temperature. It also operates in a crowded church. If there are but few present, and that few are scattered all over the house, no manifestation will come. In such a case, a great effort is made to concentrate and pack them all close together, that the magnetic current may flow from one to the other. Another method adopted, is to gather the susceptible ones to the "anxious bench," an effect is then made to depress the spirit, by telling them of their sins, and its consequence, etc., and when they feel about as bad as they can, then some light, airy and joyous hymn is sung, and the cheer is so great, the candidate is beside himself, and gets "the power," and acts in a foolish erratic manner. All this, is mere humanism, produced by studied natural causes.

THE BAPTISM OF FIRE.

"He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and fire." Matt. iii. 11. If we would learn who are to be subjects of the baptism of fire, we must pay attention to the context, in which the text is found, and if we find subjects of a baptism of fire named therein, we have no right to ignore it, and substitute some human fancy.

See verse 10: "And now also the ax is laid at the root of the trees: therefore every tree which bringing forth not good fruit, is hewn down, and cast INTO the fire."

See verse 12: "Whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire."

Compare this with John xv. 6: "If a man abide not in me he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them and cast them INTO the fire, and they are burned." This is a real baptism of fire, and no ruminism about it. Many ignorant people pray: "Lord, send us a baptism of the Holy Ghost and of fire." If the Lord should answer their prayer, they would be the worst scared people out, and would speedily pray, "Good Lord, deliver us."

Men are not authorized to baptize with either "fire" or "Holy Spirit," that belongs to beings higher than man. The baptism of fire will be administered to the wicked only: and there is no command for any one to be baptized in Holy Spirit. That is simply a humanism.

BAPTISM IN WATER

is commanded. "Can any one forbid water that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghost as well as we? And he COMMANDED them to be baptized in the name of the Lord." Acts x. 47, 48.

"Husbands love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it (from sin) with the washing of water (baptism) by the word," of the kingdom, (Matt. xiii. 19) or the gospel of the kingdom (Mark i. 14, 15) of God, which is the gospel to be believed before baptism, (Acts viii. 12). Take this in connection with

of John iii. 5, and we have a complete vindication of water baptism as essential, without one word of Spirit baptism. The birth of the Spirit is explained in 1 Cor. xv. 43-46.

We are specifically told that without the birth of water, there is no chance of entering the kingdom. To avoid the force of the text, some have resorted to the foolish subterfuge that natural birth is meant. These people ought to know that the Savior was talking about how to enter God's kingdom; it would be foolishness to tell Nicodemus, that he could not enter the kingdom, if he had never had any existence, any fool could know that much.

Jesus says: "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." "A man," is a person who has experienced natural birth, and has advanced to maturity.

It seems to me that my inquirer must see from the foregoing, that Matt. xxviii. 47, 48, must relate solely to water baptism, seeing that mortal man has no power to administer spirit baptism, and from the sample given, we see that water was the element used: "And they went down INTO the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him."

W. H. WILSON.

A Question Answered.

Having read Bro. Wilson's articles on baptism, in THE RESTITUTION, with a good deal of interest, I would like to ask the dear brother if it is certain that the baptism of our Savior referred to in Matt. xxviii. 20, was essentially a water baptism?

HIRAM SHOEMAKER.

1. If a person would honestly desire to ascertain the Scriptural teaching upon any subject, such an one must consider the ordinary and primary meaning of words, and never seek to employ a strained sense, which the grammatical use of the Word, will not warrant.

2. Note closely the context, in which the passage under consideration is found. To disconnect it will frequently lead one to erroneous conclusions.

3. Diligently compare Scripture with Scripture.

[illegible] deal of useless and needless [illegible] subject of baptism, because those who teach the people, place meanings upon the word baptize, its etymology will in no case warrant, and as scholars they must know it.

To illustrate, they do not hesitate to call sprinkling and pouring baptism, which is equivalent to affirming that they are meanings derived from the original word bapto, which means to immerse, plunge or dip. As scholars they know that sprinkle is from rain or rantizo, so that when they sprinkle a person, such an one is rantized, instead of being baptized. The word pour is from another and different word, namely, cheo. Bapto, rainc and cheo, are different words, each word having its own, and a meaning in common. In the English language none would have the presumption to affirm that a person who had been sprinkled, was immersed or dipped by that act of sprinkling, yet they take that liberty with the Greek language, when they say, "I was baptized by sprinkling," it is equivalent to saying, "I was dipped by sprinkling."

When a person is baptized in water, he must be dipped, immersed or plunged beneath water, and if a person is baptized in Holy Spirit, he must be immersed, buried or overwhelmed in Holy Spirit, nothing else will constitute a Holy Spirit baptism. So that when my correspondent asks if Matt. xx. 22, 19, refers to water or Spirit baptism, he must remember these definitions and tax his memory to see if he can ever remember of a baptism of the Holy Spirit taking place since the baptisms on the day of Pentecost, and at the house of Cornelius. We read, that on the day of Pentecost, it came upon them as a sound "of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting." They were thus overwhelmed or immersed in Holy Spirit: that was indeed a baptism of the Holy Spirit. Has my inquirer ever known of such a baptism since that time, accompanied with the signs following? We have reason to be skeptical about any claim to Holy Spirit baptism, if the signs following do not PROVE the claim.

Again, I would call the attention of my correspondent to the fact that Holy Spirit baptism did not supercede or take the place of water baptism. Proof is found in Acts x. 47, 48: "Can any one FORBID WATER that these should not be baptized, which have RECEIVED THE HOLY GHOST as well as we? And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord." Hence, a baptism of the Holy Ghost, did not excuse them from water baptism.

That Matt. xxviii. 47, 48, is "essentially a water baptism, is evident from the fact that men were commissioned to [illegible] it, teach and baptize those who believed the message. Men were never commissioned to baptize with Holy Spirit, that always came from heaven. The gift conferred by the laying on of the Apostle's hands was not a baptism. The practice of laying on of hands at this day is simply a piece of mockery. they have no gift to confer, and it is certain the candidate receives no extra power from their hands. There is no similarity between the Apostolic baptisms of Holy Spirit, and the supposed

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

News and Notes.

One sailor in 256 is lost at sea.

The bank of England employs 1,100 men.

Up till 1775 only two stumps were used in cricket.

Half a million packs of playing cards are sold yearly.

Mechanics head the list of inventors, clergymen next.

Seventy pounds' worth of coin is dropped in London daily.

Ushers in the Queen's household receive £200 per annum.

Glasgow has a population of nearly 1,000,000 and has only 494 doctors.

The cathedral of Rouen, France, boasts of a clock that has kept time for 500 years.

When metal is intensely cold it seems to burn the hand, and a Hungarian has undertaken to cook food with 63 degrees of frost.

In Sweden the railway stations at which meals are served are known by the picture of a crossed knife and fork opposite the name of the place.

In Moravian cemeteries the grave stones are all alike, each being a small slab, laid flat. The simple-hearted brethren say that in the "grave all are equal."

Britain occupies a very high place in mining of all kinds. More than 600,000 of her people are employed at the industry, and they produce over £8,000,000 worth of minerals annually.

Spanning an inlet of the Yellow Sea near Sangang, China, is a bridge five and a quarter miles long, with 300 piers of masonry, and having its roadway 54 feet above the water. This work is said to have been accomplished by Chinese engineers 800 years ago.

A ton of lead is fired for every man killed in battle. Statistics of European wars show that from 3,000 to 10,000 shots are fired for every person disabled. Counting the cost of powder, shells, etc., necessary to propel this lead, the taking of human life in legitimate warfare is an expensive proceeding.

Potatoes made their way very slowly into popular favor in England, and were far too expensive to be seen on the table of any but the richest people. In the reign of James I. the price was two shillings a pound. Soon after the Restoration of the government and the Royal Society tried to encourage the cultivation; but progress was slow, and it was until nearly the end of the eighteenth century that the tuber came into popular use.

In Meduba, on the east side of the Jordan, there was recently discovered by the Greeks in the grounds pertaining to their monastery there, a mosaic floor, in which was wrought in mosaic a map of Palestine. From the Greek inscription and the style of work it is to be inferred that the work dates from the time of Justinian of the sixth century. This map may throw much light upon the ancient geography and topography of Palestine, and might lead to new excavations of great interest.—Faithful Witness.

The United States government has just completed the longest triangulated line in the world. It begins at a point ten miles south of the light-house on Little Egg Island, below Cape May, N. J., on the Atlantic coast, and ends six miles north of the Punta Arenas light-house on the Pacific coast, above San Francisco, and follows the curve of the earth, on a level with the ocean, by the side of the 39th degree of latitude. The distance was found to be two thousand six hundred and twenty-five and eight-tenths miles.

EXAMINE

The label on your paper, and if it bears a date previous to this time please RENEW NOW. Do not wait for other notice to be sent, but PLEASE RENEW TODAY.

A LETTER from Bro. B. W. Woodward announces that himself and wife will be at Plymouth to attend the Conference as advertized for November. All interested take notice.

WE print this week the Constitution, etc., of the Indiana Conference. Bro. Austin, the President is anxious to work in accordance with it, and all Indiana brethren should take notice and aid him the best they can.

ERRATA. In No. 1 of "Sound Doctrine," second paragraph, "for mental obtuseness." read "mental obtuseness." In same paragraph toward its end, for,—"Be urgent reasonably," read, "Be urgent seasonably," etc. In the second line of the last paragraph, for "On the hand corner," read, "Right hand corner."

Sound Doctrine No. 2.

"Hold fast that form of sound doctrine which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus." 2 Tim. i. 13.

In our No. 1 of this series we saw that this injunction of the Spirit is as necessary now as ever it was, and more so, as predicted by Paul. It was shown that the real cause of the latter day declension was not because they could not understand God's will in regard to truth, but that they wont endure it, and willfully turn away from it, and have their ears tickled with fables. We also referred to the solemn charge of the Apostle to preach the Word—nothing else; they were enjoined to hold to words they had heard of him, in flesh and love which are in Christ Jesus. He was not speaking of mere words of truth, of truth;—truths they could not be saved without believing. Truths their faith lovingly laid hold of, showing that it was God's words he gave utterance to, because he tells us in Rom. x. 8 that it was the Word of faith he preached, and at the 17th verse he shows what he means by the Word of faith, viz., that faith cometh by hearing the Word of God.

BUT SAVING WORDS

It seems almost a shame to be obliged to say to those who have heard it so often, that this same apostle says in Eph. iv. that and consequently there is only one hope. How could there be two hopes when there is only one set of blessings promised? The Spirit in Heb. vi. 18 speaks of the hope (singular) set before us, and the Apostle speaks of himself and his brethren as having laid hold of that hope, and of having it as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast. This does not look like guessing or thinking one's way to glory. Nothing could be more definite than God's covenants of promise confirmed by his oath, in order that those who lay hold upon them may have strong consolation, because the Word and oath show that two immutable things make it impossible for him to lie. It is not a question of definite or indefinite statement; but one of veracity;

THERE IS ONLY ONE FAITH

DOES GOD LIE

or can he lie? God never in a single instance speaks as if there was a liability or possibility of being misunderstood by man in matters relating to his Great Salvation. Every utterance from God on this subject goes to show that, on the part of man, God's overtures are rejected or neglected or such hardness and wickedness of heart as to make them impervious to his gracious invitations. Said Jesus, Ye will not come unto me, that ye might have life." And Paul says, as we have seen, that they will not endure sound doctrine: and turn away their ears from the truth.

BECAUSE OF UNBELIEF

We do not find Paul apologizing for any because they could not see things just as he did. They could have seen it if they would. As a rule the men and women who held hold of the hope set before them in the gospel promises he proclaimed as the power of God unto salvation were not or learning either. We find him saying in 1 Cor. i. 17-31 that Christ sent him to preach the gospel not with wisdom of speech lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect.....and that the world of wisdom knew not God, and that it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe; [no others]. And then he tells them, practically, to for proof that they had neither been called out of the world into Christ because they were wise or mighty or noble. Says he, "For ye see your calling, brethren now that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called, but God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise, and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty, and the base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to naught things that are, that no flesh should glory in his presence; but of him are ye, in Christ Jesus, who is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness and sanctification and redemption."

REMARKABLE FOR MENTAL CALIBRE

The matter in hand is beautifully set forth by James in his second chapter and sixth verse, where he says,—"Hearken, my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom which he had promised to them that love him." And says Jesus, Matt. xviii 3 "Verily I say unto you except ye be converted and become as little children ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." In what respect they should become like little children the next verse shows: whosoever therefore
